1. Enrollment in the public elementary and secondary schools increased 4.6 per cent from 1930 to 1933. The enrollment in grades 9 to 12 increased 37.6 per cent and the average daily attendance increased 6.9 per cent during the same years. There was an increase of 1.2 per cent in the total enrollment from 1932 to 1933.

2. The number of teachers decreased 1.2 per cent from 1932 to 1933.

3. In 1930, twenty-seven per cent of all pupils enrolled in the public elementary and secondary schools were over age for their grade, that is, they had for some reason failed to be promoted as rapidly as would normally be expected. In 1934 the per cent of pupils over age had declined to 24 per cent.

4. The ratio in per cent between the number of pupils eight and nine years of age and the number of pupils 16 and 17 years of age is generally considered a good index of the holding power of the public schools. On this basis in 1929-30 the holding power was 33.6 per cent while in 1933-34 the holding power had risen to 54.5 per cent.

5. The number of one-teacher schools decreased 12.3 per cent from 1930 to 1933.

6. The number of high school graduates increased 36.5 per cent from 1930 to 1933.

7. The enrollment in the kindergarten increased seven per cent from 1930 to 1933.

8. Enrollment in continuation schools dropped from 42,685 in 1930 to 4,315 in 1934, a decrease of 889 per cent. This decrease was due to economic and social conditions, and to the NRA regulations.

9. Fifty per cent of 1,282 districts of the 2,564 districts operating schools in 1933 had an average daily attendance of less than 245 pupils per district.

10. During 1933, 44.9 per cent of the school districts, enrolling 77.5 per cent of the pupils, operated their elementary schools over 160 days.

11. Thirty-three and five tenths per cent of the pupils in the secondary schools were enrolled in districts offering a school term of over 180 days.

12. In 1835, the first year the Free School Act was in operation, there were 150,838 pupils enrolled. In 1933, there were 1,990,940 pupils enrolled. This was an increase of 1,220 per cent. From 1830 to 1930 the total population of Pennsylvania increased 614 per cent.

DEPARTMENT OF MILITARY AFFAIRS

David J. Davis, Adjutant General

To the Governor:

Herewith is a brief report of the work of the Department of Military Affairs during your administration.

The usual appropriations to the Department were reduced during this period as part of the State's economy program. At the same time, curtailment of Federal funds for equipment and uniforms resulted in a heavier drain on State funds.

While there has been a slight reduction in attendance at drills and camp in 1934 the efficiency of the Pennsylvania National Guard remains at a high standard.

Fayette County Strike Duty

On July 29, 1933, the Governor issued a proclamation stating that "It has been represented to me that riotous conditions exist in various sections of Fayette County, whereby the lives and property, peace and safety of the people are threatened, which the civil authorities are unable to suppress."

At the time the proclamation was issued a portion of the Pennsylvania National Guard, including the 112th Infantry, was in summer training at Mount Gretna and the 2nd Battalion, 112th Infantry, with auxiliary detachments, approximately three hundred men, was ordered to take station at Brownsville, and render any assistance necessary to the civil authorities. This active duty resulted in no loss of life. The Battalion was relieved from duty on August 12th and returned to its home station in Erie. With reference to the satisfactory manner in which the tour of duty was performed, the Commanding Officer of the Battalion was commended by the Governor in the following language: "I was delighted at the fine spirit with which the citizens of Fayette County received you and your men, and I am particularly proud that you conducted yourselves in such a way that the warm spirit of friendship was not only continued, but strengthened. The mutual understanding thus created has had a most important influence on the whole conduct of this great strike, which stands alone in the peaceableness of the behavior of the 100,000 workers concerned."

Veterans' Compensation or Bonus

On November 7, 1933, the voters of Pennsylvania authorized a loan of fifty million dollars to pay compensation or bonus to veterans of the World War and the Spanish War, who were residents of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania at the time they entered the Federal Service.

The necessary legislation to make the payment of compensation operative and placing the Adjutant General in charge of this distribution was approved by the Governor on January 5, 1934. Blank application forms were distributed by the office of the Adjutant General in February and more than 200,000 applications were received by the end of the month, a number which was unprecedented in the experience of other States which had paid a similar bonus.

More than ten million dollars were paid in each of the months of March, April, May; the payments in June exceeded three million dollars and in July exceeded one million dollars. The report for November 26th shows the following payments:

Number of Claims paid	304,342
Average amount per claim	$139.60
Total amount paid	$42,488,990.00

There are at present approximately 10,000 claims unpaid, which have been delayed for investigation as to residence, guardianship, and other questions involving the applicant's right to compensation under the provisions of the law authorizing its payment.

Development of the New Military Reservation

On the recommendation of the Military Reservation Commission a new Military Reservation consisting of more than twelve thousand acres has been acquired at Indiantown Gap, Lebanon County.

Three complete artillery regimental camp sites have been developed and several miles of improved highways built. Telephone and electric power lines have been extended to the area. It is proposed to develop a camp where 20,000 men can live and train efficiently.

A water system and twelve mess halls have been constructed from Public Works Administration funds at a cost of approximately $173,000.00.

Twenty-three mess halls, forty latrines and bath-houses, and eight thousand feet of sewerage have been constructed from C.W.A., L.W.D. and State funds at a cost of approximately $200,000, and 30,000 feet of sewer pipe is stored on the ground for the completion of the sewer system, now under construction.

This development has given the 28th Division the same training facilities which were made available to it by the Federal Government in 1917-1918, and in 1934, for the first time since the World War it permitted the organization to train as a Division during the summer training camp and established an increase in its efficiency which will be permanent.

When completed no Military Reservation in the eastern part of the United States will equal its facilities for training and accommodation of the troops. Plans are now being made for the 29th Division, composed of National Guard Troops from Maryland, Virginia, District of Columbia, and Pennsylvania to train here in 1935.

The increased work pertaining to this development has been handled in the office of the Adjutant General and of the Superintendent of the Military Reservation without any increase in office employes.

Veterans

The Department has greatly increased its contacts with veterans. This has been brought about by payment of compensation and veteran's relief, assistance to veterans in preparing claims, and publication of the compilation of laws pertaining to veterans and soldiers. Relief to veterans amounting to more than one million dollars has been disbursed under the supervision of the Veteran's Commission. This increased work in the office of the Adjutant General has been performed without any corresponding increase of office employes.

Armory Board

An appropriation of $250,000.00 was made by the 1931 regular session of the Legislature for the erection of armories and the purchase of land. This amount was later reduced to $80,000.00 by the 1932 Extraordinary Session of the Legislature.

The main accomplishments under this appropriation of $80,000.00 were as follows:

(a) The erection of a warehouse building at Harrisburg to accommodate four units of the Pennsylvania National Guard that were without armory quarters, at a cost of $25,500.00.

(b) The erection of storage sheds in connection with the Logan Armory at Pittsburgh to house trucks and tractors, at a cost of $24,000.00.

(c) The acquirement of a property at Phoenixville, which matter is now pending with the Department of Property and Supplies at a cost of $24,000.00.

Other Matters

The State Athletic Commission continues the high character of its administration of the laws governing boxing and wrestling exhibitions. Without such supervision these sports would soon fall into disrepute. The expenses of the Commission are offset by the fees that are collected; it is self-supporting.

The Soldiers and Sailors Home at Erie maintains approximately the same population—296. Inspections by the Federal Government and auditors' reports indicate that it is efficiently managed.

After conference with various committees appointed by the Governor, this department was reorganized on September 1, 1932. The Office of the Adjutant General is the administrative office for the Department of Military Affairs. Functioning directly under this office is the Headquarters 28th Division, State Arsenal, and Military Reservation. The Veterans' Compensation Division was expanded to approximately two hundred fifty employes in June, 1934, is now reduced to approximately seventy-five employes and will be further reduced by January 1, 1935.

It is believed that the organization of the Department has been materially improved. The elimination of some employes in 1933 and the increased work put on the Department by the Soldiers' Relief, payment of compensation, and the development of the Reservation, made it mandatory that every employe work at a maximum efficiency with no duplications or crossing of communications. This has been accomplished by the reorganization.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT

Charles H. Graff, Acting Secretary

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Insurance Department during your Administration.

There are 1,038 insurance companies, associations, and exchanges operating in the State of Pennsylvania, with total assets as of December 31, 1933, of $24,475,309,961.

These companies annually pay into the State Treasury approximately $6,500,000 in taxes, in addition to approximately a half million dollars in fees collected by the Insurance Department for agents, brokers, public adjusters' licenses, examination of insurance companies, and certifications, and various other services rendered by the Department.

The purpose of the Insurance Department, which is charged with the enforcement of the insurance laws of the Commonwealth, is to protect the public, the insurance companies, the agents, and the brokers, so that this most important factor of the life of the Commonwealth may be conducted for the benefit of all.

Increased Work

During this Administration the activities of the Department have increased in many ways.

The examination and audit of the Workmen's Insurance Fund was added to the duties of the Department. Previous examinations of this fund were made by the Auditor General and auditing firms, but the Legislature at the 1933 session ordered the Department to do it. A thorough audit has been made. The result is that the Fund has been placed on a modern accounting basis.

The examination of insurance companies has become increasingly important because of the financial stress occurring during these last few years. Examinations of all companies required greater care. In spite of this increased work in the examination of insurance companies, 621 such examinations were made as against 638 during the preceding administration. And this in spite of extra duties placed on the division charged with the examination of insurance companies.

The Department has established a uniform accounting system for domestic mutual fire insurance companies, of which there are 254. Establishing such a system has decreased the cost of examinations of this class of companies.

Fifty title insurance companies previously operating in the Commonwealth under the supervision of the Department of Banking were placed under the jurisdiction of the Insurance Department by Act No. 119, approved May 17, 1933, P. L. 798, and such companies are receiving the cooperation of the Department in working out their problems.

The difficult times have brought forth an unusual number of irresponsible companies dealing in life and health and accident insurance, which make a practice of offering insurance protection by advertising, and through unlicensed agents. Approximately 150 unlicensed companies, and companies failing to appoint the Insurance Commissioner to secure service in our courts, have been known to be attempting to operate in the Commonwealth.

By Act 208 of the General Assembly, approved May 24, 1933, which was recommended by the Insurance Department, newspapers and radio stations, or any publication are prohibited from advertising or broadcasting advertisements of unlicensed and unauthorized insurance companies or agents. The Department, through prosecutions of unlicensed agents and warnings to the public, has rendered an invaluable service in protecting the public from sending their money to companies which do not afford sound protection.

Policy Holder Protected

Policy holders of life insurance companies in this State were protected from the hysteria which swept the country when banks were closed during the banking holiday. To protect the policy holders of insurance companies from unnecessary and irrational withdrawals of cash values the Insurance Commissioner took immediate action to prevent such withdrawals except in small amounts in cases of established necessity. This action was confirmed by the Legislature on April 26, 1933, when Act No. 50 became a law.

The Legislature, by Act of June 23, 1931, P. L. 904, passed an act sponsored by the Insurance Department, prohibiting the use of policies, contracts, forms, etc., unless approved by the Department. The purpose of this act was to protect the public from vicious policies or forms, as well as those with obscure conditions. The Department has set up and established a system for the careful analysis of insurance policies and forms used in the Commonwealth.

There are in the State a large number of domestic fraternal societies. These associations have been examined by the Department for the purpose of putting them on a sound actuarial basis, as required by the Act of April 26, 1929, P. L. 796.

From 1931 to 1934 the Insurance Department has taken action on 19,160 claims or complaints. Of these the Department was able to adjust 18,510 claims without burdening the courts with these cases. The claims adjusted involved an amount of settlement of $1,092,601.65, a credible showing in comparison with the same function of the Department in the previous Administration, which handled 7,548 claims, settled 7,099 claims for an amount of $372,701.45.

The examination of insurance agents and brokers has been a very important function of the Insurance Department. During the previous Administration 46,674 examinations of agents and brokers were made. This increased to 49,394 during the present Administration.

Economies Effected

On the first of January, 1931, there were 90 employes of the Insurance Department with total salaries of $221,620 a year. During this Administration we have been able to increase the number of employes to 95, but, by readjustment of functions and salaries, reduce the annual salary expense to $203,340.

The total funds allocated and appropriated to the Department for these four years is $1,198,329 of which it is estimated that over $37,000 will be turned back to the State Treasury. The percentage of expense of the Insurance Department to revenue produced and turned into the State is 3.7%, which compares well with states such as New York, with 7.6%, Massachusetts with 5.5%, and New Jersey with 16%.

In the interests of economy and efficiency, the previously separated divisions of agents and brokers were consolidated, and the number of employes in this office reduced from 19 to 14. The number of forms used in the licensing of insurance agents was reduced approximately 60%. A new system of licensing agents was established, which increased accuracy and dispensed with the services and expense of 10 to 14 temporary employes annually hired for 6 to 8 weeks.

The Department staggered the expiration dates of agents' licenses so that the Department was not burdened with the renewal of some 130,000 licenses at one time, but could handle them in groups of 40,000 and 50,000 at three different times during the year.

The recent establishment of an Auditing Section in the Department for the purpose of auditing the annual statements of all admitted companies and detecting or investigating any items or conditions which might adversely affect their financial standing, is of paramount importance to the public and those interested in the insurance business.

In years past it was necessary to have seven or eight examiners from the Philadelphia Office of the Department assigned annually to Harrisburg for several months to audit these statements, which procedure was very expensive and most unsatisfactory.

After this new section is properly functioning, the Department will be able to curtail more promptly the activities of all insurance companies of other states which are not financially responsible, or properly managed, and under similar conditions to require prompt corrective measures with respect to insurance companies incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth.

Sound Condition of Companies

Of 28 stock fire insurance companies, 258 mutual fire insurance companies, 11 life insurance companies, 27 casualty insurance companies, 57 fraternal societies, 74 beneficial associations, and 54 insurance organizations of other kinds domiciled in this Commonwealth, three casualty insurance companies, four small mutual fire insurance companies, and seven small beneficial associations have been taken over by the Insurance Commissioner for liquidation during this Administration. The Insurance Commissioner was also appointed Ancillary Receiver for eight insurance companies incorporated under the laws of other states, as the volume of business in Pennsylvania required the services of the Insurance Department in the liquidation of those companies.

The sound condition of Pennsylvania companies, the excellent record they have maintained during this period of financial and economic distress, reflects the capable management of our companies and the proper supervision exercised by the Insurance Department.

DEPARTMENT OF BANKING

William D. Gordon, Secretary

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Department of Banking in your Administration.

A correct idea of the great importance of the duties resting upon the Department can be gained only by contemplation of the enormous sums entrusted to the Department in the financial institutions under its supervision. The work of the Department in managing and liquidating 147 closed institutions, with assets of a book value of $500,000,000 appraised at $227,000,000, and of supervising approximately 400 banking institutions, 512 small loan companies, 27 private banks with assets totaling $2,650,000,000, trust funds of $5,034,000,000, and corporate trust funds of $5,747,000,000, and National banks with trust funds of $402,000,000, and corporate trusts of $193,000,000, during the greatest financial crisis in the history of the United States, has been the most tremendous task ever confronting any administration.

Bank Closings

At the outset, the Department of Banking was faced with a general collapse of the banking structure of the Commonwealth. At the start of the administration some 15 banks were in possession of the Department of Banking. Among them was the Bankers Trust Company of Philadelphia, which affected 115,000 depositors, or an equivalent of one out of every five families in Philadelphia.

It soon became evident that the tottering financial structure would result in a wholesale closing of banks and it was most important that a real business-like supervision be organized to protect the interests of depositors and to rehabilitate the entire banking structure. In connection with the examination of banks, a system for the evaluation of investment securities was evolved in May 1931, which established the values of securities upon the basis of their intrinsic value rather than upon the basis of stock market quotations. This plan was presented to the clearing house associations of the Commonwealth and met with their unanimous approval. In September, 1931, it was presented at the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks. It was adopted in principle by the Federal Comptroller of the Currency, who has supervision over all National banks.

The Department worked closely with clearing house associations in various parts of the State with a view to obtaining help for the banks. At the same time, banks which clearly demonstrated their inability to withstand the financial storm were weeded out. The problem was handled in such a manner that confidence was not impaired. Mergers of banks were initiated by the Department and assistance was obtained for worthy banks from other institutions. However, bank failures continued and reached a peak in the month of October, 1931, when 40 banks were taken into possession.

The failure of the banking structures in other States, where moratoria were declared, and the suspension of obligations of the Federal Reserve Banks of New York and Chicago on the morning of March 4, 1933, necessitated further steps to protect Pennsylvania banks and a "Banking Holiday" was declared by Governor Pinchot on the morning of March 4th. This action prevented the wholesale withdrawal of deposits from Pennsylvania banks by corporations and individuals from other States, as well as a stampede on the banks by an hysterical public. On Monday morning, March 6th, President Roosevelt declared a "National Bank Holiday" and on March 13th, the Secretary of Banking and the Federal Reserve Bank officials reopened the non-member and member banks over a period of three days.

As a result of the Glass-Steagall Bill, a system of Federal Deposit Insurance became effective as of January 2, 1934. The Secretary of Banking certified to the condition of each non-member bank for admission to the Guarantee Fund.

It should be noted that every State bank in Pennsylvania licensed to conduct regular banking business on March 13, 14, and 15, 1933, was capable of meeting the tests for membership in the Guarantee Corporation at Washington. This clearly revealed that the weak banks had already been taken out of the picture and that every bank permitted to carry on at the end of the National Bank Holiday was later worthy of admission to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Liquidating Closed Banks

The Department was obliged almost over night to select competent Deputy Receivers and to organize a Closed Bank Division that might maintain a rigid control over liquidations to protect fully the interests of depositors. A total of 147 banks, with assets having a book value of $500,000,000 appraised at $227,000,000 came under direct supervision.

A policy of a business-like and orderly liquidation of assets of closed banks to avoid throwing them upon a depressed market was adopted. A scientific plan of disposing of stocks and bonds in the market, after a complete analysis of their intrinsic values, was developed, so that the highest prices were obtained from time to time without depressing the market. A thorough study was made of some $100,000,000 worth of real estate to determine what was income producing and what was non-income producing. In the former group a determination was made to protect values rather than to sell the properties at public sale or at tremendous losses. A study was made of the non-income producing group to ascertain whether the equity warranted holding the property for an improvement in value. Where this was not justified, leave to abandon was sought from Court so that there would not be a further dissipation of the assets of the institution. Finally, commercial paper covering loans to individuals and corporations was carefully reviewed and wherever possible the borrower was given a reasonable opportunity to amortize the loan so as to avoid legal suits and destruction of his business, resulting in increased unemployment.

The Secretary obtained the gratuitous services of sixty outstanding bankers and business men to act on advisory boards in connection with important liquidating problems. Twelve of these men were organized into the First District Realization Corporation, comprising the greater Philadelphia area and twelve men were organized into similar groups in the greater Pittsburgh, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Harrisburg areas.

As a result of the business-like organization of the liquidating division of closed banks, the Department, despite the lack of proper markets and proper prices during the past three years, has succeeded in converting into cash sufficient assets appraised at $227,000,000 to make possible as of August 15, 1934, the paying off of some $52,000,000 of bills payable owed by the banks at the time of closing, $11,000,000 of preferred claims and secured deposits, and to have available for dividends already paid out or in the course of payment some $91,000,000. Moreover, the scientific plan of handling these assets enabled the Department to conserve values which otherwise would have been destroyed had a ruthless plan of liquidating in a depressed market been pursued. The remaining assets are now being used as a basis for obtaining loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, out of which several millions of dollars will be distributed as additional dividends to the depositors of the closed banks.

Each Deputy Receiver is paid on a basis of a reasonable salary and absolutely no fees are being paid to anyone. Every step possible has been taken by the Department to obtain the largest dividend possible for the depositors and to conserve values for further realization over a period of three to five years, with the hoped-for return of prosperity.

Banking Laws

As a result of the first hand knowledge obtained by the Department in the open and closed banks with respect to irregular and improper banking practices, the Department prepared recommendations for the necessary banking laws to strengthen the banking structure of the Commonwealth and to prevent, so far as possible, a recurrence of the former conditions. Banking hearings were conducted before the Senate and House Banking Committees and before the bankers of the Commonwealth, at which the Secretary advocated the banking legislation needed to protect depositors. These proposed laws were submitted to the Department of Justice for codification and resulted in the Department of Banking Code and the Banking Code, which became effective July 1, 1933.

Without question, Pennsylvania now has one of the finest sets of laws on banking and one of the best systems of supervision that can be found in any of the forty-eight states.

Building and Loan Laws

At the same time, laws were prepared and similar hearings were held with respect to the proposed Building and Loan legislation and on July 1, 1933, the new Building and Loan Code became effective. This Code eliminates the practices which brought about a collapse of many of the Building and Loan Associations of the Commonwealth and affords added real protection to the shareholders for the future. The Department of Banking, under the provisions of this Code, is placing under restrictions Building and Loan Associations which are unable to meet their withdrawals and maturities. This will give the officials of the associations an opportunity to reorganize or merge the associations along sound lines.

Banks Operating Upon a Restricted Basis

One of the important pieces of legislation proposed by this administration was that of permitting banks unable to meet the unreasonable demands of their depositors to enter upon a restricted plan of operation. This plan was presented in the Senate and House, was unanimously adopted and became known as the Sordoni Act. This plan affords banks operating under its provisions an opportunity of reorganizing their capital structures so that they may be in a position to obtain licenses to operate upon an unrestricted basis. Since November 1, 1933, when there were 51 banks operating on a restricted basis, 48 have been reorganized to conduct a regular banking business, while three have had their plans of reorganization formulated and approved by the Department and should be reopened by January 15th.

Reports

Aside from four Called Reports and from one to three regular examination reports per annum, the number varying with the condition of the institution, condensed weekly reports, as well as monthly reports, have been obtained from each open institution. The data was tabulated so that the Department was in a position to determine quickly the condition of each bank from week to week and to point out their weak points in incipient stages. Meetings of boards of directors are immediately called when questions arise so that the Department may advise the directors to bring about a correction of the conditions. During the years 1932 and 1933 approximately 225 conferences a year were held to discuss with the officers and directors in person the condition of their banks as reported by the Examiners. This work represents an estimated increase of 500% over the preceding Administration. Impairments of deposits, capital and surplus of more than 100 banks have been removed in large measure through cash contributions or by the deposit of cash or securities by the directors with the Department. These assets now approximate $3,500,000. The policy of supervision, in effect, has made possible the helping of banks long before they are in serious difficulty. This has protected the depositors to the utmost.

Peculations

The Department has uncovered frauds resulting in the arrest and prosecution of approximately 125 banking officials and approximately 175 building and loan association officials. It is safe to say that more embezzlements and defalcations have been discovered during the past four years than were discovered during the entire prior history of the Department. Without fear or favor, the Department has vigorously prosecuted persons who have been guilty of violating the trust reposed in them by the depositors and shareholders.

Building and Loan

Building and loan associations have been given added attention by the Department of Banking because of the slump in the real estate market, which has affected the value of the assets of these associations. In all cases where it was necessary, the Department has, through the use of Section 808 of the new Building and Loan Code, placed building and loan associations on a restricted basis, thereby limiting withdrawals and segregating receipts. These associations, with any recovery in the real estate market, will be able to resume their normal functions.

Other Items

Private banks under the supervision of the Department of Banking have been rigidly supervised and likewise the supervision of small loan companies has been strengthened.

There follows a statement as of June 30, 1934, showing the aggregate general resources, trust funds and corporate trust funds of the banking institutions subject to the supervision of the Department, and the number of depositors therein.

Statement of the consolidated resources and liabilities of all Pennsylvania State banks, trust companies, savings institutions and private banks; also trust funds of State institutions and national banks doing a fiduciary business on the date indicated.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

John A. McSparran, Secretary

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Department of Agriculture during your Administration.

During these four years of depression, every branch of the Department has been called upon to meet additional demands for work with a necessarily reduced personnel and budget. In some cases the work has more than doubled, and in most offices the increase has been from 25 to 50 per cent. At the same time, exclusive of the Farm Show and the Egg Laying Contest, there has been a reduction of over sixteen per cent in the regular personnel.

Egg Laying Contest

An appropriation to start the Pennsylvania Egg Laying Contest—the first official contest of its kind in the history of Pennsylvania—was made in May, 1931. This contest has grown into one of the largest standard contests in the United States and in 1933 one of the Pennsylvania entries made the second highest record of any pen in any standard contest in the United States. Nothing has done more to place Pennsylvania prominently on the poultry breeding map of the world than this contest. It has proved the high quality of Pennsylvania poultry for egg production.

Bovine Tuberculosis Eradication

During the four-year period, 3,075,000 tuberculin tests were made of cattle, 107,353 reactors were removed, and $5,144,730.48 was paid to the owners as indemnity. Of this total indemnity, $3,261,810.09 came from the State and $1,883,920.39 from the Federal Government. More than 96 per cent of the cattle in the Commonwealth have been tested and found free of tuberculosis. These tested cattle make up all the herds in sixty-three entire counties and in many townships in the remaining four counties. The goal of a bovine tuberculosis-free State can be reached by January 1, 1936. This work is of vital concern to the public. The human death rate from all forms of tuberculosis, other than pulmonary, has been reduced more than one-half during the past ten years. Many things have played a part in this improved health situation, but medical officials agree that the wiping out of tubercular cattle has been a big factor.

Dog Law Enforcement

A new high record in number of dogs licensed and a new low record in amount paid for dog damage claims has just been made. Approximately 525,000 dogs were licensed in Pennsylvania during 1934. This is 16,000 more than were ever licensed before, and almost twice the number licensed in 1921 when dog law enforcement was in the hands of county officials exclusively. This better control of dogs has saved human life, protected good dogs, and removed one of the greatest shackles to the Pennsylvania sheep industry. Since June 1, 1933, the State Dog Law enforcement agents have been appraising damages to livestock and poultry caused by dogs and supervising the settlement of these damage claims. This change, made in accordance with an amendment to the Dog Law, has eliminated the costs of investigation and mileage formerly paid local appraisers. Together with careful appraising this has saved the Commonwealth thousands of dollars.

The work in the State's livestock disease diagnostic laboratory more than doubled in 1931-1934 compared to the previous four years. The number of specimens received for examination increased from 750,637 in 1927-1930 to 1,747,499 during 1931-1934. These examinations and their related investigational and regulatory work, serve as the very foundation of the effective statewide livestock disease control program now under way.

The Battle for Wholesome Meat

With the exception of New York, more meat is consumed in Pennsylvania, than in any other State. There is also more direct selling of meat by farmers and small local butchers to consumers here than in any other section of the country. This means that the State meat hygiene work reaches into every home. During the four years, annual inspection has been made of 3,000 more meat establishments, and twice as many carcasses, as in the four preceding years.

Poultry Disease Control

Each year shows an increase in the demand for practical and efficient poultry disease control measures. There has been an annual increase from 135,000 to 350,000 in the last four years over the previous four years in number of chickens tested to eliminate infected breeders and provide disease-free sources of hatching eggs.

European Corn Borer

The European corn borer for a time threatened the entire corn growing industry of the State. Fortunately, a practical method of clean farming, available to every corn grower in the infested area, was developed and demonstrated as a successful large scale control measure. During the past four years, a corn borer control program has been completed and the infestation reduced in the oldest-infested, northwestern counties, until today it is almost negligible in extent.

Potato Wart

The eradication of potato wart, a disease which became established in certain central areas of the State more than fifteen years ago, has been a difficult task. The State, however, has within the past two years, developed a method for eradicating this disease which now promises effective elimination of the trouble.

Interstate Trade

More quarantines and regulations on the importation of orchard and horticultural products have been adopted by states throughout the Union during recent years than ever before. Consequently, Pennsylvania shippers of these products to other states have found greater need for the services of the Department than in the past. Although this increased demand for service has taxed the officials to the limit, full service has been given and the markets of our shippers protected.

Gipsy Moth

Two years ago an infestation of Gipsy moth—one of the worst pests of plant and forest growths known—was discovered in Pennsylvania. It was immediately recognized as a serious problem and everything possible was done to begin eradication and control work without delay. Gratifying progress has been made in the campaign. This work is being conducted cooperatively with the United States Department of Agriculture. It has been a source of work relief in the infested localities.

Increase in Other Plant Activities

There has been an increase in required services such as nursery inspection, apiary inspection, seed regulation, certification of seeds and plants, distribution of parasites and identification work ranging from 20 to 200 per cent during the four years ending January 1, 1935. Inexperienced people going into farming have encountered many pest control problems which have required attention. Unemployed people have taken up the production of nursery stock and certified seeds. This has demanded additional attention on the part of regulatory officials. All of this service, in addition to the regular work, has been carried on during this four-year period with a slightly reduced personnel and a thirteen per cent cut in the budget.

Apples Top World Markets

Of the commercial crops grown, Pennsylvania now stands first of all the States in the proportion of fruits, vegetables, and cannery products which are officially inspected for grade as a protection to both producer and consumer. During the four years, 14,369 carlot shipments were certified compared to 8,082 in the previous four years. In a similar way, the amount of cannery raw products graded increased from 66,275,774 pounds in 1927-1930 to 242,317,566 pounds in 1931-1934.

During recent years, Pennsylvania-grown apples have repeatedly topped world markets, bringing premiums from $.25 to $1.00 a barrel in Europe over corresponding varieties from competing areas. All the apples shipped from Pennsylvania for export are now inspected and it is largely through this service that our apples are receiving world preference.

Grades for Canned Goods

The latest departmental grading project—the grading of canned and dried products—promises to be of great importance. Not only will this give the canners in the Commonwealth an opportunity to have their products certified but it will also introduce a more efficient and unbiased method of checking deliveries to State institutions. It will give Pennsylvania canners an equal opportunity with others outside the State to compete for the State institutions' business since bidding will be on quality and grade as well as on a price basis. From the grading work of canned goods already done, it is apparent that a great saving will result to the Commonwealth in the purchase of supplies for institutional use and the qualities will be improved. Many lots of goods offered by the low bidders have been found to be very deficient in quality and some even unfit for human consumption.

Better Egg Marketing

Since 1931, the most outstanding development in the poultry work of the State has been the official grading of eggs at auction markets. The first egg auction was started in July, 1931. The number increased until there are now six. To date, nearly 8,000,000 dozen eggs have been sold by this method and Pennsylvania farmers have realized an additional return of over $240,000 for this one product alone. In addition, poultrymen who have not sold through the auctions, have benefited since the price level has been increased on all eggs in areas covered by the auction market. Much time has been required of the Department specialists in training, licensing, and supervising the twenty-one egg inspectors at these auctions.

Poultry Improvement

The poultry standardization work, which comprises the selection of birds for the purpose of developing high-grade, disease-free flocks, has increased from an inspection of 674,886 birds in the period from 1927 to 1930 to 999,000 in the last four years. Inspections have been made on 1903 farms during this period. All of this work has been accomplished with less help than previously.

A Bigger Market for Wheat

A special effort has been made during this period to increase the local consumption of Pennsylvania-grown wheat. Flour made by blending home-grown wheat with stronger types of wheat grown in other states, has met with increasing popularity. The State institutions have cooperated in developing and using this flour. One mill alone reports the sale of 12,000 barrels of a blended flour to our State institutions and commercial bakeries during the past year.

More Public Markets

In spite of a downward trend in other states, the number of farmers' markets in Pennsylvania has continued to increase. There are now 135 farmers' markets operating in Pennsylvania compared with 126 in 1930. During the past four years, the Department has given assistance to nine groups in establishing new, enclosed markets in nine cities and made suggestions for the improvement of markets in many other cities.

Cooperative Marketing

More than one-third of all Pennsylvania farmers are now members of cooperative associations. This is a gain of about 10,000 in the last four years. During this period, the State has assisted 38 new agricultural cooperatives in establishing themselves and has aided many others in reorganizing, refinancing, changing marketing plans, and the like. The volume of business being done cooperatively by farmers is approximately the same as four years ago despite the depression.

Complaints Against Dealers

During the past four years, 253 complaints from producers against dealers and commission merchants were received and investigated. In many of the cases, the Department was able to bring the dealers and the producer together and reach a fair settlement. In others it was necessary to advise the producers to bring suit for recovery of the sum due them. The State should have more specific power to deal with such cases.

Reduced Budget for Market Activities

The market activities of this Department have been carried on at the greatly increased rate with a 40 per cent reduction in budget and a 10 per cent reduction in personnel.

Food Products

During the past four years over 30,000 samples of suspicious food products were taken by field agents in their constant vigil to protect the public health. Largely as a result of this close checking up, the general quality of food sold in Pennsylvania is good and remarkably free from adulteration and misbranding. The industrial depression, however, has made it exceedingly difficult to maintain this high standard, especially in the face of a necessary 10 per cent reduction in personnel and a 30 per cent reduction in budget devoted to the work.

Round Up Dishonest Milk Dealers

A special effort has been made during the period to round up dishonest milk dealers as a protection to dairymen. The three dairy inspectors employed by the Department have been kept extremely busy check-testing milk samples and making investigations of milk plants. More than a dozen unscrupulous dealers were prosecuted and required to rebate to farmers thousands of dollars unlawfully taken from them. These dairy inspectors have been called upon to carry double their activities in an effort to save farmers unnecessary loss.

New Work

Two outstanding accomplishments during this period have been the enforcement of the new Ice Cream and Bakery Laws. A total of 2,800 bakeries and 1,000 ice cream plants have been inspected and licensed during the past two years. This work has been done with no additional field inspectors, the activities being absorbed by the regular food inspectors even though there have been fewer food inspectors employed than formerly.

Crop Reporting and Information

The work in crop and livestock reporting and in the general information service has more than doubled since the beginning of the depression. The division has been flooded with inquiries from unemployed urban families considering occupying abandoned farms and looking to the Department to furnish free seed and general agricultural direction. Estimates made by the Department on crop production and livestock numbers for each county have proven of paramount importance to the Federal Agricultural Adjustment Program. Cash income estimates have aided Pennsylvania farmers in getting more adequate real estate and production credit from the Federal Government. The monthly statistics on farm labor supply and demand have given State agencies a picture of unemployment conditions in rural districts. Ten thousand farmers cooperate and give their services free in this crop reporting work.

This expansion of services has been carried effectively with a twenty percent cut in the budget which required complete reorganization of the division in 1931.

DEPARTMENT OF FORESTS AND WATERS

Lewis E. Staley, Secretary

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Department of Forests and Waters during your Administration.

Contribution of the State Forests to the Relief of Unemployment

The State Forests of Pennsylvania have played a leading part in fighting unemployment in the Commonwealth.

When the Civilian Conservation Corps Camps were being considered by the President, Pennsylvania was the first state to apply for, and name the location of fifty camps within the State forests. Thirty-six hours after the plan was discussed in Washington by the State Foresters of the Federal Government, Pennsylvania's plan was before the President and approved by him. Only a few weeks later a plan for fifty additional camps was submitted to Washington and approved. Train loads of men were moved into Pennsylvania in quick succession and just as promptly these men were put to work. There are now 94 CCC camps in the State, 83 of which are located on State forest and State game lands. These provide employment to some 16,000 young men between the ages of 18 and 25.

Many outstanding accomplishments have resulted from this movement. Improvement cuttings have been made on 20,326 acres of State Forests, from which all dead and inferior tree growth has been removed. As a result, wood growth of the more desirable species on that area has been greatly stimulated. Stand improvement and roadside clean-up covered 1,373 miles of forest roads. This improvement greatly aided the forest fire control problem in every location where work was done. More than 3,500 acres have been reforested by planting. Control work for white pine blister rust has been, perhaps, the largest single operation. All currant and gooseberry bushes have been removed from more than 80,000 acres of State forest land. Insect control work has been done on more than 500 acres of State forest land.

State Forest Road Program

An outstanding achievement of this Administration in the Pennsylvania State forests, now comprising 1,647,880 acres, was the development of the greatest forest road construction program ever undertaken by any State. The Department took advantage of every dollars of Federal aid made available to it through the Civil Works Administration and the Emergency Conservation Work. As a result the State Forest and Public Use Program has been advanced from six to eight years ahead of schedule.

From the time the first purchase of State forest land was made by the Commonwealth, until April, 1933, when the first CCC Camp was established in Pennsylvania, the Department of Forests and Waters had been able to construct only 1,170 miles of improved earth roads for motor travel and open up an additional 1,270 miles of old wagon roads for forest protection purposes.

Since May, 1933, when CCC Camps were made available a greatly enlarged road program has been put into effect.

The Department has constructed 1,663 miles of new truck trails and maintained 3,690 miles of old roads on which little or no work was heretofore financially possible. In addition to the roads, 577 miles of horse and wagon trails have been constructed. About 600 miles of foot trails were provided where roads were found not necessary or undesirable.

This program has made almost every acre of the forests available to the public and readily accessible. Nearly every part of the State forests of Pennsylvania may now be reached by every citizen for camping, hunting, fishing, or nature study. Many desirable cabins and other necessary facilities have been made available.

Stream Improvement in the State Forests

The Department early in its history realized the vast possibilities for improving fishing conditions in the streams running through State forests. During the early part of the CCC operations, it was difficult to get the State's stream improvement program approved in Washington. Finally that was accomplished.

During 1933, approximately 375 fish dams were constructed and 30 miles of streams were otherwise improved. The program was greatly augmented during 1934, and by the end of this Administration nearly 1,200 fish dams will have been constructed, and more than 400 miles of streams will have been otherwise improved for fish propagation and protection.

Never in the history of the Department heretofore have funds been available for the construction of dams for recreational use only. At present twenty-one recreational dams of all sizes have been constructed or are in the process of being completed. These artificial lakes provide swimming, boating, and fishing facilities and create breeding places for water fowl. They vary in size from one to two hundred acres.

Forest Fire Control

There are ten million people in the Commonwealth, many of whom are using the State forests more than ever before. They have 13 million acres of forest land over which to work and play. This condition naturally creates a greater fire hazard and forest fires are sure to occur. During the past four years, continuous effort has been put forth by the Department to strengthen the ranks of the forest protection forces of the Commonwealth.

During the years 1931, 1932, and 1933, forest fires occurred in unusual numbers, but they were met and controlled quickly by 50,000 forest fire fighters trained and equipped to handle them. The result has been a decrease in the total acreage burned over and a reduction in average size of each fire. The use of untrained and unequipped forest fire fighters has been practically eliminated. The services and personal sacrifices of Pennsylvania's 4,000 forest fire wardens constitute a record of which the Commonwealth may well be proud.

During this Administration the State-wide forest fire observation system has been greatly enlarged. More than 90 per cent of the forest area of the Commonwealth is now afforded outstanding protection by our forest fire observation system. Detecting and locating forest fires has been made much more efficient by the addition of 22 steel observation towers, bringing the total of such stations to 146, and practically completing the primary tower system of the State. A few more secondary towers will be needed, but expenditures for these will be small.

During the past year and a half 1,500 miles of fire breaks were constructed in the State forests and 6,671 miles of forest fire hazards were eliminated by the CCC workers. We now have 850 miles of State-owned forest telephone lines in Pennsylvania, practically all of which are in excellent condition. This communication system between forest fire fighters and District Forester headquarters makes the forest fire problem much easier to handle than ever before.

Pymatuning Reservoir

The Pymatuning Reservoir, the largest stream regulation project ever undertaken in Pennsylvania, has been built during this Administration. It has an area of 17,000 acres and a capacity of 64 billion gallons. It was constructed primarily to increase the low flows in the Shenango and Beaver Rivers, but it will also reduce floods and greatly improve the sanitary conditions of streams it feeds. It is destined to become the greatest recreation project in the Commonwealth. Already many millions of small fish of species suitable to the water conditions have been planted and the recreation plan is being worked out. Its construction cost was about $3,720,000, a large part of which was expended during a time when unemployment was at its height. At least 10,000 men were benefited during the time it was being built. Storing water was begun in January, 1934, and by May, when the reservoir was only one-quarter full, it was necessary to release water for the benefit of the communities in the Shenango and Beaver Valleys, which were then suffering from the severest drought on record.

Other Improvements

For years approximately fourteen hundred acres of Tinicum Township, Delaware County, has suffered serious loss from floods due to breaks in the Darby Creek and Delaware River dikes. Several lives had already been lost. To correct this condition the Department undertook reconstruction of the Darby Creek dikes and has sponsored a project for reconstructing the Delaware River dikes. The former have been completed and the latter will, under satisfactory weather conditions, be completed by April 1, 1935.

Other important flood control projects, such as improvement of Brodhead Creek between Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg, Sandy Lick Creek Improvement at DuBois, and Jeannette Borough Flood Protection will materially reduce property damage in those areas.

On January 1, 1930, the annual publication of "Stream Flow Records of Pennsylvania," were four years in arrears. These records have been brought up to date without additional personnel.

Unquestionably the outstanding accomplishment in the Department of Forests and Waters during this Administration has been the increased efficiency of personnel. In the face of necessary curtailment of appropriations the work of the Forest Service and the Water Resources Service was almost doubled as a result of new activities created by the unemployment relief programs of the State and Federal Government. In many cases the Federal Government provided labor and State appropriations were used for material, supplies, and equipment for the men. Through that combination the Department was able to advance its program to a point which would ordinarily not have been reached for many years.

And this is significant: The salary payroll of the Department was decreased approximately $79,000 annually from that of the previous Administration and yet its personnel successfully handled the work. More than five and one-half million dollars in addition to the $7,488,260.30 provided by the State was involved.

DEPARTMENT OF MINES

Walter H. Glasgow, Secretary

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Department of Mines during your Administration.

Since the beginning of this Administration the Department of Mines has of necessity increased its activities and accomplishments. The depression presented many new problems which adversely affected the safety of the mines and the conditions of employment. Many mining operations were either temporarily or permanently abandoned due to lack of market for the coal or financial inability of the operator to continue in business. This condition resulted in a breakdown of the morale of the men engaged in the industry and made it increasingly difficult to obtain even a reasonable compliance with the requirements of the Mining Laws.

Safety

Irregular operation of the mines, many averaging only two days work each week, resulted in greatly increased hazards, particularly at the working faces in the mines. Both working and safety conditions have improved as a result of the adoption of the Bituminous Coal Code on October 8, 1933. The major accomplishments under the Code were the increase and stabilization of wages for mine workers and the fixing of minimum selling prices for the various grades of Bituminous coal. It is the consensus of opinion of the leaders of both Labor and Industry that the Coal Code has been the salvation of the industry and the continuation of the Code or some similar form of regulation is imperative for the future welfare of that industry. Notwithstanding the provisions in the Coal Code for the elimination of unfair competition, much difficulty has been encountered by the Code Authorities as a result of thousands of small mines being opened or old mines resuming operation, taking advantage of the more favorable selling prices adopted under the Code but otherwise failing, and in most cases refusing, to abide by the provisions of the Code as to wage scales and other fair trade practices, including the safety requirements of the State Mining Laws.

Mining Law Strengthened

In response to the demand for better and safer working conditions the Legislature amended the Mining Laws, effective January 2, 1934, placing all mines employing two or more men under the jurisdiction of the State Department of Mines—the minimum number before the amendment was ten men. This change in the law resulted in this Department's having the added responsibility of inspecting several thousand additional small mines scattered over the entire bituminous field, and many of them in almost inaccessible places.

On the first visit of the Mine Inspector many of these small mines were found to be operating under the most dangerous conditions and the immediate hazard to the workmen so great that they were removed from the mine and the operation of the mine ordered discontinued until reasonably safe working conditions were provided. This additional work has been done and can be continued without jeopardizing the supervision required for the larger mines even with the present reduced inspection force which lacks four of being the full complement of 30 Bituminous Inspectors.

The amendment to the Anthracite Mining Laws, having the same effect and effective date as in the bituminous field, added a comparatively small number of mines to the work of the inspection force and the need for increased supervision can be met without difficulty, notwithstanding the fact that there are at present only 18 instead of the full quota of 25 inspectors. The 7 vacancies, accumulated over a period of several years, resulted from deaths and retirements, and were continued in the interest of economy with reasonable assurance that the existing operating conditions and the short working time would warrant such action.

During this Administration the Department of Mines has not only carried forward its regular work, but has improved the supervision of the Mine Inspectors by closer contact between this office, the field forces, and the industry. This was accomplished early in the Administration by having the Deputy Secretaries of both Anthracite and Bituminous Divisions establish headquarters in the geographical center of activities to give close personal attention to mine inspection work, by having them study unusual hazards and the common causes of accidents resulting in personal injury, and by emphasizing at all times the necessity of finding and removing the cause of accidents before instead of after the accident. The result of this effort is demonstrated and more definitely shown by the reduced number of accidents in mines.

Accidents Reduced

There are 1,576 bituminous mines and 763 anthracite mines employing ten or more men. This does not include several thousand small bituminous mines which recent law placed under the Department's supervision. The forty-four inspectors together with the electrical inspector made 33,244 inspections during the four years.

For the four year period ending 1930 there were 1,867 fatalities in the anthracite mines as compared with 1,073 during this Administration to date. On a production basis, the comparison for the former period is 158,373 net tons per fatility and 191,000 net tons for the latter period. In the bituminous field the total was 1,537 fatalities with 343,045 net tons per fatality for the four years ending 1930, and 632 fatalities with 513,000 tons per fatality for this Administration to date. On a basis of exposure, the anthracite comparison was 13.39 fatalities per million man-days for the previous Administration, and 13.05 to date for the present Administration. For the bituminous field, 12.76 as compared with 8.50 for the present Administration. To put the matter another way, the total direct saving in workmen's compensation and medical costs for all compensable mine accidents in the anthracite region, for this Administration to date, is $2,572,054.00 as compared with the previous four years. On the same basis, for the bituminous region, the saving to date is $757,194.00. It is agreed by all authorities on the subject that the total cost to the industry and the public, direct and indirect, of mine accidents is between four and five times that of compensation and medical services alone. The marked difference in the actual total saving in the anthracite field, as compared with the bituminous field, was the result of earlier improvement in accident-preventing accomplishments in the bituminous field.

A major accident is one in which five or more lives are lost. There has been no major accident in the anthracite region since May 29, 1931, and only one such accident in the bituminous region. It involved the loss of seven lives, in September, 1933. For a period of more than 30 years, prior to March, 1929, the bituminous field had not operated more than 22 months without a major accident. A record never before equalled in the mining industry of this nation, or any other nation so far as records are available, was made in the bituminous field when more than 500,000,000 tons of coal were produced in a period of 61 months between August, 1929, and September, 1933, without a major accident resulting from an explosion of gas. The accident that broke this record more than a year ago was of such an unusual type that neither the cause nor responsibility could be definitely determined.

Inspectors Examined

Mine Inspectors are selected by examination similar to Federal Civil Service examinations through a Mine Inspectors' Examining Board appointed by the Governor each four years; one each for the anthracite and bituminous coal fields. Methods employed by these Boards have undergone much needed revision and great improvement has been shown in the results.

An examination for Bituminous Inspectors was held at State College in May, 1933. Nineteen of the 102 candidates successfully passed the examination. To date no examination has been held for Anthracite Inspectors—having been deferred temporarily in the interest of economy and, since the beginning of this biennium, an examination could not be held on account of failure of the Legislature to provide the necessary funds. During this Administration one Anthracite Inspector and four Bituminous Inspectors have been appointed.

Examinations for Mine Foreman, Assistant Mine Foreman, and Fire Boss are held annually as required by the Law. In the Authracite Field we had a total, for the four years of this Administration, of 1,166 applicants, of which 1,024 were successful. In the bituminous field, for the same period, there were 3,015 applicants, of which 1,373 were successful.

Early in the Administration a commission of Anthracite Mine Inspectors was appointed and designated the Water Hazards Commission, to make a careful study of the dangers incident to the mining and removal of coal from under and immediately adjacent to the Lackawanna River. Failure to provide proper support for the river and ample barriers against high stages of water would jeopardize the lives of thousands of workmen employed underground over the entire mineable area traversed by the Lackawanna River.

Safety Zones

With the cooperation of the larger mine operators a survey was made of unmined coal in the various veins from Forest City to Pittston, and safety zones established by agreement between the operators and the Mine Inspectors beyond which not more than the prescribed amount of coal is to be mined except by further consultation and agreement. Detailed maps were prepared for each of the mine operators and a master map for the entire area involved; the cost of this work being conservatively placed at $20,000. This unusual undertaking, the first of its kind, was completed and the maps presented to the Department of Mines in April of this year. The use of these maps by the Water Hazards Commission will be of increasing importance as mining in that field continues. This survey and agreement might be properly considered one of our major accomplishments in accident prevention work.

With the cooperation of The Pittston Company, one of the larger operators in the anthracite field, United States Bureau of Mines, and other operators there has recently been completed, at an estimated cost of $10,000, a map of the entire anthracite region showing, in appropriate colors, the extent and relative location of the land owned by the seven largest anthracite operators, and the combined holdings of all independent operators, together with the location of all collieries and operating mines indexed, by key number, as to name and ownership. A copy of this valuable map, the first and only one of its kind, has been presented to this Department.

DEPARTMENT OF HIGHWAYS

Samuel S. Lewis, Secretary

To the Governor,

I have the honor to present the following report of the accomplishments of the Department of Highways for the four years beginning January, 1931:

The past four years have been epoch-making for the users of the highways of Pennsylvania. Since January 1, 1931, more than 13,000 miles of roads have been improved under the direct supervision of the State Department of Highways, equivalent to more than four times the distance between New York and Los Angeles. More miles of good roads have been built by the Department during this administration than were improved during the entire previous history of the State highway system. No agency provided as effective work relief during this depression. In one week as many as 76,232 hourly employes were engaged on projects supervised by the Department of Highways. In addition to those employed directly on the job, many thousands more were at work in the production of equipment and materials used in the construction and maintenance of the highways.

During this administration legislation was enacted which relieved townships, counties, cities, and boroughs of a substantial portion of the highway burden. Approximately 22,000 miles of highways, consisting of township roads, abandoned turnpikes, and borough and city streets, were added to the State highway system. These additions brought the total mileage on the system to 35,387 miles, or considerably more than double the 13,384 miles that comprised the system at the outset of the administration.

In second-class townships millions of dollars in annual savings to taxpayers have resulted through legislation placing 20,000 mile of township roads on the State highway system, and by the Act of Assembly authorizing the Department of Highways to spend $11,352,000 for maintenance and repair of the remaining 48,500 miles of second-class township roads during the two calendar years 1934 and 1935. Since 1931 the accumulated savings in road taxes from these two acts of Legislature has amounted to over $13,900,000.

Boroughs, cities, counties, and townships have been relieved of the responsibility of maintenance and construction of hundreds of miles of streets and highways. By a 1933 Act of Assembly, 627 miles of streets in boroughs were established as State highways and, in addition, the Department of Highways took over for maintenance and construction 264 borough bridges. Legislation passed in 1931 and 1933 placed on the State highway system 440 miles of city streets which formed connecting links on State highways. By 1931 and 1933 Act of Assembly, maintenance of twenty-six former county bridges became the responsibility of the Department of Highways, and by reason of the Act of Assembly establishing abandoned turnpikes as State highways, counties and townships were relieved of the maintenance of over 600 miles of these roads.

Extent of State Highway System

More than one-third of all the public highways in the State are now included in the State highway system. At the beginning of the present administration there were 13,384 miles of roads on the State highway system, and 178 miles of State-aid roads off the system. On August 15, 1931, 20,156 miles of township road and 302 miles of city streets were added to the system. In 1933, 1,452 additional miles were made State highways including 660 miles of abandoned turnpikes, 627 miles of streets in boroughs, and 138 miles of streets in cities of the second-class, second-class A, and third-class. So at the present time the Department of Highways is responsible for the maintenance and construction of 35,387 miles of State highways and 27 miles of State-aid roads off the system in boroughs.

In addition, $11,352,000 was appropriated from the Motor Fund to the Department of Highways for the maintenance and repair of approximately 48,500 miles of second-class township roads for two years, beginning January 1, 1934.

The grand total of mileage for which the Department is responsible, in whole or in part, is therefore, about 84,000 miles.

Also, the Department is responsible for the maintenance and construction of over 11,500 bridges.

Status of Highway Improvement

On January 1, 1931, there remained about 3,100 miles of the old system to be improved. This system comprised the original Sproul highways, and roads added to the system by legislation prior to January 1, 1931. Upon completion of the work now under way, about 500 miles of the old system mileage will remain to be improved.

Of the 20,156 miles of rural routes taken over as State highways on August 15, 1931, approximately 17,000 miles were unimproved. Upon completion of the work now under way, only about 6,400 miles of the rural system will remain to be improved.

Of the 35,387 miles on the State highway system, including the roads on the old system, rural system, abandoned turnpikes, and State highways in cities and boroughs, approximately 7,100 miles will remain to be improved upon completion of the work now under way.

Mileage of Work Performed

From January 1, 1931, to December 6, 1934, there were completed under the direct supervision of the Department 13,364 miles of highway construction, reconstruction, and resurfacing, of which 2,869 miles are on the old system, including abandoned turnpikes and old system connections in boroughs; 10,229 miles on the rural system, including rural system connections in boroughs; 72 miles on connecting streets in cities, and 194 miles off system.

The roads completed since January 1, 1931, consist of 10,998 miles of new pavement, 395 miles of reconstruction, 1,966 miles of resurfacing and reclamation, and 5 miles on grade crossing elimination projects.

In addition to the work completed, 860 miles are under construction and 83 miles are scheduled for construction by contract.

The cost of the various types of pavement built ranged from $4,500 to $65,000 per mile, depending upon the type of construction, width and depth of pavement, cost of materials, the amount of grading and number of drainage structures required. Some projects exceeded $65,000 per mile, of which one contract amounted to $272,620 for a length of 0.96 of a mile in the selection of the types of improvement consideration was given to traffic requirements and the availability of local materials, resulting in the maximum of highway transportation service at a cost commensurate with the service rendered.

Over 3,000 bridges were reconstructed by contract and Department forces, at a cost of more than $12,000,000.

At the beginning of this administration there were more than 900 bridges on the State highway system which were rated at a carrying capacity below the maximum legal load. Some of these bridges have been repaired and others replaced. Today all but about 238 of the under-capacity bridges have been brought to full carrying capacity, while those that remain below strength have been plainly marked for load limitations.

County Bridges

Under the Act approved May 21, 1931, P. L. 147, the Department became responsible for the maintenance and construction of 26 additional former county bridges on the State highway system. Sixteen of these bridges were partly located within the limits of third-class cities, and under the above act fifty per cent of the maintenance and construction costs on these bridges remained the responsibility of the county. This act was amended in 1933 to provide that the Commonwealth assume the entire cost of construction and maintenance of the bridges located partially within cities. The Commonwealth is now responsible for about 2,200 former county bridges. Of these 238 were reconstructed or repaired prior to January 1, 1931, at a cost of $5,336,046. Since that date 558 additional have been reconstructed or repaired, at a cost of $5,805,275.

Borough Bridges

Under the Act approved June 1, 1933, the Department became responsible for the maintenance of borough bridges on State highway routes established prior to June 22, 1931. Two hundred sixty-four borough bridges were taken over for maintenance by the Department under this act. Of this number 34 have been reconstructed or repaired, at a cost of $214,261.

Expenditures

The Department of Highways expended, for construction and maintenance of highways and other incidental operations of the Department $54,593,890.13 during the calendar year 1931, $52,667,456.71 during 1932, $54,836,429.00 during 1933, and $74,715,644.56 during the period from January 1, 1934, to December 15, 1934. The total amount expended by the Department of Highways for the period from January 1, 1931, to December 15, 1934, was $236,818,420.42.

Rural Route System

Traffic on the principal State roads had increased to such volume that certain sections of the highways required widening to three lanes and, in some cases, to four lanes. The increase in traffic had also affected minor roads in a smaller but an important degree. Thousands of miles of township roads with little, if any, artificial improvement had developed into carriers of greater volume of traffic than some of the main roads of 1911. The rapid shift of traffic from horse-drawn to motor vehicles, with resulting increases in weight and speed, had greatly overtaxed the capacity of the township roads.

Due to these conditions a large number of townships were burdened with road tax levies from fifteen to twenty mills. Many had rates as high as twenty to thirty mills. In 1930, the road tax collected in 1,444 second-class townships, that had filed reports with the Department, amounted to $14,037,369.01, representing an average tax of 10.69 mills on a total valuation of $1,313,394,250.63. The tax collected was so inadequate when spread over the entire mileage of township roads, and unsystematically applied by boards of supervisors, that improvement of lasting value was restricted to a comparatively small number of the larger townships. Elsewhere the funds available were so insignificant that a great number of roads were impassable throughout portions of the year. Although the chief sufferers were the residents in locations where these conditions existed, the general public found ample reason to complain of the resulting limited use of motor vehicles. It is impossible to estimate the cost of this handicap to development of such localities, and the extra expense imposed upon traffic by such inadequate road facilities. All of these facts indicated the imperative need that township roads be put on a more practical basis of improvement.

On June 22, 1931, an act was approved establishing 20,156 miles of township roads as State highways. Approximately twenty-five per cent of the township roads in each county became State highways under this legislation.

Construction, reconstruction, and maintenance of all drainage structures having a span length of ten feet or less became the responsibility of the Department. The total number of these structures was over 5,000.

The acquisition of these 20,156 miles of township roads as State highways brought about a reduction of $2,322,872 in the tax levy for road purposes in second-class townships in 1932 as compared with 1931. In 1933 there was an additional reduction of $2,405,790 from this same source, or a total annual reduction of $4,728,662 in 1933 as compared with 1931.

Development of Low-cost Road Construction

Facing the urgent demand for improvement of rural roads along with the extension of construction on the main highway system, this administration found it absolutely necessary to develop a new standard of construction for rural roads, one that would conserve funds to the fullest practical extent, yet afford a surface fully adequate to traffic requirements. This situation was met by the development of a low-cost type of bituminous macadam construction adapted to use of materials closest at hand. Inexpensive but adequate surveys and plans were provided to give proper consideration to such fundamentals as alignment, grades, width, drainage, character and depth of base, type of surface and superelevation. The result has been a finished structure that has stood the most severe tests of heat and frost and the most exacting demands of unrestricted traffic. It is a standard that is today accepted by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, and has been widely copied in other states. In planning these roads, careful consideration has been given to the foundation value of various soils on which the surfacing is laid, and full advantage has been taken of availability of local materials.

A most important consideration has been the maximum use of common labor, in order to afford relief of unemployment. With this object in view, local stone has been extensively used as a material for the base course. This material has been obtained from fields and fence rows, or quarried near at hand and knapped in place on the roads. It has even been found practical to purchase commercial stone in sizes suitable for hand knapping.

More than 12,000,000 tons of local materials were used, at a decided saving in cost.

Of the various types of low-cost road construction those most generally used included oilbound penetration, premixed materials, or heavy surface treatments on native stone, slag, red dog, flint, gravel, or commercial stone bases.

The various types of bituminous surface roads adequate for their traffic demands have been built at total costs ranging generally from $6,000 to $9,000 a mile. They are being maintained at a very reasonable expense.

Employment of Labor

An enormous amount of work relief has been provided during the depression mainly in the construction of low-cost roads by the Department. Our average weekly number of hourly workers through 1932 and 1933 was 40,000. Our average thus far for 1934 has been more than 57,000. Special effort has been made to maintain employment during the winter months when need for relief has been greatest. Our week of peak employment, 76,232 occurred last January. To spread relief further, most of our work has been carried on in two or more shifts.

During the past three years the Pennsylvania Department of Highways has afforded more re-employment than any other single agency in Pennsylvania. Throughout this period the Department has employed more labor than any industrial concern in the State.

In order that the most needy might be assisted with work, and that politics be fully divorced from so important a relief undertaking, all of our common labor has been obtained from County Emergency Relief Boards and from re-employment agencies designated by the Federal Government. Thus the motorists of Pennsylvania, whose payments of registration fees and of liquid fuel tax make up the Motor Fund from which all but a comparatively small percentage of money devoted to labor on Pennsylvania highways is provided, have been enabled to write a glowing page in the record of reduction of human distress during this period.

Reorganization

In anticipation of the adding of 20,000 miles of township roads to the State highway system on August 15, 1931, the field forces of the Department were reorganized. The eight existing field engineering divisions were replaced by six divisions, each containing two field engineering districts. The division headquarters were located at Harrisburg. The number of maintenance superintendents was increased so as to have one superintendent, with the required number of assistants, located in each county, excepting Elk and Cameron Counties, where one superintendent was assigned to take charge of the roads in the two counties.

When the Department of Highways was made responsible for maintenance and repair of the remaining 48,500 miles of second class township roads for a two-year period, beginning January 1, 1934, it was found necessary to increase the number of assistant superintendents from 154 to 242, an addition of 88. This gave to each assistant responsibility for the supervision of approximately 400 miles of roads, including State highways and townships roads.

It is interesting to note that under this administration the State highway system was more than doubled in mileage, and the maintenance of all township roads was undertaken with practically no increase in salaried personnel other than that of these assistant superintendents. Under the township system of maintenance supervision over the road work was performed by more than 4,500 elected supervisors.

At the beginning of this administration, the salaried personnel strength of the Department of Highways was 2,114 involving an annual pay roll of $3,670,379, as compared with 2,249 active employes and a pay roll of $3,856,080 on January 1, 1935. During this period the State highway system mileage was more than doubled and, in addition, the Department was made responsible for maintenance and repair of some 48,500 miles of township roads for a two-year period, beginning January 1, 1934. Notwithstanding the large increase in the miles of highways placed under the jurisdiction of the Department during this administration, there will be only 135 more salaried employes on the pay roll on January 1, 1935, as compared with January, 1931, with the total annual pay roll for this class of employes increased by $185,700.

Township System

Under the Act approved June 3, 1933, P. L. 1520, $11-352,000 was appropriated from the Motor Fund to the Department of Highways for the maintenance and repair of second-class township roads for two years, beginning January 1, 1934. The act provided that the appropriation be allocated to the townships on a mileage basis. Because of this method of allocation it was neccessary to check the miles of township roads. A speedometer survey was made with calibrated speedometers, and it was found that there were 48,500 miles of second-class township roads instead of 53,000 as had been previously reported by the supervisors.

Eighty-nine per cent of the total mileage was classified as unimproved, 8½ per cent stone roads, and 2½ per cent bituminous treated macadam roads or higher types. Included in the unimproved mileage were about 2,000 miles of impassable roads—roads fallen into disuse and grown up with underbrush and, in some cases, planted with wheat, corn, and other crops.

The roads averaged 32 miles to a township. Three townships had less than a mile of road; two had no township roads. In 162 townships the mileage varied from one to ten miles; in eleven townships the mileage varied from 100 to 200 miles.

The act did not establish the second-class township roads as State highways, and they still retain their status as township roads. The Department of Highways' authority was limited to the expenditure of a specific amount in each township for the maintenance and repair of the township roads. The allocation averages about $117 per mile per year.

In 140 townships the allocation was insufficient to maintain all the township roads, and in these townships the supervisors agreed to maintain some of the roads, or 1,625 miles.

Tax Relief

The intent of the act was to reduce local taxes as well as to afford better maintenance of these roads. The tax levy for road purposes in second-class townships for 1934 showed a reduction of $2,195,061 as compared with 1933. This reduction, together with the previous reductions made possible by the State's acquisition of about 25 per cent of the township roads in 1931, brought the 1934 township road taxes $6,923,723 below the 1931 levy. As the tax reduction in 1932 compared with 1931 had amounted to $2,322,872, and in 1933 this reduction had amounted to $4,728,662 by the same comparison, the accumulated tax savings of the three years, 1932, 1933 and 1934, have reached $13,975,257.

Many townships were enabled entirely to eliminate road taxes, while others reduced these taxes to only a few mills.

Work Performed

During 1934 the Department brought the township roads into better condition than they ever were before. These roads have been shaped by road machining, kept free of ruts by dragging, and thousands of feet of culvert pipe have been placed to provide better drainage.

Of the hundred of letters of commendation received by the Department as the result of its brief period of maintenance of township roads, perhaps the most significant are those that have come unsolicited from rural mail carriers and from drivers of school buses, who must travel these roads in all seasons and under all conditions of weather.

Contracts Awarded

During the period from January 1, 1931 to December 17, 1934, 712 State contracts for roads and bridges were awarded, in the amount $57,456,536. These contracts included 565 road projects, totaling 1,526 miles and amounting to $48,074,540, and 147 bridge projects in the amount of $9,381,996.

In addition, awards were pending on twelve projects, totaling 14.38 miles, in the amount of $673,813.37. Also, bids have been requested on fifteen additional projects totaling 20.47 miles, at an estaimated cost of $1,191,704.

Bids Rejected

Bids received on road and bridge projects are compared with estimates of the costs prepared by the Department, and where the low bid is found too high, all bids are rejected and the project is readvertised. Between January 1, 1931, and December 8, 1934, bids on thirteen projects were rejected as being too high; the projects were readvertised and resulted in a saving of $115,625.

Toll Bridges

The Act of April 27, 1927, P. L. 395, which empowered the Secretary of Highways to acquire, on behalf of the Commonwealth, existing toll bridges, was amended by the Act of January 2, 1934, P. L. 205, to permit payment of acquisition costs out of the Toll Bridge Fund created by the Act of January 2, 1934, P. L. 201. By the terms of the latter act the Toll Bridge Fund will consist of the proceeds realized from the sale of bonds authorized by the Constitutional amendment permitting an additional State debt of $10,000,000 for the purpose of acquiring toll bridges.

At the present time there are eight toll bridges on or between State highway routes, and nine bridges off State highway routes within the State. The Department has proceeded with a valuation survey of the bridges on or connecting with State highways, preparatory to entering into negotiations for the purchase of the bridges.

P. W. A. Applications for Additional Bridges

The Act of March 16, 1933, P. L. 12, authorized the Department of Highways to arrange with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the advancement of funds to construct additional bridges within the Commonwealth, the loans to be retired from tolls collected on the bridges. This act was amended by the Act of December 4, 1933, P. L. 37, to permit the making of such arrangements with any agency of the Federal Government authorized so to act. On January 11, 1934, applications were filed with the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works for funds to construct bridges across the Susquehanna River at Millersburg, Holtwood, and Bainbridge. On November 30, 1934, counsel for the Federal authorities recommended rejection of the applications owing to legal obstacles in the way of satisfactory financing, but at the same time recommended that the State be given leave to amend the applications. On account of the lateness of the date the entire undertaking will be referred to the next State administration.

New Bridge Standard

A new bridge standard was developed, consisting of a timber floor on I-bean stringers and a timber or flexible steel guard rail. This is simple in design, durable, and of such reasonable cost that bridge dollars can be stretched to the utmost. Another feature of the new design is its speed of construction, which cuts down the length of time detours are required. Over 800 bridges of this type were constructed at considerable saving.

Grade Crossing Elimination

During this administration 137 grade crossing projects on the State highway system were completed, at a cost of $14,294,344.73. The projects eliminated 67 existing grade crossings and five existing overhead and undergrade bridges on the system, created 18 new grade crossings on State highways, and involved the reconstruction of 35 bridges, the construction of nine new bridges carrying State highways over or under railroads, and involved the relocation of 41 grade crossings on State highways.

In addition, there are 18 projects now under construction. The estimated cost of these projects is $963,313.64. These projects provide for the elimination of one grade crossing, the reconstruction of nine bridges, the construction of two new bridges, the relocation of six existing crossings, the reconstruction of three existing grade crossings, and the construction of one new grade crossing.

Seventeen projects have been ordered for construction by the Public Service Commission, at an estimated cost of $524,596.23, on which work has not yet been started.

In addition to participating in grade crossing elimination projects, the Department has assisted railroad companies in affording greater protection at existing crossings by the installation of standard automatic flashing signals. During this administration, 39 installations of flashing signals were completed. The Department also shared in 28 installations of advance warning yellow flashing signals.

Upkeep of the Highway System

The upkeep of the highway system involves the maintenance of 35,414 miles of State highways, including city and borough streets on the system, and State-aid roads off system. There are 27 miles of these State-aid roads which are included in the total mileage and are maintained by the Department. Fifty per cent of the maintenance cost of these State-aid roads is paid for by the local authorities.

The maintenance of this mileage included patching and repairing pavements, shaping and dragging earth roads, mowing of grass and weeds, replacing and repairing pipes and drains, repair and painting of bridges, erection and maintenance of signs, retreatment of bituminous macadam pavements, oiling of earth roads, removal of snow and cindering icy roads, placing of snow fence, replacing and maintaining guard fence, resurfacing of worn-out pavements, roadside planting, and other maintenance operations necessary for preservation of the roads.

Application of Bituminous Materials

During the four years of this administration approximately 178,000,000 gallons of bituminous materials were used for retreating and patching bituminous pavements, for oiling of earth roads, for the initial treatment and seal coat for new macadam pavements, and for sealing joints and cracks.

Of the total amount of bituminous material used, 39,643,956 gallons were applied in the retreatment of 13,865 miles of macadam pavements, 9,346,621 gallons were used for laying dust on 2,102 miles of earth roads, 20,877,855 gallons for patching road surfaces, 1,732,902 gallons for sealing joints and cracks, and 106,387,663 gallons for construction and reconstruction of bituminous macadam pavements.

The average unit cost, furnished and applied, of the oil used in the construction and reconstruction of bituminous macadam pavements, and for retreating bituminous surfaces was approximately $0.08715 in 1934 as against $0.14338 in 1930, representing a cost reduction of $0.05623 per gallon, or in round numbers, $2,600,000 for the 1934 total of oil purchased for these purposes. Using the same basis of comparison, the cost reduction for the four years of this administration was more than $9,095,000.

Guard Fence

Since January 1, 1931, 793 miles of guard fence were erected on the old system, 234 miles on the rural system, and 0.75 of a mile on State institutional roads.

Additional standards were drawn to permit use of various designs of modern guard fencing, including steel plate, woven wire, wire tape, and metal strip.

Snow Removal Program

The Department's snow removal program has been increasing under this administration with the expansion of the State highway system. During the winter of 1933-34 the snow removal program included 11,839 miles on the old system, in addition to which the most important routes on the rural system were cleared of snow.

The total cost of snow removal, exclusive of overhead, for each of the following winters was: $1,163,600 for 1929-30; $1,518,977 for 1930-31; $1,367,074 for 1931-32; $1,207,762 for 1932-33. The winter of 1933-34 was unusually severe and as a result the total cost of snow removal operations was $2,388,000, of which $546,400 was spent on the rural system. Even this unusual cost represented only about $1.43 per registered motor vehicle to avoid extensive losses of highway facilities during the winter months. Snow removal materially reduces the maintenance costs upon the roads, as it permits traffic to spread over the full width of the road, usually without chains, and lessens the discomforts and hazards of winter driving. Maintenance forces are ordered out day or night for cindering as soon as ice begins to form, and snow removal starts as soon as the fall reaches a depth of two inches. The amount of snow fence erected this fall to protect the highways from drifts amounted to more than seven and one-half million feet, or over 1,400 miles—equivalent to the distance between Philadelphia and Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Signs

One of the most important contributions ever made to traffic safety on Pennsylvania State highways was the development by this administration of a new standard of warning signs, most of them employing simple symbols to indicate hazards. Approximately 200,000 of these new signs were placed on the highways. They have been generally acclaimed by motorists. Studies by experts revealed that the symbols indicating approach to various types of intersections and curves produce a much quicker reaction of the motorist than is obtained from worded signs.

Extensive studies were made in the development of a new standard of directional signs for State highways. As the administration closes there has been produced a simple and extremely legible design in black and white, with sizes of lettering varying for arterial highways, rural routes, and municipalities, and with directional arrows pointing right, left or straight ahead. The most important departure proposed is the location of these signs directly facing the traveler instead of parallel to the route of travel.

More than 159,500 illegal roadside advertising signs were removed by the Department.

Superintendents' Garages and Office Buildings

Important economies were effected under this administration by substitution of a new and more permanent type of structure for use as superintendents' offices, workshops for repairs, and storage space for Department-owned equipment. Ten of these modern fire-proof buildings have been constructed since January 1, 1931, at substantially the same average cost per square foot as the sheet metal structures which the new buildings replaced. The new buildings provided the most modern facilities for ventilating, lighting and heating, affording a great improvement in working conditions and considerable reduction in cost of upkeep. Eight more of these buildings are under construction. Five additional sites have been purchased and negotiations are being completed for the purchase of three other sites for superintendents' garages and office buildings. Plans are completed for five proposed new buildings. Final action on the erection of these additional structures will be left for the new administration to determine. Major alterations and additions were made on five other buildings, and improvements on heating, lighting and sanitary conditions were completed on existing sheet metal buildings.

Equipment

During this administration, every effort has been made to improve the standard of the road building equipment. Approximately 2,300 pieces of old and obsolete units that had become worn out and uneconomical to operate were disposed of. About half of these units were allocated to the Commonwealth by the Federal Government from surplus war material approximately fourteen years ago. Approximately 600 of these were motor trucks, and 133 tractors. In view of the advances made in this type of equipment, it was considered highly desirable to dispose of these old units and supplant them with modern equipment. This was done with the result that operating economies were effected and work was expedited.

At present the Department's inventory of major equipment, such as trucks, tractors, automobiles, rollers, and graders, totals over 7,700 units—roughly 2,400 more than at the beginning of 1931.

During this administration about 4,800 of these units were purchased at an expenditure of over $4,000,000. The principal items purchased were 571 motor trucks, 96 tractors, 506 automobiles, 108 personnel buses, 98 road rollers, 476 power graders, 319 drawn graders, 12 oil distributors, 8 power shovels, and 827 snow plows.

Testing and Research

In order to be assured that materials used in construction comply with the specifications requirements, samples of the materials are tested at the Department's Testing Laboratory. The Federal Government requires that each state receiving Federal-aid maintain a suitably equipped materials organization to control the quality of the materials under specifications which have been approved by the Bureau of Public Roads. The Pennsylvania Department of Highways was fortunate in having one of the best equipped materials laboratories in the United States.

All materials used in maintenance and construction are tested at the laboratory, which is divided into four units, consisting of the Research Laboratory, Chemical Laboratory, Physical Laboratory, and the Sand and Cement Laboratory.

Materials used in construction and maintenance work of other departments of the Commonwealth are, in the majority of cases, tested at the Highway Materials Laboratory.

Material surveys for local materials were made, including stone, slag, gravel, sand, flint, shale, and incinerated culm (red dog). Over 3,600 sources were investigated and materials from 2,452 of these sources were found to be satisfactory for use as bases, and in some instances suitable for use in the construction of surface courses.

The policy of the Department with reference to new and untried materials and methods has been to investigate carefully all products prior to their general use. This policy saves the Department money, and guards against the use of materials or methods that may later prove to be worthless and have to be replaced.

Bureau of Safety

A Bureau of Safety was organized at the beginning of the present administration to supervise and direct the various safety and safety-related functions of the Department. These include a safety and first-aid organization for reduction of accidents to Department employes, and for the compensation of injured workers; the development and control of warning and directional signs and safety devices on State highways; the recording and study of traffic accidents with a view to improvement of road conditions. A marked reduction in compensation costs has resulted from the decrease in injuries to workers.

Safety Organization

The extension of the State highway system under this administraton and the establishment of a policy of construction of low-cost roads with Department forces required a very great enlargement of highway laboring forces. Responsibility for protection of this working force from accidents impressed the need of systematic safety regulation. Under expert guidance, a safety organization was set up embracing supervisory personnel in each county. First-aid instruction, developed from a nucleus of one representative in each engineering district trained as an advance instructor, was extended until over 5,000 employes of the Department were qualified to administer first-aid.

Safety equipment was provided, including more than 100,000 pairs of approved goggles, sufficient to provide protection for every worker exposed to eye hazard, operators' platforms for use on chip spreaders, safety rails and canopy tops for use on trucks transporting workmen, and many other devices of tested value. Safety regulations were developed and strictly enforced. Periodic safety meetings and first-aid classes were conducted in all maintenance districts. Beginning with the present fiscal year the State Workmen's Insurance Fund, which heretofore had carried the compensation insurance of the Department on the same basis as that of private industry, agreed to apply a rate fixed solely upon the Department's accident experience. Owing to our safety activities our experience was so favorable that the Department's rate was reduced to $2.28 per $100 of pay roll, as compared to $3.53 which was the average rate in the previous fiscal year. In contrast to this new rate the base rates of compensation insurance for general industry covering the various classes of work performed by the Department of Highways are, for example, $6.75 for road construction, and $7.60 for quarrying. On the basis of the pay roll of the Department for the fiscal year 1933-34, the reduced rate fixed for this year would produce a saving of $284,000 in compensation insurance premium. The fact that this reduced rate was attained with labor largely comprising relief workers, mainly untrained for the tasks they have been performing and consequently much more prone to accident than a trained and stable force, makes this record more remarkable.

In cooperation with the Bureau of Highway Patrol and Safety of the Department of Revenue, records of traffic accidents involving physical conditions of the highway, were assembled and analyzed, and special studies were made of locations with high accident frequency to facilitate correction of faulty conditions.

Highway Forestry Unit

The bulk of the work of the Forestry Unit has been connected with maintenance activities, the ultimate goal being reduced maintenance costs and traffic hazards, in addition to beautifying the highways. The major activities consisting of planting of slopes to control washing and erosion; the removal of dead and dangerous trees; the securing of clear sight distances on the inside of curves; the establishment of permanent evergreen snow fences; the opening and maintenance of scenic views. A highway nursery is operating near Milton where a large part of the nursery stock is propagated for roadside planting.

The sum of $193,298 was allocated from Federal funds for Federal roadside planting projects.

Publicity

Dissemination of news and information concerning departmental activities through newspapers and periodicals included three department publications—the tourist map of Pennsylvania State highways, the detour bulletin, and a poster illustrating the new highway warning signs. The latter was introduced into all public school buildings and wherever else it might prove of educational value.

A new edition of the tourist map was published during 1934, which included, in addition to the main routes, important connections on the rural system.

The detour bulletin was published periodically during the construction seasons to inform the public of the detours in effect on the State highway system. The annual winter bulletin showed the snow removal program and detours in use during the winter months. The detour bulletin was mailed to some 7,000 garages, hotels, post offices, and other public establishments, where it was displayed for public reference.

Information relating to snow, ice and flood conditions affecting highways was assembled, and through the cooperation of the Department of State Police was made available throughout the State by means of police teletype reports.

An information desk for special service to tourists was maintained in the Guides' Room in the State Capitol.

County-aid Work

In all cases where the counties extend aid to cities, boroughs and townships in the construction or maintenance of any public highway, other than State highways, State-aid highways, or county roads, Department approval of such aid is required under the law.

Plans and specifications for county-aid projects are approved by the Department, and all work is subject to the inspection and approval of the Department.

Since January 1, 1931, 1,669 county-aid applications have been submitted to and approved by the Department. The total estimated cost of the work was more than $7,868,000, toward which the counties agreed to contribute $4,223,000. The estimated expenditures included $7,511,000 for 1,406 miles of roads, $116,700 for culvert pipe installations, and $240,700 for bridges.

Approval of Township Purchase Orders

The law requires that all purchases made by township supervisors, for materials and equipment for the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges, in excess of a certain amount, must be approved by the Department. Prior to May 1, 1933, purchases in excess of $100 had to be approved by the Department. This limit was raised to $200 by the Second-class Township Code approved May 1, 1933.

During the period from January 1, 1931, to December 1, 1934, township contracts and purchase orders in an amount totaling $4,121,194 were approved by the Department.

Amount of Work Done During This Administration As Compared With Previous Four Years

During the period from January 1, 1931, to December 6, 1934, 13,364 miles of highway construction, reconstruction and resurfacing were completed under the direct supervision of the Department, as compared with 4,028 miles, including 500 miles of major Township-reward work, during the previous four years, or an increase of 9,336 miles.

At the present time the Department is responsible, in whole or in part, for the maintenance of about 84,000 miles of roads, including 35,414 miles of State highways and State-aid roads, and 48,500 miles of second-class township roads.

During the previous four years the maximum number of miles for which the Department was responsible was 13,562, including 178 miles of State-aid roads off the system.

During this administration about 22,000 miles were added to the State highway system, whereas during the previous four years only 1,868 miles were added.

During the winter of 1933-34 the snow removal program included 11,839 miles on the old system. In addition, the most important routes on the rural system were cleared of snow.

During the previous administration the peak of the snow removal program was reached during the winter of 1930-31, when 9,685 miles were cleared of snow.

Since January 1, 1931, 1,028 miles of guard fence were erected, whereas during the previous four years 681 miles were placed.

At the end of the previous administration about 3,100 miles of the old system remained to be improved. Upon completion of the work now under way, there will remain only about 500 miles to be improved.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

Theodore B. Appel, Secretary

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Department of Health during your administration.

General Health Conditions

In spite of unemployment and privation, general health conditions in Pennsylvania during the past four years have been unusually satisfactory, as shown by the following general death rates:

1931—11.5 per 1,000 population
1932—11.1 per 1,000 population
1933—10.7 per 1,000 population
1934—11.0 per 1,000 population (January to August)

Death rates for the preceding four years were as follows:

1927—11.9 per 1,000 population
1928—12.6 per 1,000 population
1929—12.3 per 1,000 population
1930—11.6 per 1,000 population

There has been marked improvement in the control of the communicable diseases, particularly typhoid fever and diphtheria. During the past four years, there have been reported 5,099 cases of typhoid fever, 15,000 cases of diphtheria, and 18 cases of smallpox. During the preceding four years, 5,822 cases of typhoid fever were reported, 32,513 cases of diphtheria, and 182 cases of smallpox. There have been no cases of smallpox in Pennsylvania during the past two years.

Through the Tuberculosis Clinic Division a plan has been developed in cooperation with local hospitals, whereby patients requiring artificial pneumothorax treatment may continue to receive such treatment after discharge from the sanatoria.

In the Genito-Urinary Division the free distribution to private practitioners of drugs for the treatment of indigent sufferers from venereal diseases has been expanded, and there has been a considerable increase of work due to the taking over of the control of venereal diseases in the CCC Camps. The number of Genito-Urinary clinics has been reduced from 68 to 56. In spite of this reduction the work has been extended with less expense.

Sanitary Engineering

During the past four years, 25 new public water works serving 26,000 people and 14 new filter plants serving 400,000 people have been built; 49 existing filter plants serving 1,170,000 people have been improved. Eighty-one new chlorination plants have been installed and 34 existing plants improved, so that at the present time 600 chlorination plants safeguard the water supplies of over 2,500,000 people, an increase of over 1,000,000 as compared with the preceding four years. The supervision of these new services has thrown increased work upon the Department.

During the drought period, 18,000 inspections of private water supplies were made in 26 counties having a population of over 2,600,000.

The first public bathing place law in Pennsylvania became effective on September 1, 1931. One thousand bathing places are inspected and licensed yearly, this work being carried on without increase in personnel.

The chemical laboratory, with decreased personnel and no let down in accuracy, has made over 20,000 water analyses.

Beginning in 1931, Recreational Camp Approval Certificates were issued after inspection of each camp. This work has been done without increase in personnel and over 100 such camps in the Pocono region are now under control.

In connection with the Federal Recovery Administration, considerable propaganda was undertaken for the construction of municipal waterworks, sewers, and sewage treatment plants, and the Department has assisted in the preparation of applications to the Public Works Administration for State projects aggregating over $10,000,000.

Under CWA, with five different setups, work in the sealing of abandoned coal mines has resulted in the complete sealing of 286 mines, 3,000 drifts, and 68,000 feet of crevices. This work was directed and supervised without additional personnel.

The last two towns in the 10,000 population class not having public sewer systems began the construction of such systems.

Sanitary surveys were completed covering the important water courses of the State. Definite and substantial reduction has been made in industrial stream pollution, and the control of tannery, pulp and paper, oil refinery, and coke oven wastes has been very definitely improved.

The salinity survey of the Delaware River has been practically completed. A formal report will be presented before January 1st giving definite data regarding existing extreme advances of salt water and the possible effects that might occur in case of consummation of the proposed plan of diversion of upper Delaware River water to New York City for its water supply. The report will also cover the effect of the proposed New Jersey Ship Canal. It does not now appear that either will harm Pennsylvania's public and private water supplies derived from the tidal Delaware.

Public Health Nurses

In spite of decreased personnel this work has been improved in quality and broadened in scope materially in the last four years.

A major activity resulting from the depression involved the control of the distribution of milk to indigent children from early in 1932 to September, 1933, made possible first through donations from private sources and later from funds of the State Emergency Relief Board. Over 1,000,000 quarts of milk were distributed weekly. This work was done entirely under the control of our nurses, without increase in personnel and without additional expense to the State.

Extra nursing service was required in Beaver County in two small outbreaks of typhoid fever and in September, 1934, the development of 24 cases of the same disease at Avella, which was without hospital facilities, necessitated the erection of a tent emergency hospital. Nine nurses were assigned to duty in this outbreak and the entire settlement was cleaned up. The hospital was in operation from September 17th to October 19th. The only additional expense to the State involved supplies. Tents were secured from the Department of Military Affairs and the beds were taken from storage at the Cresson State Sanatorium.

On June 1, 1933, the field orthopedic work was transferred to this Department from the Department of Welfare. One nurse in each county is detailed for this work and the entire State is thus covered. In order to improve the orthopedic nursing service, 79 State Nurses have been sent to the State Hospital for Crippled Children for a short period of special training.

Other nurses have been given special training at Wills Eye and Ear Hospital, Pittsburgh, in the care and treatment of ophthalmia neonatorum. In addition, institutes on child health, nutrition, and sight conservation are conducted throughout the State for the better professional equipment of the nurses.

The depression has added materially to this work, through larger enrollments in all of our clinics and increased demands for the various types of social service which the nursing service is called upon to perform.

School Medical Examinations and Child Health

The School Division of the Bureau of Health Law Enforcement, in spite of a decreased budget, has increased its efficiency by arranging for the examination of all first grade children in the fourth class school districts not covered in the summer round-up. The plan has been worked out in cooperation with the Department of Public Instruction, the children being concentrated at given points and examined by school medical examiners drawn from the surrounding districts. This arrangement provides for the examination of more children at less expense to the State.

A new Growth Chart classifying normal and underweight children was prepared recently in consultation with the Department of Public Instruction and is in use. This chart not only facilitates the work but adds to the accuracy of the results.

Partial reports from school medical examiners indicate a very definite reduction in malnutrition among children. This probably results from better feeding of poor children, and the work of Dr. Harold Miller of the Medical Care Section of the State Emergency Relief Board, and the Emergency Child Health Committees under the direction of Dr. Samuel McClintock Hamill.

Outstanding work in the Pre-school Division includes careful studies by examination and re-examination into the effect on children on relief of the commissary system of feedings; the establishment of more Well Baby Clinics than ever before; the holding of more child health conferences; the development of kindergarten health supervision in the fourth class school districts; and extension of the efficient work in the supervision of midwives to 11 additional counties, with the maintenance of the remarkably low maternal mortality rate in midwife practice; pushing of the Summer Round-up of pre-school children so that defects may be corrected before the opening of school; and the examination of more than 26,000 children in 20 counties in the summer health car campaigns during three years as compared with the examination of 21,000 children in the preceding four years.

Also in connection with the School Division, is the arrangement for special examinations in the higher grades to determine the effect of participation in athletics upon growing school children.

Related Activities

An important activity resulting from the depression, has been the giving of advice and supervision in the selection and approval of sites, and in the construction and sanitary control of Highway Labor Camps, 104 CCC Camps, Transient Camps, Relief Shelters, and the construction camps at Pymatuning Dam.

In connection with the National Guard encampments at Mount Gretna, complete sanitary supervision has been maintained, while at Indiantown Gap plans and specifications were prepared and supervision maintained over the construction and operation of the waterworks, water filtration unit, and sewage treatment plants.

Laboratories

In the division of laboratories there has been a definite and steady increase in the work accomplished. The staff is well trained and has been able, even with reduced personnel, to render prompt and efficient service, although it has been necessary to discontinue all extensive individual research. During the four years, over 525,000 specimens were examined—an increase over the preceding four years of more than 100,000. By way of comparison it may be stated that the Pennsylvania Department of Health Laboratory, with a staff of 40 persons, during the past year examined 150,000 specimens involving approximately 250,000 tests, whereas New York, with laboratory staff of approximately 300 persons, shows a total number of tests only a few thousand higher than that of Pennsylvania.

A new perfected motorized field laboratory was put into service in 1931 and has been of great value in epidemiological investigations throughout the State.

Biological Supplies

In the distribution of biological products, there has been a marked increase particularly during the last year, brought about to a great extent by our cooperation with the Medical Care Section of the State Emergency Relief Board and with the Emergency Child Health Committee. During the last year, the distribution of biological products for the control of diphtheria increased 50%; for typhoid and smallpox, 30%. During the four years over 100,000 packages of diphtheria antitoxin have been distributed and used, and approximately 55,000 packages of tetanus antitoxin. During this period, 604,380 children were immunized against diphtheria as compared with 400,000 in the preceding four years, and there has been a similar increase in the number of persons vaccinated against smallpox.

As a result of the depression and consequent lack of funds, we have been called upon to furnish curative doses of tetanus antitoxin at an approximate rate of 1,000 doses per month. This new activity is producing very satisfactory results.

Restaurant Hygiene

Restaurant hygiene work has been pushed throughout the four years, additional work being brought about through the inspection of community markets, transient shelters, and emergency feeding stations. The repeal of prohibition has increased greatly the number of public eating and drinking places under the control of the Restaurant Hygiene Act.

Drug Control

Outstanding work has been done in the control of narcotics. With the passage of the "marihuana amendment" to the Pennsylvania Anti-Narcotic Act, an intensive and successful campaign has been waged resulting in the breaking up of at least two rings engaged in this traffic.

In cooperation with State and local police a criminal identification system has been established and reciprocal arrangements have been made with all States and Canada for the supplying of information concerning narcotic violators and assistance in apprehending fugitives.

The work of this division during the four year period has been double that of any preceding four years and has been carried on without additional personnel.

Milk Sanitation

The Bureau of Milk Sanitation in the past four years has developed an effective organization for the administration of the Milk Code; standardized the inspections necessary for issuance of permits of different types; and developed a system for the control and standardization of laboratories for the analysis of milk to be sold as Grade A Raw and Grade A Pasteurized. Fifty of these laboratories for such analyses have been approved up to the present time. All milk for free distribution to the indigent has been certified by this Bureau. The past four years of supervision of the public milk supplies has resulted in marked improvement in sanitary conditions in dairy farms and milk treatment plants. Incidentally, Pennsylvania is the only state in the Union that has attempted state-wide supervision of milk.

Tuberculosis Sanatoria

Work in the three State Sanatoria for the treatment of the tuberculosis is better systemized than at any previous time. Bronchoscopy is used to a greater extent than ever before, and arrangements have been made for the care of patients needing surgical interference. X-ray plants have been replaced or renovated; new hospital units have been added; and the four year record shows a gratifying decrease in the case rate mortality, indicating that patients seek treatment earlier and consequently it is possible to do more for them at the Sanatoria.

Hospital for Crippled Children

At the Hospital for Crippled Children the work continues to be of a high standard. Improvements in technique have been instituted and follow-up clinics are regularly held in sections of the State not covered by cooperative clinics. A new dormitory for nurses was erected increasing the capacity of the Hospital by about 40 patients. The waiting list is still as large as it was two years ago.

Treatment of Infantile Paralysis

During the past year arrangements were made at Mont Alto and Cresson sanatoria for the treatment of recent cases of infantile paralysis by the water gymnastic treatment. The work has now been concentrated at Mont Alto and arrangements made to handle 45 patients. Trained physiotherapists were secured and the results obtained have been gratifying beyond expectations. The work of remodeling the existing pools was done with our own labor and at practically no expense to the State.

Physical Condition of Institutions

New construction at the institutions has been as follows:

Mont Alto Sanatorium—Erection and opening of four modern, fire proof, hospital type dormitories, each with a capacity of 50 patients.

Cresson Sanatorium—Erection and opening of a new Children's Hospital with a capacity of 150 patients.

Hamburg Sanatorium—Erection and opening of two modern fire proof, hospital type dormitories, each with a capacity of 50 patients.

Hospital for Crippled Children—Erection and opening of a dormitory for nurses and women employes, increasing the capacity for patients by 40.

The institutions have been generally renovated and repaired and the grounds improved; with the aid of money made available through the work relief programs of the Federal Government.

EMERGENCY CHILD HEALTH COMMITTEE

Samuel McC. Hamill, Chairman

To the Governor:

Herewith is a brief report of the work of the Pennsylvania Emergency Child Health Committee.

For the past few years our country has been experiencing another disaster more threatening in its effect on the health, welfare and morale of our people than was the World War. It is a much less spectacular crisis. It has been slower and more subtle in its growth, it lacks the marching of troops, the beating of drums and the heart-rending separation of families that are a part of war. It is therefore much more difficult for us to visualize its threats and its effects.

Extent of Problem

There are over 300,000 families on relief in Pennsylvania, and in these families there are more than 700,000 children. But that is not all of the picture. There are unknown thousands whose opportunity to earn has been reduced to a point that brings them to the borderline of relief. It is constantly reported to us from different sections of the State that these groups are suffering more than those on relief because they have no one to guide them in the intelligent use of their limited budgets, or in the protection of the health and welfare of their children.

With very definite concern for the welfare of Pennsylvania's children, Governor Pinchot called, in February, 1933, a conference of representative people from all parts of Pennsylvania to report to him the status of the nutrition of children. The evidence submitted was so significant that it was manifestly imperative that steps be taken immediately to create an agency whose primary function should be to protect the health of the vast number of children in the families on relief.

It was true that vital statistics indicated that the adult and infant death rates had not increased. Unfortunately, death rates are not an index of the amount of sickness and we have no sickness statistics.

Even if we had, they would not include the types of departure from normal health, such as malnutrition, moderate degrees of ill health, etc., that it was necessary to correct and prevent; they would not have revealed the innumerable defects that children suffer from; nor would they have recorded the woeful lack of application of well-established preventive measures.

Even had the February conference failed to show that children were suffering, the creation of an emergency committee would none the less have been justified. It was inevitable that any depression as serious and prolonged as that we are experiencing must reflect itself in a lowering of the health and vitality of children. After all, it is the ultimate effects—those which will manifest themselves in the years to come—that we fear most.

Organization of Committees

It was in the hope of erecting a safeguard against such stunting of growth among Pennsylvania's children that the President, President-elect and Secretary of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania and representatives of the Departments of Health and Welfare, together with a few interested individuals, met with Governor Pinchot to discuss the procedure to be followed in organizing a committee to protect the health of children in the present crisis.

Since we were to deal with a health problem it was manifest that the project should be administered under the auspices of the medical society of the estate, cooperating with the state government, its Departments of Health, Public Instruction, and Welfare, and the State Emergency Relief Board. The organization adopted called for a state committee to be known as the Pennsylvania Emergency Child Health Committee, the membership of which was to be chosen by the state medical society and to consist of representatives from every state-wide agency interested directly or indirectly in the health and welfare of children, together with outstanding laymen. This Committee was to be presided over by a member of the state medical society, selected by the society. It also provided for county units with the same type of personnel, to be selected by the county medical societies and administered under their auspices. All of these committees were to serve on a volunteer basis.

Here again the citizens of Pennsylvania were given opportunity to render a very essential service in the midst of a great calamity, and here again they have responded splendidly, not with the same rapidity as in the beginning of our entrance into the World War, because it was not as easy to grasp the picture, but none the less with equal enthusiasm. That the medical profession would serve the suffering poor we knew full well. They have never faltered in time of need. But the support that has come to the aid of the profession in the solution of this health problem from every agency and every individual whose assistance we have sought, has been a splendid stimulus to those of us whose duty calls us to service when the health of our citizens is endangered.

To create effective organizations in the sixty-seven counties of Pennsylvania was no easy task. To have done it through correspondence would have been impossible. It necessitated direct interviews with every one of the sixty county medical societies in the state, and with representatives of the state medical society in the other seven counties.

We were most fortunate in securing at the very beginning of our work the full time voluntary services of a medical man, highly trained in public health and of broad experience in many fields, to undertake this aspect of our program. He has visited every county on many occasions and as the result of his unselfish and effective efforts we have fifty-six of the sixty-seven counties actively at work.

It was early manifest that the lay groups in these county committees desired assistance and guidance in the organization of their part of the work. Here again we were most fortunate in obtaining the voluntary services of an ideal woman broadly trained in the use of volunteers and the organization of volunteer work. She has been invited to visit twenty-eight counties, where, always acting under the guidance of the chairman of the county committee, she has rendered invaluable service in coordinating the work and in clarifying the many problems that naturally arise in the development of any new and unfamiliar project.

Health Examinations

The work of the physicians involves complete health examinations of children in the families on relief and the borderline, between the ages of birth and sixteen years. The names and locations of the children are provided by the County Emergency Relief Boards. After these examinations are completed the physician gives dietetic and hygienic advice to the mother in respect to her children and, in the event of any special findings such as serious malnutrition, badly diseased tonsils, dental caries, etc., recommends the proper procedure to follow.

These recommendations are then submitted to the chairman of the committee who delegates to the proper group or individual the accomplishment of the service required. This includes referral to hospitals for tonsillectomies or other operations (for which the chairman usually makes the arrangements), to dentists for the corrective work they have so generously given, to the County Relief Boards for cod liver oil or extra food, and to the home economists for food demonstrations to mothers.

To retain the family doctor-family relationship, which has been found to have a very decided value in supporting the morale of the mothers, the children are referred for examination to the physician who was formerly in attendance on the family. Where children are found to be suffering from acute or chronic illnesses which require medical attention they immediately are placed in the care of the family physician as medical relief cases.

Correction

In referring cases for correction, if it is found that the child has been under the supervision of any agency in the county, that child is referred to that agency for whatever service he requires. The nature of our organization, which brings into the membership of the committee every agency within the county having to do with children, makes cooperative effort of this character relatively simple. Not only does it accomplish this, but the bringing together of these groups makes possible a closer coordination of their work, a better understanding of their purposes and functions, and the elimination of duplication. It also aids in locating the areas within the county which are not reached by any existing agency.

To put through such an extensive program requires the services of a large group of volunteers. To lighten the burden of the physician, two volunteers are assigned to each physician during his examining hours, to weigh and measure the children, take the histories, record his findings and transfer the recommendations to the chairman of the committee. For this particular work we have often been very fortunate in securing the services of unemployed nurses who have given most liberally of their time and effort.

We have given our lay volunteers short courses of intensive training to fit them for assisting physicians at the time of examinations, helping with food demonstrations, visiting in the homes and various other activities.

Women's Organizations

The work could not have been put across without the devoted service of the women of Pennsylvania. The State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, the Congress of Parents and Teachers, the Pennsylvania Nurses Association, and the Pennsylvania Home Economics Association have officially endorsed our work and offered their services. Locally they have interested themselves in the active work of the committees and have been of the utmost value in raising funds for defraying the expenses of the county committees by the various methods which women alone know how to utilize.

The men's service clubs, who have always shown themselves interested in everything pertaining to the health and welfare of children, have also rendered splendid service.

In dealing with governments and governmental agencies one sometimes feels that cooperation is difficult to secure. This has not been our experience. On behalf of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania and the Child Health Committee, I wish to express to Governor Pinchot, the State Emergency Relief Board, the Director of Relief and his staff, as well as to the Department of Health, Public Instruction, and Welfare, our deep appreciation of the whole-souled and unselfish cooperation and assistance they have given.

Details of the Work

More than three thousand physicians are participating in the work of the committees. It is their skill and devotion which is protecting the future generations of Pennsylvanians. They have reported to us the making of some 73,000 examinations. They find about 30% of these children suffering from malnutrition, this figure varying greatly in different districts of the State and in different sections of individual counties, sometimes running as high as 50%.

Forty-three per cent of the children have been shown to have dental caries. This is, of course, a conservative figure because it includes the examination of many infants. The fact that we have secured correction in 28% of these children is a great tribute to the dental profession, inasmuch as this service to 7,762 children requires not only the expenditure of time, but the use of valuable materials.

Thirty-five per cent of the children show tonsils so definitely diseased as to require removal at the earliest possible moment. These corrections are being rapidly accomplished, 11.6% already having been operated upon through the generosity of the operating physicians, the hospitals and those who have donated money for the hospital days.

Almost 6% of the children examined have been found to have gross eye defects and glasses have been provided for 653, or 19% of these.

We have been very much disturbed by the tremendous number of children who have failed to receive protection against smallpox and diphtheria. This is especially true of the children of the pre-school group, the age group which is most susceptible to these devastating diseases. In some districts the percentage of children not immunized against diphtheria is as high as 99, although the average for the entire group examined is 65%. All of the county committees are engaged in immunizing these children. Several counties have put on intensive campaigns for the immunization of all children under ten years of age. Up to the present time 21.5% have been immunized against diphtheria.

There is no coercion in the project we are engaged upon. We are merely offering a service. To our great delight we find that it is gladly accepted, particularly because it re-establishes the relationship between the family and the family physician, a guarantee to parents of the protection of the health of their children.

STATE POLICE

Lynn G. Adams, Superintendent

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Pennsylvania State Police during your Administration.

The personnel during the administration averaged 400 officers and enlisted men. Special attention has been given as heretofore to the selection and training of personnel. No man has been assigned to police duty unless he has satisfactorily completed a six months' course in mental and physical preparation at the training school. The training course has been continued also, through the medium of Troop Schools, after transfer of a trooper to his regular assignment, thus coordinating training with experience. The training gives the policemen not only a better physical and mental aptitude for their work, but also equips them to function better as officers and to cope successfully with unusual police situations.

The addition of experts and scientific instruments to the criminal investigation force has accomplished much to determine not only the manner in which crimes were committed, but also to determine who committed such crimes. The various district attorneys endorse and highly commend this branch of the State Police service.

Four Difficult Years

The past four years have been the most arduous in the history of the Pennsylvania State Police. Factors such as industrial disturbances, business depression, general unrest, marching of the unemployed, and the crime situation, have made excessive demands upon the organization. During the administration the requests for assistance have increased ninety percent—total requests, 238,045. These resulted in 136,503 investigations, or an increase of twenty-nine percent over the previous four years, and in 52,038 arrests—an increase of eleven percent. The number of arrests involving larceny, burglary, and robbery has increased forty-five percent, reaching a total of 16,912 in this grade of crime. The duty performed for other State Departments and Commissions has been equivalent to seventeen men for each working day per year.

Fines amounting to $1,151,275 have been imposed by the courts in connection with arrests. Stolen property to the amount of $637,144 has been recovered. These two items represent sixty percent of the cost of salaries for the force for four years. The real value of results achieved through successful investigation work, the apprehension of criminals, the impartial protection afforded to the citizens of the Commonwealth, and the psychological influence exerted on potential criminals cannot be estimated in monetary value.

Industrial conditions have been subnormal. Violent strikes have occured at mines, factories and mills. At various times more than one-half of the Force was on duty in connection with these disturbances. The State Police performed their duty impartially, and of course, strictly in accordance with existing laws governing the rights of citizens and protection of property. This continuous duty necessitated a special additional appropriation of $93,000. The administration inaugurated an economy campaign which was rigidly carried out, resulting in marked savings in the several appropriations. Deficits were avoided.

Teletype System

The Teletype System has expanded in scope and usefulness, now reaching 169 police stations throughout Pennsylvania through 114 receivers and use of duplicating paper, and also connects with the network of New Jersey, New York, Delaware and Ohio teletype systems. Facilities are also provided for transmission of messages through the States of Massachusetts and Connecticut. This additional service was provided with no increase in appropriation. The system has greatly increased police cooperation and efficiency and has resulted in the apprehension of many criminals by placing timely information in the hands of the police authorities. The number of messages transmitted in 1931 totaled 27,735 and in 1934 totaled 64,379.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR AND INDUSTRY

Charlotte E. Carr, Secretary

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Department of Labor and Industry for your administration.

The Department is operating at present with 424 employes paid from State funds compared with 479 at the beginning of the administration. The annual payroll is now $814,614 compared with $959,118 in 1931—an annual reduction of $144,504.

The State Workmen's Insurance Fund is operating with 71 fewer employes. There were 319 employes in 1931. Now there are 248 employes. The annual payroll has been reduced from $523,749 to $368,692.

Unemployment Statistics

One of the first and biggest problems the depression presented to Pennsylvania and the nation was that of determining the extent of the increasing unemployment. Because of the vital need for this information, the collection of employment and payroll data from industry was extended so that in cooperation with the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia and the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the number of firms voluntarily reporting monthly data on employment and payrolls in Pennsylvania was increased from 1,000 to nearly 9,000. With this up-to-date information from firms which in normal times employ approximately one-third of the State's industrial population, it was possible for the accounting and statistical organization of the Department to estimate the extent of State-wide unemployment. Prior to the establishment of the State Emergency Relief Board these statistics were the chief source of information for the State Government. The Legislature used them as the basis for distributing the first and second relief appropriations among the counties.

The following table shows the trend of unemployment in the State during the last three years:

	Estimated number totally unemployed	Per cent of working population	Estimated number totally unemployed	Per cent of working population	Estimated number totally unemployed	Per cent of working population

Average for year	1,146,596	30.8	1,141,143	30.7	933,913*	25.1*

Beyond the new field of estimating unemployment the Department extended its normal statistical work in other directions. It was one of the first agencies in the country to reveal that industrial accidents were not decreasing in proportion to the decline in unemployment; that, consequently, inspection activity and general safety work would have to be emphasized to prevent serious retrogressions from normal standards of health and safety in industry.

One of the accomplishments of the period was the perfecting of a system of compiling monthly accident statistics for individual industrial establishments in the State. The objective was to obtain a guide for inspection work which would permit concentration of inspection activities on those plants having high accident frequencies. The development of this plan proved particularly important during the depression years when appropriations had been reduced and the travel of inspectors restricted. Aided by this monthly compilation of accident statistics for nearly 29,000 industrial establishments, the Department was able to single out those plants where accidents were most frequent and where visits of inspectors and enforcement of safety regulations were most needed.

Statistics covering compensation administration proved of great assistance to the several committees which, during 1933-1934, conducted thorough investigations into the administration and strengthening of the Pennsylvania Workmen's Compensation Law. Many of the committee recommendations have been based upon these.

Greater efficiency and economy in administration resulted from a consolidation of the activities formerly carried on by the accounting, executive, and statistical bureaus of the Department. The three functions were merged into one bureau designated the Bureau of Accounts and Statistics.

Re-employment

The pressure placed upon the Department's job-finding functions necessitated bringing the State employment system up to new standards of efficiency, and extending its contacts with employers. The resulting reorganization, begun in 1931, proved of incalculable value to the unemployed, the Commonwealth, and the Federal Government when State-Federal work relief projects were launched on short notice two years later. Without the foundation laid during 1931-1932, it is doubtful whether the State Employment Offices could have handled the emergency load dumped upon them by that program. With machinery geared to place 30,000 to 50,000 persons a year, it would have been physically impossible to place 288,000 men and women during the first eleven months of 1934 as was done.

Activities of Public Employment Offices

Year	Registrations	Placements
1927	134,181	50,411
1928	106,870	36,132
1929	108,512	41,997
1930	116,248	30,773
1931	137,038	30,993
1932	302,835	41,054
1933	457,737*	124,838†
1934 (11 months)	568,951	288,773†

To make it physically possible for the Bureau to tackle this work in the concentrated centers of population, the CWA and the State Emergency Relief Board provided money for additional personnel. From December 1, 1933, to August 20, 1934, $332,639 was allocated from these sources for salaries. This enabled the State system to add 479 employes to augment its normal force of 84.

The widespread publicity given to the CWA venture brought hundreds of thousands of persons storming the State Employment Offices during the first several days. The work of placing hundreds of workers continued steadily at every office until the immense job was completed.

In the wake of the CWA came the Federal Relief Works Division program on April 1, 1934. During the next four months, 164,863 relief workers were registered and 108,426 were given employment.

Coincident with the reorganization of all offices, the specialized development of the Philadelphia office was begun. There the Commonwealth combined with private enterprise to establish the Philadelphia Experimental Office. The office was set up and operated under the direction of the Etate Employment Commission which was created by the Legislature in the spring of 1931.

While the fulfilling the normal requirements of an employment office—that of finding jobs for persons who needed them—the Philadelphia office made important contributions to the entire State service during the succeeding 16 months. It completed studies and analyses and drafted manuals which will be of great value for many years to come. It became a training school in which many members of the present staffs of other State employment offices were trained in the fundamentals of fitting the right worker to the right job.

The State Employment Service seems to be firmly established in a way in which it can serve Pennsylvania labor and industry to a degree never before possible. Beyond its present functions it stands as the foundation upon which the Commonwealth eventually may build a system of unemployment insurance. In any unemployment insurance program a system of competent, well conducted, nonpolitical state employment offices is essential. With this in mind, the Department of Labor and Industry has worked toward higher and higher standards of service in the Employment Offices and the Governor has put all employes in the service under a merit system.

Mediation

The depression has condensed in the last four years all the major trends in labor's traditional struggle for the recognition and standards it seeks. This was attended by strikes in Pennsylvania to an extent unprecedented in the history of the Commonwealth. The trend of strikes as reported to the Bureau during the last five years is shown in the following table:

Year	Disputes Reported Number	Persons involved	Disputed Closed Number	Persons involved
†1927	87	19,466	79	18,491
*1928	70	5,097	54	4,461
1929	158	23,169	131	21,623
1930	110	29,921	88	26,179
1931	159	59,198	139	53,221
1932	179	37,703	140	32,601
1933	629	370,384	329	209,059
1934 (11 months)	314	136,391	224	113,859

It is pointed out that in 1933 when strikes were more than the total of the preceding four years the Bureau of Mediation was temporarily abolished by action of the General Assembly. The effect of this curtailment of the mediation service is reflected in the lower percentage of strikes closed by the intervention of State mediators. In the three years preceding 1931, 82 per cent of all strikes reported were closed, whereas in 1933, only 52 per cent of the reported strikes were settled within the year.

The addition of wage-claim-collection to the other functions of the Department was a partial answer to another of the many new problems brought by the depression—the failure of some employers to pay even the low wages which were general during the period. There were thousands of cases in which employes appealed to the Department of Labor and Industry to do something about employers who deliberately refused to pay wages due. Lacking a law which specifically covered this problem, the Department proceeded to do what it could under an act which requires that "each person, firm or corporation employing any person other than at an annual salary, shall pay to such person his or her earnings or wages semimonthly." (1913, P. L. 114)

Women and Children

Nowhere did the breakdown of industrial standards in the depression strike so swiftly and so disastrously as on the earnings and hours of work of women and child wage earners.

The studies of hours and earnings, particularly in the important women-employing textile industries covering over 600 establishments and nearly 100,000 workers, revealed almost unbelievable depths to which labor stndards had fallen. The continued employment of 14 and 15 year old children for a mere pittance at a time when more than one-third of the adult working population of the State was unemployed, and the review of payrolls which showed women working fifty and fifty-four hours a week for $1, $2, and $3 provided concrete evidence of the disheartening results of the depression on the labor standards of women and children, and at the same time presented an incontrovertible argument for the enactment of state legislation setting minimum wage standards, elminating child labor, and establishing shorter hours of work. The sweatshop inquiries and the Department's reports upon child labor served as deciding factors in the final ratification of the Federal Child Labor amendment by the Legislature in the special session of 1933.

The Department has contributed to the maintenance of the higher standards set by the National Recovery program. It has cooperated with the State Emergency Relief Board in seeing to it that State orders were given to plants which maintained decent standards of wages and working conditions for its employes. Since the State Emergency Relief Board has been purchasing supplies for relief distribution, the Department has investigated and reported to the Board regarding the employment conditions in more than 200 plants to which consideration for State orders has been given.

The Department has also assisted in a very material way in the maintenance of NRA standards in Pennsylvania

* Includes 141,991 relief cases referred by State Emergency Relief Board in December, 1933.
† Include placements on public works projects.

† Does not include general strike in bituminous industry, involving about 100 operators and 100,000 miners.

through the issuance of certificates of wage exemption for handicapped workers. The investigation and individual consideration of each case has served not only to adjust the employment difficulties of such workers but also as an important educational force towards the maintenance of code standards.

Inspection

As the depression increased in severity it was natural to assume that the number of operating factories was decreasing and that consequently there was less need for inspections and inspectors. The Legislature's inclination toward this view was undoubtedly an important factor in influencing the reduction in the Department's appropriations. The Department's experience has proven this assumption wrong. What actually did happen was that a majority of plants operating in 1929 and 1930 continued to operate through the succeeding years on a materially different schedule. A survey in 1932 showed that only five per cent of Pennsylvania's factories actually had closed The other 95 per cent continued to operate, some with reduced forces and some with half force on alternate weeks or alternate half weeks. In many instances, plant safety activities were either greatly curtailed or dropped completly. The effect of this on the workers' safety can be easily imagined. Overtime work with attended strain and fatigue, spasmodic work with equipment not maintained at safe operating standards, rotation of work which brought men to jobs and machines with which they were not thoroughly familiar, all involved new accident hazards and accidents became relatively more frequent.

The inspection staff was also called upon to pursue many new activities including special investigations of the operation of sweatshops, the temporary responsibility for the investigation of NRA code violations, and the responsibility for safety activities in connection with the CWA program and subsequent work relief projects.

Despite a drastic reduction in budget with consequent decrease in the number of inspectors there was no appreciable reduction in the annual number of inspections made in the last 4½ years as the following table will show:

Year	Expenditures	Number of Inspections	Number of Inspectors
1927	$385,051.53	62,469	63
1928		76,623	71
1929	457,056.95	111,179	72
1930		67,583	71
1931	430,289.70	63,603	78
1932	394,425.17	74,937	78
1934 (6 months)	165,290.82	30,487	65

Conditions of employment arising from the depression made increased prosecutions for violations of laws, particularly the Child Labor Law and the Women's Law, unavoidable. Prosecutions under the Women's Law reached their peak in 1933 when 481 were instituted. Child Labor Law prosecutions were highest in 1930. The following table shows the trend of prosecutions for violations of the Child Labor Law, Women's Law, and all factory laws during the last 7½ years.

Year	Child Labor Laws	Women's Laws	All Factory Laws
1928	54	82	262

Notwithstanding the tendency toward paring of maintenance costs and resistance to new equipment expenditures during the depression, definite progress has been made in the assurance of safety to the general public under the Fire and Panic Act which is primarily concerned with the means of egress, emergency lighting, and fire-alarm systems in schools, hospitals, theatres, and other places of public assembly. More than 600 schools have been equipped with necessary equipment and hospitals have provided emergency lighting systems in their operating rooms. The application of the provisions of the Fire and Panic Act to State-owned buildings and institutions has been a matter of particular concern. Adequate safety facilities have been provided in 782 instances.

Industrial Standards

Changes in manufacturing processes spurred by necessary reduction in production costs brought into industry new toxic conditions highly hazardous to the health of employes. To meet these new conditions, a laboratory has been set up in the Bureau of Industrial Standards to determine the toxicity of industrial dusts, gases, and fumes. Chemists and chemical engineers were employed. In addition, a commission of experts was appointed to study occupational diseases in Pennsylvania industries. The report of this commission was of such an outstanding nature that its work was continued through the help of the United States Public Health Service with the result that a special report on silicosis will be published within the next few weeks. A preliminary report on the prevalence of asbestosis in asbestos fabricating plants has already been published and will be followed from time to time by similar publications giving findings resulting from such investigations.

Rehabilitation

The depression has intensified the exacting task of restoring men and women disabled by injury, disease, and congenital causes to self-supporting positions in industry. The provision of artificial appliances and retaining was limited only by the amount of appropriation available, but the completion of the task of rehabilitation, namely, the placing of a handicapped person in a self-supporting job, was made extremely difficult by the rapidly increasing spread of unemployment.

The registered case load increased from 882 in January, 1925, to 1,776 in January, 1931, and amounted to 4,223 in January 1934. Various factors influenced this gain. Industrial accidents did not decrease in proportion to employment. There was an increase in the number of persons disabled in public accidents. Men and women who under normal conditions might have been able to obtain for themselves needed appliances and training were without funds. In attempting to deal with this enormous increase of disabled cases and despite the reductions in the total appropriations the Department arranged its budget so that funds available for rehabilitation were greater than ever before. The expenditures for rehabilitation from State funds which are matched in nearly all items by Federal appropriations to the State for rehabilitation work for the last five years are shown in the following table:

Year	Expenditures from State Funds	Expenditures from Federal Funds
1927	$41,228.86	$37,979.48
1928	45,169.52	40,572.29
1929	48,027.59	44,047.55
1930	47,289.41	44,412.93
1931	43,471.64	41,296.42
1932	50,756.14	47,875.17
1933	61,231.85	53,470.62

Even with this increase in State appropriation, the State in 1933 did not match more than 60 per cent of the total federal funds available to Pennsylvania for rehabilitation purposes.

In the latter part of 1933, the Federal Emergency Relief Administration authorized a program of emergency education which involved special attention to more than 4,500 disabled persons listed on the rolls of the county emergency relief boards. These 4,500 cases were referred to the Bureau for assistance and investigation, and a monthly allotment of $8,000 was made for use in rehabilitating them and for paying the salaries of necessary additional personnel in the Rehabilitation Bureau.

The handling of this new assignment involved an intensive course of special training of eighteen new agents. In this connection, a Case workers' manual for rehabilitation agents was developed in cooperation with the Vocational Rehabilitation Section of the Federal Office of Education. This has since been adopted for nation-wide use.

Another innovation was an employment placement service for disabled persons set up under the Wagner-Peyser Act. The act designated the State Employment Service and the Bureau of Rehabilitation as agencies to administer jointly this service. It is designed to aid disabled persons not only in need of rehabilitation service but in need of a job. Through the facilities of this service more than 5,000 physically handicapped persons were placed in employment in the last year. The handicapped often performs as good a job as the normal worker and the State Employment Offices are kept informed constantly of the number and types of rehabilitation applicants registered with the Department so that they may be given consideration for job opportunities listed.

That private employers also are becoming more receptive toward the employment of physically handicapped persons is attested by the fact that the placements of physically handicapped persons in jobs in 1934 was more than double the total for 1933.

Workmen's Compensation Bureau

When the Supreme Court in 1934 reversed the Superior Court in the now famous Romig case, which affirmed the Department's stand that weekly compensation payments must be figured on a five and one-half day wage basis, instead of on shorter week basis, the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation was ready with a segregated file of the more than 16,000 cases of injured workers and dependent widows of workers killed who were affected by this decision. Employers and insurance companies were notified immediately and urged to adjust compensation payments in these cases without further litigation. Where necessary, claimants were instructed in the methods to follow for procuring their rights. Largely as a result of this forethought on the part of the Bureau, more than 60 per cent of these cases involving underpayment of compensation benefits as a result of the Superior Court's decision, were adjusted by the end of 1934.

The Department by utilization of CWA facilities, made a careful check of 25,000 employers to determine whether they were protecting their employes by workmen's compensation insurance. Over 12,000 violators of the workmen's compensation law were uncovered. Twenty-five per cent of these took insurance on first warning. The balances are being prosecuted and compelled to comply with this statutory protection of their workers as rapidly as the limited Department force permits.

The Department has prepared and published a careful analysis of Pennsylvania's workmen's compensation system and its rank among the various states in each of the catagories usually used to determine the liberality and fairness of a workmen's compensation law.

The uncertainty of general financial conditions increased the work of the Insurance Coverage Division enormously. Insolvent insurance companies presented a serious problem and large employers of labor who were enjoying the insurance exemption privilege had to be supervised with increasing care. The insolvency of some insurance companies during the past four years compelled the division to extend itself to the utmost in protecting the rights of injured claimants to the fullest possible extent. In this work, the division had to deal with the failure of nineteen companies writing compensation insurance. These companies had written policies covering 530 temporary disability cases, 62 permanent disabilities and 216 fatalities. The declared liability was $942,418, which did not include the indeterminate liability in the temporary disability cases. During the depression it has been necessary not only to examine with greater care the regular financial statements filed each year by self-insurers but to require interim reports from many whose financial difficulties became apparent. The worst conditions in this field were met during 1933 and 1934.

Over the four year period the exemption privilege was withdrawn from 18 employers but the relatively small number of withdrawals does not indicate the severity of the situation. Many companies were continued as self-insurers only after extensive conferences with the bureau and the completion of agreements by which they filed high class bonds under collateral trust agreements to the extent of their outstanding compensation liability.

An important innovation during the depression has been a procedure for notifying every injured worker regarding the extent to which the compensation law protects him. This is achieved through a form letter known as the "Workers' Rights Letter" which explains as briefly as possible the major provisions of the law and the procedure by which compensation claims can be filed.

Workmen's Compensation Board and Referees

The Workmen's Compensation Board and Referees have been faced with the problem of keeping pace with a rapidly growing calendar of disputed cases in spite of no appreciable increase in personnel. Petitions before the referees increased from 6,418 and 6,574 in 1928 and 1929 to 8,069 and 9,249 in 1932 and 1933. On account of the stress of the times both employers and claimants probably have been more litigious during this period than during any other. Appeals from referees' decisions to the Workmen's Compensation Board showed even a greater proportionate increase than the petitions to the referees. Appeals to the Board which numbered 995 and 1,006 in 1928 and 1929 rose to totals of 1,517 and 1,949 in 1932 and 1933.

State Workmen's Insurance Fund

The problem of operating a State Workmen's Insurance Fund during the last four years is indicated by the fact that seventeen insurance companies of seventy-five have gone out of the compensation insurance business in Pennsylvania since January 1, 1931, and are now unable to meet their legal obligations to injured workers. The State Workmen's Insurance Fund withstood this period of great financial stress without a dangerous depletion of surplus and is expected to be able to declare a substantial dividend on the 1933 and 1934 business.

The management of the Fund has been thoroughly reorganized with attendant improvement in underwriting, claims adjustment, and accident-prevention activity.

Note: A more thorough and detailed study of the activities of the Department is available in Special Bulletin No. 39, "Pennsylvania Labor and Industry in the Depression."

DEPARTMENT OF WELFARE

Alice F. Liveright, Secretary

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Department of Welfare during your Administration.

Unemployment and the Direct Aids

Beginning with the latter half of 1929 the slow tide of unemployment began to roll up throughout the industrial centers of the State. By the time the Legislature convened in regular Session in 1931, acute suffering had appeared, especially in Philadelphia and in the soft coal producing counties, but the problem was considered temporary and it was believed that it could be handled adequately by the local public and private agencies.

When conditions continued to be increasingly grave in the summer of 1931 in spite of seasonal decreases in applications for relief, the Governor selected a small committee to collect and analyze the already available statistics and related material. The committee's report brought startling facts to the surface. It revealed that at that time nearly one-fourth of the whole working population was unemployed and that there had been a tremendous increase in part time work together with drastic reductions in wages.

The Department had been conscious of a greatly increased burden in all fields of service and with the report of this Planning Committee before it an Assistant Deputy Secretary was employed for the purpose of procuring further facts in two lines: (1) collection and analysis of material to show needs and resources for unemployment relief; (2) study in each county of the extent of private effort, the funds available from tax levies, taxes collected, indebtedness in relation to borrowing capacity, expenditures for poor relief, number of families aided, and the like.

First State Relief Money

Daily reports of mounting local needs and inability of communities and local services to meet them continued to be progressively alarming in the Fall of 1931 and the Governor called a Special Session of the Legislature in November to deal with the problem. The Session produced only one relief measure—a $10,000,000 appropriation to the Department to be distributed among the local Poor Boards upon the basis of the amount of unemployment in each county as shown by the statistics of the Department of Labor and Industry.

For the first time in its history the State appropriated money without making any provision for State supervision of its expenditure. The Act was accompanied by no measure for new revenue and, following a fight through the courts up to the State Supreme Court, it was April, 1932, before any of the appropriation could be used. The Supreme Court afforded this appropriation a status midway between appropriations for running the State Government and those social aids such as Mothers' Assistance and State-aid to Hospitals and Homes. The latter were reduced automatically by an amount sufficient to meet the $10,000,000. Thus local aid was given by the State with one hand while it was taken away with the other.

The abatement of these appropriations threw the affected agencies, particularly Mothers' Assistance, into confusion which continued until the 1932 Special Session restored their appropriations to the original amounts.

By May, 1932, more than 3,000,000 people in the State were without income from their wage earners. To indicate how the relief problem had grown it is pointed out that in the single month of May, 1932, four times as many families received relief as in the entire year of 1930.

The State was finding itself ill-equipped with social machinery to meet the crisis. In normal years the Poor Boards have spent something less than $2,000,000 each year on family relief. They have always been inadequately supplied with funds and with workers. Of the 67 counties only five had county-wide community chests. Public and private funds and services overlapped in some places. In others there was no service not supplied by the Poor Boards. Severity of distress was spotty. The rural counties were not alarmed about their condition. Philadelphia had been in acute distress for months. Allegheny County and some other centers still had some resources, partly because their crises were later than that of Philadelphia. The soft-coal producing counties, however, had long been in difficulty and their need now was acute. Hundreds of pathetic letters were pouring into the Governor's Office and the Department from individuals in distress. These were being referred to the local agencies. All over the State there sprang into being hundreds of poorly organized little groups with limited resources and little except the will to help.

Governor Asks Federal Aid

In July, 1932, the Governor requested aid from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—the first of the Governors to do so. Full responsibility for establishing the social budgetary needs of the State developed upon the Department.

A special Session was called in August, 1932, to consider the problem again. A second appropriation, in the amount of $12,000,000 was made and a temporary sales tax for six months was enacted to provide the money. The State Emergency Relief Board was created and the load, carried by the Department up to that time in addition to its regular work, began to be transferred to this new agency.

The Department aided in setting up the County Emergency Relief Boards through the many contacts with local people it had already made. It continued to put the knowledge of its employes at the disposal of the Board, lending it six workers on full time until they could be released by the Board and returned. For a year or more it continued to help the new organization by giving courses of training for relief workers, assisting in the preparation of the "Hand Book for Field Workers," and in other ways.

First Transient Study

When the "bonus army" was routed out of Washington in 1932 and moved by the hundreds into camps near Johnstown, the Department, with the Governor's endorsement, sent employes to give aid. This led to the making of one of he first studies of the transient problem to be made by any State. The Governor called an interstate meeting to consider the problem and a committee was formed. Its work led up to the Federal Government's steps to meet the problem of transients.

When the Civil Works Administration was started in the winter of 1933-1934 the Department hurried into execution every possible plan for improvement of its institutions. Several "white collar" projects were made possible in addition, the more important of which deserve mention:

Poor Relief—study of poor board accounting and control of receipts and expenditures; study of poor relief laws; analysis of intake reports from almshouses; inventory study of relief and family welfare in Pennsylvania in selected counties; study of farm product cost accounting and farm management.

Blind—study of individual case records of blind.

Child Care—census of dependent children under care in Pennsylvania on January 1, 1934; study to demonstrate methods of dealing with group of older child delinquents in Allegheny County.

Criminology—research and service for classification of prisoners in State penal institutions; preliminary service study in the prevention of delinquency in Philadelphia and various urban and rural sections of the State; ten year study of commitments to and discharges from the Eastern State Penitentiary and the Philadelphia County prison; tabulation of women in county jails and of conditions in jails.

Institutions—study of food consumption and food costs at nine State-owned institutions; study of food consumption, farm crops, and housekeeping; study of farm product cost accounting and farm management; study of housekeeping in mental and mental defective institutions.

Mental Health—study of waiting, lists of mental defectives; study of local feeble-minded waiting list and of discharged cases; revision of inactive file of mental cases—separation of deaths from other types of discharges.

Mothers' Assistance

The four-year total appropriated by this Administration for Mothers' Assistance—$8.231,000—is $2,730,000 greater than any previous four-year amount. In spite of this increase the need for aid continues great. The waiting list rose from 2,450 to 4,500 from June 1, 1933, to June 1, 1934.

Three counties have found themselves unable to match the State grants as required by law and have ceased to participate. They have been offset by three counties who have recently joined the ranks. Fifty-eight counties now participate in Mothers' Assistance.

The average grant has risen slightly. It is now $35.22. Widows who used to augment their grant by part time work or receive other aid from local agencies or from relatives have been generally failing to receive this additional help.

In June, 1932, when the abatement of the appropriation as a result of the Supreme Court's decision in the Talbot Act case, took effect, 3,032 families were dropped from the rolls. The restoration of the abated sum by the 1932

Special Session was followed by a return of these families to the rolls but the space of time in which this abrupt withdrawal of aid was in effect produced tragedy for the mothers and children and heartbreaking work for the Mothers' Assistance Boards.

The Blind

The Council for the Blind completed in October, 1934, a census of the blind population of the State. It located 10,851 blind persons and recorded the cause of their blindness, their physical and mental condition, and their social and economic status. Those found employable numbered 3,590, of whom 1,325 were gainfully employed.

At the Special Session of 1933 an Act creating pensions for the blind, sanctioned by a vote of the eletorate November 7, 1933, was passed and $1,250,000 was appropriated. Payment of pensions began June, 1934, and there are 2,911 blind persons on the payroll. The total monthly payroll is $90,369. The amount to which each person is eligible is based upon his visual acuity and economic status. Thirty-two counties have absorbed their allocation and now have waiting lists.

The Council has continued its work of assistance. Forty persons have been assisted in securing guide-dogs. Fourteen have been trained as "stand operators" and, with help from private sources, concessions have been provided from which they support themselves.

The Council has interested itself primarily in prevention of blindness among children. It has participated in institutes for all of the public health nurses employed by the State as a step in their education to better understanding of the need for securing prompt medical attention to certain eye conditions.

A simple method of pre-school vision testing has been introduced and instructions in its use have been given generally throughout the State. As a result, Pennsylvania now ranks third among the states in the number of preschool children whose eyes each year receive this attention.

The eyes of 40,000 children have been inspected by members of the Council staff and the records of 148,000 children have been examined as a means of discovering potential sight saving class candidates.

Old Age Assistance

The competition for jobs brought about by the depression has aggravated the tendency toward non-employment of the aged. This and the hazards to savings which have existed for four years have made the aged less and less able to find economic security for themselves.

Provision for old age assistance had been promoted by the Governor and other social-minded citizens for several years. In December, 1933, the State's first old age assistance law was passed. The Act took effect December, 1934—$4,000,000 being appropriated from the profits of the State Liquor Stores. These profits not being available, the 1934 Special Session made provision to care for old age pensions during December, 1934, and January, 1935, from a $14,400,000 appropriation to the State Emergency Relief Board.

Application blanks have been distributed to 75,000 persons. It is believed that 38,000 will be eligible based upon their citizenship, residence and economic status.

Organization for Administering the Direct Aids

Preparing for and issuing monthly checks to the blind since June, 1934, establishing eligibility of the vast number of applicants for old age assistance, and preparing to issue checks to them for the month of December, 1934, have been a heavy burden upon the Department. At the Governor's instructions, other Departments have cooperated. The administration of the three present direct aids—Mothers' Assistance, Blind Pensions, and Old Age Assistance—have been combined. This makes for economy and integration of relief needs.

Full credit is due the local administrative boards for their ungrudging and untiring service.

Institutional Management

To coordinate the work of the State-owned institutions, to help in solving their mutual problems, and to provide more close and active supervision of their activities, the Department created a Bureau of Institutional Management in July, 1933. This reorganization combines the formerly independent activities, of the agriculturist, engineer, architect, nursing consultant, and nutrition consultant. No additional employes were taken on.

The Bureau operates in the field of practically all of the problems to be met in the care of the more than 26,000 human beings who live in the Welfare institutions Shortly after its organization, the Bureau defined its policy in a series of management circulars issued to the institutions.

A monthly report as to hospital services performed at the medical and surgical institutions gives essential information as to those institutions. There have been splendid developments under the new Bureau such as—semi-annual fire prevention drills and plans for fire control, and the planting of 334,000 woodlot trees on waste or wooded areas. An institutional committee has set definite goals for the employment of patients at mental institutions. During the calendar year 1933 a very thorough study was made of institutional farms.

Institutional Operations During the Administration

Comparison of operating costs in our State institutions with similar costs in neighboring states demonstrates the economical conduct of Pennsylvania institutions. Yet low costs have not been attained through neglect of plants and equipment. Pennsylvania Welfare institutions are maintained in excellent repair.

There has been some overcrowding, to be sure, and overtime work for staffs. Parole from both mental hospitals and prisons has been delayed because of the serious financial situation in many homes which might ordinarily provide a normal environment as an aid to recovery or re-adjustment.

To have maintained a high degree of efficiency, considering the enforced enconomies, is an indication of sound administration, particularly in the light of the following figures:

1931 appropriations to Welfare Department institutions	$21,757,000
Abated 1932 Special Session	1,702,500
Further reduction 1933 regular session	1,054,500
Total appropriation reductions—two bienniums	2,757,000

Not only did the normal total population increase of 4,994 have to be met, but an extraordinary number of days' care were given. (14,528,420 actual patient days from June 1, 1931, to May 31, 1934.)

The following tables will illustrate the achievement:

Construction

The General Assembly at the Session of 1931 appropriated $10,258,010 to carry forward the Welfare Department construction program. Unfortunately, this appropriation was necessarily abated at the Special Session of 1932 to about five and a half millions and nothing could be appropriated at the Session of 1933, because of the demand for relief funds.

The $5,500,000 provided the following major items of new construction:

Allentown State Hospital—Home for 48 men attendants and married couples.

Danville State Hospital—Clinic and Diagnostic Building Female Ward Building
Male Nurses Home

Farview State Hospital—Two additional wards for 97 each. Assembly Building. Cottage for 25 tubercular patients.

Harrisburg State Hospital—Hospital for physically ill for 86 patients.

Norristown State Hospital—Admission Building for 150 patients. Building for 100 employes.

Warren State Hospital—Addition to nurses home for 40 persons.

Wernersville State Hospital—Attendant and Nurses Building. Cottage for male tubercular patients.

State Industrial Home for Women—Two cottages for 35

State Industrial Home for Women—Two cottages for 35 inmates each.

Western Penitentiary, Rockview—New boiler house. Cell block for 258 prisoners.

Pennhurst State School—Sewage disposal and water supply system.

Polk State School—Infirmary building for 400 custodial cases.

Blossburg State Hospital—Hospital building.

Philipsburg State Hospital—Nurses home.

Mental Health

During the past four years, the Department has made a drive for higher standards of treatment of mental patients and the promotion of activities for prevention. A special committee was assigned the task of surveying the State-owned mental hospitals. The report has resulted in a better knowledge of their requirements and constructive recommendations for a long-time efficiency plan. Another committee studied the question of the boarding out of mental patients. Such a plan, if approved by the Legislature, may in time lessen the need for institutional expansion and provide more normal home surroundings for selected patients.

The scope of the mental clinics, conducted by the hospitals, has been extended by the establishment of child guidance centers. These special clinics, providing facilities for the study and treatment of children, are also centers of advice and education for all interested in child welfare. The objective is a child guidance clinic in each mental hospital district, similar to those now established in the Norristown, Allentown, and Danville areas.

Community Work

The Bureau of Children and the Bureau of Assistance were merged June 1, 1933, and are now known as the Bureau of Community Work. In this Bureau are gathered all services to individuals within the several divisions—child and family welfare, Mothers' Assistance Fund, blind pensions, old age assistance, State-aided hospitals—supervision of all types of private agencies, and the Council for the Blind. We have here a fundamental organization for community service. It is unique in the national field of public welfare, tying in closely service relating to the promotion of sound family life. Its field representatives supervise:

84 almshouses, representing ..... 16,317 inmates
352 child caring institutions, representing .. 45,529 inmates
21 homes for the aged, representing ..... 1,023 inmates
4 other State-aided homes for the aged representing ..... 139 inmates
66 licensed boarding homes
31 maternity homes
62 private hospitals

The population in the 84 almshouses of the State rose from 13,149 on December 1, 1931, to 16,323 on December 1, 1933. This increase of 3,174 inmates or 24%, has meant the overcrowding of many institutions and much vigilance on the part of the Department in the way of supervision has been necessary to insist on even minimum standards of care. Supervision of State-aided and privately supported institutions and agencies caring for 45,529 children has always been the responsibility of the Department. During the first year of the biennium, supervisory visits were made to directors of the poor in their capacity as public child placing agents, and recently the Department has undertaken the supervision of almshouses and outdoor relief in 75 poor districts.

Another phase of community work is the supervision and visitation of 163 State-aided hospitals in order to check reports of patients entitled to free care. An annual inspection is also made. The appropriation for the present biennium of $7,553,350 covered much less than half of the actual expenditures for free care of the 163 State-aided hospitals. Lessening of income from endowments and private gifts, along with the pressure for increased care have pushed some of the hospitals almost to the breaking point.

Waiting lists in the 21 State-aided homes for the aged are growing, obviously as the result of the diminishing resources of many old people. State aid to other institutions—children's homes, homes for the aged, and others—amounted to $1,164,500 (which includes Glen Mills and Sleighton Farms).

Administration of the Solicitation Act has been expanded in order to protect givers from fraudulent appeals for charitable funds. During the biennium the Department granted certificates to three thousand welfare agencies seeking to appeal to the public for charitable funds.

A 67 per cent increase in certificates of registration were granted under the Solication Act in the present quadrennium.

In June, 1931, an Act giving the Department the responsibility of licensing private homes and hospitals went into effect and under the Non-Profit Corporation and the Business Corporation Act, the Department assumed additional work.

Corrections

The Bureau of Corrections is charged with supervision over the penal and correctional institutions of the State as well as over the prisons, workhouses, and lock-ups of counties, boroughs, and townships.

At the beginning of this Administration, the penitentiary population was 4,792. As of the present date the population of the penitentiaries is 4,951, an increase of 159. On January 1, 1931, the population of the two reformatories, Huntingdon and Muncy, was 1,443. As the present date it is 1,293, a decrease of 150.

Every year our State penal and correctional institutions pour back into the streams of population approximately 2,500 men and women. Their imprisonment costs the taxpayer many hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. If they emerge trained and willing to bear their share of the common burden, the taxpayer's investment is repaid with interest. If they return only as predatory enemies, with an added sense of grievance to be avenged, the investment is worse than wasted. The Bureau recognizes as its main function the responsibility of making criminals into men. A modern classification of prisoners has been established in all the prisons. Institutions have been classified and in accordance with recommendations of Classification Commitees prisoners are now being transferred and educated both in shop and class room on the basis of classification findings.

During this Administration, the Department has made every effort to prepare the prisoner for constructive citizenship after his release. It has improved educational facilities and emphasized practical vocational training. The program of reconstruction has been carefully developed. Prisoners have been examined and classified with the purpose of determining their adaptability to the varied types of training offered. At the Eastern State Penitentiary in Philadelphia and the Pennsylvania Industrial School at Huntingdon, educational and recreational directors have been appointed to guide those activities along the most constructive lines. A Supervisor of Rehabilitation activities has been added to the staff at Cherry Hill.

Early in 1934, a comprehensive and thorough report on Prison Industries was published. This study required nearly a year to complete and explains the purpose and function of this Division. It also included market analyses, industrial reorganization and recommendation for improving methods of training and rehabilitating prisoners and decreasing the number of idle inmates in our penal and correctional institutions.

Modern machinery has been acquired in several shops in order to train prisoners properly. A number of new shops have also been installed. These include a modern weaving shop at Graterford, a power sewing shop at the State Industrial Home for Women, Muncy, and a metal working shop, at the Western State Penitentiary, Pittsburgh.

There has also been a complete industrial reorganization of prison shops with special emphasis on improvement of products and production methods. Approximately 1,000 inmates of our prisons are employed in those shops, producing clothing, textiles, shoes, hosiery, underwear, furniture, brushes, metal tags, nursery stock, canned goods, and printing. Under the States-Use System, sale of these goods is limited to institutions, departments and agencies supported in whole or in part by tax moneys.

Probation

The Department has given special attention to probation. It has emphasized the need of adequately trained probation officers and urged upon the Judges of all counties the importance of strengthening their local probation service. It conducted an educational program on probation through institutes given in connection with meetings of the State Conference of Social Work and the Penal Affairs Committee of the Public Charities Association.

The Department recognizes the importance of work for the prevention of delinquency. It has gathered special material for a study of community resources available for offenders between the ages of 16 to 21, who are put on probation. It has also made a study of facilities for care of women offenders in county prisons.

As a result of the Bureau's recommendations, a number of county jails have been renovated and remodeled. In several, new women's quarters have been provided and minimum standards for food, sanitation, ventilation, and exercise established.

DEPARTMENT OF PROPERTY AND SUPPLIES

Walter G. Scott, Acting Secretary

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Department of Property and Supplies during your Administration.

The personnel of the Department on January 1, 1931, numbered 693, while at present it is 586. More work has been carried on in the past four years than ever before in the Department's history and this with 107 fewer people to do it. The Department's annual salary rate has been reduced by $266,803.

The Department, as its name suggests, is a service department for the other agencies of the State Government, therefore it reflects the volume of work which flows through the others. This volume has been larger than ever before.

An example of the unprecedented demands made on the Department was the renting of 237 State Liquor Stores in the short space of one month—December, 1933. The purchase, maintenance, and automobile demands of the Liquor Control Board, the Milk Board, and the State Emergency Relief Board have been great and in addition to the accelerated requirements of the older agencies.

Purchases

Four years ago at the beginning of this Administration, the purchasing procedure was comparatively simple in many respects compared with the present procedure made necessary by the NRA and other Federal Government regulations. At that time there was open competition on practically all the commodities purchased. Contracts could be made for semi-annual and annual requirements without question. However, since the advent of the NRA, competition is nearly a thing of the past.

In many cases, when the Department receives a low bid, a protest is raised by other bidders, and in many cases the low bidder is not permitted to furnish the material because of the various codes in effect. This not only delays deliveries but adds materially to our work.

The NRA has increased, in another way, the amount of work going through this bureau. Contracts cannot now be made over extended periods. In many cases where annual contracts were possible the Department is compelled to make monthly contracts, or, at most, contracts for sixty to ninety days. The price levels have been rising for the past year. The State is now paying substantially more for its commodities and supplies.

The process and compensating tax has added to our work to a considerable extent. The Department has endeavored to assist the institutions to free themselves from this tax as far as is legally possible. Progress has been slow because of the great number of such claims filed from all the charitable institutions in the country.

The establishment of the Liquor Control Board with its 270 stores, the additional mileage of highways taken over for maintenance by the Department of Highways, and the purchases for the 92 CCC camps throughout the Commonwealth are mainly responsible for the increased purchase of supplies and equipment during the Administration.

Notwithstanding the increased volume of work the purchasing personnel has been reduced by six employes. This was made possible by more efficient methods of purchasing and consolidation of duties with resulting increase in productive effort per person.

The State's cost of purchasing has been reduced to .00575 cents per dollar expended which is favorable and comparable with purchasing departments in efficient commercial industries.

Where the annual dollar volume of purchases negotiated by this Department was, during the previous Administration, $16,700,000, it is now $20,300,000.

Standards

The creating of this bureau is one of the Department's outstanding forward steps. It is charged with the work of simplifying and standardizing the various materials, commodities and supplies used by the various agencies of the Commonwealth, so that the requirements may be reconciled to modern manufacturing and the flow of materials to the various State agencies simplified, coordinated and speeded up.

Since the establishment of centralized purchasing in the Administrative Code enacted in Governor Pinchot's first Administration, work with "standards" has been carried on. Proper and adequate standards are vital to governmental purchasing since it is all done on a competitive price basis. During the depression, when falling prices have driven down quality and made competition between producers keener than ever before, the State's commodity standards are indispensable.

The Department prepares a standard catalogue of materials, commodities, and supplies to facilitate the purchasing of such supplies and to control the established standards. This catalogue, having definitely indentified the articles, will facilitate the development of group or mass buying by the several agencies of the Commonwealth, as contemplated by the Administrative Code. The chief value of this catalogue lies in its placing before every requisitioning officer of the Commonwealth a list of materials, commodities, and supplies, the quality of which has been predetermined.

Specifications for catalogue articles are developed, thereby insuring products uniform in quality and consistent with the needs of the agencies.

The Department is charged with the inspection of all materials, commodities, and supplies purchased to determine that they conform to the standard specifications. This work of inspection is highly essential. It protects the interest of the Commonwealth and it protects the honest bidder. Only under such safeguards will the State be assured of receiving full value for money expended. In the earlier stages of this work the number of rejections averaged approximately 60 per cent. Owing to the general business depression, many inexperienced and possibly irresponsible bidders have been attracted to the business of furnishing supplies to the State. This has greatly increased the work of "standards."

During the Administration the Department has established a small but highly efficient commodity testing laboratory and employed highly trained assistants to conduct tests.

The State will soon be in position, if it is desired, to aid political subdivisions of the State in their buying. Its test findings could be made available advantageously to the general public.

Owing to the vast fluctuation in prices of commodities during the last four years, no accurate and complete comparison of cost could be set up to indicate actual savings, but there are a sufficient number of individual cases to support the statement that the savings effected are far in excess of the cost of conducting the work.

Publications

The Department's work with publications has been materially increased by the establishment of the State Emergency Relief Board and the Liquor Control Board. The printing and paper for the Relief Board alone has amounted to approximately $125,000.

The Bureau of Publications with its increased volume of work, occasioned by the additional duties imposed upon it, has saved approximately $16,000 in operating cost during the past four years, together with approximately $145,000 by the strict supervision of all printing and the elimination of the publishing of costly reports.

The Department has been successful in eliminating large quantities of odd sizes and colors of paper through the cooperation of the various departments, boards, and commissions, and the Budget Bureau in the standardization of forms and bulletins.

Public Grounds and Buildings

In addition to the usual maintenance work required in the preservation of the grounds and buildings the Department has supervised and undertaken some major improvements such as:

Construction of Testing Laboratory in Temporary Building No. 5 for the use of the Bureau of Standards.

The installation of new pumps in the Highway Garage for the furnishing of heat for the room under the Memorial Bridge.

The construction of large file room under the Memorial Bridge for the Auditor General's Department.

The revamping and rewriting for the park lighting system.

The laying of concrete walk around the Museum and South Office Building No. 1.

The completion of the ventilating system on the fifth floor of the main Capitol Building.

Remodeling of the interior of the Publication Building for the use of the Department of Agriculture and Public Service Commission laboratories.

Remodeling of the Museum Building by the removing of old library stacks thus providing additional space for Museum exhibits.

The reconstruction of roof over boiler room in rear of the Capitol Building to provide additional parking space.

Construction of ventilating system in the Commonwealth Garage, 38 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Construction of steel grating platforms in all pipe chases in Capitol Building.

Painting of all structural steel work under the roof of the Capitol Building.

The rewiring of the main Capitol Building.

The construction of a steam control system to control the steam for the heating of the Capitol group of buildings, thus reducing the cost of operation insofar as heating the buildings is concerned.

The establishing of a typewriter-repair-shop, producing savings of approximately $500 per month.

The establishing of a furniture and equipment exchange wherein unserviceable furniture returned from various departments has been overhauled and replaced in service. This has saved the Commonwealth approximately $75,000 to $100,000 during the past four years in the purchase of new equipment.

The employes of the Department engaged in this work were reduced in number from 407 to 352 with an annual saving of approximately $72,000 in salaries.

Automobiles

The need for State automobile transportation increased proportionately with the additional duties imposed upon the Department. The creation of the State Emergency Relief Board, Liquor Control Board, Milk Control Board, Civil Works Administration, Civilian Conservation Corps, together with additional duties imposed upon the Pennsylvania State Police, the Department of Labor and Industry, the Department of Forests and Waters, the Department of Welfare, and the Department of Health, were particularly responsible for greatly increased demands for automotive transportation. But fewer automobiles were bought than ever before.

In order to meet the demand the following economies were instituted:

All cars in the vicinity of Harrisburg were pooled. This saved the State from purchasing additional equipment and brought about the consolidation of the Health Department Garage with the Department's Garage at 38 North Cameron Street, saving an additional amount of $14,400.00 each biennium.

Manipulated the assignment of cars to the agencies that utilize them to the best advantage.

Discounted the purchase of large seven-passenger cars and curtailed their use, and replaced large cars with small cars wherever possible.

Discontinued the purchase of large high-priced trucks when a smaller truck would meet requirements.

Endeavored to purchase equipment direct from the factory, including only standard factory equipment in the specifications.

Required more miles to be travelled by cars before tradein.

Utilized unservicable Highway equipment for part-time use at various State institutions and on construction projects, thus saving large sums of money for the rental of trucks.

Followed a policy of purchasing the make and type of equipment most adaptable to fit the needs of the various agencies and institutions.

Required all requests for transportation to be made directly by the Secretary, or his Deputy, of the various agencies rather than by the employes.

Prohibited the purchase of high-test gasoline at a saving of three to five cents per gallon.

Insisted that all repairs be performed by vendors under contract, procured a discount on parts and flat rate labor charges and required major repair work to be performed on the basis of estimates. All invoices for repairs are checked throughly against these estimates, as well as checked for proper prices and discounts. Executed contracts for the purchase of gasoline, oil, tire, tubes and batteries, insuring the lowest possible purchase price.

Insisted that all washing and greasing services be performed by vendors under contract.

Adopted the policy of installing governors on all new cars purchased, reducing driving hazards and excessive repairs caused by cars being driven at excessive speeds.

Devised a sytem whereby State cars have the advantage of purchasing gasoline and oil from the central garage and from Highway storage sheds. This saves from four to five cents on a gallon of gasoline and fifteen cents on a quart of oil through obtaining bulk purchase prices.

The aforementioned policies saved $285,570.19 in the purchase of passenger cars and trucks, and $134,957.05 in operating expenditures of passenger cars, or a total saving of $420.527.24 for the 1931-1933 biennium as compared with the 1929-31 biennium. Passenger cars were operated 2,709,603.5 miles more in the face of this enormous saving with fewer automobiles.

This Department was not given control over the automobile equipment of the Commonwealth until June 1, 1929. To make any comparisons of the work during the present Administration with that of the previous one, only biennial comparisons may be taken.

The following table will indicate the extent to which the State has decreased its cost of operating automobiles during this Administration.

	For all Agencies except Highways
	1929-1931	1931-1933
Operating Expenditures	$ 534,022.24	$ 474.233.41
Number of Automobiles in Operation end of Period ..	890	802
Miles Operated	20,613,263	23,520,867
Average Cost per Mile	$ .0259	$ .0201
New Cars and Trucks Bought —Cost	$ 651,049.98	$ 365,479.79

Construction

Because of the demand for funds required by the relief program, not as much building construction was handled by this Department during the past four years as during 1927-1931. The Department organization was therefore contracted to fit the reduced program and money was saved.

In spite of the reduction there were certain outstanding accomplishments:

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Memorial Bridge, Harrisburg was completed.

The South Office Building No. 2 (Education Building), Harrisburg, which had been seriously damaged by fire, was restored and put in use.

The Farm Show Building, Harrisburg, was improved and better parking facilities were made available.

The roof of the main Capitol Building was replaced by complete new tile roof and defects in the masonry on the domes were corrected.

The construction of a modern prison at Graterford, Pennsylvania, which was started in 1927, was taken over by the department and is practically completed; and the damage caused by the recent riot is nearly corrected.

Twenty Highway Garages were contracted for and have been virtually completed.

In cooperation with the State Emergency Relief Administrator applications for civil works were made and projects to the extent of approximately $150,000 were completed in or about the Capitol Buildings.

Because of the depression and the curtailment of private work, industry has concentrated on State work. From this concentration many problems in the approving of materials, contractors and sub-contractors and the enforcement of the plans and specifications have arisen. The Department has necessarily been called upon for closer supervision of keener competition and there have been more defaults, all of which the smaller organization has met. The Commonwealth has lost nothing through the default of any contractors.

The Session of 1931 amended the Administrative Code, Section 522, by requiring the Department to place wage specifications in contracts for public works. This has been done with all construction contracts and very closely enforced. It has been generally favorably received by both labor and industry. Penalties have been imposed on several contractors and the present results show that mechanics and laborers have been receiving the pay stipulated in the contracts.

Real Estate

The Department has made signal savings in rentals paid for leased real estate. On June 1, 1931, the annual rents paid by the Department for all General Fund agencies were $308,334.47. On December 1, 1934, the total annual rentals had been reduced to $199,988.91. The Department has been assiduous in pressing real estate owners to reduce the rents paid by the State on offices and garages to the level paid by private interests in the same localities.

Bonds and Insurance

There has been some reduction in the total cost of automobile insurance because of the Department's activity in reducing the number of cars but this has been somewhat offset by an increase in rates imposed by insurance companies on all purchasers of this type of insurance.

Expenditures for workmen's compensation by the State have increased because of the increased burden in the new organizations like the Emergency Relief Board, the Liquor Control and the Milk Control Boards. The taking over of a greater mileage of roads by the Highway Department in-creased its labor payrolls and hence, its insurance payments. These have required much more administrative work by this Department.

The Department has succeeded in revising the system of rating compensation insurance whereby the Commonwealth pays on the basis of its own risk. In turn individual departments are rated on their risks. This will result in considerable saving in the annual charges for compensation insurance.

Accounting

The Department has in many ways not already mentioned, rearranged and consolidated its organization and its work.

Accounting has been centralized, improved, and made less costly.

In cooperation with the fiscal officers one whole activity was eliminated at an annual saving of $4,920.

Systematic control of inventories was established and the storerooms consolidated thus saving in the total amount of investment carried in supply stocks.

Files and mimeograph activities were centralized.

Altogether $47,000 has been saved during this Administration.

Mail Service

By the establishment of a certal intra-departmental mail room, much messenger service, formerly required between departments, was eliminated. This has benefited the distribution of mail.

The mail-messenger service which the Department has conducted transporting the department mail between Harrisburg and Philadelphia for more than two years has saved $16,143 in two years out of what would have been required in postage.

Other Activities

In the transfer or sale of unneeded or unserviceable property the Department has been able, by transferring such equipment as: power house engines, trucks, rollers, crushers, farm machinery, electrical equipment and the like from agencies which were not using it to agencies which had a need, to save $150,000 which would have otherwise been spent.

Sale of unserviceable property yielded $75,173.30 during the period.

The State Insurance Fund was used to replace destroyed property to an amount of $26,322.91.

STATE ART COMMISSION

J. Horace McFarland, Chairman

To the Governor:

In accordance with the law which created it, a report is herewith submitted of the operations of the State Art Commission for the year December 1, 1933, to November 30, 1934.

The continuing shortage of public funds has interfered with the progress of the state building programme which it had been hoped would include the completion of the fourth great structure of the Capitol Group, so much needed to facilitate the public business now conducted in part in expensive leased premises.

Work Increases

But by reason of the activity of the Federal Administration, in Washington and through the Public Works Administration, Civil Works Administration, etc., the total number of submissions to the State Art Commission has been two and one-half times as great in the year just ended as during the preceding year.

In 1934, 812 designs were passed upon by the Commission. Of this number 210 were designs for public school buildings, 62 for city or county buildings, four memorials, 119 county bridges, 253 Department of Highways bridges, 152 state-owned buildings, and eleven buildings submitted by the Federal Government.

In the course of this work 87 projects, to cost if completed approximately $16,000,000, were presented for consideration within four days. One hundred and four submissions were approved resting upon Civil Works Administration funds.

The cost of structures passed upon during the year just ended totaled $35,011,808, all of public expenditure made or proceeding.

The habitual and careful scrutiny of our practice was given to all these submissions. Where necessary, the Commission made constructive recommendations in pursuance of its settled plan not merely to disapprove but to recommend toward greater efficiency and higher values.

It is in pursuance of this method that we report an increase in the number of conferences brought about with those who are submitting new structures. The professional field has come to recognize the merit of assistance given by the Commission, often in preliminary studies so that expenditures for final plans could be wisely made. These conferences emphasized the value of personal contact, and made more regrettable the limited personnel and inadequate facilities at the command of the Commission. Three hundred and eighty-one such conferences are recorded for this year, in 162 of which sketches or suggestions were made. Of notable historical relation is the consideration this year of plans for the restoration of Pennsbury Manor, the home of William Penn in Falls Township, Bucks County. Important suggestions followed a personal visit made by the Administrative Officer to this location. The designs for a group of twenty-five buildings to be erected by Allegheny County at the County Home in Woodville have been thoughtfully considered.

War Memorials, usually proposed by commercial concerns who influence inexperienced but patriotically minded bodies, continue to be presented. One design for a memorial to be erected at Uniontown, Fayette County, was rejected as wholly unsuitable, and a recommendation made to the chairman of the group of interested citizens that a competent architect be employed to design a worthy memorial.

The placing on exhibition in or near the State Museum at Harrisburg of certain petroglyphs unearthed at considerable expense on the site of the Safe Harbor Dam, was carefully studied, and suggestions were offered for locating a suitable display.

It is a pleasure to report to you the completion and dedication of the General Galusha Pennypacker Memorial, erected at state expense in Logan Circle, Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, on June 1, 1934. The Administrative Officer of the Commission not only supervised the erection of this great work of art, but carried through the plans for the dignified dedicatory exercises.

The Art Commission co-operates completely with various Federal Government groups whenever opportunity appears within its jurisdiction, and has likewise made contact with the newly appointed State Planning Board, all in the direction of greater efficiency.

This report will make plain to you that the Pennsylvania Art Commission continues its constructive and helpful programme, even though it is unfortunately restricted and undermanned. All of the increased work submitted has been handled by our Administrative Officer and one stenographer, and even so with a minmum of delay. It has long been the custom of the Commission to insist on prompt handling of submissions made to it, and this year most decisions were rendered on the same day the design was received. The Commission continues to urge that designers submit preliminary sketches for criticism and suggestion in the early stage of preparation.

1972 Designs Considered

In view of the fact that this report terminates the quadrennium of your Administration, it seems proper to review briefly the work accomplished during that time. Between January 1, 1931 and November 13, 1934, the operations of the Art Commission have included careful consideration and decision upon a total of 1972 designs, estimated to involve an expenditure of public money in the amount of $78,931,691. Thus—548 public school buildings have been studied.

106 county or city buildings.
309 plans for county-owned bridges.
600 plans for Department of Highways bridges.
36 memorials erected on public ground.
362 state-owned buildings.
11 desgns for buildings planned by the Federal Government.

Among the new achievements of the period thus covered, during which the Pennsylvania Art Commission offered constructive criticism or suggestions toward improving the appearance or location of projects submitted (and this in a fashion not paralleled anywhere in the United States) are the following:

The Safe Harbor Dam and Power House on the Susquehanna River received much consideration, and through numerous conferences the final design as developed and erected is virtually the work of the Administrative Office.

Berks County has erected a new Court House in Reading. The criticisms offered under the law by the Commission were gratefully received by the architects.

Two large county tuberculosis hospitals have been erected, one in Delaware County and one in Berks County, and important criticisms have been provided toward their betterment in location and design.

Important service was done in relation to alterations to the City Hall of Easton, which had been partially destroyed by fire.

The great Pymatuning Dam enterprise in the northwest corner of the State, in charge of the Department of Forests and Waters, has been aided through the designing of a new gate house, with what is admitted to be desirable and satisfactory results. Further consideration of this project in connecting it with the neighboring state of Ohio is under way.

While during the early years of this Commission's experience its good offices were not received with complaisance, particularly when criticisms had to be offered, it has now come to be recognized as an important means of conserving high values for structures and memorials erected within the Commonwealth. Not infrequently suggestions made have resulted in direct financial economies, and it is obvious that if the Commission were provided with adequate personnel and support its work under the Act which constitutes it could be even more advantageous to the inevitably enlarged building programme of the State.

It is in point to call attention to the presentation of the work done by the Pennsylvania Art Commission at a meeting called by the National Resources Board in St. Louis in late October, at which all the existing State Planning Boards were represented, and Pennsylvania's important and unique share brought into knowledge and consideration by the Chairman of the Commission.

In conclusion it may not be amiss to call attention to the fact that during the last two administrations, covering eight years, submissions have been made to this Commission involving the expenditure of public money in the amount of $218,774,111. None of the consideration thus involved has been perfunctory, and the Commission respectfully points with pride to the achievement thus evidenced, not equaled, it is believed anywhere in the United States.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE

Leon D. Metzger, Secretary

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Department:

In the Department of Revenue, the past four years have placed an especially high premium on efficient and economical operation.

General conditions during this period added vastly to the difficutly of adminstering the normal function of the Deparment— the collection of all revenue and taxes due the Commonwealth. On one hand, the Department was confronted with the necessity of meeting the extraordinary demands for revenue created by unemployment relief. On the other, it faced the serious problem of collecting taxes from sources which the depression tended to dry up.

Such circumstances made it doubly important that the Department not only collect all possible revenue as quickly as it might be done, but that it make the collections at the lowest possible cost. By reorganization and continued improvements in methods and personnel, the Department has been able to build for itself a truly remarkable record.

Of prime value to the Commonwealth has been the ability of the Department to assume new duties of large scope and important character almost at a moment's notice.

The combination of flexibility, efficiency and low cost operation has been especially notable during the last three years. Within that time, the Department's Bureaus of Investigations and Collections, Motor Vehicles, and Highway Patrol were called upon repeatedly to undertake the administration and collection of new taxes or assist in establishing administrative units for new control boards.

Relief Sales Tax

When the 1932 Special Session of the General Assembly enacted the Emergency Relief Sales Tax, the Department of Revenue was asked to collect a new kind of tax quickly and efficiently. Special collection methods had to be evolved to administer the law but, despite the necessarily improvised and emergency methods, the Department to date has collected nearly $10,000,000 under this act at a cost of approximately 1½ per cent.

The enactment of the Beer Tax (now the Malt Liquor Tax) Law by the 1933 Regular Session of the General Assembly presented other and equally difficult problems. The Legislature made the act effective on May 5, 1933, and by the preceding day the Department had completed arrangements to sell beverage tax stamps through 65 agencies and thus make them available to breweries and distributors who needed the stamps on the day the law went into effect. Temporary procedures were arranged for the payment upon taxed or bonded beer and ten days later, on May 15, permanent arrangements had been made to sell tax-paid bottle crowns to breweries. Thus far, collections under the act have totaled $8,872,175 (as of October 31) with no loss to the Commonwealth except that represented by two counterfeit ten-dollar bills.

In the fall of 1933, another Special Session of the General Assembly added to the functions of the Department the administration of temporary liquor tax laws. On November 22, the effective date of the Liquor Floor Tax Law, the Department was ready to collect that tax.

In addition to the collection of emergency taxes, the Department rendered valuable assistance in the enforcement of liquor control legislation and in establishing the administrative machinery of the Liquor Control and the Milk Control Boards. Without the benefit of the experienced and highly developed personnel available in the Department of Revenue, it is doubtful whether either of these control boards would have been able to begin licensing dealers within the very short periods allowed by the legislation creating them.

Corporation Accounts Reduced

In the course of its normal work, the Department of Revenue reduced outstanding corporation tax accounts to the lowest level in the recent history of the Commonwealth. On December 1, 1930, outstanding accounts on the ledgers of the Bureau of Corporation Taxes totaled $35,416,302, of which $18,306,524 was in delinquent accounts and $17,109,778 was in active accounts. Three and one-half years later, on June 30, 1934, the total of outstanding accounts had been reduced to $11,961,000, of which only $4,108,940 was delinquent and the remaining $7,852,060 was active.

The reduction of $23,455,301 in the outstanding accounts was made possible by changes in the law and by better administrative methods. The adjustment of disputed tax accounts was speeded up. The installation of machine accounting provided a daily control of the accounts and now serves to prevent any recurrence of conditions which, in the past, had contributed to a great amount of the delinquencies. One general effect of administrative changes was the enablement of the Commonwealth to collect millions of dollars while the taxpayer has funds instead of allowing accounts to become old and less possible to collect.

Gas Bootlegging Eliminated

In the collection of gasoline taxes, the Department has improved its system until tax evasion, bootlegging and attendant evils have been virtually eliminated. This, in itself, has added at least $1,500,000 annually to the revenue collected by the Commonwealth from this source.

Under the old system of collecting the liquid fuels tax from retailers, gasoline bootlegging was prevalent throughout the Commonwealth when this Administration assumed office in January, 1931. Conservative estimates placed at $3,000,000 the revenue lost during 1929 and 1930 as the result of these conditions while legitimate industry and trade suffered immeasurable losses because of disrupting influences.

Legislation sponsored by this Administration put a quick and permanent stop to these losses. The present Liquid Fuels Tax Act, approved May 21, 1931, automatically reduced the number of liquid fuels tax accounts from about 25,000 retailers to the 300-odd distributors in whom tax collection is centered today. It made possible definite accounting control over the billion gallons of gasoline sold and used in this Commonwealth annually. Detailed reports from distributors and common carriers now are required and are filed, covering all transactions and showing the destination of all liquid fuels transported in or through the Commonwealth.

Instead of large losses of revenue sustained in previous years, the bonding of wholesale distributors has cut the Commonwealth's losses of revenue caused by dishonest or bankrupt taxpayers to less than $1,000. Collection costs have been reduced from 2.3 per cent to three-fourths of one per cent.

The very evident result of these improvements has been the pronounced increase in the income produced by the liquid fuels tax act. During the three years immediately preceding the effective date of the present act, collections for one year at a four-cent tax rate and two years at a three-cent rate amounted to $90,553,823. During three years of the three-cent tax under this Administration collections amounted to $95,407,075.

Highway Safety

Aside from its revenue collecting activities, the Department, through the Bureau of Highway Patrol and Safety, has effectively directed the enforcement of the Motor Code and maintained a continuous supervision over the safety of the traveling public on the Commonwealth's highways. Largely because of their activity, Pennsylvania's accident record has been kept among the best in the country at a time when reckless motorists were taking an excessively large toll on the highways of the nation.

The Patrol and the Division of Safety have been unusually successful in coping with the menace of drunken driving which developed new prominence with repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. The Highway Patrol, with its record of rapidly increasing arrests and high percentage of convictions of drunken drivers, has set a splendid example for municipal police who are engaged in the same vital campaign. The Division of Safety, in this movement, as in all efforts to protect the life and welfare of highway users, has proceeded without fear or favor to revoke or suspend the licenses of motorists guilty of drunken driving and other flagrantly dangerous driving practices.

Among the new duties which the Department of Revenue has assumed is the administration of the State Aeronautics Law which was taken over when the State Aeronautics Commission was abolished as an economy move. The safety of aviation in Pennsylvania has not suffered, and indeed, has been advanced by this change.

Tax Collection Costs Low

To finance the operation of the Department of Revenue on this greatly enlarged scale during the past four years, a total of $17,603,548.19 was appropriated. Actual and estimated expenditures for the period will amount to $16,552,157, and an estimated $1,051,391.19 will be returned to the General and Special Funds as lapsed appropriations.

Of its total expenditures during the four years, $5,833,837 represents the cost of operation of the State Highway Patrol, the Division of Aeronautics, and the Division of Safety. The balance of $10,718,320 represents the four-year cost of the Department's operations in its strictly tax collecting activities. It is the price the Commonwealth paid for an agency which, during the same four-year period, handled $981,385,635 of revenue brought into the State Treasury and made available for the normal and emergency expenses of the State Government during this Administration.

Disregarding the proceeds of bond issues, allocations from the Federal Governments, transmittals of money collected by other departments, boards and commissions and other revenue which the Department did not actually collect, there remains a total of $561,474,785, actual and estimated, which the Department was wholly responsible for bringing into the State Treasury. Even if we regard the $10,718,320 expenditure as the cost of collecting that 561-odd million dollars, we find that the maximum cost of collecting taxes through the present Department of Revenue set-up was about 1.9 per cent of the money collected. This is a very small cost and one which few, if any, states have been able to equal in normal times and which none has been able to surpass during the abnormal conditions of the past four years.

BOARD OF FISH COMMISSIONERS

Oliver M. Deibler, Commissioner

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Board of Fish Commissioners during your Administration.

Survey of Waters

One of the signal accomplishments during this Administration was the survey of all waters. Distribution is now being made with the Board's own trucks and personnel. This assures the placing of fish in the waters for which they were intended, and eliminates any possibility of stocking private waters.

Distribution of Trout

For the first time in its history the Board of Fish Commissioners has been able to make a yearly distribution of more than one million trout ranging in size from six to twelve inches.

Propagation of Brown and Rainbow Trout

For the first time in many years brown trout are again being distributed. This has met with immediate general approval of the brown trout fishermen. The Board has also enlarged its program so that rainbow trout will be available in the very near future for those waters which are suitable.

Fingerling Trout in Tributary Waters

In cooperation with the sportsmen's organizations, the Board supplied in 1934 two million fingerling trout for the tributary waters which they thought should be stocked.

Nurseries

Close cooperation has been given the United States Bureau of Fisheries in the establishment of nurseries in Pennsylvania. The Board furnished to Federal nurseries in the State over 400,000 fingerling trout.

Spring Creek and Huntsdale Projects

It became evident early in the Administration that the Board of Fish Commissioners needed no additional hatcheries, but rather fish farms, or rearing areas. With this thought in mind two additional sites were purchased for fish farms, one at Spring Creek, Centre County, and the other at Huntsdale, in Cumberland County.

At Huntsdale there are five large springs, which assure an abundant supply of water, and the growth of trout there has been phenomenal. In addition many thousands of dollars wil be saved in transportation costs in stocking waters in southeastern Pennsylvania.

The Spring Creek project has served a two-fold purpose. Approximately a mile and a quarter of main Spring Creek was secured, together with a spring having a flow of three thousand gallons per minute. A complete stream improvement project was installed on the main body of the stream, which will serve as an outdoor laboratory for stream farming and stream improvement all over the State.

The Board also established a fishermen's laboratory, which is unique, so far as we know, in the country. The fishermen were allowed to come and enjoy the pleasure of catching the large trout, but to kill only a very limited number. All fishing was limited to artificial lure and barbless hooks, so that the captured fish that were replaced in the stream were unharmed.

The trout farm area has produced enough trout to pay for the land and all the improvements, so that it has already repaid its cost. The output this year will be considerably over a half million legal size trout.

The Spring Creek project as it is now developed will double the capacity of all our other trout hatcheries combined, and will greatly reduce the former cost of trout production. Thousands of dollars will be saved annually in transportation costs from this point, as it is located in the geographic center of the State.

Stream Improvement

So that the carrying capacity of many of our trout waters could be greatly increased, the Board made a comprehensive study of the question, and through its efforts, hundreds of miles of waters are being improved throughout the Commonwealth, many through the Department of Forest and Waters and the various CCC camps. Several projects in different sections of the Commonwealth are already under way on stream improvement. The Federal Government has approved these and made loans to the various sportsmen's organizations for carrying on the work.

Publication "Pennsylvania Angler"

One of the greatest needs of the Board was publicity, and there is now being published "The Pennsylvania Angler," which each month places before those interested complete data as to what the Board is doing, articles on various species of fish, hatching, propagating, distribution, etc.

Depression Problems

The greatest problem which faced the Board during the depression was that of prevention of fishing without a license in the areas where unemployment was the greatest. In the sections where this occurred, the Board, through its field men, and in cooperation with the various clubs, made a systematic study of the questions. Instead of placing violators in jail, a campaign of education was carried on, which in some of the counties increased the sale of licenses several hundred. In fact, in one county alone, there were 700 additional licenses issued through this effort. Fortunately for the work of the Board the year 1934 saw a considerable increase in income.

	Number	Commercial Hatchery Value
Total fish distributed 1927-1930	1,383,274,400	$2,077,078.01
Total fish distributed 1931-1934	2,165,832,275	3,008,479.55

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

C. J. Goodnough, Chairman

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Public Service Commission:

The Public Service Commission is fighting to cut utility rates to fit the depleted pocket books of Pennsylvania consumers. Early in 1932, the Commission adopted a resolution setting forth definitely its policy to effect reductions in electric rates. Subsequently the Commission supplemented that resolution with another in which it declared that 6%, instead of 7%, constituted a reasonable return upon the fair value of property used in rendering public service.

Thus, in effect, the Commission expressed the opinion that so long as present economic conditions existed, public service companies should reduce their charges in keeping with the lessened income of the average individual using their service.

Huge Savings to Public

This activity has resulted in greater annual savings to consumers than had been effected in any previous four-year period of the Commission's history. During this time utility rates have been reduced a total of approximately $7,399,000 per year. Of this total approximately $5,065,000 is being saved annually at the present time, and the balance, $2,234,000 will become effective early in January, 1935.

Moreover, the large majority of these savings were obtained without the long-drawn-out and costly processes of formal rate proceedings. Of these annual savings, $3,325,000 came about as a result of the policy, established in 1932, of negotiating informally with utility officers for rate reductions. An additional $1,414,000 annual saving was accomplished through a study of utilities reports, followed by letters suggesting lower charges. This saving came about, after the necessary preliminary work had been done, by the expenditure of the price of a few three-cent stamps. This was a good investment. It will continue. The savings resulting from the informal method affected thirty-nine utilities, serving the public in practically all sections of the State.

But the saving to utility consumers resulting from the use of informal methods is not reflected wholly in the rate reductions secured. The consumers receive the benefit of lower rates immediately, and the enormous expense and delay of protracted hearings usually encountered under formal procedure are avoided.

Fighting Unfair Rates

However, sometimes formal proceedings cannot be avoided. The Duquesne Light Company, of Pittsburgh, one of the largest of the State's electric utilities, did not agree with the Commission's contention that it was earning more than a fair return, and recently refused the Commission's request for a rate reduction. The Commission promptly met that refusal by instituting a formal complaint on its own motion against the company, so that it will be able definitely to establish, in the manner provided by law, what the fair and reasonable rates to be charged to the electric users in Pittsburgh and vicinity should be. It is the Commission's intention to push this case vigorously to a conclusion.

The reductions achieved through formal proceedings amounted to $1,740,000 annually.

In this connection it is interesting to note that of the twenty-three Commission decisions appealed to the courts in the last two wears, nineteen were sustained by those courts.

Scranton-Spring Brook Case

Among the noteworthy formal cases before the Commission during the past four years was the complaint filed by citizens of Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, and adjoining municipalities against the rates of the Scranton-Spring Brook Water Service Company. This is the largest privately-owned water company in the State and is believed to be the largest in the country. Numerous hearing were held producing a record of testimony and exhibits amounting to 15,000 pages.

Four appeals from the Commission's decision were taken to the Superior Court, one by the company and three by citizens of Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, and Pittston. On May 4, 1932, the Court remitted the case to the Commission for further action. On June 19, 1934, the Commission issued an order requiring the company to file new rates. The effect of that order is to produce a reduction in the cost of water to the consumers approximating $500,000 annually. At the present time the case is again before the Superior Court on cross appeals by the Wilkes-Barre consumers and the company.

The largest gas rate case before the Commission during the four-year period was that involving the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company. Complaints were filed by individuals and by the City of Williamsport and the Boroughs of South Williamsport and Muncy. The taking of testimony began in April, 1932. Twenty-six hearings were held, the last in July, 1934. The case is now in the hands of the Commission for decision. The record contains 5,447 pages of testimony and 115 exhibits, 13 of which were introduced by the Commission.

One of the outstanding achievements of the Commission during this Administration was the successful fight waged by it clear through the courts of the State and the United States Supreme Court in support of its order reducing to five cents the tolls charged by the Clarks Ferry Bridge Company for every passenger car using the bridge. A few years ago the rate was twenty-five cents. This reduction affected the pocket book of thousand of motorists. The bridge crosses the Susquehanna River west of Harrisburg and is the connecting link between the east and the west for motorists using the William Penn Highway and the Susquehanna Trail.

The Commission instituted this case on its own initiative and fought it single-handed through the courts of Pennsylvania and finally in the United States Supreme Court. The Commission first had to defend its order in the State Superior Court. That court affirmed the Commission's order with the exception of a slight modification. The bridge company asked the State Supreme Court to review the Superior Court's decision affirming the Commission's order. The State's highest court refused, and from that refusal the company appealed to the United States Supreme Court which sustained the Commission. The thoroughness with which the Commission's case was prepared is shown by the fact that it was successfully prosecuted in every court to which it was carried.

Publicity has been given to every change in rates proposed by a utility. Notices setting forth proposed changes in rates, their extent and the territory affected, have been prepared by the Commission and sent to the interested newspapers and news services. The same wide publicity has been given to orders by the Commission and to new regulations promulgated by it.

Stops Rate Increases

In 13 instances the Commission has exercised its power, conferred July 1, 1933, to suspend new tariffs providing for increases in rates. Following 3 of these suspensions the utilities filing the tariffs withdrew them and agreed to continue service at rates previously in effect. The remaining tariffs suspended have been or are now being studied by the Commission to determine whether or not increased rates are justified.

In addition to the savings heretofore cited, a large undetermined amount will accrue to subscribers of the Bell Telephone Company after February 15, 1935, as a direct result of an order made by the Commission on that company in 1933. After next February 15th all Bell patrons who have been using hand-set telephones continuously for two years will be relieved of the extra monthly charge of 25 cents now levied for those instruments. That is to say, from February 15th onward any Bell patron who has paid his 25 cents monthly charge for two years will thereafter save $3.00 per year on his telephone bill. The Pennsylvania Commission was one of the first regulatory bodies in the country to take definite action toward removing the extra charge for the use of hand-set telephones.

Fights High Freight Rates

The Commission achieved equal success in the field of railroad rate regulation. Reduced rates were fixed on the transportation of bituminous coal from all mines in the State to destinations east of the Susquehanna River, for the transportation of all sand used in industry, and on the transportation of limestone from the Lebanon Valley to eastern steel and cement mills. Reductions in the coal and limestone freight rates will result in annual savings to the shipping public of about $800,000 and $300,000, respectively. All of these proceedings were conducted by the Commission under the plan of cooperation with the Interstate Commerce Commission, similar issues involving interstate commerce being before that body.

Reductions made effective in August, 1932, in the intrastate rates on bituminous coal in Ohio to destinations in Northeastern Ohio lost to the bituminous coal industry of Western Pennsylvania the mining of 10,000,000 tons of coal annually which had moved into the Ohio market prior to that time. The Commission vigorously supported the operators clear through to the United States Supreme Court in contesting the reduction in Ohio rates without corresponding reductions from Pennsylvania mines.

The result was a complete victory. The relation of the rates was re-established, and Pennsylvania's bituminous coal industry is regaining the 10,000,000 ton annual business it had lost in the Ohio markets. The recovery of this tonnage has had an effect upon the Western Pennsylvania coal producing districts which cannot be estimated in dollars and cents.

In the Pittsburgh district the steel industry faced an increase in production costs of over $1,000,000 a year by reason of a mileage scale of freight rates which had been made effective in 1930 and which increased the rates on iron and steel for intermill movements within the district. These increases seriously threatened the industry in that district. The Commission lowered the scale rates for distances of 100 miles and less, not only for the Pittsburgh district, but for all steel producing points in Pennsylvania. Later, the rates so ordered were applied throughout the territory east of the Mississippi River. Here again it is not possible to calculate in dollars and cents the value to the public of these reductions.

Common Carriers by Motor Truck and Motor Car

The depression caused a change in the merchandising practices of wholesale and retail merchants, resulting in the necessity to reduce costs and carry smaller inventories. This change in turn created a need for more rapid and frequent deliveries, smaller shipments and lower rates than could be offered by the railroads. The motor truck met this need. It met it not only because it was best fitted for the task but also because many unemployed persons were able to render the service at a very low cost with motor trucks purchased on the second-hand market at unsually low prices. The number of motor truck operators increased tremendously during the depression.

On January 1, 1932, only 187 persons or corporations were authorized by the Commission to transport property by common carriage in Pennsylvania, but about 10,000 operators were actually engaged in such service without Commission approval. As a result of the inroads which the freelance operators were making upon the revenues of the certificated truckers, the latter filed many complaints with the Commission. Thereupon the Commission started a vigorous campaign to bring the uncertificated operators under the law. Since January 1, 1933, approximately 9,500 applications have been filed by truckers for certificates of public convenience, and approximately 8,500 certificates have been issued.

The Commission requires that all holders of certificates authorizing transportation of property must provide liability and property damage insurance. Enforcement of that requirement revealed that the majority of those engaged in the trucking business when the Commission began enforcing its trucking regulations did not carry insurance. The shipper was at the mercy of the trucker carrying his goods. Today, insurance is being carried on approximately 30,000 trucks previously without insurance.

The trucking industry in Pennsylvania has been regulated, so far as it is conducted by common carriers of property. The regular transportation of general merchandise by unauthorized truckers has been to a large extent eliminated. Cut-throat rates and hijacking of routes are going out of the trucking picture to the benefit of the reputable trucker and shipper alike.

This increase in the number of certificated truck operators has been felt all along the lines of the Commission's activities. It has resulted in huge increases in the number of conferences and hearings held, and in tariffs and annual reports filed and subjected to analysis.

The past four years also saw a stricter enforcement by the Commission of its regulations looking to the protection of motor bus and taxicab riders, and the pedestrian as well. The free-lance bus operator and taxicab driver, affording no insurance protection to rider or pedestrian in the event of accident, are rapidly being removed from our highway and streets. Before either can obtain Commission authority to operate, he must furnish evidence that he carries adequate public liability insurance.

The Commission has removed the limitation that held the independent taxicab operators in Philadelphia to picking up passengers from a certain stand or stands. All independent operators in that city at the time the restriction was removed, who complied with the Commission's requirements and applied for it, have been given city-wide rights. Heretofore, those rights were enjoyed only by the three big corporate taxicab companies in Philadelphia.

Grade Crossings

Safeguarding the lives of the motoring public and of pedestrians through the elimination of dangerous grade crossings or the ordering of additional protection at existing crossings was given careful consideration by the Commission in the past four years.

While improvements of this character declined, due to the prevailing financial situation, they were pushed wherever found imperative. Railroads and municipalities were unable to participate in the cost as in former years. However, the projects that were undertaken gave employment to a large number of persons. Practically 35 per cent of the money expended on this work went to employ common labor.

As a result of Commission orders, 66 grade crossings were eliminated during the past four years, 45 bridges made safe, 27 new bridges built to replace inadequate and unsafe ones, and 22 highways relocated in the interest of safety. The combined cost of these improvements totaled $16,944,000. During the same period 212 heretofore unprotected grade crossings were made safer by the installation of automatic flash light signals because of Commission orders.

During this Administration, the Commission issued orders for the elimination of grade crossings involving two costly projects. One was in Rochester, Beaver County, requiring an expenditure of upwards of $2,000,000. The other, in Norristown, Montgomery County, cost approximately $2,500,000. The latter is the second largest grade crossing improvement in the history of Pennsylvania.

Another engineering project of great magnitude to come before the Commission was an application to construct a vehicular tunnel under the Delaware River between Pennsylvania and New Jersey. The permit was granted by the Commission on April 3, 1934, subject to all the terms and conditions of Act of Assembly No. 25, approved December 22, 1933, and also subject to certain additional conditions which the Commission deemed advisable to fix in the interest of the public.

Rural Electrification

Progress in rural electrification was somewhat curtailed during these last four years because of the depression.

In spite of these adverse conditions, 3,816 miles of new lines have been built into rural areas since January 1, 1931, with an approximate investment of $7,602,500. These lines brought service to 41,067 new customers, of which number 7,775 are classified as farms. This means that because of the Commissions efforts, the comforts and benefits of electric service have been made available to approximately 200,000 additional people in the country districts, even though economic conditions were opposed to new construction work.

In addition to the work done to bring electric service into new areas, the Commission has been active in bettering the terms and conditions under which this service could be obtained in the rural areas. It has succeeded in obtaining reductions applicable over a large part of the State, reducing the basic rate requirements by about 10 per cent.

Other Matters

Unrestricted access to the annual reports which utilities are required to file with the Commission was given to the public in 1932, as the result of the recision of an order adopted in 1929, barring the public form these records.

Municipalities and other patrons of utilities, actuated by shrinkage of income due to economic disturbances, have used these reports freely in their search for facts to determine their chances for success should they institute proceedings which might result in rate reductions for themselves.

The 1933 amendment to the Public Service Company Law imposed additional administrative burdens upon the Commission. All of these obligations have been carried by the Commission with a very slight increase in its regular staff.

Of 617 securities cases coming before the Commission during the four-year period, either upon certificates of notification or upon application for approval, the Commission refused 12, involving $5,940,500 par value of securities. In the preceding four years only 3 out of 1,299 issues were prevented, and these 3 were with respect to only $155,000 of securities.

Effective January 1, 1933, the Bureau of Rates and Tariffs was merged with the Bureau of Accounts under the title of Bureau of Accounts, Rates and Statistics, and the Bureau of Accidents was merged with the Bureau of Engineering.

These mergers resulted in better coordination of the work. As a result of the consolidation of filing, stenographic and other functions, additional employes were made available for other necessary activities.

During this Administration the Commission showed a general tendency toward coordination of procedure and modernization of its methods. For example, in the latter part of 1932 the Commission prescribed a new form of certificate of notification requiring sufficient publicity upon utility securities issues to prevent most doubtful transactions. This form took the place of two others which had been drafted in 1915. Another example is the thorough revision of the form of annual report filed with the Commission by electric utilities. This form will be sent out for use in reporting 1934 operations, and its inherent characteristics will subsequently be aplied to other types of public service companies. For the past year the Commission has been preparing certain revisions to its uniform classifications of accounts, rendered necessary as a result of the changes in utility practices. These revisions are now in a tentative stage, and after the utilities interested have been given an opportunity to be heard, the Commission will act finally upon them.

Informal complaints against utilities received by the Commission during the past four years exceeded by more than 10,500 the number made in the preceding four years. During this Administration, 15,622 informal complaints were filed with the Commission. In the preceding four years the number was 5,050. Most of these complaints were made by letter. That meant that each one of these many thousands of letters had to be acknowledged. It meant also that each complaint had to be taken up by letter with the utility involved. Then followed a careful study of the complaint in an effort to iron out the difficulty. The writing of more letters to both parties usually followed before the case was finally concluded to the satisfaction of the complainant or by a complete explanation why it did not lend itself to informal adjustment.

Adjusting informal complants is one of the most important duties of the Commission. Through this work thousands of small consumers have been spared the expence of going into formal hearings which often result in long-drawn out proceedings before the Commission and frequently finally find their way into the Courts. It is impossible to measure in dollars and cents, the money that has been saved consumers in this manner.

Briefly then, here is what the Commission accomplished for the people of Pennsylvania during the past four years:

1. Saved $7,399,000 annually in their electricity, gas and water bills for the people of Pennsylvania over the four-year period.

2. Handled and disposed of more work in the interests of the public during the period than ever before in its history. This was done at only a slight increase in cost and that increase came back to the taxpayers in more efficient service and greater results.

3. Brought order out of chaos in the trucking industry of the Commonwealth to the benefit of the legitimate trucker and the general public.

BOARD OF GAME COMMISSIONERS

Adolph Muller, President

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Board of Game Commissioners.

Land Purchases

The primary achievement of the Board during the past four years was an unprecedented extension of our land purchase program. At the beginning of the Administration there had been purchased by the Game Commission 212,130.2 acres at a cost of $788,721.69. During this Administration up to November 15, this acreage has been more than doubled, so that by November 15, 1934, there was a total of 45,298,467 acres of State Game Lands purchased at a cost of $1,634,392.32. The acreage purchased during the Administration amounts to 240,854.4 acres and cost $845,671.63.

Most of this area was set aside as public shooting grounds, although there were also established for the future preservation of our native game 79 additional game refuges comprising 24,229.7 acres. This brings the total number of sanctuaries on which wild life is protected at all times to 182 with a total area of 126,812.7 acres.

Pennsylvania was the first state to establish a game refuge, in 1905. The Pennsylvania Game Refuge System is today generally conceded to be the finest in the United States—in fact it has been carefully studied by conservation officials of no less than six foreign countries.

Game Propagation

During the past four years the State Game Farm System has made a long and important series of advancements until it has now reached a point where it is superior to any other.

A new farm for rearing ringneck pheasants and experimenting in rabbit propagation, known as the Loyalsock State Game Farm, was established in Lycoming County, bringing the total of these game producing areas to four. The three farms previously established were brought up to a point of the highest efficiency, and, through the hearty endorsement of the Administration, there was established electrical equipment of the latest type to supplant the old chicken hen method of pheasant and wild turkey propagation.

In 1930, under the old methods of propagation, the two pheasant farms produced a total of 6,638 ringneck pheasants, while in 1933, the first year under the new mechanical methods, these two farms produced a total of 21,971 ringneck pheasants, while 4,429 bob-white quail were raised at the Fisher State Game Farm, in Montgomery County. Likewise, at the State Wild Turkey Farm in 1930 a total of 37 turkeys were raised and released, while with the new mechanical equipment employed during the present Administration, the total was 1,040 birds.

The Pennsylvania Game Farms in 1934 set a production record never before equaled by any state or privately owned game farm system. From January 1, 1934, to September 20, 1934, the four State Game Farms have shipped the following birds for restocking purposes: 43,995 ringneck pheasants, 5,325 bob-white quail, 2,090 wild turkeys, and 833 wild ducks.

School for Protectors

Another important step forward was the establishment of a Training School for Game Protectors which has greatly increased the efficiency of the law enforcement division of the Department. This school, modern in every respect, is located on Refuge No. 54, in Jefferson County, near Brockway. Here, six weeks out of each year, all Game Protectors and other field personnel of the Game Commission must report and undergo a rigid program of training.

The tremendous influence of a school of this sort cannot be over-estimated. Since its inauguration several other states have seen fit to indorse similar institutions. The days of the old time game warden have passed. During his time practically all that was needed to insure proper game law enforcement was a thorough knowledge of woodcraft. In this modern day and age, however, the requirements of this position have increased a hundred fold. Today the Game Protector must not only be versed in woodcraft; he must know every phase of the law and how to handle efficiently all cases which come before him. He must be sufficiently educated to be able to meet diplomatically all kinds of people—business men, professional men, miners, mill workers, farmers, etc. Today there are over seven hundred regularly organized sportsmen's associations in Pennsylvania, all of which conduct some kind of a program throughout the entire year, and all apply to their local Game Protector for aid.

Other Work

Other important work may be summarized as follows:

(a) As a means of keeping in closer touch with our sportsmen, and to stimulate further our educational program the Commission adopted an official monthly magazine called the "Pennsylvania Game News," which is published on a subscription basis of fifty cents per year. This cation has become tremendously popular.

Our regular educational program was extended considerably through the production of many new motion pictures. Three full-time lectures, fully equipped with motion picture projectors and complete series of film are now employed to carry the message of conservation throughout the Commonwealth.

(b) The largest sale of hunting licenses took place in 1931, when 572,779 were issued. The second high mark was reached in 1932, when 537,451 were sold.

(c) Hunting accidents, reduced by constant publicity on the part of the Commission, reached in 1933, their lowest ebb since 1913.

(d) The first open season on beaver in the history of the Commonwealth was declared in 1934, and 6,455 were trapped.

(e) In 1932, 5,524 tons of game, having a food value of over $10,000,000 were taken.

(f) The annual value of the fur-bearing animals taken during the past four years amounted to between $600,000 and $700,000.

(g) The value of our bounty system was emphasized during the past four years when thousands of needy people were able to earn enough to live on through the money they received in bounty payments and the subsequent revenue derived for the pelts so acquired.

All of these accomplishments and activities including the extra duties made necessary through the CCC and CWA programs were carried on without the employment of additional personnel.

THE PENNSYLVANIA LIQUOR CONTROL BOARD

Robert S. Gawthrop, Chairman

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board since its creation.

The Act creating the State Liquor Stores set January 1, 1934, as the date for the opening of the stores and it was necessary, in the short space of three weeks, to locate store sites, make store alterations, purchase and install equipment, make personnel available and instruct them in their work, and purchase liquor in sufficient quantities and varieties to stock the stores. Administrative positions and policies had to be set up, as well as an accounting system of sufficient scope and flexibility to take care of an almost unknown volume of business.

Through the cooperation of the Department of Property and Supplies and the Department of Highways stores were obtained and equipped. The Department of Public Instruction held Civil Service examinations and employes were made available by December 26th. The work up to that time was carried forward by help recruited from the various State Departments.

On January 2nd, 63 stores and five warehouses opened for business with a personnel of 544 managers and clerks. Seventy-one persons were employed in the administrative offices in Harrisburg. By the end of the month 232 stores were in operation and the total sales had amounted to $1,796,976.79.

At the present time there are 270 stores with a personnel of 1,285 and administrative offices with a personnel of 322.

Sales to December 1st have amounted to approximately $34,000,000 and estimated sales of $6,000,000 for the month of December will bring the total sales for the first year to $40,000,000.

For the period from January 2nd to October 27th, the stores operations showed a profit of $3,571,418.34. Floor tax collections by the Department of Revenue for the same period amounted to $2,153,927.20. Since floor tax is included as part of the cost of liquor to the Board, and since it is not paid for by the distillers until they receive payment from the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board, the floor tax can properly be added to the State Stores profit in order to arrive at the net yield to the State from liquor control. Therefore, the total net yield for this period amounts to $5,725,345.54. (See also financial statements of the Board at the end of this report.)

Allocation of Profits

All of the profits from the operations of the State Stores for the present biennium have been allocated for unemployment relief and for pensions for the blind.

Reorganization

Under a plan of reorganization effective the first of the year there will be three warehouse districts instead of five, which will result in an approximate saving of $40,000 annually.

More direct supervision of stores operations was begun on November 26th, by dividing the State into 12-sub-districts, each district with a District Supervisor in charge. This will tend toward closer organization and will insure the carrying out, in the field, of the administrative policies formulated by the Board.

Analysis of the expense of operation for the past ten months has been made, and the Board expects to save from 2 to 3 percent in the operation of the stores the second year of operation, by its reorganization and economy plans.

Licensing and Enforcement

By the provisions of the Liquor Control Act eight employes of the former Alcohol Permit Board were transferred to the Liquor Control Board. These became the nucleus of the present Licensing and Enforcement organization.

The licensing of retail establishments to sell by the drink for December, 1933 (the act was approved November 29) and for the year 1934 was accomplished almost entirely through the aid of the State Police and the Department of Revenue. The work needed to be done rapidly and the Board could not hire and train employes in the very short time available. The State Police and the State Highway Patrol did excellent work in the emergency of conducting a detailed examination of the premises of every establishment which could be expected to apply for license and in preparing individual reports.

While the investigations in the field were going on, applications for liquor licenses were being drawn so that, as soon as the law was approved, everything would be in readiness to provide liquor licenses to places desiring them by December 6, 1933. A large force of clerical help was borrowed from the various departments and agencies, and the work was carried on under the direction of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, Department of Revenue.

With the arrival of the first applications, the Liquor Control Board was faced with the necessity of determining policies as to what constituted "a responsible person of good reputation" and just what "a reputable establishment" was. The work to be done was new to everyone connected with it, there being no trained employes, but despite this there were over six hundred licenses in the hands of proprietors of establishments on the evening of December 6, when the sale of liquor became legal. The Board continued to use temporary help and borrowed help until the beginning of January, when employes from the Civil Service lists were available. After February 1, all of the work previously done by the temporary help was taken over by persons who had successfully passed the examinations.

For purposes of enforcement four district offices were located in Philadelphia; Wilkes-Barre, Pittsburgh, and Harrisburg. The total of employes engaged in the work of Licensing and Enforcement on November 1, 1934, was 148 with total annual salaries of $267,020.

Manufacturing Licenses

Issued up to November 1, 1934:

Class of license or permit	Number of licenses or permits	Fees collected
Distilleries and Rectifiers ...	37	$127,600.00
Breweries	133	127,100.00
Wineries	3	750.00
Bonded Warehouses	6	525.00
Transporters for Hire	79	5,700.00
Bailee for Hire	17	1,225.00
Total	275	$262,900.00

During the year public hearings were held on 45 applications for licenses or permits, of which 43 were approved and two refused.

From January 1, 1934, to November 1, 1934, there was $11,306.17 recovered from bond forfeitures.

Retail Licenses

Issued up to November 1, 1934:

Class of license or permit	Number of licenses or permits	Fees collected
Hotels	1,779	$422,862.50
Restaurants	6,983	2,276,562.50
Clubs	2,419	129,887.50
Importers	63	6,300.00
Public Service	329	6,275.00
Sacramental Wine	10	1,000.00
Total	11,583	$2,842,887.50

During the year transfers numbering 447 were approved, and from this source the Board received $8,940 in transfer fees.

The total amount of application filing fees collected during the period was $142,210.

Bond forfeitures during the period amounted to $8,000.

During the year, 416 public hearings were held by the Board on applications for licenses, resulting in 288 approvals and 128 refusals. During the same period, 186 petitions from refusals of the Board to grant licenses were presented to the courts of the various counties.

The Board during this same period petitioned the courts for 282 revocations of licenses, due to violations, misstatements of fact, etc., and secured in the period 29 revocations one having been refused. The courts in 28 instances ordered suspensions rather than revocations as were asked for by the Board. Thirty-nine cases were returned by the Attorney General's Department where the Board had asked for revocations, because of insufficient evidence, in their opinion, to secure revocation. At the time of writing this report there are 185 requests for revocations in the hands of the Attorney General's Department, to be acted upon by them.

During the period of January 1, 1934 to August 1, 1934, there was paid to municipalities and school districts $2,719,112.50 from the Liquor License Fund.

Enforcement

On or about April 1, 1934, 4 District Offices were established, each with a definite part of the State to be covered. By April 16, 1934, there were assigned to these offices 39 Enforcement Officers, whose duty it is to make investigations of applicants for licenses as to character, etc., to inspect the premises for which the license is being asked; to follow up complaints of violations of the Liquor Control Act with respect to illegal manufacture of liquor, illegal possession and sale, sales on Sunday or Election Days, sales to minors, tax evasion, and many other duties directly connected with liquor control.

The volume of work as soon found to be too heavy for this force. Therefore, in June, 1934, 48 additional Enforcement Officers were added. Thus, on November 1, 1934, the total number of men engaged in this work was 86, three resignations having taken place during the year.

There were 2,345 actions instituted by the Enforcement Officers from April to November. Of these 99 were discharged by Magistrates because of lack of evidence and 811 were disposed of on summary convictions in which cases fines of $25.00 each were imposed. These cases represented actions where small quantities of illegal liquor were found in the possession of the defendants. The balance of the actions, 1,435, were bound over by the Magistrates for court. Of this number, 106 cases were ignored by the Grand Juries, true bills have been found against the defendants in 631 instances, convictions were secured in 426 cases, and in 91 instances the defendants were discharged by the juries and found not guilty, leaving 812 cases pending before the courts as of November 1, 1934.

The sentences imposed by the courts in cases where convictions were obtained have been varied and not in strict conformity with the penalty clauses of the Liquor Control Act. On the subject of fines to be imposed by the court, the Board has recently received an opinion from the Attorney General's Department to the effect that, in their opinion, the court cannot impose a lesser fine than is provided for in the statute. However, the courts seem to differ on this and are using their own discretion as to the disposition of the cases.

There were 456 stills confiscated by the officers of the Board, and the amount of illegal liquor confiscated at the same time amounted to 25,358 gallons.

MILK CONTROL BOARD

Edward A. Stanford, Chairman

To the Governor:

Herewith is a report of the work of the Milk Control Board since its inception.

The work of the Milk Control Board has been initiative in character. The present law was enacted in the 1933 Special Session. No precedent existed for the guidance of the board.

The Board recognized both the vastness and the complications of the undertaking. The size of the industry it was attempting to regulate, the millions of dollars worth of the commodity involved, and the many intricate ramifications that the different branches of the industry embraced, together with the fact that here was an industry that had never enjoyed or had imposed upon it any sort of economic regulations by the Commonwealth contributed to the vastness of the problem. Its complications were presented in several aspects, among them the extreme perishability of the commodity, its daily collection from a multitude of sources, and its daily redistribution to even more numerous points of sale or disposal. To modify drastically any of the practices in vogue might have resulted in throwing the production and distribution of this necessity of life into chaos.

The policy of the Board has been that of keeping all milk moving in its logical channels and at the same time correcting practices which were of financial disadvantage to the producers and consumers. Marked progress has been made and the industry has been materially stabilized. A healthy confidence in the aims and work of the Board has been built up.

This stabilizing influence has been instrumental in returning to producers of milk in the Commonwealth millions of dollars more than would have been returned under an unregulated condition, and the milk industry has been saved from disastrous price-cutting and milk wars more serious than any yet faced.

Hearings

Early in February, a schedule of public hearings was adopted and hearings were held in Erie, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Harrisburg for the purpose of taking testimony and procuring information.

The market in the Erie District was demoralized and the Board issued an emergency order on February 28 fixing the wholesale and retail price of milk to consumers and the price to be paid to producers, together with regulations of records of dealers' method of payment, trade practices, and sales quantity control for the district. This order immediately stabilized the market in Erie and stopped the spread of a milk war which was imminent in several markets of the State.

Orders

The Board issued, on March 30, 1934, its first general Statewide Order, in which it divided the State into three separate Milk Marketing Areas—establishing for each area a minimum price to be paid producers, a minimum wholesale and retail price to be charged consumers, retail price differentials to stores, retail and wholesale prices in border cities and towns and isolated towns and rural communities terms of payment, records of dealers, trade practices, and sales quantity control. This Order was followed by General Order No. 8, issued May 25, and its subsequent amendments Nos. 9, 10, and 12. Official General Order No. 13 was issued July 13, and its amending Official Orders Nos. 14, 15, and 16. The final Official Order No. 17 was issued September 27. These orders and their amendments corrected situations arising from change of market conditions or volume of production.

Enforcement

Up to November 27, the Board cited 53 dealers for hearing. Nine hearings were held to determine whether or not licenses should be revoked. Amicable settlements were arrived at in each case without revocation of licenses.

The books and accounts of 84 milk leaders have been audited; 18 of these dealers have been cited for hearings on violations of General Orders and 16 hearings have been held, resulting in the revocation of three licenses. Two criminal prosecutions were instituted, one of which was terminated by the offender's immediately complying with the regulations. The other case is being tried. At the present time, there are daily hearings being held on other violations disclosed by the audits.

Four hundred and forty-two surety bonds and 331 collateral bonds have been filed in accordance with the Act. These have a total value of $2,246,608.95. Milk dealer's licenses have been issued to 3,328 dealers. All producer-dealers selling less than 3,000 pounds of milk per month have been exempted from securing a license.

Revenue

The receipts to the Board's special fund have totaled $63,196.05.

STATE PLANNING BOARD

Lewis E. Staley, Chairman

To the Governor:

Herewith is a brief report of the work of the State Planning Board.

President Roosevelt, in July, 1933, appointed a National Planning Board in the Public Works Administration. This was merged with the National Resources Board on June 30, 1934. The purpose of the latter board, according to the Executive Order creating it, was "to prepare and present to the President a program and plan of procedure dealing with the physical, social, governmental and economic aspects of public policies for the development and use of land, water and other National resources and such subjects as may from time to time be referred to it by the President."

Planning for the needs of a people is by no means a new movement. Its desirability has long been recognized. In the United States the movement has been thought of most often as town planning with adequate facilities for housing, transportation, recreation, zoning, or as metropolitan area planning in which contiguous, economically interdependent communities are defined by such things as the extent of free delivery from centrally situated stores, as distinct from political boundaries.

The Philadelphia-Tri-State Regional Plan, the Regional Plan for New York and the planning for Allegheny County are admirable examples of the latter. Their purpose is to provide a broad framework to which all future detailed plans of the various communities can be made to conform and, to a certain extent, be adapted to state-wide purposes.

The natural next steps were National and State planning. But National planning in the United States, if it is to be successful, must be a cooperative effort. The action of the State and of the National government are mutually interdependent.

The National Board, therefore, undertook to encourage the establishment of state planning boards by offering to supply to state boards for a limited period the services of competent consultants. As a result, in some states planning boards have been authorized by the legislatures to continue their work. Similar action is expected within the next few months in others.

A State Planning Board for Pennsylvania was appointed on July, 23, 1934, by Governor Pinchot.

The task of the Board was to lay the foundation for a sound State plan—one that would be, insofar as is humanly practicable, directive—a set task—not a mere forecast. In this report will be found many facts and conclusions which not only demonstrate the need for a State plan but which can form the basis for one.

Some of the fundamental problems before the Commonwealth include the location and trends of population, the wealth of the State and the buying power of its people, housing, working conditions, unemployment, mineral and water resources, competitive situations faced by such important industries as coal and iron, changing agriculture, transportation, education, social security and welfare.

In studying these subjects, the Board has considered, in general, a program looking ten years into the future.

A number of facts stand out. On these are based the main recommendations submitted by the Board. The supporting data will be found in the main body of the Report.

The various departments of the State government have done a vast amount of planning, each in its own field. They should continue to do so. None, however, has drafted a comprehensive plan enbracing the purposes and needs of all the others in relation to itself.

Consequently, one of the recommendations contained in this Report is for a State Planning Secretary with the same official status in relation to the Chief Executive as is now the case of the Budget Secretary, and a permanent board of outstanding citizens and department heads.

The Planning Secretary would supervise State planning as the direct representative of the Governor and correlate State and Federal activities in this field.

Such a State official would correlate the planning by the various departments of the State government. Inventories of State resources would be made under his direction and kept up to date. Provision also should be made for special studies to assist the Legislature, if requested. The suggested legislation should provide for evolving short range plans to meet immediate needs which may arise and for long term planning.

The outstanding conclusions developed from the Board's research do not form an integrated plan that will assure everyone in Pennsylvania reasonable security in an adequate standard of living. But they do look forward to that end.

If the suggestions included in this Report are adopted, they should insure a better opportunity for all citizens. They should assist in laying the basis for the integrated planning that must become a part of our united thinking.

The State Planning Board wishes to express its gratitude for the cooperation of the Governor and members of his Cabinet. The departments have provided invaluable assistance.

It also thanks the National Resources Board for the services of its Director and its Consultant, and the Work Division of the State Emergency Relief Board for authorizing use of the funds necessary for the employment of its staff.

The Board also is especially appreciative of the hard work done so generously by many employes of the State, frequently in periods outside their regular working hours. Many individuals in the Federal service or with private agencies have given unstintingly of their time in the preparation of sections of this Report, in reviewing portions and in advising with the members and staff of the Board.

The Board also extends its thanks to the authors of certain sections of this Report, whose names appear as footnotes on the first page of such sections.

PRINCIPAL FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS*

Findings

Population

Pennsylvania's population shows a tendency to stabilize by 1960.

The birth rate probably will continue to decline.

The death rate, now declining, will begin to rise in another decade or two as the average age increases.

There will be fewer children and more adults.

Land and Its Utilization

From 1910 to 1930 taxes on Pennsylvania farm lands increased 159 per cent, farm mortgages 85 per cent and investment in machinery and implements 165 per cent.

From 1910 to 1930 prices of farm products increased only 47 per cent.

The State lacks a long time program of forest redevelopment.

The State needs information on flood control.

Many streams and other bodies of water necessary to human life are badly polluted.

Changes of tremendous importance have displaced many workers in the State's mineral industries, resulting in deserted areas or stranded populations in some cases, and destitution in many others.

Working and Living Conditions

Working conditions, minimum wages and hours of labor have improved and are continuing to improve as one of the results of the NRA, but many classes of workers remain whose conditions require further consideration.

Income is most unequally distributed.

Marked technological improvements have increased the output per individual in the State's industries to such a degree that no places would be available for many now unemployed if business regained its former activity.

In the last 15 years relatively few dwellings have been constructed within the price range of a majority of the people.

If business activity were to increase and cause reemployment, families now doubling up would find a shortage of separate houses.

Less than one-third of the farm families in Pennsylvania use electricity.

The State lacks a program for the security of individuals but does make limited provision in certain instances through Mothers Assistance, Old Age Pensions and Pensions for the Blind.

The Government has failed to accept the obligation to provide employment or to assume proper responsibility for industrial workers involuntarily unemployed by industry.

It is inconceivable, particularly in mass production industries, that a time will ever come under the most carefully planned program, when during a period of depression all unemployed workers can be absorbed by a public works program.

The State lacks a coordinated program for public works adjusted to employment in depressions.

Industry, Trade and Transportation

Marked changes in industries and in their location are having serious effects on the workers dependent upon them.

Between 1929 and 1933, the number of stores had decreased 15 per cent, sales dropped 47 per cent and full time employes 31 per cent.

The trend is toward chain stores, particularly in the food groups, where the chains do 34 per cent of the total business with only 12 per cent of the stores.

Twenty per cent of the total retail stores of the State do 80 per cent of the business.

Industry uses three-fifths of the electrical power in this State and pays approximately one-third of the total bill, while domestic consumers use one-sixth and also pay approximately one third of the total bill.

Pennsylvania's transportation system, covering railways, highways, airways, waterways and pipe lines, is not adequately coordinated.

Regulation of transportation is now attempted under a law not fully applicable to present day conditions.

Social Activities

More than 5600 taxing bodies exist in this State and many of them have outlived their usefulness and should be combined.

Changing population trends indicate need for more teachers and a greater variety of subjects in the high schools.

In the elementary schools the number of teachers needed will decrease during the next decade, if present population trends continue.

Movements of population and the improvement of transportation have changed the need for many smaller independent school districts.

Three and a half million persons in Pennsylvania are without access to public libraries.

Many of the smaller cities and five counties have not a single library.

The State-aid program for the care of dependents is uncoordinated.

The present system of relying mainly on taxation of real property makes the carrying on of services by local units of Government exceedingly difficult.

Recommendations

The Board recommends:

Creation of the office of Planning Secretary as outlined above the Foreword.

Research with a view to maintaining the relative importance of Pennsylvania's Mineral industries.

A long-time program of forest redevelopment.

* See body of report for others.

A State program for purchase of abandoned and submarginal land for forestation.

Close integration of the purchase of land by the Game Commission with the work of the Department of Forests and Waters and with the Federal land-buying program.

Collection of information on flood control.

Rigid enforcement of laws for control of stream pollution.

A housing program based on a stable population rather than on unlimited speculative expansion.

Appropriate educational opportunities for the increasing number of youth between 18 and 21 years of age out of employment and out of school.

A continuing education for adults at all ages.

State aid for free libraries.

Expansion of the present system of old age pension to supplant many almshouses, and the creation of larger almshouse units in geographical districts serving as institutions for chronic disabled aged.

A State-wide plan for the care of the mentally ill.

State Industrial farms to replace the present county prisons.

Effective planning for rural electrical development.

Legislation

The Board recommends State legislation to:

Govern the use and development of streams, with a view to better allocation of water.

Preserve the gains achieved under NRA is respect to child labor.

Consolidate and make permanent the gains through NRA as to standards of wages and working hours.

Abolish company police and privately paid deputy sheriffs.

Set up machinery to facilitate collective bargaining.

Strengthen the Workmen's Compensation law.

Set up official county welfare boards through new administration machinery, for poor relief, mothers' assistance, blind and old age pensions and child care under the supervision of the Department of Welfare.

Develop the proposed ten-year legislative program offering protection to children.

Provide that in the absence of available industrial or public employment, a direct money payment to assure at all times the minimum for an adequate standard of living for the worker and his dependents during involuntary unemployment.

Provide economic relief and other necessary home or institutional care through unified public relief agency to the chronic indigent, the maladjusted individual and similar groups now the concern of public or private relief agencies.

Create a State Housing Authority to make possible an effective housing program and to cooperate with the Federal program.

Completely change the State's system of school support so as to guarantee to every school district a foundation program and reduce local taxes on realty to the proportionate share of the total tax load.

Facilitate the merger of numerous existing school districts into fewer and more competent units.

Reduce the number of separate local units of government in order to increase the quality and reduce the cost of public service rendered.

Participate in the Public Works program and other Federal projects.

Further Studies

The Board recommends that further studies be made of:

Water Supply needs for domestic and industrial use for the next 25 years.

Possible sites for hydro-electric development.

Power distribution and costs similar to that just completed by the Power Authority of the State of New York with a view to the possibility of lower rates to domestic consumers.

The administration of unemployment relief and other forms of relief, grants or pensions in order to determine their ultimate integration.

Soil erosion, abandoned farm lands and submarginal lands now under cultivation with the view to development of a plan for use of submarginal lands.

Statement on Pennsylvania's Financial Condition

To the People of Pennsylvania:

In view of the current discussion of the financial condition of the State Government, the following outline is made public for the information of the people of Pennsylvania.

In my first term the chief financial difficulty was to pay off $32,000,000 of unpaid bills left by the previous Administration. That was done.

The financial problem of my second term was far different and much harder. The fiscal history of this Administration is in two parts. The first part covers running the State Government in all its regular departments under the tremendous strain of the worst depression this country has known.

The second part consists of an entirely new and separate function of the State Government and must be considered by itself. Unemployment relief, the bare necessities of life, had to be furnished to two million Pennsylvania men, women and children. This meant that $87,000,000 had to be provided by the State for a need that no other Administration had ever faced.

Up to the beginning of my Administration what relief needs there were were handled by local agencies. In my last three years the State had to furnish, in times when revenues had fallen off seriously, entirely new appropriations amounting to nearly 40 per cent of the usual State budget. Without the unprecedented demand for State relief, which reached the huge sum of $87,000,000, this administration would have left a surplus of $41,000,000 to its successor beyond the surplus now estimated.

Present Financial Condition

The present financial condition of the State Government on the basis of receipts to November 1, estimated revenue, expenditures to November 1, and legislative appropriations, is that the budget is balanced as of May 31, 1935 and carries a surplus of $5,500,851.

This statement is made on the basis of appropriations as they now stand on the books. It includes all expenditures for relief which were made out of the General Fund. Present appropriations make no provision for relief or pensions for the aged and blind after January 31, 1935.

The budget is balanced on the assumption that all estimated revenue will be collected in this biennium.

While the budget is balanced as stated above, nevertheless great financial problems confront the incoming Administration. Included in the estimate of revenue which must be collected to keep the budget in balance on the basis of appropriations already made there is $13,287,273 of liquor floor tax, of which amount only $2,500,000 has been collected to date. The whole amount is payable finally December 31st of this year and therefore must be carried as receivable.

Included in the estimate of revenue also is $3,500,000 of inheritance tax still due from the Dorrance Estate. This amount is held up by litigation and must, therefore, be carried as receivable.

Delay in collecting these items has entailed current financial difficulties in the Treasury, and so long as the delay continues the difficuties will continue also.

Relief from January 31st to the end of the biennium, if the present rate is continued, will require $20,000,000; and old age pensions and pensions to the blind, $3,200,000.

The amount of relief Pennsylvania will be required to furnish after January 31st will be determined, however, by the policy of the Federal Government, and cannot be predicted now.

Ordinary Expenses Excluding Relief

Entirely outside of relief, the depression has increased the burden of work upon State departments probably by one-half and certainly by one-third. In spite of that huge increase the State Government has cost the taxpayers less than under my predecessor, as the following table shows:

Ordinary Government Appropriations from the General Fund

	Present Administration 1931-1935	Previous Administration 1927-1931

The State Government during my four years cost the taxpayers $347,000,000 in appropriations from the General Fund as compared with $355,000,000 under the previous Administration. This in spite of increases of $4,000,000 in departments not under my direction.

The appropriations to the departments and institutions under my direction, including appropriations for construction and land purchase, for the four years of this Administration, are $37,000,000 less than for the previous Administration.

There was an increase during this Administration of nerly $4,000,000 in departments not under my control. The Lieutenant-Governor, Auditor General and Treasurer spent over $2,000,000 more, but a great part of this increase must be attributed to the tremendous burden of handling relief moneys through the financial departments.

The money spent by the Legislature increased about $1,000,000, mainly because four special sessions to provide for relief had to be called. They were called when and only when they could not be avoided. These special sessions cost the taxpayers far less than if the last regular session had appropriated for relief two years in advance on the basis of then existing needs.

Money for public schools, colleges and universities, hospitals and homes, mothers' assistance, and other necessary subsidies increased by nearly $25,000,000.

This means that our State-aided educational and welfare institutions have received better treatment than ever before in spite of the great depression and in spite of decreased revenues. One of the first duties of the Government is to provide for these needs. I am proud that we have increased our expenditures for such purposes.

The regular revenues from all General Fund income sources which were in effect at the beginning of the Administration yielded $309,570,830. The same sources for the previous Administration brought in excess of $350,000,000. Thus in the four years the revenues from such sources shrank $40,000,000 in the present Administration as compared with 1927 to 1931.

Relief

The great problem during this Administration has been to provide funds for the relief of the unemployed. Since April, 1932, when the Supreme Court declared contributions by the State to unemployment relief to be constitutionally valid, $87,255,400 has been appropriated for relief from State funds.

From April, 1933 to March, 1934 the Federal Government carried 50 per cent of the relief burden. Since then it has carried 77 per cent, a share to which this State was properly entitled in comparison with other states. This increased contribution from Federal sources has saved the taxpayers of Pennsylvania, after deducting the cost of all the special sessions, $32,000,000 in new taxes in the last eight months.

The Federal Government began its contributions in September, 1932, and to date has contributed $153,896,939.

The total of State and Federal relief—$241,152,339—is staggering, but that is not all. To get the total cost of direct relief in Pennsylvania in approximately 2½ years another $20,000,000 from local districts must be added.

The great financial problem of this Administration has been to provide $87,000,000 for relief, plus $3,600,000 for relief debt service. This is how it was done.

The Legislature passed an emergency sales tax, the proceeds of which amounted to $9,966,229. A bond issue netting $25,066,000 was approved by the people to repay funds necessarily taken from the General Fund for relief. The Legislature temporarily transferred $14,591,376 from certain state funds to be used for relief.

These three items total $49,623,605.

The State contribution to relief of $87,255,400 with $3,625,000 for debt service on the relief bond issue makes the total relief bill for my Administration and to January 31, 1935, amount to $90,850,400.

If we take $49,623,605 from this sum, there remains $41,226,795, which is the amount of relief money, unprovided for by special revenue, which had to be taken out of the General Fund and current revenues.

Had there been no necessity to use $41,226,795 of ordinary revenues for relief, that amount, plus the present estimated General Fund surplus of $4,623,621, or about $46,000,000, would have been available for other purposes or left as a favorable balance at the end of this Administration. In other words, except for the unprecedented drain of unemployment relief amounting to $90,000,000, additional appropriations could have been made where needed or this Administration would have left to the next Administration a balance in the Treasury $12,000,000 greater than the balance left to me when I took office.

It is clear that relief has been the great load on the General Fund. Had it not been for this entirely new function of State Government there would be a very large surplus in the Treasury.

The General Fund surplus so used for relief is the result of the drastic economy practiced during these four years, and it exists in spite of the $40,000,000 reduction in revenue, and in spite of the fact that no new taxes other than liquor taxes have been imposed upon the people of Pennsylvania for regular governmental expenses. This may fairly be called a notable achievement.

Summary of Receipts, Expenditures, and Balances Including Both Ordinary Expenses and Relief

The first fiscal year of the Administration began June 1, 1931, with cash balances of $65,529,364.89 on hand in the operating funds, of which approximately $39,000,000 was unencumbered and available for appropriation in all funds.

For the three fiscal years already completed, and the fourth now current, the actual and estimated receipts total $657,227,848.97. Cash balances on hand and receipts total $722,757,213.86.

Appropriation for all functions of Government, including obligations incurred before June 1, 1931, are $717,256,362.00. If the income and outgo for the current year approximate the estimates, the total unappropriated cash balances in all funds on May 31, 1935, will be $5,500,851.86.

Action taken by the Legislature which meets in January next, five months before the end of the present fiscal biennium, will undoubtedly alter the estimates and the actual receipts and expenditures. The following table shows the present situation, actual and estimated.

The General Fund

The General Fund pays the operating expenses of most of the State Government and the State institutions, and the subsidies to public schools and local hospitals.

On June 1, 1931, the General Fund had $49,070,690.96 of which $14,869,982.39 was encumbered by appropriations made before 1931. The surplus available for appropriations by the 1931 Legislature in the General Fund was $34,200,708.57.

To this there will have been added, by the end of the four fiscal years, $393,584,179.67 in money actually received or estimated to be received before May 31, 1935, making a total available in the General Fund of $427,784,888.24.

Against this the Legislature in two regular and four special sessions has appropriated $428,274,646.14, and from designated sources for certain purposes $6,564,560.88, making total appropriations of $434,839,207.02.

Offset against this is $11,677,940.49 in appropriation balances found not to be needed, and either lapsed or awaiting lapse. The resulting amount of $423,161,266.53 is a charge against the total available funds of $427,784,888.24 mentioned above. The difference, $4,623,621.71, represents the estimated unappropriated cash surplus in the General Fund on May 31, 1935. This is the favorable balance in the General Fund Budget at the end of this Administration, under the conditions already stated.

General Fund Receipts

The total of $393,584,179.67 (not including the original cash balance carried over) of actual an destimated receipts to the General Fund during the four years contained the following extraordinary items.

Proceeds from Bond Issue for Relief	$25,066,000
Emergency Sales Tax, for Relief	9,966,229
Temporary Transfers from Custodial Funds for Relief	14,591,376
Repayments of Delaware Bridge Loan	2,318,015
Liquor Tax	650,463
Liquor Floor Tax	13,287,273
Beer and Malt Liquor Tax	11,133,993
TOTAL	$84,013,349

If the total of these be deducted from the total actual and estimated receipts for the biennium, $393,584,179.67, the resulting amount, $309,570,830.67, will represent the yields from all General Fund income sources which were in effect at the beginning of the Administration.

The same sources yielded, for the previous four-year period, in excess of $350,000,000. Thus the four-year revenues from the ordinary taxes and other sources as already noted, shrank $40,000,000 in the present Administration (1931-1935) as compared with the previous Administration (1927-1931).

General Fund Financing

During this Administration, out of the $87,255,400 appropriated for relief, $81,655,400 came from the General Fund. Debt service for relief bonds of $3,625,000, a new item in the Budget, had to be provided. And, as was pointed out, revenues from sources in effect at the beginning of the Administration declined $40,000,000. When these are added together, they show a new revenue demand of $130,000,000, which had to be met to keep the Budget in balance.

This huge new demand was met in part by reducing expenditures, in part by new taxes, in part by borrowing, and in part from collections from unusual items. $34,000,000 of the amount was met by economies, $39,500,000 by borrowing and transfer, $35,000,000 from sales and liquor taxes, and $15,500,000 from unusual items.

The Motor License Fund

Receipts to the Motor License Fund during this Administration are estimaed at $254,362,900 as against $249,817,900 for the previous Administration.

The previous Administration (1927-31) built in all 3,464 miles of roads. The present Administration (1931-1935) built in all 13,892 miles of roads.

The previous Administration was maintaining at its close 13,562 miles of roads. The present Administration is maintaining at its close 83,876 miles of roads.

In spite of this enormous increase in responsibility and accomplishment, the Highway Department, under the present Administration, has spent only five per cent more than the same Department under the previous Administration.

The total estimated expenditures and obligations for 1931-1935 are $269,060,400 as against $256,809,900 for 1927-1931. The difference—12,000,000—is more than offset by the $13,000,000 contracted obligations which this Administration inherited from its predecessor.

In other words, had the preceding Administration not tied up by commitments the Motor Fund cash balance which it left to this Administration, the Motor Fund receipts and expenditures of this Administration would have balanced, and the cash balance on May 31, 1935, would have been the same as on June 1, 1931.

The Highway Department under this Administration has spent the receipts for four years, as it was entitled to do, and not more than the receipts for four years. The chief highway expenditures for the four-year period were as follows:

	1931-1935	1927-1931
Construction:
Original State Highways	$57,426,351	$132,486,985
Rural Highways	63,393,536	.....
City and Borough Streets	5,208,630	.....
Maintenance:
Original State Highways	30,241,420	44,335,961
Rural Highways	34,468,760	*9,189,873
City and Borough Streets	3,428,822	212,569

* Township reward and assistance under former laws.

Administration, Engineering and Inspection	$20,578,675	$19,645,133
Workmen's Compensation, Purchase of Equipment, Maintenance of Detours, Interstate Bridges, State Institutional and Forestry Roads, and Similar Miscellaneous	12,377,395	8,936,879
	$227,124,089	$214,807,400

The State Stores Fund

This is the Operating Fund which supports the State Liquor Stores. Its receipts from the sale of liquor and its expenditures in payment for liquor amount to many millions a year, but they are not ordinary governmental receipts and expenditures and are not included in the Budget.

What the total profits for the biennium will be is uncertain. Much depends on policies to be established after the final date for payment of the floor tax. The appropriations made from the State Stores Fund are as follows:

Relief from October 1, 1934, to January 31, 1935	$5,600,000
Pensions for the Blind from June 1, 1934, to January 31, 1935	900,000

There is also an obligation on the State Stores Fund to repay the General Fund $2,000,000 for working capital advanced at the beginning of the Stores System.

Certain Receipts Below Estimates

The Liquor Floor Tax is estimated in the Budget for the present biennium at $13,287,000. Like liquor taxes elsewhere, Federal and State, this tax has produced less than the estimated. So far only $2,500,000 has been collected. This reduction has caused the first delay in payments of school subsidies since they were brought up to date in my first Administration.

The final date fixed by the act for payment of the floor tax is December 31, 1934. In the absence of legislative action the whole amount of the tax had to be included in the Budget.

Under the Inheritance Tax estimate, the Dorrance Estate still owes the Commonwealth $3,500,000. Payment is withheld pending the outcome of litigation. Nevertheless the Budget must carry this sum also as receivable.

Two years ago, when the Budget was made, the situation clearly warranted an inheritance tax estimate of $31,500,000, not including the Dorrance Estate. Receipts for the three preceding bienniums were $34,500,000, $65,500,000, and $50,000,000. How nearly this estimate will be realized remains to be seen.

Appropriation Deficiencies

Certain appropriations for the present biennium appear to be insufficient by $1,217,387. The greater part of this sum, or $884,775, is in school subsidy appropriations. This deficiency was caused by the Legislature of 1931 when it refused to follow the Administration's program of school district reorganization, and failed to appropriate sufficient money under present laws.

The Department of Property and Supplies needs $112,112, of which $56,000 is due to relief and the remainder because the 1931 Legislature did not follow the budget recommendation.

The Department of Welfare needs $70,000 to take care of the phenomenal increase of hospital patients, and $139,000 to repair damage and pay increased administration costs at the Eastern Penitentiary resulting from the recent riot.

The remaining $20,500 is made up of small amounts in the Departments of Revenue and Internal Affairs.

General Fund Problems—Biennium 1935-1937

A total of $157,500,000 will carry on the work of the State Government which is supported from the General Fund, for two years, in spite of the rising cost of food and supplies, if the same rigid economy which has been enforced by the present Administration is continued.

The debt service on the $25,000,000 bond issue of 1933, and the $50,000,000 soldier's bonus issue of 1934, will require $14,000,000 for two years.

Old age pensions and pensions for the blind will require an estimated $25,350,000 for two years.

Of the $14,400,000 borrowed from other funds by the 1934 Special Session for relief $13,650,000 is required by law to be repair by December 31, 1935.

These four items total $210,500,000, and do not include relief.

Revenue Expectations

To meet these needs it is estimated now that all sources of revenue to the General Fund will yield $128,500,000 for 1935-1937. To this may be added $10,000,000 estimated profits from the operation of the State Liquor Stores, or $138,500,000 in all or revenue to the General Fund.

If $138,500,000 is subtracted from $210,500,000, it appears that there remains to be found $72,000,000 of new revenue for the coming biennium, not including unemployment relief.

[1] Reflects additional work demanded by the Rural and Township Road Programs.

[3] Additional Prison Labor shops at Western, Huntingdon, and Eastern.

[4] State Police service pay increases provided by law.

[5] Of this number the Departments report that 992 are performing work which did not exist at the beginning of this Administration.

REPORT OF THE AUDITORS

The undersigned, Auditors appointed by the President Judges of the Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia, to audit and settle the accounts of THE WESTERN SAVING FUND SOCIETY OF PHILADELPHIA, in conformity with the provisions of Article I, of the "Act" incorporating the said Society, approved 8th February, 1847, having been duly sworn according to law faithfully so to do:

Certify that the Assets of the said Society, at the close of business on the thirty-first day of December, 1934, have been examined and verified by them, and that the cost thereof as set forth in the above Schedule agrees with the books and the balance sheet of the Society.

The amount due to depositors, including interest, on the first day of January, 1935, and the Surplus or Contingent Fund are correctly stated and are in agreement with the books and the balance sheet.

THOMAS RIDGWAY
CHAS. J. BIDDLE
JOHN B. MILLER

The Society also holds for 2,139 depositors, United States of America Liberty Loan Bonds and Treasury Certificates deposited severally by them for safe keeping of which the par value is $422,400.00

TOTAL APPROPRIATIONS RECOMMENDED FOR THE BIENNIUM 1935-1937			$ 305,815,301.50

NOTE: The item of $13,843,000.00 borrowed from the several Special Funds by the 1934 Special Session is included in the estimated deficit, not with an expectation that it may or should be returned to the funds from which borrowed before May 31, 1935, but only for the purpose of showing within the present biennium the charges which rightfully belong to it.

Many of the recommended new items of revenue, if enacted to take effect prior to May 31, 1935, will bring in available cash which will reduce the $49,840,952.52 deficit. There is no way of determining, at this time, how much reduction before May 31 might be affected by this means.

* Qualified by Note ‡.

‡ During this period the State-owned institutions retained and spent receipts from their operations. In comparing this amount with the appropriations for subsequent bienniums, the amount of these expenditures, approximately $16,050,000, should be added to this figure.

 Of this amount $10,000 represents an allocation by the Governor in accordance with provisions of Act No. 6—1933 Special Session.

‖ During this period the State Teachers' Colleges were appropriated their receipts which are estimated at $1,071,777. This must be added for comparison with other periods.

Includes $2,867.37 over-abated by the decision of the Supreme Court in the Talbot Act Case but later restored.

@ Includes $147,622.00 appropriated by the 1931 Assembly as a 1927-29 deficiency. This was included in the Budget Supplement as a 1931-33 appropriation due to the wording of the act.

(1) See Department of Health

(2) Includes $1,750,000.00 for the Department of Revenue—Collection of New Taxes.

* Qualified by Note †.

† During this period the State-owned institutions retained and spent receipts from their operations. In comparing this amount with the appropriation for subsequent bienniums, the amount of these expenditures approximately $5,250,000 should be added to this figure.

‡ Amount to which this appropriation was abated by decision of Supreme Court in the Talbot Act Case.

‖ Beginning in 1933-35 these expenses are paid from the excess earnings of the School Employes' Retirement Fund.

§ In addition to this all receipts are appropriated for the State Teachers' Colleges as received. These are estimated to be $4,071,777 in 1933-35. The same practice is recommended for 1935-1937.

* $250,000.00 of this amount to be expended after June 1, 1935.

† $5,749,503.53 of this amount to be expended after June 1, 1935, recommended to be reduced to $3,397,503.53.

‡ $5,999,503.53 of this amount to be expended after June 1, 1935, recommended to be reduced to $3,647,503.53.

§ Refund of Motor License Fund moneys and the cost of collecting Motor License Fees and Fines were paid by the Department of Highways this period. Under the provisions of the Act of 1929, P. L. 1046, the Board of Finance and Revenue was authorized to refund Motor License Fund moneys and the Department of Revenue was provided with sufficient funds to defray the cost of collecting Motor License Fees and Fines and operate the State Highway Patrol.

‖ This amount plus the $3,647,503.53 carried forward as an appropriation liability from 1933-1935 makes up the total Motor License Fund Budget for 1935-1937.

NOTE: In addition to the amounts expended by the Department of Highways from the Motor License Fund in 1933-1935, see page 171 of the Budget Supplement for amounts expended from the Trust Account, National Industrial Recovery Highway Fund.

(1) It is estimated that the $2,600,000 from the State Stores Fund and the $100,000 from the Milk Control Fund required to be returned to the General Fund before May 31, 1935 cannot be paid.

* By action of the 1933 Legislature the Housing and Contingent Fees collected by the State Teachers Colleges from students were deposited in the General Fund and credited to the appropriation to the State Teachers Colleges. These credits are shown under "Specific Receipts appropriated for Special Purposes." This practice is recommended for 1935-1937.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE DELAWARE RIVER JOINT COMMISSION OF PENNSYLVANIA AND NEW JERSEY

To the Honorable: The Legislatures of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the Senate of New Jersey and the Council of the City of Philadelphia.

Despite a loss in the first quarter due to abnormally cold weather, traffic and receipts of the Delaware River Bridge showed an increase in 1934 as compared with those of the preceding year.

Following is a summary of Delaware River Bridge business since the opening on July 1, 1926:

Year	Traffic	Gross Receipts	Expenses	Net Receipts
1934	9,981,615	$2,846,116.26	$429,412.64	$2,416,703.63
1933	9,886,705	2,820,018.71	418,516.46	2,401,502.25

1931	12,308,225	3,479,337.93	430,856.72	3,048,981.21
1930	12,285,359	3,517,730.64	500,597.53	3,017,133.11
1929	11,615,609	3,331,754.46	398,496.20	2,933,258.26
1928	9,725,470	2,827,786.83	378,590.01	2,449,196.82
1927	8,593,201	2,435,784.40	346,673.59	2,093,921.89
1926 (½ year)	4,137,674	1,110,108.38	158,109.47	946,682.83

Much of the attention of the Commission and its officers was devoted, in 1934, to the High-Speed Transit Project upon which construction was actually begun early in the year and which has proceeded with gratifying progress. Contracts aggregating $4,610,995.30 were awarded to cover construction of the line which connects with the Philadelphia subway system at Eighth and Race Streets, and, by means of subways in Philadelphia and Camden and rails upon the bridge, proceeds to a present termination at a point near Haddon Avenue and Carman Street, Camden.

Authority for the building of this line by the Commission was given by the Legislatures of Pennsylvania and New Jersey in 1931. In accordance with that legislation, the Commission, in 1933, authorized a $41,000,000 bond issue behind which were pledged all revenues of the bridge including those of the high-speed project. The bridge itself was not mortgaged and ownership remains with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey. Pennsylvania accepted Commission bonds in the amount of $9,208,000 and New Jersey, $12,199,000 as reimbursement for their investments in the building of the bridge. The City of Philadelphia, the third partner of the enterprise, declined to accept bonds and asked for reimbursement in cash. The Commission sold all bonds allocated to the City of Philadelphia in the amount of $9,555,000 at par and accrued interest and turned over the proceeds, as rapidly as received, to Philadelphia. The balance of $10,038,000 bonds was reserved by the Commission to meet the expenses of building the high-speed line.

Commission Obtains Thirty Per Cent Grant

The Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works, by an agreement with the Commission dated May 4, 1934, agreed to purchase $10,000,000 bonds on a 4% basis. The coupon rate for the entire issue was 4¼%, so the United States Government, in effect, agreed to purchase the bonds at a premium. In addition thereto, the agreement specified that the Government would make a free grant of thirty per cent of the cost of labor and materials employed upon the project. The $10,000,000 block is made up of bonds numbered and maturing on September first of each year as follows:

Year	Numbers	Amounts	Year	Numbers	Amounts
1935	152— 200	$ 49,000	1955	12,756—13,000	$245,000

				Total	$10,000,000

The Commission sold to the Government, on May 18, 1934, a block of $400,000 bonds which the Government later resold through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation at a profit of approximately $5,000.

The Commission obtained from the Government consent to sell its bonds to the public inasmuch as the market price was in excess of that which the Government had agreed to pay. Accordingly, the Commission, on July 2, 1934, sold $1,150,000 bonds at 105.27 and, on October 26, 1934, $1,000,000 at 105.326. These sales in no way invalidated the Government's agreement to pay thirty per cent of the cost of labor and materials. The prices obtained were satisfactory to the Commission inasmuch as the entire issue is callable September 1, 1943 at 105 per cent.

By its policy of selling bonds to obtain funds for the high-speed transit project in instalments instead of as a whole, the Commission kept interest charges during construction down to a minimum through the year. The Commission invested its surplus earnings in $603,000 Commission bonds of early maturities and in Home Owners' Loan Corporation bonds at a par value of $609,000. On September 1, 1935, $200,000 Commission bonds fall due, of which the Commission owns $145,000; a like amount of $200,000 becomes due in 1936, of this the Commission owns $141,000. The complete Balance Sheet of the Commission as of December 31, 1934 appears as Appendix B of this report.

As a consideration for the Government's participation, the Commission agreed that all construction contracts and sub-contracts on the project would be subject to the rules and regulations of the Government; for example, labor was limited to a thirty-hour week and it was provided that a minimum of 50 cents per hour must be paid to unskilled labor and $1.20 per hour, to skilled labor. Preference was given to ex-service men with dependents, citizens of the United States and aliens who have declared their intention of becoming citizens and who are bona fide residents of the City of Philadelphia and the City and County of Camden.

The Commission engaged a staff of 102 engineering employees to design and supervise construction. The number of men employed by the contractors reached a peak of 1,244 weekly during 1934.

The project was one of the earliest P.W.A. financed enterprises of any magnitude to get actively under way in the country. A certain amount of misunderstanding ensued, particularly in the rates of wages to be paid by contractors to men in the intermediate grades between skilled and unskilled. By the close of the year, however, a better understanding on the part of all parties concerned was reached.

The contracts for construction of subway and necessary underpass in Fifth Street, Philadelphia and for the two sections of subway in Camden were awarded on bids well below our engineers' estimates. By the end of the year, seven contracts had been let and much of the real estate required in Philadelphia and Camden acquired. This gave every evidence that the project can be completed by January 1, 1936 at a cost well within the funds available.

The Loan Agreement with the Government appears in full as Appendix E of this report. In accordance with the terms of this agreement, the Commission placed $10,000,000 All Risk insurance with a $100,000 deductible clause on the suspended span between anchorages; also, Use and Occupancy insurance of $500,000 against loss of receipts due to damage to the bridge. These policies, dated April 15, 1934, extend for a period of three years at a cost to the Commission of $51,875.00.

Details of contracts awarded during the year and a summary of those necessary to complete the project appear in the report of the Commission's engineers as Appendix A.

Negotiate Lease With Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company

Inasmuch as the high-speed transit projects is, in effect, an extension of the Eighth Street subway in Philadelphia, it was necessary for the Commission to negotiate a lease with the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, the operator of all Philadelphia subways. By this agreement, the Commission leased to the Company all parts of the line now under construction. The Commission is required to turn over the line ready for operation and equipped with cars and all necessary appurtenances.

The lease terminates June 30, 1937 but it is provided that it shall extend for additional succeeding periods of four years unless concluded by either the Commission or the Company giving notice in writing four months prior to the end of any term. The Company is obligated to maintain the property in first-class physical condition and operating efficiency and to meet all expenses of maintenance, operation, lighting and cleaning. A fare of ten cents will be charged upon the line, of which the Commission is to receive two and one-half cents for each passenger. Turnstiles will be installed at the three stations, Franklin Square in Philadelphia, City Hall and Broadway, Camden. Patrons of the bridge line will receive free transfer privileges and exchange privileges now given to passengers on the Broad Street-Eighth Street subway in Philadelphia.

Signing of the agreement on behalf of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company was delayed until the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania could pass upon the lease between the City of Philadelphia and the Company covering the Broad Street-Eighth Street subway. The text of the agreement with the Company appears as Appendix D of this report.

Gain in Traffic and Receipts

While the increase in traffic and receipts, as compared with those of 1933, was not large, the change in the downward tendency evidenced since 1931 was gratifying. January started with a decrease of 22,992 vehicles; in February, an additional loss of 102,205 was recorded; March showed a loss of 20,702. These decreases, undoubtedly were due to the heavy snow falls and zero temperatures which made all travel burdensome. It was not until May that a gain in comparative figures was scored. August was particularly good, but much of the increase must be attributed to the dog racing track established just outside of Camden which attracted many patrons during its short-lived history.

Of the various factors making up the year's business, the number of passenger cars and light trucks rose from 8,569,299 in 1933 to 8,613,090 in 1934. Buses numbered 1,032,068 last year against 1,035,955 in 1934. The greatest proportional increase was shown in heavy trucks from 250,455 to 284,143. Only 16 horse-drawn vehicles crossed the bridge in 1934 with no ridden horses or led animals. It is interesting to compare this with 1927 when 1,369 horse-drawn vehicles, 102 horses and riders and 79 led animals passed through the toll gates.

During the year, 31 accidents, nearly all of a minor nature, were reported upon the bridge; 46 arrests were made; 13 fires extinguished; 3 persons committed suicide by jumping from the bridge and 7 attempted suicides were prevented. Disabled cars numbering 540 were removed by our apparatus.

In November, repairs to the asphalt surface of the suspended structure were made at a cost of $4,480.00.

The Delaware River Joint Commission takes this opportunity of inviting the Legislatures of Pennsylvania and New Jersey and the Council of the City of Philadelphia to inspect the bridge and to go into the details of operation at any time.

Respectfully submitted,

Report of Modjeski, Masters and Case, Inc., Engineers
December 31, 1934

Delaware River Joint Commission, Administration Building, Bridge Plaza,
Camden, N. J.

Gentlemen:—

We submit herewith the following report of the work accomplished on the High-Speed Rail Transit Line during the past year and of the status of the work at the present time.

Construction progress during the past year has been very satisfactory. The progress made in the preparation of contract drawings and specifications after the organization of the Engineering Department in September, 1933, made possible the start of construction work early in the year.

A total of seven contracts have been awarded. These contracts have provided for the major volume of the work and have an aggregate value of $4,611,000, distributed as follows:

1	Phila. Subway and Underpass	Builders, Inc.	1-26-34	$998,394.15
2	Trackways Underpasses and Subway—Camden	Marcus Contg. Co., Inc.	4-13-34	1,373,999.06
3	Subway South of Federal St.—Camden	Triest Contg. Corp.	6-8-34	957,694.00
4	Concrete Decks on Bridge	Turner Constr. Co.	8-17-34	73,941.44
5	Equipment for Substations	Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co.	8-17-34	393,965.00
6	Trackwork and Contact Rail	E. R. Morehouse Co., Inc.	10-19-34	737,481.45
7-A	Phila. Substation Building	Turner Contr. Co.	11-16-34	75,520.20

Construction began February 23rd on the Philadelphia side when ground was broken with appropriate ceremonies, and since that time the physical work has been prosecuted actively.

General Description

The High-Speed Rail Transit Line is approximately 2½ miles long for two tracks and consists of approximately 1,140 feet of subway in Philadelphia connecting the existing Eighth Street subway at Race Street with the bridge substructure at Sixth Street, 8,120 feet of trackway over the bridge to Fourth Street, Camden, and 3,640 feet of subway in Camden with the eastern terminus as authorized near Haddon Ave. Three passenger stations have been provided: One in Franklin Square, Philadelphia; one in Fifth Street, Camden, at the City Hall; and the third at Broadway. These stations have numerous entrances and exits to the street; the Broadway station being so located as to provide convenient access to the adjacent station of the Pennsylvania Railroad and having a covered passageway at street level extending to Haddon Avenue. The subway is of steel frame and concrete jack arch construction similar to that of the Philadelphia subway with which it connects. Electric power for operating the subway will be provided on the Philadelphia side from the Philadelphia Electric Company through a substation located under the bridge at Front Street, and on the Camden side from the Public Service Company of New Jersey through a substation located at Fourth and Birch Streets. The subway now being constructed is substantially the same as the design submitted with our preliminary report dated January 20, 1933, except that the Broadway station has been located beneath the bed of Hudson Street in place of the original location beneath the Pennsylvania Railroad. The depth of the subway roof throughout is at the highest elevation consistent with a proper distribution of underground pipes and conduits.

Detailed Report of Construction

The following is a record of the construction work accomplished during the year:

Contract No. 1—Subway in Philadelphia From Eighth and Race Streets to Sixth Street and an Underpass in Fifth Street

Contractor ..... Builders, Inc.
Date of Contract ..... February 9, 1934
Bids Opened ..... January 15, 1934
Aggregate of Bid $998,394.15
Notice to Proceed Issued ..... February 9, 1934
Contract approximately 80 per cent completed at end of year.

Contract No. 1 comprises the construction of a short section of subway in Philadelphia connecting on the west with the existing subway at Eighth and Race Streets, extending through private property to Franklin Square, and thence diagonally across Franklin Square in two single track tubes to Sixth Street, where it connects with the north and south sides of the sub-structure of the bridge as provided for in the original construction. Due to the fact that the high-speed tracks will cross the original vehicular underpass in Fifth Street at grade, the construction of a new underpass 1,450 feet long in Fifth Street is included in this contract. It will extend from Cherry Street to Callowhill Street and pass below the high-speed tracks. A combined pump chamber and electrical distributing room below the bridge structure forms a part of this sub-passage. The underpass is now approximately 85 per cent completed.

The construction of the underpass required the demolition of buildings on the east side of Fifth Street from Cherry Street to Race Street and from Vine Street to Callowhill Street. The demolition of buildings has also been required on the north side of Race Street from Eighth to Franklin Street and at the southeast corner of Eighth and Race Streets to provide for the subway construction.

Due to the fact that the Commission had not at that time obtained the necessary authority for the demolition of the buildings required for the construction of the Fifth Street underpass, the contractor's operations were begun on the subway construction in Franklin Square, and have progressed steadily throughout the year. The construction has offered no serious engineering difficulties, although great care has been necessary in removing the easterly wall in the Eighth Street subway for the connection with the eastbound track of the high-speed line without interfering with traffic in the subway. The undercrossing of the westbound track was constructed by the City of Philadelphia as part of the Eighth Street subway.

Contract No. 2—Construction in Camden of Trackways along the Delaware River Bridge Approach from West of Third Street to Fifth Street and a Subway in Fifth Street from the Bridge Approach to Federal Street: Also a Vehicular and a Pedestrian Underpass in Fourth Street.

Contractor	The Marcus Contracting Co., Inc.
Date of Contract	April 16, 1934
Date of Contract	April 16, 1934
Aggregate of Bid	$1,373,999.06
Notice to Proceed Issued	May 2, 1934
Contract now approximately	60% completed

Contract No. 2 consists of the construction of about 2,850 linear feet of the high-speed line in Camden from a point on the existing bridge structure about 100 feet west of Third Street, where provision for the high-speed line tracks ended in the original bridge construction, to Fifth and Linden Streets, and thence southward in Fifth Street to Federal Street, with a passenger station at City Hall. Since the tracks descending from the bridge cross Fourth Street approximately at grade, a new underpass for vehicles is being constructed in Fourth Street as a part of this contract. This underpass is approximately 650 feet long and extends from Linden Street to Main Street, passing beneath the high-speed tracks. A short auxiliary underpass for pedestrians is also provided beneath the bridge structure and in this construction is included a combined pump room and chamber for the control of electrical apparatus.

The construction at the westerly end of this contract has consisted of additions and alterations to the structural steel and masonry of the bridge structure, required to bring the trackways together below the bridge. This has included extensive underpinning of the walls and columns of the bridge approach east of Fourth Street and a considerable amount of new construction west of Fourth Street.

At Fifth Street, the subway swings to the south and extends in Fifth Street to the north side of Federal Street. Difficult soil conditions encountered in this street, consisting of saturated fine sand and a heavy layer of mud below the structure, have made it desirable to construct this entire section of the subway within the lines of steel sheet piling. Due to the presence of ground water in large quantities, the contractor elected to underpin the buildings adjacent to the subway to ground water level at a depth of approximately 16 feet below the street surface, and to rely for additional support upon steel pipe piling jacked through the ground below this level to the resistance afforded by the weight of the superimposed buildings. These piles were located in niches provided in the underpinning walls. The subway structure has progressed from north to south and has been constructed in the dry, the ground water being removed by means of well points driven in advance of the deep excavation. Drainage of the subway is provided by means of cast-iron pipe with leaded joints which are designed to exclude the ground water. At the present date, the underpass is approximately 75 per cent completed, the work on the trackways west of Fifth Street is nearing completion, and the subway structure at Fifth Street is completed approximately to Cooper Street.

The entire contract is approximately 60 per cent completed.

Contract No. 3—Subway in Camden from Fifth and Federal Streets to the Vicinity of Haddon Avenue and Carman Street.

Contractor	Triest Contracting Corporation
Date of Contract	June 8, 1934
Bids Opened	June 1, 1934
Aggregate of Bid	$957,694.00
Notice to Proceed Issued	June 22, 1934
Contract now approximately	30% complete

This contract continues the subway construction of Contract No. 2 from Fifth and Federal Streets, crosses Federal Street and swings toward the east, running parallel with the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and ends about 70 feet west of Sixth Street, a total of 1,335 feet of two-track subway. The tracks adjacent to Broadway spread to provide for the platform of the Broadway station. On the roof of the subway proper and at the street level, station entrance buildings accessible from Broadway and Hudson Street, and also from a covered passageway about 300 feet long leading from Sixth Street, are to be constructed under this contract. Provision is made for future connection with the station of the Pennsylvania Railroad at this point, but for the present, connection between the railroad and the high-speed line will be through the stairways at the street level.

The subsurface conditions throughout this contract are similar to those in Contract No. 2 and steel sheet piling is required for the entire length of the subway for the protection of the adjacent properties. The problem of the maintenance and support of the structures and tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad has been effected without damage to railroad property. A considerable amount of reconstruction of railroad pole lines and tracks has been required on account of subway construction, and this work has been done by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company under a separate agreement with the Delaware River Joint Commission. At the present date, the bottom slab and structural steel are being placed from Federal Street to the vicinity of Hudson Street and the excavation is approaching completion west of Broadway. None of the difficulties expected in this section of the work have been experienced up to this time.

Contract No. 4—Concrete Deck and Trackways on Bridge

Contractor	Turner Construction Co.
Date of Contract	August 22, 1934
Bids Opened	August 10, 1934
Aggregate of Bid	$77,234.40
Notice to Proceed Issued	September 12, 1934
Work Completed	December 18, 1934

Contract No. 4 consisted of the laying of a reinforced concrete deck on the existing steel framework of the trackways of the bridge approaches on both the Philadelphia and Camde nsides in preparation for the laying of ballasted track. The total length of trackway was 6,650 linear feet, and was expeditiously constructed by the contractor without trouble of any kind. Contract No. 4 was entered into as a separate contract in order that the concrete work preparatory to the track construction might be completed before cold weather set in.

Contract No. 5—Furnishing and Erecting Mercury-Arc Power Rectified Equipment, Transformers, and Switch Gear in Philadelphia and Camden Substations.

Contractor	Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co.
Date of Contract	August 21, 1934
Bids Opened	August 10, 1934
Aggregate of Bid	$293,965.00
Notice to Proceed Issued	September 15, 1934

This contract covers the furnishing and erecting of mercury-arc power rectifier equipment, transformers, and switchgear for the substation buildings in Philadelphia and Camden.

Satisfactory progress is being made at the factory in Milwaukee in the manufacture and assembling of this equipment. Ignition and excitation equipment and mercury vacuum pumps have been completed and are under test. Rotary vacuum pumps are 50 per cent complete, rectifiers 15 per cent, triple harmonic transformers 20 per cent, and main rectifier and interphase transformers 10 per cent complete. Material for heat exchangers and vacuum-measuring devices is being assembled.

Contract No. 6—Trackwork and Contact Rail

Contractor ..... E. R. Morehouse Company
Date of Contract ..... October 22, 1934
Bids Opened ..... October 12, 1934
Aggregate of Bid $737,481.45
Notice to Proceed Issued ..... November 5, 1934

This contract covers the work of furnishing and installing all of the trackwork required for operation of the high-speed line from its connection with the Eighth Street subway in Philadelphia to the terminus in Camden. The track construction in the subway section will be similar to that in the Philadelphia subways, and will consist of 100-pound A.S.C.E. rail supported on creosoted wood ties which will be embedded in concrete in the straight sections and fastened to steel channels embedded in concrete at the special work. On the bridge approaches the tracks will be standard tie construction laid in ballast on the concrete slabs constructed under Contract No. 4. Across the suspended spans, conventional bridge track construction will be used. Tracks for a small car storage yard below the bridge approach, between Third and Fourth Streets, Camden, are also provided for in this contract.

The contractor has been engaged in assembling materials; rails, plates, and ties are beginning to arrive on the job. The actual work of track laying will begin shortly after the first of the year.

Contract No. 7-A—Philadelphia Substation Building

Contractor ..... Turner Construction Co.
Date of Contract ..... November 20, 1934
Bids Opened ..... November 9, 1934
Aggregate of Bid $75,520.20
Notice to Proceed Issued ..... December 12, 1934

This contract covers the erection of a brick building approximately 74 feet by 53 feet in size underneath the bridge structure on Front Street, north of Race Street, Philadelphia, to house the electrical equipment for high-speed line operation. The contractor has arranged for the approval of various subcontractors and has made a start on the foundations.

Future Contracts

Contract drawings and specifications for Contract 7-C, Camden substation building, were completed in December. Bids will be opened January 11, 1935. Contract drawings for passenger cars, substation wiring, signal system, station finish and control, lighting, pumps, ejectors, and heating are well under way and the necessary contracts are scheduled for advertising early next year.

Respectfully submitted,

Modjeski, Masters and Case.

APPENDIX "D"

LEASE OF HIGH-SPEED LINE TO P. R. T. CO.

This Indenture, made this 15th day of June, A. D. 1934, between The Delaware River Joint Commission, a public corporated instrumentality of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and of the State of New Jersey (hereinafter called "Commission"), of the first part, lessor, and Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania (hereinafter called "Company"), of the second part, lessee, Witnesseth:

WHEREAS, Under and by virtue of a certain agreement dated July 1, 1931, entered into between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey duly authorized by the Act of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania approved June 12, 1931 (P. L. 575), and by the Act of the State of New Jersey approved June 30, 1931 (Chapter 391, Laws of New Jersey, 1931), Commission was created to constitute the public corporate instrumentality of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey for the purposes, inter alia, of:

The operation and maintenance of the bridge, owned jointly by the two States and the City of Philadelphia, as its interests may appear, across the Delaware River between the City of Philadelphia in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the City of Camden in the State of New Jersey, including its approaches, and the making of additions and improvements thereto;

The effectuation, establishment, construction, operation and maintenance of railroad or other facilities for the transportation of passengers across the said bridge, including extensions thereof, to the vicinity of Race Street and Eighth Street in the City of Philadelphia and to the vicinity of Carman Street and Haddon Avenue in the City of Camden;

The procurement from the Government of the United States of any consents which may be requisite to enable any project within its powers to be carried forward; and

WHEREAS, By a joint resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, approved June 14, 1932, the consent of the Federal Government to said agreement was duly procured; and

WHEREAS, Commission proposes to construct and equip for operation a high-speed electric rail transit line across the aforementioned bridge, including extensions thereof, to Race and Eighth Streets in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and the vicinity of Carman Street and Haddon Avenue in Camden, New Jersey, which said line is herein called "Bridge Line"; and

WHEREAS, Commission has obtained the consent of the City of Philadelphia and the consent of the City of Camden to the construction, operation and maintenance of said Bridge Line upon, through and under, inter alia, approaches to said bridge, public highways and property of the City of Philadelphia and of the City of Camden, respectively, from the Philadelphia portal of the said bridge to Eighth and Race Streets, Philadelphia, and from the Camden portal of the said bridge to the vicinity of Carman Street and Haddon Avenue, Camden; and

WHEREAS, Company is a motor power company, duly organized and existing under the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and by virtue of various leases, agreements and stock ownerships is operating a system of surface, elevated and underground railways and buses in Philadelphia, with minor extensions into the surrounding territory, and is authorized and empowered, inter alia, to operate rapid transit facilities constructed by Commission; and

WHEREAS, the City of Philadelphia has built and equipped for operation a subway known as the Broad Street Subway, extending from Grange Avenue to Kater Street, Philadelphia, and a subway branch thereof known as the Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street Subway, extending from a connection with the Broad Street Subway at Broad Street and Ridge Avenue to Eighth and Ranstead Streets, Philadelphia, and Company is now operating the same as lessee of the City of Philadelphia; and

WHEREAS, the City of Philadelphia is constructing a subway extension of the Broad Street Subway known as the Broad Street Subway South Extension, from Kater Street to Snyder Avenue, Philadelphia; and said City is constructing a subway known as the Locust Street Subway, extending in Eighth Street and in Locust Street, from Eighth and Ranstead Streets to Eighteenth and Locust Streets, Philadelphia; and said City is preparing to equip said two Subways for operation; and said City has constructed a part of a subway connection known as the Bridge Line Connecting Spur, owned by said City, and which, pursuant to an agreement between Commission and said City dated December 22, 1933 and entered into in accordance with the provisions of an ordinance of said City of August 16, 1933, is to be completed and equipped by Commission for operation and make connection at or near Eighth and Race Streets, Philadelphia, between the Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street Subway and the Bridge Line; and the said two Subways and said Spur are to be operated by Company as lessee, pursuant to the provisions of an agreement of lease between the City of Philadelphia and Company, when, as and if completed; and

WHEREAS, it has been deemed advisable that the parties hereto enter into an agreement providing for the letting and demising of the aforesaid Bridge Line when and as the same shall be fully constructed and equipped by Commission ready for operation;

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants hereafter contained, it is agreed between the parties hereto as follows:

1. (a) Commission hereby agrees to let and demise its high-speed electric rail transit line beginning at, and including, the terminal thereof in the vicinity of Carman Street and Haddon Avenue in Camden, New Jersey, and extending to the place at or near Eighth and Race Streets in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where said line will make connection with the Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street Subway by means of the Bridge Line Connecting Spur, said line to run substantially as shown on a Drawing of Commission numbered "File No. 2045," dated May 1934, and entitled "General Plan Demised Properties," if, when and as the said line shall be completed and equipped ready for operation by Commission, with all appurtenances, railways, equipment, lands, improvements, tenements and hereditaments thereof and belonging thereto, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, all tunnels, subways, terminals, yards, car-housing, depots, stations, entrances, exits, approaches, buildings, rolling stock, motive equipment, drainage equipment, heating equipment, lighting equipment, cleaning equipment, ventilation equipment, motors, boilers, engines, pumps, machinery, spare parts, tools, apparatus, appliances, fixtures, parts, rights-of-way, track, switches, connections, sidings, turn-outs, crossovers, poles, wires, ways, conduits, station control equipment, signals, signal devices, power substations, power conductors, conductor rails, lines for transmission of power, power converting facilities, cables, connections with power sources, power equipment and electrical equipment, which are necessary for the safe, convenient and efficient operation of said transit line. No part of the structure of the aforesaid bridge of Commission or the approaches thereto, as now in place or as the same may hereafter be altered or added to, is included in the property demised hereunder, but the tunnels, railway rails, contact rails, ties, ballast, cables and signal equipment of said transit line therein and thereon are included in the property demised hereunder. Commission is under no obligation hereunder to complete and equip said line and make the same ready for operation, but if, when and as Commission has completed and equipped and made the same ready for operation, as aforesaid, the same, as so completed and equipped, shall be thenceforth let and demised to and occupied, used and operated by Company under the terms and conditions prescribed in this Indenture and for the Term hereof. The said high-speed electric rail transit line, as so completed and equipped, is in this Indenture called the "Bridge Line."

(b) Company shall, however, be under no obligation to take possession of or use and operate the Bridge Line (1) unless and until such time as the Bridge Line Connecting Spur is also completed and equipped by Commission ready for operation; and (2) unless, at the time the Bridge Line and the Bridge Line Connecting Spur are completed and equipped and ready for operation, Company shall be operating the Broad Street Subway and the Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street Subway and shall have the right to operate the Bridge Line Connecting Spur and the Locust Street Subway if said Locust Street Subway is then completed and equipped and ready for operation.

(c) Before Company shall be obligated to accept and take possession of and use and operate under the terms of this Indenture the Bridge Line, Commission shall notify Company in writing of the impending completion and equipment thereof ready for operation, at least three (3) months prior to the probable date of completion and equipment thereof, ready for operation; and Company shall have access to the Bridge Line for operating trial and tests and training of employes, at least two (2) months prior to the date of the beginning of operation thereof.

2. (a) The Term of the letting and demising under this Indenture shall commence with the first day of Company's operation of the Bridge Line in passenger service on which Company collects fares and shall end on June 30, 1937, and shall extend for additional successive periods of four years, unless and until terminated by either party giving to the other party notice in writing four (4) months prior to June 30, 1937 or four (4) months prior to June 30 of any fourth year following the year 1937; unless the said Term is sooner terminated in accordance with the provisions of this Indenture, and if so terminated the said Term shall end on the date of such termination.

(b) Should Company cease to be the operating lessee of the Broad Street Subway, the Broad Street Subway South Extension, if Company shall have been operating the same, the Locust Street Subway, if Company shall have been operating said Subway, and the Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street Subway, either Commission or Company shall have the right to end the Term hereof forthwith.

3. Company shall be consulted by Commission and Company shall cooperate with Commission in the matter of plans and designs of all line, structure and equipment of the Bridge Line, and such plans and designs shall be acceptable to Company, to the end that the Bridge Line shall be properly coordinated with the subway system owned by the City of Philadelphia which is operated by Company so that the same may be efficiently and economically operated together.

4. (a) The right and power of the City of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and the City of Camden, New Jersey, to exercise, on the parts of the demised property respectively within said two cities, their police authority and control in the prevention or suppression of crime, riot or disorder and for the purpose of extinguishing fire shall not be abridged by any provision of this Indenture.

(b) The said two cities shall also have access to the parts of the demised property respectively within said two cities, at any and all reasonable times and under reasonable regulations of Company, and without avoidable interference with the operation thereof, for the purpose of inspection of the demised property, for the installation, repair, maintenance, removal or other work necessary to be done by said two cities, their lessees or licensees, in connection with sewers, pipe lines, conduits, cables, drains or other underground or overhead structures, or for any lawful municipal purpose.

(c) The City of Philadelphia shall also have access to the demised property, at any and all reasonable times and under reasonable regulations of Company, and without avoidable interference with the operation thereof, for the purpose of making traffic counts and for reading turnstiles, in order to ascertain the number of passengers carried on the Bridge Line who are also carried on the subways owned by the City of Philadelphia.

(d) Commission shall at any and all reasonable times and under reasonable regulations of Company, and without avoidable interference with the operation thereof, have the right of access to all parts of the demised property for the purpose of inspection or examination of the condition thereof, for the making of any inventory provided for in this Indenture, for the purpose of doing thereon any work Commission may need to do and for accounting purposes. Commission agrees to indemnify and save Company harmless from all claims, liability, judgments, damages, loss and expenses which Company may at any time incur by reason of any injury or death of any person or damage to any property resulting from any act or omission of any servant, agent or employee of Commission or of any independent contractor of Commission while upon the demised property or while upon the property of Company, by reason of permitting such access.

5. (a) Company shall at all times maintain the demised property in first-class physical condition and operating efficiency so that upon the termination of the Term hereof it shall be in the same and like good condition as it is when delivered to Company, reasonable wear and tear excepted, and subject, however, to the provisions of Sub-section 10 (b) hereof; and Company assumes adequately to maintain, operate, light, clean and police all parts of the demised property, including the stairways, escalators and approaches of said demised property except where any such obligation has been or is hereafter contractually assumed by any abutting property owner or tenant; and Company shall replace and renew all demised property which may be lost or worn out.

(b) It is understood and agreed, however, that Company shall be under no obligation to maintain, paint, replace or renew any part whatever of the bridge structure and the approaches thereto as now in place or as the same may hereafter be added to or altered. Commission agrees that it will at all times paint and maintain all parts of said bridge structure and the approaches thereto in first-class physical condition and operating efficiency and will replace and renew all parts thereof which may be lost or worn out. Company shall be under no obligation to light any part of said bridge structure and the approaches thereto between the Philadelphia and Camden tunnel portals; the lighting thereof shall be done by Commission. Commission agrees that the maintenance, painting, replacement and renewal of the said bridge structure and the approaches thereto shall be done without avoidable interference with the operation of the Bridge Line. Any necessary expense which Company may reasonably incur in connection with Commission's said maintenance, painting, replacement and renewal shall be paid by Commission to Company on the basis of actual cost of wages and materials as shown by daily reports which shall be furnished to Commission; and if not so paid within three months after bills therefor have been rendered to Commission, Company may deduct the same from rental payments under this Indenture until the amount has been fully recouped. Commission agrees to indemnify and save Company harmless from all claims, liability, judgments, damages, loss and expenses which Company may at any time incur by reason of any injury or death of any person or damage to any property resulting from any act or omission of any agent, servant or employee of Commission or of any independent contractor of Commission while engaged in said maintenance, painting, replacement or renewal.

(c) Company shall insure in a responsible insurance company or companies either separately or by inclusion in blanket policies all parts of the demised property (the same not including, however, any part of the bridge structure or the approaches thereto) which are inflammable, combustible and subject to serious risk of damage by fire, including but not limiting the insurance to rolling stock, car housing, buildings, motive and heating equipment, and such power and power converting facilities and electrical equipment as are subject to such risk of fire damage, against loss or damage by fire to an amount equal to eighty per cent (80%) of the insurable value thereof. In the event of loss or damage by fire, Company shall apply the insurance proceeds to the replacement or restoration of the demised property destroyed or damaged and to such extent as the demised property (the same not including, however, any part of the bridge structure or the approaches thereto) is not insured Company shall replace or repair such demised property at its own cost. Any loss or damage to the said demised property caused by the negligence of the Company or its employees shall be replaced or restored by the Company at its own cost.

6. Company agrees to maintain personnel, methods and standards in all respects adequate to the reasonable operating needs of the Bridge Line; and further agrees that all times during the Term hereof it will operate the Bridge Line, with the equipment furnished by Commission, so that in connection with the other lines operated by Company it will furnish safe and reasonably adequate service to the public. Commission agrees that Company may operate the Bridge Line in joint operation with the Subways operated by Company which are owned by the City of Philadelphia.

7. The gross receipts from whatever source derived by Company, or on its behalf, in any manner from, on account of, or in connection with the operation of the demised property shall be retained by Company and Company shall pay, in connection with the demised property, all operating expenses, water rents and taxes (except such taxes as may fall upon ownership of the demised property).

8. (a) Rent for the demised property shall begin to accrue on the first day of the Term hereof.

(b) The rental payable for the demised property shall be an amount equal to two and one-half (2½) cents for each fare-paying passenger who is carried by Company on the Bridge Line across the bridge.

(c) Payments of rental shall be made by Company to Commission monthly, on or before the last day of each month, and such payments shall respectively be in an amount equal to two and one-half (2½) cents for each fare-paying passenger who was carried by Company on the Bridge Line across the bridge during the preceding month.

(d) The number of fare-paying passengers carried on the Bridge Line across the bridge shall be determined from the records of passengers entering and/or leaving stations of the Bridge Line. Commission shall have the right to verify turnstile readings and the aforesaid records of passengers carried, under reasonable Company regulations.

9. (a) A single fare shall be charged for a continuous ride over the bridge on the Bridge Line and on that part of the Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street Subway which begins at the place at or near Eighth and Race Streets, Philadelphia, where the Bridge Line connects, by means of the Bridge Line Connecting Spur, with the Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street Subway, and which ends at the terminal thereof at or near Ranstead Street (which said part of the Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street Subway just described is in this Indenture called the "Eighth Street Subway") and on the Locust Street Subway when said Subway is completed and equipped and is operated by Company.

(b) Said single fare shall be not more than the base fare charged from time to time during the Term hereof by Company on the subway lines then operated by Company which are owned by the City of Philadelphia, plus two and one-half (2½) cents per passenger, which latter amount may be collected by Company from passengers as they enter or leave stations in Camden and which may be paid by passengers with tokens which Company will sell at the rate of (2) for five (5) cents.

(c) The same general system of free transfer privileges and transfer privileges at an additional charge as Company shall maintain from time to time during the Term hereof for passengers using the subway lines then operated by Company which are owned by the City of Philadelphia shall be maintained by Company during the Term hereof for Bridge Line passengers, to and from other lines operated by Company; provided, however, that in each case the fare paid by passengers using the Bridge Line and crossing the bridge shall include the two and one-half (2½) cents specified in Subsection (b) above. Company will furnish free of charge such conveniences and transportation as may be required for inspection and examination of the demised property by Commission.

(d) It is recognized and understood that provisions relating to routes, service, fares, transfer privileges and similar matters may be subject to regulatory law and to the jurisdiction of regulatory commissions or other regulatory bodies, and any alteration thereof made in conformity with such regulatory laws and/or ordered or approved by such regulatory commission or body shall not otherwise vitiate or abrogate the terms of this Indenture.

10. (a) Company shall be responsible for and shall indemnify and hold Commission harmless against any loss, damage or injury to person or property, including the demised property, judgment, liability and actions of any description resulting from the operation or maintenance of the demised property, or resulting from any act or omission of the Company, its agents, servants or concessionaires in the use of the demised property or from any negligence on its or their part or from any cause, whether or not attributable to the design, materials or construction of the demised property, which could have been prevented or avoided by the ordinarily diligent and careful maintenance and use thereof, including ordinary seepage or sweating, or from any cause whatever arising in or from the operation or use of Commission's rolling stock on subway lines owned by the City of Philadelphia as provided for in Section 11, and Company shall bear all costs in connection therewith.

(b) Commission shall be responsible for and shall indemnify and hold Company harmless against any loss, damage or injury to person or property, including the demised property, judgment, liability and actions of any description resulting from defects in design, materials or construction of the demised property (except as in Subsection 10 (a) provided) or of the bridge structure and approaches thereto or from any cause or causes growing out of war, riot, flood, bursting or leaking water mains, gas mains or sewers (unless the damage from such flood, bursting or leaking is proximately caused by negligent maintenance or operation) earthquake or other extraordinary casualty comprehended under the term "Act of God" or vis majeur; and Commission shall bear all costs in connection therewith and in connection with any restoration or replacement of the demised property required thereby. In the event that such expenditures are paid in the first instance by Company, the amount thereof shall be repaid to Company by Commission and if not so paid within three months after bills therefor have been rendered to Commission, Company may deduct the same from rental payments under this Indenture until the amount has been fully recouped.

11. Commission shall furnish forty-four (44) cars for initial operation. Commission agrees to furnish such additional cars as shall be required by the growth of Bridge Line traffic, the number thereof to be mutually agreed upon between Commission and Company. Commission agrees that cars owned by the City of Philadelphia may, as emergencies of operation may require, be operated by Company on the Bridge Line; the operation thereof shall, however, be without any liability whatever on the part of the City of Philadelphia on account of such operation or any result thereof. Commission agrees that Commission's cars may be operated by Company in through service to Eighteenth and Locust Streets, Philadelphia, on the Bridge Line Connecting Spur, the Eighth Street Subway and the Locust Street Subway; and that Commission's cars may be operated by Company on any other subway lines owned by the City of Philadelphia to such extent as emergencies of operation require.

12. Company shall have the right to use or permit the use of the demised property for purposes not strictly of a transportation nature, including the maintenance of news and other stands, weighing and vending machines and advertising signs, and other concessions, provided that such uses do not impair the use of said property for transportation purposes. All income therefrom shall be the property of Company.

13. Commission shall prepare and file with Company a full and correct descriptive inventory of the demised property used by Company at the time such property is delivered to Company. All movables included therein shall be suitably marked by Commission to indicate the Commission's ownership. Said inventory shall be kept up to date by Commission with respect to the changes, alterations, additions, or replacements by whomsoever made, during the Term hereof, Company shall at the expiration of the Term hereof, surrender to Commission all the demised property in the same good order and condition as it shall be when possession thereof is accepted by Company, ordinary wear and tear excepted, subject, however, to the provisions of Subsection 10 (b) of this Indenture. Company shall also deliver to Commission all improvements, additions, replacements and betterments to the demised property by whomsoever made and all property furnished by Company under the maintenance provisions of this Indenture.

14. Whenever Commission or Company shall deem it necessary or expedient to make changes, alterations or additions to the demised property, the party making such proposal shall submit to the other party hereto a report stating the nature of and reasons for such changes, alterations or additions. If Company makes such a proposal, Company shall also submit to Commission an estimate of the total cost of such changes, alterations or additions, properly distributed in accordance with the Uniform System of Accounts for Electric Railways. The party proposing such changes, alterations or additions may proceed to make the same when and if the other party hereto shall approve the proposal, in writing. All such changes, alterations, or additions shall be made at such time and in such manner as shall be agreed upon by Commission and Company. The cost of said changes, alterations and additions, whether proposed by Commission and approved by Company or proposed by Company and approved by Commission shall be borne by Commission. In the event such cost is paid in the first instance by Company, the amount thereof shall be repaid to Company by Commission and if not so repaid within three months after bills therefor have been rendered to Commission, Company may deduct the same from rental payments under this Indenture until the amount has been fully recouped. Any future extension of the Bridge Line is not and shall not be deemed to be in any way subject to the provisions of this Section.

15. Company shall have the right to provide at its own cost cable ties between Commission substations and other substations used by Company; provided, however, that the Bridge Line shall be maintained as a single and independent operating unit.

16. All of the provisions of this Indenture shall apply to any changes, alterations or additions to the demised property by whomsoever made.

17. Commission agrees to indemnify and save Company harmless from liability, damage or loss which Company may at any time incur on account of any patent infringement resulting from the installation or proper use of any device or appurtenance; Provided, however, that Commission shall not be responsible for any liability, damage or loss to Company on account of any patent infringement occurring from a use of any device or appurtenance not in accordance with the use for which it was designed, or from the installation or use of any improvement, addition, device or appurtenance in connection with the demised property which shall have been made at the request of Company.

18. Company, keeping and performing the covenants herein contained upon its part to be kept and performed, shall and may at all times and from time to time peacefully and quietly have, hold, use and enjoy the demised property without any manner of let, suit, trouble or hindrance from the Commission, except as otherwise provided in this Indenture.

19. Upon the termination of this Indenture for any cause whatsoever, Commission shall have the right to re-enter upon and take over the demised property, together with all improvements, additions and replacements by whomsoever made; provided, however, that Company may remove from the demised property all movable property owned by it.

20. (a) If, in case of any default by Company in carrying out the covenants and provisions of this Indenture, it shall, in the judgment of Commission, be necessary for the protection of the rights, interests and estate of Commission in the demised property, to commence proceedings in ejectment, or other action in law or equity, for the whole or any part of the demised property, it shall be competent for any attorney or attorneys of any court of record of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and/or the State of New Jersey, to appear on behalf of Company, for which this or a copy hereof shall be his sufficient warrant, and confess judgment in such ejectment or other proceedings, and thereupon a writ of haberi facias possessionem may forthwith issue. Company further hereby authorizes and empowers any attorney of any court of record of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to appear for it and confess judgment for rent hereunder which remains unpaid for the space of sixty (60) days after it shall have become due and payable; and does hereby voluntarily condemn any real estate that may be levied upon to collect said judgments and authorizes the Prothonotary to enter upon the Fi. Fa. said voluntary condemnation, and does further agree that said estate may be sold on a Fi. Fa. and does hereby waive and release all relief from any and all appraisement, stay or exemption laws of any State now in force or hereafter to be passed.

(b) Each of such remedies shall be in addition to any other remedy and may be exercised from time to time as often and in such order as may be deemed expedient by Commission, and the exercise or the beginning of the exercise of one remedy shall not be deemed a waiver of the right to exercise at the same time or thereafter the same or any other remedy, except that no two inconsistent remedies shall be exercised at the same time.

(c) All the rights and remedies enumerated in the foregoing Subsections 20 (a) and (b) shall accrue and be available to Commission in the event of the exercise of the right of re-entry and upon re-possession of its property by any of the corporations which prior to the date of this Indenture have leased to Company, any part of the other railway lines operated by Company.

21. Except as hereinafter provided, neither this Indenture nor any right or property granted or demised to Company herein shall be transferred, assigned, sublet, mortgaged or encumbered by Company in any way, without the consent of Commission; provided that this clause is, however, subject to the provisions of Section 12 of this Indenture; any such transfer, assignment, mortgage or encumbrance by Company, without Commissioner's consent, shall constitute a default by Company of the covenants and provisions of this Indenture which shall cause all the rights and remedies herein reserved to Commission, in cases of default, to become immediately available to Commission. The appointment of a Receiver for Company by any court shall not be deemed a transfer or assignment within the meaning of this section; but should a Receiver or Receivers be so appointed then all the provisions of this Indenture, including Commission's right of termination hereof and Commission's right to re-enter for non-payment of rent shall remain operative against such Receiver or Receivers. Should Company or said Receiver or Receivers omit or fail to pay the rental hereby reserved, or any part thereof, for ninety (90) days after the same shall become due and payable, then and in that event Commission may at its option declare this Indenture to be terminated, and at the expiration of thirty (30) days after written notice of such termination shall have been given to the Receiver or Receivers, or to the Company, this lease shall cease, end and determine, and Commission may thereupon re-enter upon and repossess the demised property. Company shall have the right to assign this Indenture and all rights and property granted and demised to Company hereunder to a subsidiary of Company formed for the purpose of operating the Bridge Line. No assignment of this lease, or of any of the rights or privileges herein granted, shall in any way diminish the primary obligation and liability of Company to perform all the obligations of this lease; its obligations hereunder shall in no respect be diminished or impaired by any such assignment, but it shall remain liable jointly and severally with such assignee or coventeee for the performance of all the obligations hereof to the same extent as if no assignment, sub-lease or contract had been made by it. In any case in which an assignment of this lease shall be made, written notice thereof giving the name of the assignee and a copy of the assignment shall be filed by Company with Commission and with the Mayor of the City of Philadelphia before such assignee shall acquire any rights under this lease.

22. Commission recognizes and agrees that the terms, conditions and covenants contained in the agreement between Commission and the City of Philadelphia dated December 22, 1933, which said City therein bound itself, in favor of Commission, to extend to said City's lessee of the Eighth Street Subway have been so extended, adequately and completely, in the agreement of lease of said City's subways to Company which is effective beginning with July 1, 1933.

23. It is understood and agreed that this Indenture shall, before becoming effective, be approved by an ordinance of Council of the City of Philadelphia.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF each of the parties hereto has caused these presents to be duly executed and its corporate seal to be hereto affixed and duly attested, as of the day and year first above written.

APPENDIX "E"

LOAN AND GRANT AGREEMENT

WHEREAS, under and by virtue of a certain agreement dated July 1, 1931, entered into between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey duly authorized by the Act of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania of June 12, 1931 (P. L. 575), and by the Act of the State of New Jersey (Chapter 391 Laws of New Jersey 1931) approved June 30, 1931, the Delaware River Joint Commission was created to constitute the public corporate instrumentality of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey for the purposes, inter alia, of

> The operation and maintenance of the bridge owned jointly by the two States and the City of Philadelphia, as its interests may appear, across the Delaware River between the City of Philadelphia in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the City of Camden, in the State of New Jersey, including its approaches, and the making of additions and improvements thereto;
> The effectuation, establishment, construction, operation, and maintenance of railroad or other facilities for the transportation of passengers across the said bridge, including extensions thereof to the vicinity of Race Street and Eighth Street in the City of Philadelphia and to the vicinity of Carman Street and Haddon Avenue in the City of Camden;

AND WHEREAS, under the terms of said agreement there was vested in the said Commission the power, inter alia, to borrow money upon its bonds or other obligations either with or without security, and

WHEREAS, the said Commission proposes to construct, operate and maintain a high-speed electric rail transit line across the said bridge including extensions thereof to Race Street and Eighth Street in the City of Philadelphia and to the vicinity of Carman Street and Haddon Avenue in the City of Camden, and has applied to the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works for a loan and grant not to exceed $11,900,000 to cover the cost of constructing the said transit line,

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Commission enter into an Agreement with the United States of America upon the following terms and conditions and that the Agreement be executed on behalf of the Commission by its Chairman, Gifford Pinchot or its Vice-Chairman, John B. Kates and by the Secretary, Joseph K. Costello:

> LOAN AGREEMENT dated as of May 4, 1934 between THE DELAWARE RIVER JOINT COMMISSION (herein called the "Borrower"), and the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA (herein called the "Government").

PART ONE

General Provisions

1. Amount of Loan and Grant, Purchase Price and Purpose. Subject to the terms and conditions of this Agreement, the Borrower will sell and the Government will purchase $10,000,000 aggregate amount of the bonds (herein called the "Bonds") of the Borrower, being part of an authorized issue of $41,000,000, (herein called the "Issue") at a price, to be fixed as of the date of payment for and delivery of the Bonds or any block thereof, to yield approximately 4 per centum per annum to maturity upon the amount paid, exclusive of accrued interest; and, in addition to the amount of Bonds to be purchased, the Government will make a grant (herein called the "Grant") to the Borrow of 30 per centum of the cost of the labor, and materials employed upon the Project hereinafter referred to; provided, that the total amount (exclusive of accrued interest) paid by the Government for the Bonds, together with the Grant and any other funds (herein called "Other Funds") received directly or indirectly from the Government or any agency or instrumentality thereof to be used to aid in financing the construction of the Project, shall not exceed in aggregate amount the total cost of the Project, and in no event shall such aggregate amount exceed $11,900,000 (except for such payment, if any, as may be made under the provisions of Paragraph 11, PART TWO hereof), the proceeds derived from the sale of the Bonds and the amount paid on account of the Grant to be used for the construction by the Borrower of a high-speed electric rail transit line across the Delaware River (Philadelphia-Camden) Bridge with subway extensions in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and Camden, New Jersey (herein called the "Project"), and for incidental purposes, (said Delaware River Bridge, including all additions and improvements thereto, replacements thereof and facilities thereon subsequently constructed or acquired, and including the Project, being herein called the "System"); all pursuant to the Borrower's application (herein called the "Application"), P. W. A. Docket No. 1293, the proceedings authorizing the issuance of the Bonds, Title II of the National Industrial Recovery Act (herein called the "Act"), approved June 16, 1933, and the Constitution and Statutes of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey including particularly:

> Act No. 200, Laws of Pennsylvania, 1931
> Chapter 391, Laws of New Jersey, 1931
> Agreement between Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and State of New Jersey dated July 1, 1931

1955	12,756—13,000	245,000

(h) Security. Direct and general obligations of the Borrower, further secured by the revenues of the System remaining after providing for the expenses of maintenance and operation thereof

The revenues so remaining are irrevocably pledged for, and shall be applied to the payment of the principal of the bonds of the Issue as they mature or are called for redemption, and the interest thereon as it falls due, to the extent and in the manner herein provided.

(i) Place and Medium of Payment. At the principal offices of the Real Estate-Land Title and Trust Company of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in such funds as are, on the respective dates of payment of the principal of and interest on the Bonds, legal tender for debts due the United States of America.

(j) Denomination. $1,000.

3. Form, Text and Sample of Bond. The Bonds shall be in form and text satisfactory to the Legal Division of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works, (herein called "Counsel for the Government"). The Borrower shall submit a sample or specimen bond (with coupons) for approval by Counsel for the Government.

4. Method of Purchase of Bonds. The Bonds shall be purchased in blocks from time to time as funds are needed for the Project, or the entire amount thereof may be purchased by the Government at one time, in the discretion of the Finance Division of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works (herein called the "Finance Division").

5. Amount of Bonds to be Purchased. The Government shall be under no obligation to purchase Bonds beyond the amount which, together with the amount to be paid to the Borrower on account of the Grant pursuant to Paragraphs 8 and 10, PART TWO hereof, and other funds, shall be necessary, in the judgment of the Engineering Division of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works (herein called the "Engineering Division") to provide sufficient funds to enable the Borrower to complete the Project. In case any of the Bonds are sold to purchasers other than the Government, the principal amount of Bonds which the Government is obliged to purchase shall be correspondingly reduced. All of the Bonds not sold at the time the Project is completed shall be cancelled and no additional bonds shall be issued in lieu thereof. Such Bonds, when cancelled, shall be exhibited to the Government for recording.

6. Deposit of Bond Proceeds and Grant. The Borrower will pay all accrued interest which it receives from the sale of the Bonds (and any payment which may be made on account of the Grant under the provisions of Paragraph 11, PART TWO hereof), into the Sinking Fund provided for in Paragraph 10, PART ONE, hereof. It will deposit the remaining proceeds from the sale of the Bonds (whether sold to the Government or to others) and any payments made on account of the Grant pursuant to Paragraphs 9 and 10, PART TWO hereof, in a bank or banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System, in a special account or accounts each of such special accounts to be continuously secured by a pledge to the Borrower of direct obligations of the United States of America having an aggregate market value, exclusive of accrued interest, at all times at least equal to the balance on deposit in each such account. Such securities will either be deposited with the Borrower or be held by a trustee or agent satisfactory to the Finance Division, provided that the trust or agency agreement is satisfactory to Counsel for the Government. Provided, however, that at the option of the Finance Division such special account or accounts may be secured by a surety bond or bonds which shall be in form, sufficiency and substance satisfactory to Counsel for the Government.

7. Disbursement of Funds in Special Accounts. The Borrower will expend the funds in such special account or accounts only for such purposes as shall have been previously specified in certificates accompanying the requisitions for such funds filed with the Government and approved by Counsel for the Government. Any balance or balances remaining unexpended in such special account or accounts after the completion of the Project and which are not required to meet unpaid obligations incurred in connection with the construction of the Project shall be paid into the Sinking Fund provided for in Paragraph 10, PART ONE, hereof, and, together with the accrued interest aforesaid, shall be used for the payment of the interest on and the principal of the Issue, or said unexpended balance or balances may be used for the purchase of bonds of the Issue then outstanding at a price (exclusive of accrued interest) not exceeding 105 per centum of the principal amount thereof. Any bonds so purchased shall be cancelled and no additional bonds shall be issued in lieu thereof.

8. Tolls and Fares. The Borrower will establish such tolls, fares and charges as may be necessary to insure sufficient revenues to meet the expenses of operation and maintenance of the System, and to make provision for the payment of interest on the bonds of the Issue, and the principal thereof on their respective dates of maturity, unless and until provision shall have been made for the payment of said bonds and the interest thereon in full; and in the event said revenues are insufficient for said purpose, the Borrower will make good any deficiency in said revenues out of any other money, property or revenues of the Borrower.

9. Allocation of Revenues. The Revenues of the System are pledged and shall be applied to the following uses in the order stated:

(a) Payment of reasonable expenses of maintenance and operation;
(b) Payments into the Sinking Fund as provided by Paragraph 10, PART ONE, hereof;
(c) Payment of interest on the Issue as the same falls due;
(d) Payments into the Surplus Fund as provided by Paragraph 11, PART ONE, hereof.

All of the bonds of the Issue shall rank pari passu regardless of the time or times of their issuance, and shall be entitled to no priority one over the other with respect to the application of the revenues of the System to the extent that said revenues are pledged to the foregoing uses.

In the event that the revenues of the System during any one year exceed the amount necessary for the payments required by this paragraph, then, upon such payments being made, the aforesaid pledge of the revenues of the System shall be and become inoperative and of no effect as to the remaining revenues for the then current year.

10. Sinking Fund. The Borrower will establish, and so long as the bonds of the Issue, or any of them, remain outstanding and unpaid, will separately maintain a sinking fund known as the "Delaware River Joint Commission Philadelphia-Camden Bridge Sinking Fund" (herein called the "Sinking Fund"), into which payments shall be made, during each year commencing September 1st, out of the revenues from the System, or from other sources, including interest on moneys in said Sinking Fund, as follows:

Year Beginning	Amount	Year Beginning	Amount
September 1, 1933	$200,000	September 1, 1953	$1,000,000
1934	200,000	1954	1,000,000
1935	200,000	1955	1,000,000
1936	250,000	1956	1,000,000
1937	250,000	1957	1,500,000
1938	250,000	1958	1,500,000
1939	300,000	1959	1,500,000
1940	350,000	1960	1,500,000
1941	500,000	1961	1,500,000
1942	500,000	1962	1,500,000
1943	600,000	1963	1,500,000
1944	700,000	1964	1,500,000
1945	800,000	1965	1,500,000
1946	900,000	1966	1,500,000
1947	1,000,000	1967	2,000,000
1948	1,000,000	1968	2,000,000
1949	1,000,000	1969	2,000,000
1950	1,000,000	1970	2,000,000
1951	1,000,000	1971	2,000,000
1952	1,000,000	Total	$41,000,000

In addition to the foregoing, in the event that on any September 1, the total cash and securities (taken at market value) in the Sinking Fund shall be less than the difference between the aggregate amount herein provided to be paid into said Sinking Fund during the preceding years and the aggregate payments theretofore properly made from the Sinking Fund on account of the principal of bonds of the Issue, the Borrower shall, during the year commencing on such September 1, pay into the Sinking Fund, in addition to the amount hereinabove provided to be paid during such year, an amount equal to such deficiency.

11. Payments from Sinking Fund. The Sinking Fund shall be used solely for the payment of the principal of the bonds of the Issue as they mature or are called for redemption, and the interest thereon as it falls due; provided, however, that no interest shall be paid out of the Sinking Fund except to the extent that the revenues of the System for the then current year after payment into the Sinking Fund of the amount required by Paragraph 10, PART ONE hereof, shall be insufficient for the payment of such interest, and then only in case and to the extent, if any, that the Surplus Fund provided for in Paragraph 13, PART ONE hereof, shall be insufficient to make up such deficiency in current revenues.

12. Investment of Sinking Fund. The moneys in the Sinking Fund may be invested by the Borrower only in bonds or other obligations of the United States of America, of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, of the State of New Jersey, or in bonds of the Issue, at not exceeding the current market prices of such securities, except that bonds of the issue may be redeemed as hereinafter provided.

13. Surplus Fund. The Borrower will establish and so long as any bonds of the Issue remain outstanding and unpaid, shall separately maintain a surplus fund known as the "Delaware River Joint Commission Philadelphia-Camden Bridge Surplus Fund." The Borrower covenants to pay into said Surplus Fund in each year an amount equal to 80 per centum of the revenues of the System remaining after providing for the expense of maintenance and operation thereof and after the payment of Sinking Fund and interest charges for such year as herein provided, until the principal amount of bonds of the Issue outstanding less the amount of cash and deposits and the market value of securities held for said Surplus Fund shall be $20,000,000, or less, from and after which time the Borrower shall not be required to make any further payments into said Fund. Said Surplus Fund including interest earned thereon shall be invested by the Commission solely in bonds or other obligations of the United States, of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, of the State of New Jersey, or in bonds of the Issue, provided, however, that not in excess of $500,000 of said Surplus Fund may be kept on deposit in banks or trust companies in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or the State of New Jersey, secured to the full amount of such deposit by bonds or other obligations of the United States, of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, of the State of New Jersey, or of the Borrower, or by surety bonds. The Borrower will use and apply said Surplus Fund, including interest earned thereon for the following purposes only:

(1) In any year in which the revenues of the System remaining after providing for the expense of maintenance and operation thereof, are insufficient in whole or in part for the payment of Sinking Fund and interest charges for such year as herein provided, an amount of said Surplus Fund equal to such deficiency shall be used and applied for the payment of such Sinking Fund and interest charges.

(2) So long as there shall remain in said Surplus Fund an amount, represented by cash or deposits or obligations of the United States taken at their market value, equal to $2,000,000 or more, the balance of said Surplus Fund or any part thereof may be applied to the redemption of bonds of the Issue in the manner provided herein and in the bonds.

14. Redemption of Bonds. The Bonds shall be redeemable at the option of the Borrower on any interest payment date on or after September 1, 1943, at one hundred and five per centum (105%) of their face value and accrued interest to the date fixed for redemption.

15. Insurance.

(a) Insurance Against Loss or Damage. The Borrower will keep the suspended span of the Delaware River (Philadelphia-Camden) Bridge (the suspended span being hereby defined to mean all that part of said Bridge, and all structures and facilities thereupon, lying and extending between the anchorages thereof) insured in a responsible insurance company or companies against loss and/or damage under an "all risk coverage" policy or policies, which shall provide for the payment to the Borrower of the full amount of any and all loss and/or damage (in excess of $100,000) to said suspended span up to at least 80 per centum of the insurable value thereof. The proceeds of all such insurance policies shall be applied to the repair or replacement of the damaged property; if such proceeds are more than sufficient for such purpose, the balance remaining shall be paid into the Surplus Fund. If such proceeds shall be insufficient for such purpose, any deficiency may be supplied, first, out of the Surplus Fund and, second, out of any moneys in the Sinking Fund not required to pay bonds of the Issue theretofore called for redemption or to pay interest due on the next two ensuing interest payment dates. If the proceeds of such insurance, together with any amounts available from the Surplus Fund and/or from the Sinking Fund are insufficient for the full payment of the cost of such repair or replacement, and if the Borrower shall fail to supply such deficiency from other sources, then such proceeds and all revenues and other moneys in the Sinking Fund and Surplus Fund, and any other revenues and moneys held by the Borrower in trust for the Issue and not irrevocably allocated for some other purpose, shall be applied to the pro rata payment of the principal of and accrued interest on all outstanding bonds of the Issue unless the Government, being the holder of any of the bonds, shall otherwise direct or approve.

(b) Use and Occupancy Insurance. In consideration of the agreement of the Government to purchase the Bonds at a price in excess of the principal amount thereof plus accrued interest, the Borrower will keep the Delaware River (Philadelphia-Camden) Bridge and its approaches at all times insured for the benefit of the holders of all outstanding Bonds (said Bonds to be specified in the policies of such insurance by the numbers thereof) in a responsible insurance company or companies against loss, total or partial, of the use and occupancy thereof over a period of any one year or any lesser period (commencing on the first day of such loss or within 14 days thereafter), in such amount as will provide for payment in the case of total loss for one year (and a proportionate payment for partial loss and/or for a lesser period), of not less than the sum of

(1) Twenty-seven per centum of the amount required by Paragraph 10, PART ONE hereof, to be paid into the Sinking Fund during the twelve months' period commencing on the 1st day of September next following the date of loss, and

(2) One hundred ten per centum of the amount of interest on the Bonds to become due on the first and second interest dates next following the date of loss.

The policy or policies of such insurance shall be made payable to, and shall be delivered to, the Government or its nominee, and any proceeds of such policy or policies paid to the Government shall be held by the Government (or such nominee) for the benefit of the holders of all of the Bonds; provided that the Government may at any time in its discretion, upon notice to the Borrower, appoint a trust company in the City of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania or in the Borough of Manhattan, City and State of New York, as trustees to hold such policy or policies and to collect and receive the proceeds thereof for the benefit of the holders of the Bonds, and in such case such trustee shall be substituted for the Government as the beneficiary of such policy or policies and renewals thereof shall thereafter be made payable to and be delivered to said trustee. Said policy or policies shall permit no substitution of beneficiaries other than to a corporate trustee appointed by the Government hereunder. The proceeds of said use and occupancy insurance shall be applied by the Government or by such trustee as received, first, to the payment of all installments of interest on the Bonds then due and unpaid, second, to the payment of the principal of all Bonds then matured and unpaid and, third, to subsequent payments of interest and principal as the same fall due; all such payments to be made pro rata among the holders of all outstanding Bonds. The payment and application of the proceeds of such insurance as above provided shall not be deemed to be a discharge of the obligation of the Borrower to continue to pay interest on and principal of the Bonds as the same become due (except to the extent that such interest and principal shall have been paid from such insurance proceeds) and shall not affect the right of the holders of the Bonds thereafter to share in the revenues of the System equally with the remaining bonds of the issue (in the same proportion as if such insurance proceeds had not been applied to the payment of such principal and interest) until all the Bonds are retired. All Bonds and coupons retired from the proceeds of such insurance shall be delivered to the Borrower for cancellation.

(c) Cost of Insurance. All premiums and costs of the insurance required by this Paragraph shall be paid by the Borrower. The necessary cost of said "all risk coverage" insurance shall be considered a reasonable expense of maintenance and operation of the System and may be paid out of the revenues of the System pledged to such use as provided by Paragraph 9, PART ONE hereof. The cost of said use and occupancy insurance shall not be considered an expense of maintenance and operation, and shall in no event be paid out of current revenues of the System until the payments from such revenues required by Paragraph 9, PART ONE hereof shall have been made in full. After making the payments required by Paragraph 9, PART ONE hereof the Borrower will apply the remainder of the revenues of the System during each fiscal year, to the extent necessary, to the payment of the cost of said use and occupancy insurance, and such remainder of the revenues of the System is hereby pledged to such use.

In the event that the revenues of the system during any fiscal year are insufficient, after making the payments required by Paragraph 9, PART ONE hereof, for the payment of the cost of said use and occupancy insurance, the cost of such insurance (or any balance thereof) shall be paid by the Borrower out of its general funds.

PART TWO

1. Approval of Agreement. Within a reasonable time after the receipt of the Agreement, the Borrower shall adopt a resolution setting forth the Agreement in full, approving the same, and authorizing and directing the execution thereof by the official or officials designated to sign the same on the Borrower's behalf. Promptly thereupon, the Borrower shall cause such official or officials to sign the Agreement.

2. Preliminary Proceedings by Borrower. When the Agreement has been signed on behalf of the Borrower, the Borrower shall promptly:

(a) Send to the Government three signed counter-parts of the Agreement and two certified copies of the resolution adopted by the Borrower pursuant to Paragraph 1, PART TWO, hereof, together with two certified extracts of the minutes pertaining to its adoption and any papers, certificates and other documents which may be requested by Counsel for the Government;

(b) Retain municipal bond counsel satisfactory to the Finance Division to assist the Borrower in the proceedings relative to the authorization, issuance and sale of the Bonds, and to give such legal opinions relative thereto as may be requested by Counsel for the Government;

(c) Submit to the Government plans, drawings, and specifications of the work and materials to be employed upon the Project; the latest data as to the expected cost of the Project; a statement as to when and how it is proposed to advertise for bids and to let contracts for the work; a statement as to when and how it is proposed to acquire the necessary lands, easements, franchises, and rights-of-way; an estimate as to the amount of money that will be needed at the time of the sale of the Bonds; and any other details or data that may be requested by the Engineering Division;

(d) Submit to the Government all such authorizations, permits, licenses and approvals from Federal, State, County, municipal and other authorities as Counsel for the Government may deem advisable then to be obtained in connection with the Project or the Bonds;

(e) Take all the proceedings necessary for the authorization and issuance of the Bonds.

3. First Bond Requisition. As soon as the provisions of Paragraph 2, PART TWO, hereof, shall have complied with to the satisfaction of Counsel for the Government, the Borrower will file with the Government a requisition requesting the Government to purchase such amount of the Bonds, as, together with Other Funds, will provide sufficient funds for the construction of the Project for a reasonable period (or, in the discretion of the Finance Division, a requisition to purchase the entire amount thereof at one time), specifying the principal amount, serial numbers and maturities (which maturities shall be satisfactory to the Finance Division) of the Bonds of such block and the date when it is desired to complete the delivery thereof (which date shall be not earlier than ten days after the Government's receipt of such first Bond requisition, unless otherwise satisfactory to Counsel for the Government), the first Bond requisition to be accompanied by a complete transcript of all bond proceedings to date, together with such certificates, forms, opinions, letters, statements and other documents as may be requested by Counsel for the Government.

4. First Bond Purchase. If the first Bond requisition and the documents accompanying the same are satisfactory in form, sufficiency and substance to Counsel for the Government, then, subject to the terms and conditions of this Agreement, upon reasonable notice to the Borrower, and within a reasonable time after the receipt by the Government of the first Bond Requisition, the Government will arrange to purchase such amount of the Bonds, as, together with Other Funds, will provide, in the judgment of the Engineering Division, sufficient funds for the construction of the Project for a reasonable period, or, in the judgment of the Finance Division, the entire amount of the Bonds, payment for the first block of Bonds to be made at the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania (herein called the "Reserve Bank"), or at such other place or places as Counsel for the Government may designate, against delivery by the Borrower of such Bonds, (having all unmatured coupons attached), together with such documents as may be requested by and which shall be in form, sufficiency and substance as theretofore approved by Counsel for the Government.

5. Subsequent Bond Requisitions. Unless all of the Bonds shall have been previously purchased, from time to time after the first Bond payment, but not oftener than once a month, (unless otherwise satisfactory to the Engineering Division), the Borrower will file a requisition with the Government requesting the Government to purchase an additional block of the Bonds of such amount, as, together with Other Funds, and such portion, if any, of the Grant, requested simultaneously with such Bond requisition, will provide sufficient funds for the construction of the Project for a reasonable period, specifying the principal amount, serial numbers and maturities, (which maturities shall be satisfactory to the Finance Division), of the Bonds included in such block and the date when it is desired to complete the delivery thereof, (which date shall be not earlier than ten days after the Government's receipt of such Bond requisition, unless otherwise satisfactory to Counsel for the Government), each Bond requisition to be accompanied by such documents as may be requested by Counsel for the Government.

6. Subsequent Bond Purchases. If a Bond requisition and the documents accompanying the same are satisfactory in form, sufficiency and substance to Counsel for the Government, then, subject to the terms and conditions of this Agreement, upon reasonable notice to the Borrower, and within a reasonable time after the receipt by the Government of such Bond requisition, the Government will arrange to purchase such additional amount of the Bonds as, together with Other Funds, and such portion, if any, of the Grant, paid simultaneously with the payment for such amount of the Bonds, will provide, in the judgment of the Engineering Division, sufficient funds for the construction of the Project for a reasonable period, payment for each block of Bonds to be made at the Reserve Bank or at such other place or places as Counsel for the Government may designate, against delivery of such block of Bonds, (having all unmatured coupons attached), together with such documents as may be requested by and which shall be in form, sufficiency and substance as theretofore approved by Counsel for the Government.

7. Grant Requisitions. The Borrower may at any time after the execution of this Agreement but not oftener than once a week, file a requisition requesting the Government to make a payment to the Borrower on account of the Grant, each Grant requisition to be accompanied by such documents as may be requested by Counsel for the Government.

8. Grant Payments. If a Grant requisition and the documents accompanying the same are satisfactory in form, sufficiency and substance to Counsel for the Government, then, subject to the terms and conditions of this Agreement, upon reasonable notice to the Borrower, and within a reasonable time after the receipt by the Government of such Grant requisition (but not earlier than ten days after the receipt thereof, unless otherwise satisfactory to Counsel for the Government), the Government will pay to the Borrower a sum of money, which, together with all previous Grant payments, and Other Funds, shall be equal in aggregate amount to 25 per centum of the cost of the labor and materials shown to have been employed upon the Project to a date not later than the date of such Grant requisition; provided, however, that such Grant payment, together with all previous Grant payments, Other Funds, and the amount (exclusive of accrued interest) paid for the Bonds shall not exceed in aggregate amount the total cost of the Project, nor shall such aggregate amount exceed $11,900,000; each Grant payment to be made at the Reserve Bank or at such other place or places as Counsel for the Government may designate, against delivery by the Borrower of its receipt therefor. Wherever the expression "cost of labor and materials" is used in this Agreement, such expression shall mean such cost as determined by the Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works (herein called the "Administrator"). The Administrator's determination of such cost shall be final.

9. Final Grant Requisition. Within a reasonable time after the Project has been completed and all costs incurred in connection therewith have been determined, the Borrower may file a requisition with the Government requesting the Government for the final portion of the Grant, the final Grant requisition to be accompanied by such documents as may be requested by Counsel for the Government.

10. 10. Final Grant Payment. If the final Grant requisition and the documents accompanying the same are satisfactory in form, sufficiency and substance to Counsel for the Government, then, subject to the terms and conditions of this Agreement, upon reasonable notice to the Borrower, and within a reasonable time after the receipt by the Government of the final Grant requisition (but not earlier than ten days after the receipt thereof, unless otherwise satisfactory to Counsl for the Government), the Government will pay to the Borrower a sum of money, which, together with all previous Grant payments, and Other Funds, shall be equal in aggregate amount to 30 per centum of the cost (as approved by the Engineering Division) of the labor and materials employed upon the Project; provided, however, that the final Grant payment, together with all previous Grant payments, Other Funds, and the amount (exclusive of accrued interest) paid for the Bonds shall not exceed in aggregate amount the total cost of the Project, nor shall such aggregate amount exceed $11,900,000; the final Grant payment to be made at the Reserve Bank or at such other place or places as Counsel for the Government may designate, against delivery by the Borrower of its receipt therefor and exhibition to the Government of all Bonds unsold, cancelled as required herein, for recording.

11. Cancellation of Bonds. If the Borrower, within a reasonable time after the completion of the Project, shall have filed the final Grant requisition with the Government, and if the documents accompanying the same are satisfactory in form, sufficiency and substance to Counsel for the Government, then, in addition to the Grant payments made pursuant to Paragraphs 8 and 10, PART TWO hereof, the Government will cancel, in so far as possible and in such order as may be satisfactory to the Finance Division, Bonds and/or coupons of an aggregate value equal to the amount, if any, by which 30 per centum of the cost of the labor and materials employed upon the Project exceeds the aggregate of all such Grant payments and Other Funds; and for such reasonable time and to this end, the Government will hold Bonds in the amount necessary to effectuate the purpose and intent of this Paragraph, unless payment of such excess shall have been otherwise provided for by the Government. The "value" of any Bond cancelled pursuant to the provisions of this Paragraph shall be deemed to be the sum which, if paid for such Bond on the date of cancellation, would yield 4 per centum per annum to maturity, plus accrued interest to date of cancellation.

PART THREE

Construction Contracts

In Consideration of the Grant, the Borrower Covenants That:

1. Construction Contracts. All construction contracts made by the Borrower and all subcontracts for work on the Project shall be subject to the rules and regulations adopted by the Government to carry out the purposes and control the administration of the Act, and shall contain provisions appropriate to insure that:

(a) Convict Labor. No convict labor shall be employed on the Project, and no materials manufactured or produced by convict labor shall be used on the Project.

(b) 30-Hour Week. Except in executive, administrative and supervisory positions, so far as practicable and feasible in the judgment of the Government, no individual directly employed on the Project shall be permitted to work more than thirty hours in any one week, or, except in cases of emergency, on any Sundays or legal holidays; but in accordance with rules and regulations from time to time made by the Government, this provision shall be construed to permit working time lost because of inclement weather or unavoidable delays in any one week to be made up in the succeeding twenty days.

(c) Wages.

(1) All employees shall be paid just and reasonable wages which shall be compensation sufficient to provide, for the hours of labor as limited, a standard of living in decency and comfort;

(2) All contracts and subcontracts shall further prescribe such minimum wage rates for skilled and unskilled labor as may be determined by the Government and shall be subject to all rules and regulations which the Government may promulgate in connection therewith. Such minimum rates, if any, shall also be stated in all proposals of bids submitted including those of subcontractors; and a clearly legible statement of all wage rates to be paid the several classes of labor employed on the work shall be posted in a prominent and easily accessible place at the site of the work. All contractors shall keep a true and accurate record of the hours worked by and the wages paid to each employee and shall furnish the Government with sworn statements thereof on demand.

(3) All employees shall be paid in full not less often than once each week and in lawful money of the United States of America in the full amount accrued to each individual at the time of closing of the pay roll, which shall be at the latest date practicable prior to the date of payment, and there shall be no deductions on account of goods purchased, rent, or other obligations, but such obligations shall be subject to collection only by legal process.

(d) Labor Preferences. Preference shall be given, where they are qualified, to ex-service men with dependents, and then in the following order:

(1) To citizens of the United States and aliens who have declared their intention of becoming citizens, who are bona fide residents of the City of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and/or the County of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, or of the City of Camden, New Jersey and/or the County of Camden, New Jersey, and,

(2) To citizens of the United States and aliens who have declared their intention of becoming citizens, who are bona fide residents of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or of the State of New Jersey provided, that those preferences shall apply only where such labor is available and qualified to perform the work to which the employment relates.

(e) Employment Services. To the fullest extent possible, labor required for the Project and appropriate to be secured through employment services, shall be chosen from lists of qualified workers submitted by local employment agencies designated by the United States Employment Services, provided however, that organized labor, skilled and unskilled, shall not be required to register at such local employment agencies but shall be secured in the customary ways through recognized union locals. In the event, however, that qualified workers are not furnished by the union locals within 48 hours (Sundays and holidays excluded) after request is filed by the employer, such labor may be chosen from list of qualified workers submitted by local employment agencies designated by the United States Employment Service. In the selection of workers from lists prepared by such employment agencies and union locals, the labor preferences provided in Sub-Paragraph (d) supra, shall be observed in accordance with such rules and regulations as the Government may prescribe.

(f) Human Labor. In accordance with such rules and regulations as the Government may prescribe, the maximum of human labor shall be used in lieu of machinery wherever practicable and consistent with sound economy and public advantage; and to the extent that the work may be accomplished at no greater expense by human labor than by the use of machinery, and labor of requisite qualifications is available, such human labor shall be employed.

(g) Accident Prevention. Every construction contract for work on the Project shall contain an undertaking to comply with all applicable provisions of the laws and building and construction codes of the State, Territory, District and/or municipality in which the work is done and with any regulations for the protection of workers which may be promulgated by the Government.

(h) Compensation Insurance. Every construction contract for work on the Project shall contain a provision requiring the employer to furnish compensation insurance for injured workers and to give proof of such adequate insurance satisfactory to the Government.

(i) Persons Entitled to Benefits of Labor Provisions. Every person who performs the work of a laborer or of a mechanic on the Project, or any part thereof, shall be entitled to the benefits of the labor and wage provisions hereof, regardless of any contractual relationship between the contractor or subcontractor and such laborer or mechanic. There shall be no discrimination in the selection of labor on the ground of race, creed or color.

(j) Bonding of Contracts. Construction contracts shall be supported by adequate surety or other bonds or security satisfactory to the Government for the protection of labor and material men employed on the Project or any part thereof.

(k) Materials. So far as articles, materials, and supplies produced in the United States are concerned, only articles, materials and supplies produced under codes of fair competition adopted pursuant to the provisions of Title 1 of the Act, or under the President's Reemployment Agreement, shall be used in work on the Project, except when the Government determines that this requirement is not in the public interest or that the consequent cost is unreasonable. So far as feasible and practicable, and subject to the above, preference shall be given to the use of locally produced materials if such use does not involve higher cost, inferior quality or insufficient quantity, subject to the determination of the Government; but there shall be no requirement providing price differentiations for or restricting the used of materials to those produced within the Nation or State.

(l) Inspection and Records. The Government, through its authorized agents shall have the right to inspect all work as it progresses and shall have access to all pay rolls, records of personnel, invoices of materials, and other data relevant to the performance of the contract.

(m) Reports. Subject to such rules and regulations as the Government may prescribe, contractors and subcontractors shall make reports in triplicate to the Government monthly within five days after the close of each calendar month on forms to be furnished by the United States Department of Labor, which reports shall include the number of persons on their pay rolls, the aggregate amount of the pay rolls, the man hours worked, wage scales paid to various classes of labor and the total expenditures for materials. The contractors shall also furnish to the Government the names and addresses of all subcontractors at the earliest date practicable.

(n) Compliance with Title 1 of the Act. All contractors and subcontractors must comply with the conditions prescribed in Sections 7 (a) (1) and 7 (a) (2) of Title 1 of the Act.

2. Restriction as to Contractors. No contract shall be let to any contractor or subcontractor who has not signed and complied with the applicable approved code of fair competition adopted under Title 1 of the Act for the trade or industry or subdivision thereof concerned, or, if there be no such approved code, who has not signed and complied with the provisions of the President's Reemployment Agreement.

3. Termination for Breach. The Borrower will enforce compliance with all the provisions of this part of this Agreement, and, as to any work done by it in connection with the construction of the Project, will itself comply therewith. All construction contracts shall provide that if any such provisions are violated by any contractor or subcontractor, the Borrower may, with the approval of the Government, and shall at the request of the Government, terminate by written notice to the contractor or subcontractor the contract of such contractor or subcontractor, and have the right to take over the work and prosecute the same to completion by contract or otherwise and such contractor or subcontractor and his sureties shall be liable for any excess cost occasioned thereby and/or, if so requested by the Government, the Borrower shall withhold from such contractor or subcontractor so much of the compensation due to him as may be necessary to pay to laborers or mechanics the difference between the rate of wages required by the contract and the rate of wages actually paid to the laborers and mechanics.

4. Force Labor. Provided, however, that if prices in the bids are excessive, the Borrower reserves the right, anything in this Agreement to the contrary notwithstanding, to apply to the Government for permission to do all or any part of the Project by day labor, upon such conditions as the Government may impose, with the understanding that all provisions in this Agreement, including those relating to labor, wages, hours and recruitment, shall be observed.

PART FOUR

Miscellaneous Provisions

1. Construction of Project. Upon receiving payment for the first block of Bonds, the Borrower will promptly commence or cause to be commenced the construction of the Project and the Borrower will thereafter continue such construction or cause it to be continued to completion with all practicable dispatch, in an efficient and economical manner, at a reasonable cost, and in accordance with the provisions of this Agreement as to the labor and materials to be employed upon the Project, and the plans, drawings, specifications and construction contracts which, except for sub-contracts, shall be in form satisfactory to the Engineering Division, and in accordance with such engineering supervision and inspection as the Government or its representatives, may require. Except with the prior written consent of Counsel for the Government, no materials or equipment for the Project shall be purchased by the Borrower subject to any chattel mortgage or any conditional sale or title retention agreement.

2. Completion of Project. Upon the completion of the Project the Borrower will furnish to the Government a certificate of the Borrower's engineers, certifying to such completion, to the total cost of the Project and to such other matters as the Engineering Division may request, such certificate to be accompanied by such data as the Engineering Division may request.

3. Maintenance and Operation. The Borrower will maintain the System in good condition and operate the same in an efficient manner and at reasonable cost. The Borrower will fully perform all duties with reference to the System required by the Constitutions and Statutes of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and of the State of New Jersey, and by the Acts of Congress of the United States.

4. Mortgages, Liens, Sale, etc. So long as any of the Bonds are outstanding, the Borough will not sell, alienate, mortgage, pledge or otherwise encumber, or divest itself of control of the System or any part or facility thereof or any revenues therefrom; provided, however, that nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the Borrower from making contracts or leases for the use of the System, or any part thereof.

5. Accounts and Periodic Statements. The Borrower will keep proper books of records and accounts (separate from all other records and accounts) in which complete and correct entries shall be made of all transactions relating to the System. The Borrower will furnish to the Government so long as it holds any of the Bonds (and to any holder or purchased of 25 per centum in aggregate principal amount of Bonds at the time outstanding, at the written request of such holder or purchaser), not more than thirty days after the close of each six months fiscal period, complete operating and income statements of the System in reasonable detail covering such six months' period, and, not more than sixty days after the close of each fiscal year, complete financial statements of the System and the Borrower covering such fiscal year, certified by independent auditors.

6. Inspection. The holders of the Bonds shall have the right at all reasonable times to inspect the System and all records, accounts and data of the Borrower relating thereto.

7. Information. During the construction of the Project the Borrower will furnish to the Government all such information and data as the Engineering Division may request as to the construction, cost and progress of the work.

8. Conditions Precedent to the Government's Obligations. The Government shall be under no obligation to pay for any of the Bonds or to make any Grant:

(a) Cost of Project. If the Engineering Division shall not be satisfied that the Borrower will be able to construct the Project within the cost estimated at the time when the Application was approved by the Government, such estimated cost being the amount of $11,900,000, unless, in the event that additional funds appear to the Engineering Division to be necessary in order to pay in full the cost of the construction of the Project, the Finance Division shall be satisfied that the Borrower will be able to obtain such funds, as needed, through additional borrowing or otherwise, in a manner satisfactory to Counsel for the Government;

(b) Compliance. If the Borrower shall not have complied, to the satisfaction of Counsel for the Government, with all the provisions contained or referred to in this Agreement and in the proceedings authorizing the issuance of the Bonds, theretofore to be complied with by the Borrower;

(c) Legal Matters. If Counsel for the Government shall not be satisfied as to all legal matters and proceedings affecting the Bonds, the security therefor or the Project;

(d) Representations. If any representation made by the Borrower in this Agreement or in the Application or in any supplement thereto or amendment thereof, or in any document submitted to the Government by the Borrower shall be found by Counsel for the Government to be incorrect or incomplete in any material respect;

(e) Financial Condition. If, in the judgment of the Finance Division, the financial condition of the Borrower shall have changed unfavorably in a material degree from its condition as theretofore represented to the Government.

9. Representations and Warranties. The Borrower represents and warrants as follows:

(a) Authorizations. All necessary authorizations, permits, licenses and approvals from Federal, State, county, municipal and other authorities in connection with the Project or the Bonds have been or will be obtained;

(b) Litigation. No litigation or other proceedings are now pending or threatened which might adversely affect the Bonds, the construction and operation of the Project, or the financial condition of the Borrower;

(c) Financial Condition. The character of the assets and the financial condition of the Borrower are as favorable as at the date of the Borrower's most recent financial statement, furnished to the Government as a part of the Application, and there have been no changes in the character of its assets or in its financial condition except such changes as necessary and incidental to the ordinary and usual conduct of the Borrower's affairs;

(d) Fees and Commissions. No fee or commission has been or will be paid by the Borrower or any of its officers, employees, agents or representatives, and no agreement to pay a fee or commission has been or will be entered into by or on behalf of the Borrower, or any of its officers, employees, agents or representatives, in order to secure the loan and/or Grant hereunder;

(e) Affirmation. Every statement contained in this Agreement, in the Borrower's Application, and in any supplement thereto or amendment thereof, and in any other document submitted or to be submitted to the Government by or on behalf of the Borrower is, or when so submitted will be, correct and complete and no relevant fact materially affecting the Bonds, the Grant, the Project, the System or the obligations of the Borrower under this Agreement has been or will be omitted therefrom.

10. Use of Government's Name. Without the prior written consent of the Government, the Borrower will not refer to this Agreement or to any purchase by the Government of the Bonds as an inducement for the purchase of any securities (including Bonds repurchased from the Government) of the Borrower, and will not permit any purchaser from it of any such securities to do so.

11. Sale of Bonds by the Government. The Borrower will take all such steps as the Government may reasonably request to aid in the sale by the Government of any or all of the Bonds. Upon request, the Borrower will furnish to the Government or to any purchaser from the Government of 25 per centum of the Bonds, information for the preparation of a bond circular in customary form, signed by the proper official of the Borrower, containing such data as the Government or such purchaser may reasonably request concerning the Borrower and the Project and the System.

12. Expenses. The Government shall be under no obligation to pay any costs, charges or expenses incident to compliance with any of the duties or obligations of the Borrower under this Agreement including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the cost of preparing, executing or delivering the Bonds or obtaining any legal opinions requested by Counsel for the Government.

13. Supplemental Documents. The Borrower will furnish to the Government such supplemental documents as Counsel for the Government may request in connection with the Bonds, the Grant, the Project, the System or the obligations of the Borrower under this Agreement.

14. Waiver. Any provision of this Agreement may be waived or amended with the consent of the Borrower and the written approval of the Engineering Division, Finance Division, and Counsel for the Government, without the execution of a new or supplemental agreement, if, in the opinion of Counsel for the Government, which shall be conclusive, such waiver or amendment does not substantially vary the terms of this Agreement. No waiver by the Government of any such provision shall constitute a waiver thereof as applied to any subsequent obligation of the Borrower or the Government under this Agreement.

15. Agreement Not for the Benefit of Third Parties. This Agreement is not for the benefit of any person or corporation other than the parties hereto, their respective assigns or the successors of the Borrower, and neither the holders of the Bonds nor any other person or corporation, except the parties hereto, their respective assigns or the successors of the Borrower, shall have any rights or interest in or under this Agreement, except as expressly provided for herein.

16. Interest of Member of Congress. No member of or delegate to the Congress of the United States of America shall be admitted to any share or part of this Agreement, or to any benefit to arise thereupon.

17. Validation. The Borrower hereby covenants that it will institute, prosecute and carry to completion insofar as it may be within the power of the Borrower, any and all acts and things to be performed or done to secure the enactment of legislation or to accomplish such other proceedings, judicial or otherwise, as may be necessary, appropriate or advisable to empower the Borrower to issue the Bonds and to remedy any defects, illegalities and irregularities in the proceedings of the Borrower relative to the issuance of the Bonds and to validate the same after the issuance thereof to the Government, if in the judgment of Counsel for the Government such action may be deemed necessary, appropriate or advisable. The Borrower further covenants that it will procure and furnish to the Government, as a condition precedent to the Government's obligations hereunder, letters from the Governors of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey in form satisfactory to Counsel for the Government expressing the covenant and agreement of said Governors respectively, to effectuate insofar as it is within their power the covenant of the Borrower as hereinabove in this Paragraph expressed.

18. Miscellaneous. This Agreement shall be binding upon the parties hereto when a copy thereof, duly executed by the Borrower and the Government, shall have been received by the Borrower. This Agreement shall be governed by and be construed in accordance with the laws of the District of Columbia. All obligations of the Borrower hereunder shall cease upon payment in full of all the Bonds.

19. Promotion of National Recovery. The Borrower covenants to discharge faithfully and with all possible dispatch the duties and obligations imposed upon it by this Agreement, it being the purpose of this Agreement to enable the Borrower to secure the benefits of the Act, foster employment, promote the public welfare and thereby assist in the recovery program of the President of the United States.

20. Rescission of Prior Agreements. The Loan Agreement between the Borrower and the Government executed on behalf of both parties as of February 8, 1934, and the proposed Supplemental Agreement between the Borrower and the Government executed on behalf of the Borrower on April 13, 1934, are hereby rescinded and cancelled in their entirety.

21. Undue Delay by the Borrower. The Government shall have the right to rescind the allotment for the Project and annul any obligation to make a loan or a grant to the Borrower unless the Borrower shall within a reasonable time:

(a) Sign and return to the Government three counter-parts of this Agreement as provided in Paragraphs 1 and 2, PART TWO, hereof. (For the purposes of this sub-paragraph 21 (a) a reasonable time shall be deemed to be ten days in the ordinary course of events or such longer period as shall be allowed in the absolute discretion of The Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works);

(b) Comply with all the provisions of Paragraph 2, PART TWO, hereof, including particularly sub-paragraph (e) relating to the authorization and issuance of the Bonds;

(c) File requisitions with the Government in accordance with the provisions of Paragraphs 3 and 5, PART TWO, hereof; and

(d) Commence or cause to be commenced the construction of the Project.

The Administrator shall determine in his absolute discretion what constitutes a reasonable time within the meaning of this Paragraph 21.

22. Construction of Agreement. If any provision of this Agreement shall be invalid in whole or in part, to the extent that it is not invalid it shall be valid and effective and no such invalidity shall affect, in whole or in part, the validity and effectiveness of any other provision of this Agreement or the rights or obligations of the parties hereto, provided in the opinion of Counsel for the Government, the Agreement does not then violate the terms of the Act.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, th DELAWARE RIVER JOINT COMMISSION and the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA have respectively caused this Agreement to be duly executed as of the day and year first above written.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION TO STUDY THE BEST METHODS AND PREPARE A BILL FOR PERMANENT PERSONAL REGISTRATION FOR CITIES OF THE FIRST CLASS

To the General Assembly, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Session of 1935:

This commission was created under the authority of a concurrent resolution, adopted by the Senate and House of Representatives on December 21, 1933, which reads as follows:

"Whereas, Several bills have been introduced during the Extraordinary Session of one thousand nine hundred thirty-three concerning permanent registration in cities of the First Class; and

"Whereas, There is a great confusion as to the best methods for effective details that will preserve the purity of the ballot and secure to the citizens the right of suffrage; therefore be it

"Resolved (if the Senate concur), That a Commission shall be appointed composed of three members of the House of Representatives who shall be appointed by the Speaker and two Members of the Senate to be appointed by the President Pro Tempore to constitute a research body to study the best methods for permanent registration and to prepare a bill to be submitted to the one thousand nine hundred thirty-five Session of the Legislature for enactment into Law. Said Commission shall have power to examine into the books and records of the Registration Commission of Philadelphia and shall receive full cooperation from the members of the said Registration Commission in Order to effectuate the purposes of this Resolution; be it further

"Resolved, That all Members of this commission are to serve without compensation."

In accordance with the authority vested in him by said concurrent resolution, the Speaker of the House of Representatives appointed the undersigned, as the members of said commission. There were no members of the Senate appointed by the President Pro Tempore as members of the commission.

The commission has carefully studied the permanent personal registration acts for cities of the second class and for cities of the second class A, also the act in effect in Detroit, Michigan, and all the various bills on this subject which have been introduced in the last several sessions of the General Assembly, with the purpose in view of determining the system best suited to Philadelphia and to prepare a bill accordingly.

We have conducted several public hearings in order to secure the ideas and the sentiment of the many individuals, organizations and bodies of electors interested in preserving the purity of the ballot and securing an efficient and economical method of registration for the electors of Philadelphia.

After hearing from the Honorable Romain C. Hassrick, Honorable Thomas E. McDermott, Honorable Margaretta Morris Scott and the Honorable C. Burgess Taylor, members of the Philadelphia Registration Commission at the time of the hearings, Honorable Samuel B. Scott, a former Registration Commissioner and chairman of the Public Affairs Committee, Honorable Marie A. O'Connell, also a former Registration Commissioner, representing the Women's Democratic Committee, representatives of both the Republican and Democratic City Committees, the Committee of Seventy, the Young Voters League, the Civic Club, the Philadelphia League of Women's Voters, the Republican Women of Pennsylvania, the Business and Professional Women of Philadelphia, and many others, and from its own observations and studies, the Commission is firmly convinced that the sentiment of the citizenry of Philadelphia is overwhelmingly in favor of a system of permanent personal registration of voters.

While the considerable economies which will be inevitably effected by the system of permanent personal registration, as set up in the bill which is being submitted, are of great importance, the primary purpose thereof must be the convenience of the voters, the purging of the registered lists of voters, keeping such lists clean from year to year and preserving the purity of the ballot at all future elections. The Commission, however, feels that in view of the large saving to the tax payers of Philadelphia, which the bill, if enacted into law, would accomplish, it is justified in recommending an increase in the compensation to be paid to the commissioners for the additional time and labor which would be required of them under the system of permanent personal registration, as provided under this bill.

The Commission wishes to express its appreciation of the cordial assistance and enlightening testimony of the numerous individuals and representatives of the various civic bodies and organizations who attended the hearings and who otherwise assisted the Commission in its work. Special acknowledgment should be made to the Philadelphia City Council for its cooperation in furnishing facilities for the holding of our public meetings; and of the helpful and unfailing cooperation and courtesy of Miss Florence B. Fulton, former chief clerk of the Philadelphia Registration Commission, and of the advice, aid and skill of Marshall H. Morgan, Esq., of the Philadelphia Bar, who has acted as counsel to the Commission and has supervised the drafting of the bill which is herewith submitted for your consideration.

Respectfully submitted,

ARNOLD M. BLUMBERG, Chairman,
LOUIS SCHWARTZ,
PATRICK J. CAREY.

REPLY OF THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION TO HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 21

To the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania:

On January 21, 1935, your honorable body adopted Resolution No. 21 requesting the Public Service Commission to submit to the House the information it possesses on the question why the trolley fares of Philadelphia have not been reduced to pre-war levels. For the convenience of the House a copy of the resolution is attached as Appendix No. 1 to this reply. The present communication is in response to the request of the House.

The increase in the rates of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company to the so-called World War level occurred in 1920, when the Commission upon complaint of the City of Philadelphia (Complaint Docket No. 3504) forbade the abolition of all free transfers and in lieu thereof authorized temporarily, pending the completion of the proceeding and limited to a period of six months, the establishment of a seven-cent cash fare and a six-and-one-quarter-cent ticket in strips of four. This order, issued October 18, 1920, appears among the Commission's published opinions: City of Philadelphia v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 4 Pa. P.S.C. 801. A copy of it is attached as Appendix No. 2 hereto. This rate was subsequently continued by the company.

The final order in this same proceeding sustaining the temporary order was issued on June 21, 1923, and appears in the Commission's published opinions: City of Philadelphia v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 6 Pa. P.S.C. 431. A copy of it is attached as Appendix No. 3 hereto.

In a subsequent application by the trolley company (Application Docket No. 11,417) the Commission by order dated September 8, 1924, authorized temporarily, pending the completion of the proceeding, a base rate of 8 cents cash or two tokens for fifteen cents. This rate was continued indefinitely by the final order in that proceeding dated January 12, 1926, which appears in the published decisions of the Commission: Application of Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 7 Pa. P.S.C. 484. A copy of this order and the findings on which it was based is attached as Appendix No. 4 hereto.

The orders of the Commission permitting these two rate increases to go into effect were carried on appeal to the Superior Court of the Commonwealth. In each instance the decision of the Commission was affirmed. The findings of that Court, in the appeals to it appear among the published opinions: City of Philadelphia v. Public Service Commission, 83 Pa. Superior Ct. 8, and City of Philadelphia v. Public Service Commission, 84 Pa. Superior Ct. 135.

It may be noted from the findings attached as appendices hereto that the order of 1923 in the complaint case was the result of a detailed inventory and appraisal of the trolley property made by the engineers for the company and the city, presented to the Commission in the shape of over six thousand pages of oral testimony and more than twenty-one hundred pages of exhibits. A comparison of the company's and the city's estimates of the cost to reproduce the property new, together with the city's estimate of that cost less depreciation theretofore accrued, is attached as Appendix No. 5 hereto. In this appendix the several estimates are divided among the sveral property accounts as established by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The company's estimate of the cost to reconstruct the property was $252,729,742 and the city's was $189,265,781. The items in dispute which were of substantial amount were Paving, Interest During Construction, Interest During Early Years, Cost of Financing and Going Value. The conclusions of the Commission based on this record were that the then present fair value of the company's property was "substantially upwards of $200,000,000," and that the allowable annual gross revenue requirement was $47,686,000.

In the subsequent application proceeding the Commission found that due to the increase in operating expenses the amount remaining over for return on the fair value was less than the minimum of $14,000,000 contemplated in the prior complaint case.

In neither of these proceedings was any allowance made as an operating expense for payments made by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company as rentals to its underlying companies; in every instance these payments are deductible from what would otherwise be paid as dividends to the stockholders of the operating company.

A construction cost index by months for the period 1914 to date, as published in "Engineering News Record," a standard technical magazine, is attached as Appendix No. 6 hereto. It may be noted that this cost index is based largely on steel prices and on labor rates. Stated in terms of the year 1913 as 100, costs for the year 1919, when the appraisals were made, stand at 198.4, while for the year 1934, they stand at 197.6.

A series of graphs indicating the trend of reproduction costs from 1919 to date, as shown in United States Building Wages, United States Building Materials, Engineering News Record Construction Costs, and J. G. Brill Company's Cost of Cars are contained in Appendix No. 7 hereto.

Appendix No. 8 hereto shows as of substantially the present time the number of cars and buses, miles of track, repair shops, storage places, etc. in use. Appendix No. 9 hereto shows the number of miles of track in use by years.

Appendix No. 10 hereto sets forth the operating statistics of the surface, subway, elevated and trackless-trolley systems in detail for the years 1919 to 1934, inclusive. Appendix No. 11 hereto summarizes the number of revenue passengers for the same period, and Appendix No. 12 hereto the corresponding operating revenues, expenses, and operating income. Appendices Nos. 13, 14 and 15 hereto contain the corresponding figures for the bus service. The number of revenue passengers shown in these six tabulations was 717,517,172 in 1919. In 1934 it was 414,209,773 for the Rapid Transit Company and 27,043,360 for the Rural Transit Company (bus subsidiary) or a total for all lines, including the municipally owned subway-elevated system, of 441,253,133 revenue passengers. The shrinkage in the sixteen years is consequently 276,264,039 revenue passengers. The figures contained in these six tabulations are taken from the companies' annual reports on file with the Commission.

On Appendices Nos. 16 and 17 hereto are shown by graph and tabulation, respectively, the growth in the registration of privately owned motor vehicles yearly, compared with the decrease in the number of base fare and total revenue passengers of the transit system.

On April 1, 1934, numerous extensions were made in the scope of the free transfer and three-cent exchange privileges theretofore existing. No increase in the number of passengers carried is apparent in the revenue figures as a result of them.

Attached as Appendices Nos. 18 to 25, inclusive, are petitions filed by S. Davis Wilson on September 26, 1932, and again on April 6, 1934, asking the Commission to undertake a new valuation of the transit system, together with the answers of the company thereto, the informal answers of the City Solicitor of Philadelphia, and the reports of the Commission declining to comply with the request. The reports of the Commission also appear among its published opinions: Wilson v. Phila. Rapid Transit Co., 11 Pa. P.S.C. 621, and Wilson v. Phila. Rapid Transit Co., 12 Pa. P.S.C.——. It may be noted that the petitions (Appendices Nos. 18 and 22) are based on an appraisal by Hine, Goldthwaite and Mylott, placing the value of the system at $116,000,000, as of approximately January 1, 1931. The answers of the company (Appendices Nos. 19 and 23), while denying the accuracy of this calculation of the property value, emphasize the extent of the decrease in the total number of passengers carried. The answers of the City Solicitor refer to the fact that the city's defense in the former case cost it a quarter of a million dollars and state its inability to undertake such a defense again.

It may be noted from the revenue and expense figures shown in Appendices Nos. 12 and 15, already mentioned, that the companies' total operating revenue for the year 1934 was $33,024,051, as compared with the $47,686,000 contemplated in the formal rate case. Operating expenses, including cost of actual operations maintenance and renewal expense, taxes, and rentals of municipally owned property, but excluding rentals on property of underlying companies, were $25,465,368, as compared with $33,686,000 contemplated in the same rate case. The difference between the two 1934 figures, or $7,588,683, being the sum available for Rapid Transit Company security holders and for rental payments to underlying companies, would be a return at 6% on a value of $125,978,050. Insofar as the decrease in the operating expense charges for maintenance and renewals, shown in Appendices Nos. 10 and 13, may indicate that an inadequate sum has been expended or reserved during recent years for these costs of operation, the true amount available as a return and the true value on which a return was earned would be still less.

In the figures set forth above no consideration has been given to the property values and operating expenses of the taxicab subsidiaries of the transit company, for the reason that these facilities must be separately considered for rate making purposes. The losses sustained by the taxicab companies are not included in the operating expenses of the transit system.

At the present time the Commission has no suggestion to offer as to additional legislation upon the subject. As rates of fare must be predicated on a fair return on the fair value of the property of the company, we think that there is for the present adequate legislation along these lines.

However, we would point out that there is pending a proceeding in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania looking to the reorganization of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company under Section 77 B of the Federal Bankruptcy Act. On January 4, 1935, this Commission filed with the District Court a certificate setting forth that the public interest is affected by said plan of reorganization. Under the Bankruptcy Act, the Court may not make a final decree of approval until this Commission has passed upon the public interest and fairness of the plan.

In connection with the above reorganization proceedings, the Commission has felt that a valuation of the property of the Philadelphia transit system will be an essential prerequisite in connection with its ultimate approval of any plan of reorganization, and determination of the propriety of the issuance of securities, under The Public Service Company Law. Such a valuation will involve more than a mere appraisal of physical assets; it will properly go into the question of operating expenses in order to arrive at the net return which it will be proper for the system to receive upon the fair value ascertained.

As your Honorable Body knows, the valuation of so extensive a system involves accounting and engineering facilities greater than the Commission has at its disposal for its regular duties. When the valuation of the transit system was made heretofore, it took a period of three years and incurred a cost of $1,307,000 to the city and the company, exclusive of costs to the Commission and other parties.

The Commission included in its budget estimates for the next biennium a request for an increase of appropriation out of which would have to come the cost of such work as the contemplated valuation. We deem it proper to call this circumstance to the attention of your Honorable Body.

In considering the reorganization plan under which it is proposed to issue securities to the extent of $174,000,000, the fair value of the property will be ascertained.

RESOLUTION NO. 21

Mr. Sowers, in Place, January 21, 1935

In the House of Representatives, Jan. 21, 1935

Requesting The Public Service Commission for Information.

Whereas before the World's War the City of Philadelphia enjoyed five cent trolley fares with passes and transfers and

Whereas during the World's War probably on account of increased maintenance expenses etc the trolley fares in Philadelphia were raised to seven and one-half cents with less passes and transfers and

Whereas many years have elapsed since the close of the World's War and prices of commodities and other things have dropped and in many cases below that which existed before the World's War and a large percentage of the population of Philadelphia fail to understand what reasons exist for the trolley fares being continued at World War prices and

Therefore Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania is hereby requested to furnish to this House all information it possesses as to why the trolley fares of Philadelphia continue at seven and one-half cents per person instead of being reduced to the pre-war price of five cents per person and

Be It Further Resolved that the Public Service Commission is hereby requested to submit to this House any suggestion that it may have for the drafting of Legislation which will cause the trolley fares in Philadelphia to be reduced to the pre-war price of five cents with passes and transfers and

Application Docket No. 4037-1920

Application of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company for approval of the right of said company to file a tariff for a five cent fare, without transfers or exchange tickets, to become effective upon one day's notice.

Street railway companies' rates—Discrimination—Elimination of exchange tickets and free transfers.

The Commission found that the elimination of all exchange tickets and free transfers on respondent's system would result in a discrimination against certain sections of the city, and would impose upon a large number of the car-riders a burden which would not be fair and equitable.

The Commission sanctioned a seven cent cash fare and book tickets 4 for 25 cents for a period of six months pending a valuation of respondent's system.

REPORT AND ORDER OF THE COMMISSION

By the Commission:

On June 1, 1920, the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company filed a tariff providing for the elimination of free transfers and the extending of the three-cent exchange charge to all points in the city at which free transfers had theretofore been honored.

The Commission held a public hearing in Philadelphia, at which time the City of Philadelphia presented objections to this new schedule.

On the suggestion of the Commission, this tariff was voluntarily suspended and later, by order of the Commission, dated July 26, 1920, the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company was directed to make no change in its tariff, effective prior to July 1, 1920, until the Commission should take final action. The company later withdrew the tariff above referred to, and the Commission revoked its order of July 26, 1920, insofar as it related to the rates.

The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company then made application to the City Councils of Philadelphia to secure the consent of City Councils to a change in the rate of fare under the 1907 contract. This consent the City Councils did not give, and on October 4, 1920, the company filed a petition to be permitted to file a new schedule to become effective upon one day's notice, which schedule provided for the elimination of all exchange tickets and all free transfers and provided that a five-cent straight fare should be charged.

A number of hearings were held, considerable testimony was taken in connection with this petition and a very careful investigation of the matter was made by the Bureau of Engineering of the Public Service Commission.

After due consideration the Commission is convinced that to eliminate all exchange tickets and free transfers would result in a discrimination against certain sections of the city, and would impose upon a large number of the car riders a burden which would not be fair and equitable. The President of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company testified that the company has been unable to pay its employes the rate of wage agreed upon between the company and the employes, and that they voluntarily waived payment of the increased wages until such time that the revenues of the company could be increased to an extent that would warrant the payment of the increased wages. That the wages should be paid and that better service should be given by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company to the citizens of Philadelphia is beyond question. The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company has been directed to file with the Commission an inventory of its property, in order that the Commission may determine the fair value of its used and useful property as a basis for the proper, permanent rate base.

It will take several months to complete this valuation and the testimony shows that, unless the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company is given immediate relief, by having provision made for more revenue, the Company cannot continue to operate and it will suffer such financial embarrassment as to prevent it giving the proper service to the citizens of Philadelphia. This, in the opinion of the Commission, would be a catastrophe to the community at large, and the Commission is prepared to permit the company to file a new schedule which will provide more revenue, it being understood, however, that this is to be simply a temporary finding and that the Commission will not undertake to fix any permanent rate of fare until the valuation has been completed.

The Commission, therefore, makes the following order:

NOW, to-wit, October 18, 1920, the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company is directed to file with the Public Service Commission not later than October 29, 1920, a tariff schedule to become effective on November 1, 1920, and to remain in effect for the period of six months, unless the Commission shall direct a different rate of fare prior to that time, providing for a seven-cent cash fare and a six and one-quarter cent rate of fare where coupon tickets in blocks of four are purchased, which tickets shall be put on sale by the respondent at its offices and with its conductors, with the present transfer and exchange ticket privileges remaining in force, and to file with the Commission monthly reports of its receipts, expenditures and traffic data.

The Bureau of Engineering of the Public Service Commission, by direction of its chief engineer, shall, in association with the engineers of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and the engineers of the City of Philadelphia, make a thorough investigation looking to the improvement of the service rendered by the company, necessary extensions to the system and needed additional equipment to enable the company to give better service to the car riding public, and shall promptly submit to the Commission recommendations for the elimination of such skip stops as are unduly burdensome and dangerous to the public.

Complaint Docket No. 3504

Street railways—Valuation—Time of Confiscation.

That which is to be protected by the constitutional guarantee against confiscation is the present value of the property, that is, its value at the time of the inquiry, or more properly at the time the rates under consideration are to apply.

Factors in arriving at fair value.

The elements to be considered declared in Article V. Section 20 (a) of The Public Service Company Law. Ascertainment of fair value is not a matter of formulas; it is the exercise of sound and reasonable judgment upon consideration of relevant facts.

Properties of recent construction and those whose construction covers a long period of time require different treatment.

Original costs, reproduction estimates and cumulative investment discussed.

Items of cost like street paving required to be expended under franchise grants are protected as to original investment, but may not be increased to higher figures which present cost of paving would reach.

Interest during construction is properly included in valuation upon all accounts, except cost of financing, working capital, development costs and going concern value.

Loss of interest during early years or what may be termed "lag" in the development of patronage and earning power is properly included for a period of one year after completion of work. This is definitely recognized in the Constitutional Amendment of 1915, dealing with construction of transit facilities in the City of Philadelphia. The Commission makes this cautionary reference that "loss of interest during early years" is in reality one of the elements of "going concern value," and must not be duplicated in consideration of that item.

Accrued Depreciation—Going concern value.

In this case these items are considered together. From all the evidence a minimum of depreciation and maximum of going concern value is established, so that in physical valuation the net result would be to increase rather than diminish that amount.

Operating Expenses—Taxes—Property—Federal Income.

It was objected that certain items of taxes should not be considered, namely, the tax upon property the fee in which is owned by lessor companies, and the Federal income tax. As to the former, the Commission holds that it has never been questioned that property taxes are properly included in the operating budget of a company which owns the property it operates, and we see no reason for applying a different rule here. As to the Federal income tax, the Commission has heretofore uniformerly excluded it from operating costs, but in the light of recent decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States it is here allowed.

Rate Comparisons.

The respondent offered statistics as to rates in seven alleged comparable cities indicating revenue per passenger at 7.9 cents while in Philadelphia it is 6.6 cents. Tested by this standard the respondent's rates of fare are clearly not unreasonable or excessive. This view is supported by statistics compiled by the United States Department of Labor.

Conclusions.

1. It is unnecessary to arrive at a definite fair value of respondent's property—it is substantially upwards of $200,000,000.
2. The Commission will not interfere with budget of company showing operating expenses, so long as it continues its policy of improved service and high standard of maintenance.
3. That respondent has established its right to share in additional profits from economies and efficiencies in its operation.
4. Looking to future, that present fares and the revenues and credit they produce, will make possible further and continued improvements and expansions to meet needs of City.
5. That under all the facts respondent's rates of fare contained in its tariff No. 81, now in effect are neither unjust, unreasonable, nor under the evidence are they unduly discriminatory or unjustly preferential.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION

By the Commission:

This particular proceeding had its inception on June 1, 1920, when the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, hereinafter referred to as company or respondent, filed a tariff, P. S. C. Pa. No. 68, designed to effect an increase in its gross revenue through the abolition of free transfers and of certain exchange ticket privileges. The City protested against the alterations and increases of charges as contained in the tariff, and prayed for the valuation of the company's propery in connection with the determination of the general question. This tariff was subsequently withdrawn. Thereafter, on October 4, 1920, a petition was filed to put into effect a new tariff (A. 4037), but this the Commission refused, it having found that the proposed rates would be unreasonable and unjustly discriminatory. As it appeared, however, that the company needed a greater revenue, the Commission by an order entered October 18, 1920, directed the company to file a tariff providing for a seven cent cash fare, (four tickets for twenty-five cents), the transfer and exchange privileges to remain as theretofore. Throughout these various steps dealing with the rates of fare, the Commission reserved the matter of determining the value of the company's property and the order last referred to was an interim order pending such valuation, and in terms effective for six months from November first of that year. As the valuation had not been concluded at the expiration of the interim period, the company then posted, filed and published a tariff continuing the rates originally prescribed by the Commission and those rates are the new ones now in effect.

Prior to June 1, 1920, other complaints had been filed against the rates and revenues of the respondent company, and during the progress of the instant case complainants applied for leave and were permitted to, intervene. The whole rate and revenue inquiry has thus been brought before us, and the decision on which we now reach in this case will be applicable to and dispose of all proceedings pending before the Commission, involving the rates and revenues of the respondent company, and including thos filed prior of June 1, 1920.

The record now before us comprises more than six thousand pages of testimony and more than twenty-one hundred pages of exhibits, and contains elaborate data relative to valuation, return and operating expenses. It also contains detailed studies directed to the question of the reasonableness of the rates, based on comparisons, with charges for like service in similar cities and with the decreased purchasing power of the dollar. The intervening Civic bodies assisted the Commission by presenting evidence and arguments upon the questions involved.

The respondent at the argument raised for the first time the point that there had been no complaint filed against the present tariff and that, therefore, technically, the burden of proof rested upon the complainant city in the present proceeding. In the view of the Commission, in the light of all the testimony presented, this question is largely academic. A full and comprehensive investigation has been made, and evidence presented on the part of the complainant and respondent, with a view of determining what are the just and reasonable rates which the company may charge and the allowable gross revenue which the company may receive. So full and complete has been the testimony thus presented that the Commission is of the opinion that he case cannot and ought not turn on any narrow construction with respect to technical rules where here has been a full disclosure of all relevant facts necessary to reach a conclusion on the merits.

The character and history of the railway property and system operated by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company is a matter of record in these proceedings and is so well known to the public served that no extended description is here necessary. It is sufficient to point out that the company operates as lessee substantially all the urban transportation facilities in the City of Philadelphia, with important extensions to adjoining counties. The system in magnitude and general character is not to be compared with that of any other in the State. It comprises a total of more than 700 miles of track, of which 550 miles are located on paved streets, and 19 miles in a subway-elevated structure. The rolling stock of the company comprises more than 3,000 cars; its power generating facilities have a total capacity of 77,000 kwts., which with converter substations brings the combined capacity to 103,000 kwts. Its transmission system is largely underground, including over 1,000,000 feet of trench and approximately 12,000,000 feet of duct. More than 130 buildings, with a combined cubical content approximately 90,000,000 cubic feet, constitute part of the system. Because of the well-known gridiron street plan of Philadelphia, there is in the company's property a much larger percentage of crossings and special work than is usually found in similar properties. Not only in its total extent, but also in the items particularly mentioned above, the property must be considered so essentially different from any other within our jurisdiction that it requires special consideration.

The corporate history and structure of the company is also unique. Although today, with great benefit to the public service, it is operated as a unit by one company, this was not always the case. The testimony shows that beginning in 1858 and continuing through the history of the property, more than sixty street railways and other companies were chartered and organized, of which more than 25 had independent and competitive operating experience. The history of the consolidation shows five major combinations leading to the present unified operation of the properties of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company.

The public are called upon to pay no more than just and reasonable rates for the service rendered them, and, on the other hand, the company furnishing it is entitled to receive from the public rates of that character. The problem which confronts the Commission in this case is the determination of what are these just and reasonable rates. To its elucidation a large amount of evidence was presented dealing with the value of respondent's property devoted to public use. Such testimony serves a two-fold purpose: First, it marks the constitutional boundary below which neither legislatures nor commissions can go in determining the valuation base upon which the fair return of the company is predicated. Second, a valuation is of importance in rate determinations where the question of confiscation is not involved, when it furnishes some indication as to the fairness and reasonableness of the rates under consideration. Although where in other respects rates appear to be reasonable when compared with similar rates for similar service, or when measured in terms of the value of the service to the public, nevertheless, if it were disclosed that such rates would produce an excessive return upon such property valuation, the rates should be reduced in order that the public might have its fair share of the resultant benefits.

The Commission is an arm of the legislature and The Public Service Company Law enacted by it provides the machinery for the protection of the public in the matter of service and rates of public service companies. In its administration certain fundamental features have been drawn from the common law, and to that extent he applicable principles are not new. For centuries the common law recognized the duty of these engaged in certain enterprises to furnish service to those who might apply and upon equal and just terms.

Public utility commissions, with combined legislative authority and administrative discretion, produce more adequate and flexible means of applying these principles than were available to the public under the common law, or prior to commission creation. While administrative discretion has been thus lodged with the Public Service Commission under the organic act in determining the value of a utility property and the fair return thereon, it is bound to follow the direction of the courts with respect to the principles of law which must control the exercise of its judgment.

It becomes necessary, therefore, at the outset, that we correctly apprehend the principles of law with respect to valuation so that they may be applied to the facts disclosed by this record.

Valuation for the purpose of rate determination is not essential in all cases. It was so decided in New Street Bridge, 271 Pa. 1930. Valuation is necessary and perhaps controlling when the question of confiscation is in issue, and also when the revenues produced by rates of fare under investigation are largely in excess of amounts sufficint to pay operating expenses, provide a proper reserve for depreciation and a fair return to the stockholders.

It is clear under all the cases that, that which is to be protected by the constitutional guarantee against confiscation is the present fair value of the property; that is to say, its value at the time of the inquiry, or more properly, at the time the rates under consideration are to apply. We find a most illuminating discussion of the whole subject by Mr. Justice Kephart, then sitting with the Superior Court, in the Ohio Valley Water Company case (58 Pa. Sup. Ct. Rep. 561). In discussing the question of what property is protected from confiscation. Mr. Justice Kephart cites pertinent language which had been used by the Supreme Court of the United States in two cases.

> "The property is held in private ownership and it is that property and not the original cost of it, of which the owner may not be deprived without due course of law"—The Minnesota Rate Cases, 230 U. S. 352, 454.
> "If the property which legally enters into the consideration of the question of rates had increased in value since it was acquired, the company is entitled to the benefit of such increase"—Wilcox v. Consolidated Gas Company, 212 U. S. 19, 52.

However, as our own Supreme Court said, when the Ohio Valley Water Company case was before it (260 Pa. 289, 308):—

> "The ascertainment of the fair value of the property for rate making purposes is not a matter of formulas, but is a matter which calls for the exercise of a sound and reasonable judgment upon a proper consideration of all relevant facts. The Commission is not bound to adopt any one method to the exclusion of all others. It may take into consideration various methods and use its judgment as to the extent to which they shall be employed."

The Public Service Law, in Article V, Section 20 (a)—(which we quote at length later), enumerates the items of evidence which we are to consider in reaching a valuation.

In discussing this section the Superior Court in the recent case of Rarick et al. v. Public Service Commission, No. 2 March Term, 1923, (to be reported), said:

> "The elements proper to be considered by Public Service Commission in ascertaining and determining the fair value for rate purposes of the property of a public service company are enumerated at some length in section 20 (a), Article V, of the Public Service Company Law, and have been considered in decisions so fully and recently (citing cases), that it is not necessary to mention them here in detail. It suffices to say that the Commission is not restricted to an allowance of a fair return upon the amount of capital actually invested by the owners, exclusive of borrowed money used in the construction of the plant, as contended by appellants."

and after a discussion of the case of Brymer v. Butler Water Co., 179 Pa. 231, on which the appellant relied, the court continued:

> "In Penna. R. R. Co. v. Phila. County, 220 Pa. 100, 115, it was said (citing the Brymer case), that the elements to be considered in fixing such fair return or profit should include 'the original investment, the risks assumed at the time, the return as compared with other enterprises as nearly similar as may be, the cost of maintenance, the prospects of increase, and the present value in view of the preceding elements.' And in Turtle Creek Boro v. Penna. Water Co., 243 Pa. 401, 414, the Court said: 'The rates must not be confiscatory and they must be such as to yield a fair return upon a just valuation of the plant.' Original cost is but one of the factors to be considered in the determination of the fair value of a public utility for rate making purposes and is not controlling in arriving at such value; Mercersburg Elec. Co. v. P. S. C., 76 Pa. Superior Ct. 58. It may be more or less than the fair value. If the construction was reckless or improvident it would be too high; on the other hand it might be less than the company was entitled to. The true rule is that the company is entitled to a rate which will allow a just and reasonable return on the present fair value of its property used and useful in the public service."

While original cost and all these elements have probative value, the extent to which they are adopted as controlling is dependent upon the light they throw upon the present fair value of the property as distinguished from the value at the time of its original construction and acquisition, or at any intervening period.

The character of evidence usually offered as bearing upon the question of present fair value and which was most fully and ably developed in this case, included first, evidence dealing with the original and historical cost of the property, and secondly, evidence estimating the cost of reproducing the property at present unit prices. The relative weight of these classes of evidence must be determined by the extent to which they give information as to present fair value. In the case of a property recently constructed, if there has een no material change since date of construction, either in price levels or in other conditions affecting construction, the original cost, if it can be accurately ascertained, furnishes a most potent index of present fair value. On the other hand, in the case of properties which have been constructed, added to and developed over a long period of years, involving as in the present case more than two generations, with vast fluctuation in price levels and other conditions affecting construction, we are constrained to the view that original cost, even if it could be ascertained with approximate accuracy, cannot be accepted as furnishing the controlling measure of present value.

Such change of emphasis as the law has shown in dealing with these two principal indices of present value are due necessarily to the very great change brought about by the war in all price and labor conditions which up to the present time show little if any tendency to return to their former status. While we must be careful not to accept reproduction cost minus proper depreciation as a sole determining factor and must give due consideration to the possibility of at least some measure of return to former conditions, we do find that in the late decisions, substantial weight is accorded to reconstruction costs as an indication of present fair value. Within the past month the Supreme Court of the United States has in two cases reversed findings which had palpably ignored consideration of the higher cost levels of the present time, and in another case it sustained a valuation in which that cost level had been taken as the sole base from which the valuation was built up, to the exclusion of pre-war costs. Missouri v. Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, decided May 21, 1923, not yet reported:—

> "Obviously, the Commission undertook to value the property without according any weight to the greatly enhanced cost of materials, labor, supplies, etc., over those prevailing in 1913, 1914, and 1916. As a matter of common knowledge, these increases were large. Competent witnesses estimated them as 45 to 50 per centum.
> * * * Estimates for tomorrow cannot ignore prices of today."

Bluefield Water Works v. Public Service Commission of West Virginia, decided June 11, 1923, and not yet reported:—

> "It is clear that the court also failed to give proper consideration to the higher cost of construction in 1920 over that in 1915 and before the war, and failed to give weight to cost of reproduction less depreciation on the basis of 1920 prices. * * * This resulted in a value considerably and materially less than would have been reached by a fair and just consideration of all the facts. The valuation cannot be sustained."

In Brush Electric Company v. City of Galveston, decided June 4, 1923, the same court sustained a finding which was built up exclusively from a figure agreed upon between the parties as representing reproduction cost, although there had also been before the Master an agreed pre-war estimate of value some 30% less.

In the case of Mercersburg, Lehmasters and Markes Electric Company v. The Public Service Commission, 76 Pa. Sup. Ct. 58, our finding, determination and order was reversed because the valuation as fixed by us seemed to the court to be based largely, if not entirely, upon original costs and, therefore, under the facts of that case, resulted in the confiscation of the company's property. The court among other things said:

> "Now the commission reached the conclusion that such value was $18,500 and used that valuation for a basis to fix rates to be thereafter charged to the public. Upon what testimony does that valuation rest? Manifestly not upon any appearing in the record offered for the purpose of reaching the only conclusion that should be aimed at by the commission, to-wit: the ascertainment of the present fair value of the property devoted to the public service and used and useful for that purpose. All that is left in the record in addition to the testimony of the two witnesses we have referred to, is the evidence of original cost of the property to the present owner, which may fairly be gathered from his own testimony. The course of the examination and cross-examination of the witness rather clearly indicates that both the learned counsel for the intervener and the commissioner who heard the case, overestimated the probative value of the facts, as to original cost, in reaching a conclusion as to the present fair value of the property.
> "When the Commonwealth, or the duly authorized donee of its power of eminent domain, actually takes over, or injures or destroys private property because of public necessity, the measure of damages of the owner of the property is obtained by well established rules. Among the items of evidence, relevant and useful to enable a jury to measure those damages, it has not been considered that the original cost of the property to the then owner could or should be considered of much if of any importance. A man may acquire property by inheritance or by gift, so that it costs him nothing. That fact can scarcely be considered relevant in a proceeding to ascertain its value at the time it was taken, injured or destroyed. So when the Commonwealth, acting through its agent, the Public Service Commission, undertakes to fix a value upon private property for the purpose of ascertaining its just rental or usable value, it seems to us to be plain that too much consideration of the element of original cost is just as likely to mislead an administrative tribunal as a jury. * * * * * *
> "But without further elaborating, it seems to us to be sufficient to say that, in the unanimous judgment of this court, the Public Service Commission, proceeding upon an entirely erroneous theory, in an endeavor to reach a proper basis for the valuation of this plant for rate-making purposes, must have rested its findings largely, if not entirely, upon an undue consideration of original cost. We are of the opinion the practical result of the order or decree entered by the commission would be a confiscation, in part at least, of the appellant's property and this without, as far as we can see, any very substantial reason, even from the standpoint of the interveners."

The direct mandate of the statute under which we are acting, which, in Article V, Section 20 (a) draws the line which we must follow in reaching a valuation:

> "In ascertaining and determining such fair value, the Commission may determine every fact, matter or thing which, in its judgment, does or may have any bearing on such value; and take into consideration, among other things, the original cost of construction, particularly with reference to the amount expended in the existing and useful permanent improvement; with such consideration for the amount in market value of its bonds and stocks, the probable earning capacity of the property under particular rates prescribed by statute or ordinance, or other municipal contract, or fixed or proposed by the Commission, and for the items of expenditure for obsolete equipment and construction, as the circumstances and the historical development of the enterprise may warrant; the reproduction costs of the property, based upon the fair average price of materials, property and labor, and the development and going concern value of such public service company; and these, and any other elements of value, shall be given such weight by the Commission as may be just and right in each case."

Commenting upon this provision in the Beaver Valley Water Company case, 76 Pa. Sup. R. 255, the Superior Court at page 259, interprets the apparently permissive language of this section to be mandatory by inserting in brackets the word "shall" after the word "may" in the first sentence:—

"It may (shall) take into consideration," etc.

Bound and controlled as we are by this mandate and recognizing and fulfilling our duty to consider all pertinent evidence set out in the decision cited, and including both original and reproduction cost, we could not if we would ignore the importance of the latter in reaching a conclusion as to the present fair value of the respondent's property.

The City through experienced and competent engineers employed for the purpose presented a mass of data secured by diligent search and study, dealing with and attempting to show the original or historical cost or investment involved in the property of the respondent company.

This data was arranged and segregated into several separate subjects, the three most important of which were termed by the City—"Original Cost," "Historical Cost," and "Cumulative Investment." As to the first two "original cost" and "historical cost," no extended comment is necessary. Despite the diligence and skill used in compiling these estimates, it was admitted by the experts who presented them that it had been found largely impossible to locate accurate or complete data as to the actual cost of constructing a large part of the property now operated by the company, so that both the figures of original cost and of historical cost were largely in the nature of present estimates of past conditions. There are great difficulties in the way of an accurate estimation of even present costs of construction, and when the estimator is compelled to go beyond present and known conditions to undertake the task of estimating what was the actual cost of property purchased and installed decades ago, the difficulties are much magnified and in this particular case most apparent. In many cases, it was possible to test these past estimates by later discovered vouchers, in most of which substantial discrepancies between fact and estimate exceeded in some important matters 100%. This development was sufficient to convince us that these figures of original cost and historical cost could not safely be relied upon as a controlling basis for our decision.

The City doubtless realizing this and in an unquestioned desire to urge upon the Commission nothing but reliable data based its case in oral argument not so much upon these figures of original and historical cost, but more particularly upon the third retrospective study entitled "cumulative investment." If this phase be taken to mean precisely what it implies, namely, a building up of the total money which has flowed into the property by way of capital expenditure throughout its entire history, its determination obviously offers much less difficulty and involves much less chance of error than is presented in the original or historical cost estimates in this case.

The City pursued its inquiry into cumulative investment so far as to cover all of the money flowing into the company's property on the sale of bonds and from amounts paid in upon capital stock, reaching a total at the time of the argument of slightly more than $131,000,000. While this figure may not be, and doubtless is not mathematically accurate, we are satisfied that it contains no such degree or risk of error as the figures purporting to represent historical or original cost previously discussed. However, it is obvious that the City's study of cumulative investment has not been carried far enough. The sale of bonds and stock does not by any means constitute the only sources from which property is built up. Another equally well known source is found in expenditures made out of net earnings which should be, but have not always been in the past, shown in surplus account. This source of cumulative investment the City wholly overlooked notwithstanding that the books of the company and of its lessors show a total invested surplus of over $11,000,000.

The additional amounts, if any, invested in the property out of net earnings without appropriate book entry in the days when corporate accounting was not an exact science, are not disclosed, nor is there an attempt to disclose them. It is proper also to add that even with a complete investigation of cumulative investment, the result would not take into cognizance many intangible items of value, including "going concern value," which is inherent in seasoned, consolidated and organized properties and which must be given due consideration by any tribunal passing on fair value.

We have already quoted from The Public Service Law the section which expressly directs this Commission in ascertaining and determining fair value to take into account "the development and going concern value."

At this point it is proper to point out that the Commission is of opinion after consideration of all of the evidence presented, that there is present in the property operated by the respondent company a very substantial item of going concern value. When it is considered that over a period of sixty-five years there has been built up out of many isolated, disjoined and competitive railways and corporations one unified system of consolidated operation and management, with an operating organization of noteworthy skill and efficiency, it cannot be doubted that there is here present to a high degree that additional value which inheres in a seasoned and going business over and above the level of the "bare bones" constituting its physical property.

It is thus apparent that insofar as we are to draw upon the past in our consideration of present fair value, we would have to consider a figure very substantially in excess of the sum of $131,000,000, urged upon us by the City. We must and will give due consideration to this approach to our determination of present fair value, but under the decisions and principles already discussed, we cannot consider these past facts to the exclusion of present prices, for in the language of the Supreme Court of the United States, "estimates for tomorrow cannot ignore prices of today."

This brings us to a consideration of the evidence offered by the respondent with reference to the estimated cost of reproducing its property today at present prices. Here we approach a field involving much less risk of error and it is not surprising to find that with regard to the inventory so carefully prepared by the company, the City has no substantial dispute, and as to the unit and total prices applied to many items of that inventory the parties are in substantial agreement.

Itemizing in detail its physical property in existence and use, as of June 30, 1919, the company subdivided the whole in accordance with the classification of accounts prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission and approved for use by this Commission, ascribing to each account its estimate of present cost of reproduction new and reaching a total, including the general group of accounts known as "construction overheads" but excluding going concern value, of something more than $252,000,000. After conducting a check of this estimate of the company, the City admitted the substantial accuracy of a great majority in number of the accounts, and reproduction cost, undepreciated but exclusive of going concern value, of more than $187,000,000. The difference of approximately $65,000,000 between these two totals is not because of any substantial difference as to quantities or unit prices, but because of a difference in position as to the right to include certain items and the basis of estimating others. The principal disputed items are four in number, comprising "paving," "interest during construction," "loss of interest in early years" and "cost of financing." These items warrant some specific discussion here.

Paving

It appeared that the company or its predecessors have been required as a condition of their franchise to pave from curb to curb, the City streets occupied by their lines. This paving was actually placed by the railway at its own cost, replacing the early cobble and rubble pavements of Philadelphia, so that it may be fairly said that the major part of the permanent pavement of the City was laid by the street railways. The City in its historical studies determined to its own satisfaction that the actual cost of his paving so laid was in excess of $14,000,000. The company has claimed for the item of paving nearly $25,000,000 basing its claim upon its estimate of what it would cost at present prices to pay for the present paving upon the streets originally paved by it. In the consideration of reproduction cost we think the position of the company upon this matter is an extreme one. While it is true that it is present value which is protected, which includes the enhancement over original cost of the company's property, we cannot accept the position so strenuously urged upon us by the company that the same rule applies to property in which the company has no useful ownership. In such cases we feel that all the company can claim to have protected is its original investment or price paid for the franchise, and we therefore can give no consideration to the higher figures which it is admitted the present cost of the same paving would reach.

This conclusion is in accord with our action in the Beaver Valley Water Company case as confirmed by the Superior Court, (76 Pa. Sup. Ct. Rep. 255, 264). In seeking to build up a reproduction cost of property the water company had claimed that if it had to lay certain mains at this time, it would be required to take up and replace street paving not in existence at the time their pipes were originally laid, at an approximate cost of $31,000. In commenting on the rejection of this item, the Court said:—

> "As no part of such cost was incurred or paid by the company, and the payments had not belonged to it, the item would have to be rejected in fixing the present value of appellant's property for rate making purposes, for the company admittedly made no such expenditure on its physical plant and should not be entitled to a fictitious credit therefor."

Interest During Construction

The difference between the company and the City on this item is $6,000,000. The company's estimate is based upon a careful classification of the property into several groups, assigning to each group an acceptable construction period and then computing interest on the full cost of each group at the rate of construction in each case. The result is a figure for interest during construction amounting to 11.9% of all accounts other than cost of financing, working capital, developmental cost and going concern value. The City's engineer submitted simply a blanket estimate of 10% on the cost of physical items as the probable amount of interest during construction. Without determination of this question with mathematical precision, we are compelled by the record to give the greater weight to the company's estimate.

Loss of Interest During Early Years

This item, which represents the "lag" in the development of patronage and earning power is placed by the company at the equivalent of one full year's interest at 8%, to-wit, $15,000,000. It is entirely ignored by the City. The company relies in support of its claim not only upon the testimony of its own engineers as to the probable loss of interest in the early years of a street railway property, such as the one here under investigation, but also on the precedent set by the constitutional amendment of 1915. That amendment, which deals with the construction of transit facilities by the City of Philadelphia, expressly authorized the capitalization not only of the actual cost of construction and of interest during the construction period, but also of interest "until the expiration of said period of one year after the completion of said work." Here is definite recognition by the fundamental law as to the propriety of capitalization interest for the first year of operation.

In the Pittsburgh Street Railway valuation case, an Engineering Board, of which the City's expert in this case was a member, expressly recommended an inclusion in the rate base of loss of return during early years of operation. In that case the board's total estimate of "interest during construction" and of "loss of interest during early years" aggregated 19% of the total cost of purely physical items, whereas the total allowance for both kinds of interest in this case, as claimed by the company, amounts to approximately 20%. This seems a very small difference when we consider the longer period of construction which probably was required in Philadelphia in view of the elevated and subway facilities. While believing that both law and precedent permit an allowance for this "lag," in determining value of the company's property, we would be inclined to restrict the interest rate to 7% (the fair return almost uniformly adopted by this Commission) for this year, were we stating an accurate account.

While, therefore, we are constrained to allow interest charges for the early and initial period of operation, as was determined by the Superior Court in its opinion in the Beaver Valley Water Company case (76 Pa. Sup. Ct. Rep. 255, 269), we must point out that it is in reality one of the elements of what is commonly termed "going concern value," and, therefore, it must not be duplicated when that important question is considered.

Cost of Financing

With regard to this item the two estimates are at a variance of $14,000,000. The company's estimate of this item is based upon 10% of the entire reproduction cost, exclusive of going concern value. The company bases this estimate by reference to our finding, approved by the Superior Court in Ben Avon Borough v. Ohio Valley Water Company, 68 Pa. Sup. 561, 591, where 7½% was allowed in a reproduction estimate submitted as of 1914. It cannot be contended with justification that any less rate than that allowed in the last cited case, should be applied at the present time. The City's estimate, based upon 5% of reproduction cost, exclusive of going concern value, is distinctly too low.

It is apparent from this discussion of those four disputed items that the City's admitted figure of reproduction cost of $187,000,000 must be very materially increased, certainly to a point substantially upwards of $200,000,000.

Two major considerations with respect to reproduction cost and its bearing on present fair value remain for consideration:—(1) accrued depreciation which the City claims should be deducted, and (2) going concern value which the company claims should be added.

Accrued Depreciation

The City has offered no proof or testimony that the property is not being currently maintained to a high standard of operating efficiency. On the contrary as will be discussed in another branch of the case, the City's contention is that too great a portion of its revenues is being devoted to this purpose. We are, therefore, faced with the question, which is a favorable one among students of the subject, whether an operating company, in a high state of maintenance, and efficiency for operation, should be depreciated because the various physical items which go to make up the property are necessarily in various periods of their service life, although retaining to a full degree their original usefulness.

With regard to single items of property not subject to repair and renewal, such for example as a water pipe buried in the ground and which has an assumed service life of a certain number of years, there would necessarily have to be applied depreciation in reaching its current value which in a well managed property would be offset by a renewal or a reserve account set up to take care of the situation; but where a composite property is being properly maintained and renewed so as to be kept at all times in a high state of maintenance, a different question arises. No property can be born over night, and in a system such as this one, which it would take many years to reproduce, we cannot fairly say on the first day of operation that the property must be drastically depreciated when we ascertain its fair value.

Moreover, we must bear in mind the complaint that this property is being over-maintained rather than under-maintained, and the proof that it is in a high state of efficiency for operation.

The subject of depreciation was thus dealt with by the Superior Court in the Ohio Valley Water Company case on Page 580, (68 Sup. Ct. Rep.):—

> "Depreciation, though largely theoretical in its nature, which is allowed on the reproduction costs, seems to have a fixed place in valuation. If, however, replacements and renewals are amply provided for and made, depreciation only to a very small extent takes place."

There are, on the other hand, cases involving the issue of confiscation, in which the Appellate Courts have applied very considerable percentages of depreciation even where reproduction costs were used as the basis of determining fair value. Our problem is to fix reasonable rates and our authority must be gathered from the statute under which we act and the decision of our own courts. Guided thereby, we have given what we believe to be due and proper consideration in the present case to the item of depreciation in its bearing upon the ascertainment of present fair value.

It is perhaps well to dispose of these two questions together; that is, accrued depreciation and going concern value—as each is intangible in its nature and difficult of accurate ascertainment. We have already pointed out that in the Public Service Company Law we are required, as that law has been construed by our appellate courts in numerous cases, to consider going concern value as one of the elements going to make up fair value. We further quote from the opinion of Mr. Justice Kephart in the Ohio Valley Water case (page 587):

> "The commission declined to allow any sum for going concern cost or value. While it said due consideration would be given this item, its report expressly shows, in separate items found, nothing was allowed for going value."

In its second opinion in this case (75 Pa. Sup. Ct. 290, 295), the court made a separate allowance for this item, as follows:

> "(2) The item of going value held properly allowable is $185,000."

Following, therefore, the mandate of the statute under which we are acting as thus interpreted we are of opinion that the skill and ability which have built up a good will, which have discovered and developed lines of travel and have stimulated the habit to ride, which have in short breathed the breath of life into the "bare bones" of the physical property, is an item to be as seriously considered as the more tangible items of so much per hour for labor or so much per ton for material. We are further of the opinion that in the present case where the evidence establishes a minimum of depreciation and the maximum of going concern value, that the latter substantially offsets the former in any adjustment of the figures obtained by physical valuation and, therefore, weighing these two questions against each other, we have reached the conclusion that the net result would be to increase rather than diminish that amount.

As has been hereinbefore stated, the inventory and appraisement was made as of June 30, 1919, and the figures hereinbefore given therefore excluded additions to capital since made and any increase in unit costs.

After giving due consideration to the whole record, we do not find it necessary in this case for reasons already given, to fix with any degree of mathematical accuracy the present fair value of this property, for it is evident that any such figure we might find under the evidence would amply justify the return which the present rates of fare are producing, and as it is those rates and no others which we are to pass upon we do not have to consider conditions which might arise were the company seeking an increase in revenue.

Operating Expenses

Of equal importance with fair value as giving some index of proper gross return is a consideration of operation of operating expenses to be deducted from gross receipts in arriving at a net figure. The company submitted its operating budget for the year 1922, since checked by actual results, and has submitted an estimate based thereon for the year 1923. For 1923 the figures predict a total operating revenue of $44,736,000, with operating expenses of $30,868,000, and taxes of $2,818,000, leaving an operating income of $11,050,000. To this budget the City offers but two criticisms. The first is offered in the report prepared by the City's engineer in the early part of 1922 in which the fact is stressed that we are in a period of decreasing costs and that the allowance for maintenance is at least $2,500,000 too high. More than a year has gone by and the tendency of decreasing costs then forecast has not materialized; in fact, as this record shows, again the trend is upward. From the facts presented there is nothing in this record which would enable us to say that the allowance claimed by the company is excessive. But having thus accepted the company's own figure and approved an amount which we believe to be wholly adequate, we shall expect and require from the company a high and strict standard of maintenance throughout its property.

The other objection to the budget is not raised on the record, but was presented for the first time in oral argument. It was there suggested that two items of taxes included in the company's budget should be eliminated. The first tax item criticized was the amount paid upon property, the fee ownership of which is in lessor companies. Neither the existence nor the amount of these taxes is varied by the identity of the owner of the property or affected in any way by the fact that the respondent company is merely an operating lessee. It has never been qestioned that property taxes are properly included in the operating budget of a company which owns the property it operates and we see no reason nor was any suggested to us for applying a different rule in the present situation.

With respect to federal income tax, this Commission has uniformly excluded it from operating costs. In the light of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in Galveston Electric Company vs. City of Galveston, 258 U. S. 388, 399, it is now better advised and directed, the court in that case saying:

> "The remaining item as to which the master and the court differed relates to the income tax. The company assigns as error that the master allowed, but the court disallowed, as a part of the operating expenses for the year ended June 30, 1920, the sum of $16,254 paid by the company during that year for federal income taxes. The tax referred to is presumably that imposed by the Act of February 24, 1919, c. 18, secs. 230-238, 40 Stat. 1057, 1075-1080, which for any year after 1918 is 10 per cent. of the net income. In calculating whether the five-cent fare will yield a proper return, it is necessary to deduct from gross revenue the expenses and charges; and all taxes which would be payable if a fair return were earned are appropriate deductions. There is no difference in this respect between state and federal taxes or between income taxes and others. But the fact that it is the federal corporate income tax for which deduction is made, must be taken into consideration in determining what rate of return shall be deemed fair. For under Section 216 the stockholder does not include in the income on which the normal federal tax is payable dividends received from the corporation. This tax exemption is therefore, in effect, part of the return on the investment."

The inclusion of these tax items will make no difference in the final result, as the allowable revenue under any valuation set up would be in excess of the amount producted by the present rate of fare.

With respect to the same taxes levied upon the income of the lessor companies and which the lessee undertakes to pay as part of the consideration for the use of the properties, a different question, perhaps, arises. However, as the revenue produced by what we are bound under the evidence to hold are reasonable rates in the present case and a fair return upon the fair value of the property in use, is ample to take care of these items without raising any question of confiscation, it is unnecessary to pursue this question further.

In concluding our comment on operating expenses generally, we desire to call attention to the very frank position of the City in its report as follows:—

> "In dealing with the budget as a whole there is no disposition to try to predict just what will happen. Even the operators in closest contact cannot predict accurately for the individual accounts. * * * The City is reluctant to go into the matter of operating details to the extent of attempting to prepare a budget for 1922."

The Commission shares this reluctance with the City to question the judgment of the actual operating officials charged with the duty of maintaining and operating the property. However, as above stated, our approval of the operating estimates submitted by the company will be coupled with a requirement of a high standard of maintenance and operation.

In addition to the evidence relating to fair value and return the respondent presented in evidence a further method for judging the reasonableness of its present rates, testing them by a comparison of the amount paid and the service rendered in Philadelphia with the rates and service charges and rendered in seven and alleged comparable cities, viz: Boston, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Pittsburgh.

The record shows that the service in Philadelphia is faster, more direct and more frequent than in the majority of those other cities, whereas the present rates of fare in Philadelphia produce 6.6 cents per revenue passenger, as compared with 7.9 cents in the average of the cities cited for comparison. Tested by this standard the respondent's present rates of fare are clearly not unreasonable or excessive for the service rendered.

Support of this view is afforded by a consideration of the present purchasing power of money as indicated by the "all commodities" index of the United States Department of Labor. Application of the index figure of 159 for April, 1923, to the 5 cent base fare prevailing throughout American cities in 1913, shows that a fare of 7.97 cents would be necessary today in order to equal the purchasing power of five cents in 1913. It is interesting to observe that 7.9 cents is exactly the average fare in the seven cities cited for comparison, authough but 6.6 cents is now realized in Philadelphia under the rate which we are considering.

Perhaps the most important single consideration which it is our duty to weigh in the determination of reasonable rates, is the paramount public need of increasing and improving service. Undoubtedly there has in past years been serious criticism of the retrenchment policy of the respondent company, and for the decade preceding the inauguration of this case there was little evidence of any tendency toward expansion. A marked change has come about since the establishment by use of the fares now in effect. Not only does the record show that the service furnished through existing facilities has been increased during the last two years at a substantially faster rate than increased riding, but what is of more importance, the company has undertaken and carried out the operation of the City-built elevated railway to Frankford, involving an operating loss.

From the evidence before us in this case and the reports of receipts and expenses currently filed with us by the company, we cannot avoid the conclusion that the company would have been financially unable to undertake the operation of this important and much needed additional facility had it not enjoyed the revenue produced by the present fares. Similarly the company has found it possible by reason of its present revenue to arrange for the purchase of over 500 new and modern passenger cars, deliveries of which will begin shortly. The record also discloses plans for further and continued improvement and expansion involving several additional street railway lines supplemented by busses and trackless trolleys.

No consideration of a public question of this importance that did not look into the future, would be complete or satisfactory and the future holds for Philadelphia some tremendous problems for the expansion of its transportation facilities and the building and operation of high speed lines. It we are to take cognizance of negotiations now being conducted by the municipality and the respondent company, the city is contemplating the expenditure in this direction of more than $100,000,000, and is negotiating with the company in an attempt to find a basis under which the company would undertake the operation of those lines when built, on the theory that the public convenience will be best served by a unified operation of the entire transportation system.

Recognizing the growth of Philadelphia, desiring in every way to aid in the solution of its difficult transportation problems, and wishing within the limits of its power to give to the citizens of Philadelphia the best transportation facilities in the country, this Commission would, indeed, be reluctant at such a time, to make any order, that would impair the financial strength of the company upon which devolves so great a portion of this task, unless impelled thereto by the paramount interests and rights of the car rider.

In support of a policy of permitting the company a substantial or even generous revenue, one particular provision of The Public Service Company Law has been urged. Article III, Section 1 (a) gives to every public service company the right:

> "To participate to such an extent as may be permitted by the Commission, and deemed by the Commission wise, for the purpose of encouraging economics, efficiencies or improvements in methods or service, in the additional profits which will be afforded by such economics, efficiencies, or improvements in methods of service."

Presenting to us its claim to share in results achieved under this section, the company has offered voluminous testimony relating to economies and efficiencies in operation and improvement in service which it claims to have made effective in recent years. The City does not dispute the presence of notable economy and efficiency in the operation of the respondent system as the following quotations from paragraph ten of the report of the City's engineer shows:

> "That there is first class co-operation between men and management on the Philadelphia Rapid Transit property is freely admitted. This co-operation no doubt results in more economical and efficient service to the end that the men, the stockholders and the public all benefit thereby. This cooperation is producing certain beneficial results. * * * The demonstration of the work done by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, looking toward accident prevention for children, are very impressive, and there is no doubt but that the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company is in the front rank in this splendid work. * * * Reviewing the list of efficiencies claimed for supermanagement, the accident prevention work and the cooperation, particularly on the part of the trainmen, deserve recognition."

Surely no stronger case can be presented covering the contingency in which the legislature has directed the Commission to give consideration. The Commission is of the opinion that the company has established the existence of economies and efficiencies in its operation and is entitled to share in the results thereof. Were a definite valuation found necessary, the fact that a return of 7% which this Commission would allow as a minimum on the present fair value of the respondent's property, would produce a surplus after providing for a liberal operating budget, out of which the company could meet its incomes taxes without impairing a generous return to its stockholders, is the best proof not only of the revenue producing effect of the economies and efficiencies introduced by the company, but also of the fact that it is securing its fair share of the same.

It is unnecessary to deal with this subject more in detail. This whole record is before us in order that we may determine the single and ultimate question of what are just and reasonable fares for the respondent's service.

We come therefore to a statement of the conclusions which we have reached upon the whole record as discussed in this report.

1. We do not find it necessary in this proceeding to arrive at a final determination of the present fair value of the property of the company. However, our consideration of the items of evidence before us, including the questions of depreciation and going concern value and of matters in dispute between the company and the City lead us to the conclusion that under established legal principles the present fair value of the company's property is substantially upwards of $200,000,000.

2. With regard to operating expenses we are not disposed to interfere with the budget submitted by the company as long as it continues its present policy of improved service and a high standard of maintenance.

3. In this connection we are of opinion that the company has established its right to share in additional profits resulting from approved economics and efficiencies in its operation.

4. Looking to the future we feel that the present fares, and the revenues and credit which they produce, should make possible further and continued improvement and expansion of transportation service and facilities in Philadelphia to meet the growing needs of the city.

5. An assumed rate base as low as $200,000,000, with seven per cent. as the fair rate of return, results in the amount of $14,000,000 available as the fair return. This plus the allowed operating expenses, as appears in respondent's budget of $30,868,000 and taxes of $2,818,000, gives an allowable annual gross revenue requirement of $47,686,000. The operating revenue for the year 1922 being in actuality $42,530,000, and the unimpeached estimate of operating revenue for the year 1923 being but $44,736,000, the respondent's rates of fare as contained in its tariff No. 81 now in effect and originally established under our order of October 18, 1920, are neither unjust or unreasonable, nor under the evidence are they unduly discriminatory or unjustly preferential.

The right of the company to continue to collect the fares thus established and in effect is confirmed, and the complaint dismissed.

ORDER

This matter being before The Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania upon complaint, interventions permitted by the Commission, and answers on file, and having been duly heard, argued and submitted by the parties, and full investigation of the matters and things involved having been had, and the Commission having on the date hereof made and filed of record a report containing its findings of fact and conclusions thereon, which said report is hereby approved and made part hereof;

Now, to wit, June 21, 1923. It Is Ordered: That the complaint in this case be, and the same is hereby dismissed.

APPENDIX NO. 4

THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

In re: Application of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company for Approval of New Tariff Changing Rates Hereto Approved by the Commission

Application Docket No. 11,417-1924

Street railways—Rates—Operating expenses Wages—Taxes—Subsidiary motor busses.

A street railway company was permitted to increase its fares within three years after a Commission rate-fixing order, where the return was inadequate.

Rates are not necessarily reasonable because they are less than the service is worth to the patron. Cost of the service must also be considered.

The Commission must see that managerial discretion is reasonably exercised.

Reasonable wages were included in operating expenses in full although part of the wage was regularly paid by the company to trustees for the employees, who invested this money.

The Company's appropriation for maintenance and renewals was included in operating expenses, where it was not clear that the amount was excessive.

Expenditures for general and miscellaneous expenses are properly within managerial discretion and cannot be interfered with except in a clear case of bad management.

License taxes, city paving tax, gross receipts tax and Federal capital stock tax are proper operating expenses. State loans tax is not an operating charge. Taxes fixed by charter are proper charges.

Where leases obligated the respondent operating company to pay taxes of lessees, such taxes are proper charges to the extent that they would be due and allowable if the operating company owned the leased lines.

Federal income taxes are proper operating expenses, but the amount of the resulting exemption to stockholders is deductible from the fair return otherwise allowable.

The effect of deficits in motor bus operation by a subsidiary company was not decided.

Commissioners Benn and Sewart file concurring reports.

Commissioners Evans, Martin and Scattergood file minority reports.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION

By the Commission:

These proceedings bring before the Commission for the second time in little more than two years the question of reasonable rates to be charged by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company (hereinafter called the "Company"). More particularly the precise question before us is whether the company may be permitted to continue the rates now in effect; viz. 8 cent cash fare (2 tokens for 15 cents) with free transfers at designated points outside a special central district and 3-cent exchanges within that district.

At the outset it should be made clear that the full burden of justifying such continuance, rests, upon the Company. Neither the establishment of a prima facie case nor the temporary approval of the fares can shift or mitigate this burden of proof.

The location, nature and extent of the Company's transportation system in Philadelphia and its environs is described in detail in our Report of June 21, 1923 in City of Philadelphia vs. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, Docket No. C. 3504. The description need not be repeated here. We will, however, review briefly the former proceedings involved in that case so as to make clear the circumstances in which the present proceeding arose and the viewpoint from which the present issues must be approached.

Prior Proceedings

Under prior and present proceedings the fares of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company have been before the Commission without important interruption since June 1920, and on two occasions our action concerning them has been reviewed and affirmed by the Superior Court.

On June 1, 1920, the Company, by the filing of a tariff, first proposed to increase the schedule of charges which had been in effect in Philadelphia for many years. Its first proposal, and also its second proposal submitted in October of the same year, were condemned by the Commission upon the ground, among others, that they would produce unjust discrimination. The City of Philadelphia, the United Business Men's Association and others had protested both proposals and the City particularly had prayer for a valuation of the Company's property to aid in fixing reasonable rates for it to charge. Upon that prayer and for that purpose we commenced on September 23, 1920 to hold hearings and receive evidence bearing upon the fair value of the Company's property. The proceedings thus became known as the "Valuation case," and will, for convenience, be so referred to here.

The hearings previously held upon the Company's two proposals already referred to had established to our satisfaction that some increase in the Company's fares were both justified and necessary to enable it to continue acceptable service. By order of October 18, 1920, therefore we directed the Company to establish for a period of six months a fare of 7 cents with 4 tickets for 25 cents and without change in the then existing transfer and exchange privileges. This the Company did, and when the six months expired without a conclusion in the valuation hearings the Company of its own motion continued in effect the 7-6¼ cents fares which the Commission had prescribed. In these circumstances the protests against the Company's original proposals were taken as continued and renewed against the 7-6¼ cents fares and the valuation hearings then in progress were proceeded with. These hearings concluded on May 15, 1923.

The record thus produced was the most extensive ever made in a proceeding before the Commission. It contained evidence upon nearly every subject pertinent to the pending issue and the adjudication of reasonable rates. In addition to the testimony of the Company's own regular and consulting engineers it included an exhaustive report and extended oral testimony by Robert M. Feustel, one of the foremost utility experts of the country who was retained by the City expressly for the purpose of that proceeding. All aspects of the question at issue thus received the fullest elucidation from the contrasted viewpoints of the contending parties. After receiving briefs and hearing oral argument the Commission on June 21, 1923 handed down its final report and order, holding that the fares in issue were not unreasonable or unlawful and dismissing the complaints against them.

In reaching this decision the Commission considered not only the evidence bearing upon the fair value of Company's property, but also the evidence relating to the reasonableness of the fares apart from the matter of value and return. On this latter phase of the question after reviewing detailed comparisons between the rates and service of the Company and the rates and service in a number of other cities the Commission held:

> "The record shows that the service in Philadelphia is faster, more direct and more frequent than in the majority of those other cities, whereas the present rates of fare in Philadelphia produce 6.6 cents per revenue passenger as compared with 7.9 cents in the average of the cities cited for comparison. Tested by this standard the respondent's present rates of fare are clearly not unreasonable or excessive for the service rendered."

As to the matter of fair value and return, the Commission found that the present fair value of the Company's property is "substantially upwards of $200,000,000," and on this basis, the Commission held:

> "An assumed rate base as low as $200,000,000 with seven per cent. as the fair rate of return, results in the amount of $14,000,000 available as the fair return. This plus the allowed operating expenses, as appears in respondent's budget of $30,868,000 and taxes of $2,813,000, gives an allowable annual gross requirement of $47,686,000. The operating revenue for the year 1922 being in actuality $42,530,000, and the unimpeached estimate of operating revenue for the year 1923 being but $44,736,000, the respondent's rates of fare as contained in its tariff No. 81 now in effect and originally established under your order of October 18, 1920, are neither unjust nor unreasonable nor under the evidence are they unduly discriminatory or unjustly preferential."

Upon appeal by the City and others (not including the Company) the Commission's report and order were affirmed by the Superior Court: City of Philadelphia vs. Public Service Commission 83 Pa. Super. 8.

The Valuation decision, thus judicially affirmed, established two things:—

First: That the fares then in effect were lower than those charged in other cities.

Second: That the fares were not yielding the minimum fair return which the Company might demand under its Constitutional rights.

The Present Case

On July 21, 1924 the Company filed its application in the present case asking permission to increase the rates approved in the Valuation decision.

Specifically it asked leave to increase the base fare to 8 cents cash (2 tokens for 15 cents) at the same time substituting free transfers for 3 cent exchanges outside the so-called central district.

The City of Philadelphia, hereinafter called the City, the United Business Men's Association and others protested. Hearings were commenced on September 2, 1924. Assuming the burden which rested on it, the Company went forward with evidence offered in support of its application. This evidence established prima facie three things: First, that the 6¼-7 cents fares had not earned the allowable gross revenue or net return indicated in the Valuation Decision: Second, that commencing in the Spring of 1924 and continuing through the Summer the volume of riding had decreased and was decreasing: Third, that some increase in expenses had to be met apart from the increased labor costs which it was claimed in 1925 would be $1,700,000 higher than in 1923.

After hearing and cross examining the Company's witnesses the City on September 6th moved for an adjournment to enable it to prepare its case. By order of September 8, 1924, the adjournment asked for was allowed and at the same time permission was granted to the Company to put the proposed fares into effect temporarily and pending our further order in the case. The Commission was moved to this action in part by the prima facie showing referred to above and in part by the wisdom of providing actual test of the proposed fares so as to determine the resulting revenue by experience, in place of estimate.

The City and other protestants at once appealed. On September 19, 1924, the Superior Court denied their request that the appeal act as a supersedeas, filing an opinion wherein they held in part:

> "The hearing before the Commission made out a prima facie case justifying the proposed increase in fare. This prima facie may be rebutted or overcome by evidence produced by appellants when they have completed their investigation; but, when the hearing adjourned the burden resting upon the Company had been met."

Upon the appeal itself, the Superior Court, after final argument handed down its opinion of December 5, 1924, affirming the report and order of the Commission. It is worthy of note that the Commission's action was thus affirmed despite the Court's holding that the wage dividend as then paid and amounting to $1,900,000 per annum was "Not a proper charge against operating expenses." (City of Philadelphia vs. Public Service Commission, 84 Pa. Super. 135.)

The subsequent hearings commencing in April and concluding in September 1925 produced exhaustive data, analysis and discussion of the Company's affairs and particularly of its operating expenses.

The actual effect of the proposed fares for a full period of 12 months removed the question of gross revenue from the realm of estimate to the realm of facts, so that brief and argument developed no important dispute on this item. Since the conclusion of the hearings, monthly reports filed with the Commission by the Company brings its actual operating experience under the temporary rate down to and including November, 1925.

Before dealing in detail with revenues and expenses, we think it appropriate to dispose of one contention advanced by the Company. Based on evidence purporting to compare the service and fares in Philadelphia with the service and fares in a number of other cities the Company advanced in its brief the following conclusion and contention.

> "The simple fact is that the Philadelphia rider pays the average price for a service vastly superior to the average. This conclusively refutes any claim that 'the fares charged are more than the service is reasonably worth.'"

We cannot accept the argument. While the record does demonstrate that the Company's service is notably a good service as compared with other cities and while it also appears that the present fares are not higher than the approximate average prevailing elsewhere, these facts alone cannot establish the conclusion upon which the Company insists. It is of course true that one of the pertinent inquiries upon the complaint of a rider is whether "the fares charged are more than the service is reasonably worth," and the Superior Court has so stated in its opinion upon the appeal in the Valuation Case. (City of Philadelphia vs. Public Service Commission, 83 Pa. Super. 8.) It is also true that proper comparisons furnish some test of the "value of the service" but no final conclusion on that subject is possible without considering the cost of the service to the Company. Throughout all business life cost has a direct and important bearing on value and to determine value without any investigation of cost is well-nigh impossible.

We should not be understood as holding that cost, is the sole or absolute measure of a reasonable rate for our courts have decided that

> "Rate making contemplates fair dealing between the Company and the Public. * * * The mere assurance that the investment will not be confiscated will not suffice." (Ben Avon Borough vs. Ohio Valley Water Co. 58 Pa. Super. 561.)

Revenue

At the original hearings in September, 1924, the Company presented its estimate of the passenger revenue which the new fares would produce in 1925 at $46,860,000. This estimate was based on the premise that the relative volume of riding experienced in July 1924 would continue without other than seasonal fluctuations. Experience has destroyed this premise. Business conditions revived in large measure and actual results have shown the original estimate comparatively low.

For the 12 months ending September 30, 1925, the actual passenger revenue was $48,606,368. For the 12 months ending October 31, 1925, the actual figure was $48,734,930. It is claimed by the Company, and its witnesses so testified, that the phenomenal increase in the use of private automobiles has rendered it impossible to rely on any assumed "natural growth" in fixing rates for the future. There is some force in this contention. The record of recent years seems to indicate that the volume of riding both advances and recedes with general business and industrial activity with no continuing or regular upward trend discernible. The present, however, is a period of accelerated business activity with no indications of any approaching depression.

The monthly reports filed with us as required in our order of September 8, 1924 for eleven months of 1925, indicate a total street railway passenger revenue for 1925 of $49,018,357 including revenue from Chester and Philadelphia Railway which is also in above estimates of revenue.

The reports filed with the Commission disclose greatly increasing use of free transfers due to a better understanding of its privileges. This of course has a direct effect upon the average rate of fare.

The average fare per total passenger carried in October, 1924 (the first complete month under the new fare) was .05404, which increased slightly to .05413 in November and .05425 in December 1924. Beginning in 1925 the average fare steadily dropped from .05413 in January to .05284 in August and from this point again rose steadily to .05372 in December 1925. That this steady decrease in the average fare per passenger was undoubtedly caused by the greater use of free transfers is demonstrated by the fact that the free transfer passengers for the last available year (ending August 31, 1924) under the old rate was 190,327,499 as compared with 239,787,350 for the year ended November 30, 1925 under the new rate or an increase of about 25%. It also appears from the reports that the ratio of free passenger to total passengers increased in the years reviewed from 20.68% under the old fare to 26.30% under the new fare. The Commission is of the opinion that this operation of the transfer provision of the Tariff is in the public interest and ought not by it to be disturbed. Just how long this increase in free transfer passengers and corresponding decrease in the average fare per passenger will continue cannot be determined, but it is an influencing factor which must be considered in dealing with any future estimates of passenger revenue.

Another source of railway operating revenue appearing in the record is described as "Other Railway Operating Revenue," and includes that received from car and station privileges.

Issue was raised in the hearings as to whether this Company abused its managerial judgment to the detriment of the car rider, in refusing to continue its advertising and station privilege contract with New York interests on a gross receipt percentage basis and negotiating an agreement with another company for a definite guaranteed amount. The Commission is not persuaded the record discloses an abuse of managerial discretion. Other amounts entering into the item "Other Revenue" was not the subject of contention in the hearings and requires no comment.

The reports filed with the Commission show 1925—(December estimated) the sum of $707,000. "Other Operating Revenue," which added to Passenger Revenue ($49,018,357) give a total Railway Operating Revenue for 1925, on the basis of actual experience for the first eleven months and December estimated, of $49,725,357.

Only one estimate was submitted, of passengers to be carried in 1926. This was prepared by the Company and resulted in a figure of 910,000,000 passengers. The total passengers carried in 1923 was 917,787,235; in 1924, 909,303,945 and in 1925, December estimated $15,948,486. The estimate assumes a normal increase of two per cent over 1925; a bus diversion of 36,000,000—a maximum increase due to the Sesqui-Centennial of 10,000,000 passengers, and was computed on the basis of estimate of 914,000,000 passengers for 1923.

We are convinced that actual experience will prove that the Company's estimate for 1926 is too low. The City's estimate for passengers carried in 1925 was about 2,000,000 less than the reports indicate. The Commission is of the opinion that the total bus passengers for 1925 approximated 10,800,000 and while this is an increase of 8,000,000 over the previous year it is not believed that street car diversion due to bus operations will reach the figure estimated by the Company. An acceptance of the Company's rate per cent of normal increase (2%) in 1926 over 1925 and its increase in 1926 due to Sesqui-Centennial, results in an increase of passengers carried before deduction on account of bus diversion of 28,300,000 passengers. Assuming a bus diversion as low as 18,000,000 and the average fare of .05340 as disclosed by the reports for eleven months of 1925, the increase in passenger revenue will approximate $550,000. Greater bus diversion and decrease in the average fare due to further use of transfers, would correspondingly reduce the above figure. Increase in passengers would be accompanied by some increase in operating expenses and considerable increase with respect to centennial passengers. We deem it fair to patron and company alike to abstain from definite total estimates of revenue and expenses for 1926, and to test the present fare on the figures disclosed by actual experience and by giving due consideration to the general trends reasonably to be expected in 1926 and the reasonable period beyond.

Operating Expenses and Taxes

The Company presented its 1925 budget of all items which it claims are properly chargeable to operation, totaling $37,102,400 and made up as follows:

Maintenance and Renewals	$8,560,400
Power Operation	3,885,000
Conducting Transportation	16,224,000
General and Miscellaneous	4,750,880
Taxes	3,034,000
Frankford Elevated Rental	468,120
City Sinking Fund	180,000
Total	$37,102,400

The city's engineering expert, Mr. Bibbins offered but two criticisms to this budget when studied from the practical operating and engineering viewpoint. He expressed the opinion that the item "Conducting Transportation" should be decreased by the amount of $282,000. This the company condeded on argument.

He also advocated a reduction in the items for maintenance and renewals of $950,400 which would change the Company's figure of $8,560,400 to $7,610,000. The total of Mr. Bibbin's budget is $35,870,000; the total of the company's budget after making the aforementioned correction in "Conducting Transportation" is $36,820,400. The entire difference is in the "Maintenance and Renewals" item.

The solicitors for the city argued for further reduction in the Company's budget upon legal grounds. Witnesses for other parties as well as Dr. Milo R. Maltbie, who was called as an expert by the Commission, gave testimony requiring a careful scrutiny of a number of additional items which the company claims as allowable expenses. Each matter thus requiring discussion the Commission will expressly consider and determine.

As a preface to detailed discussion of particular items in the operating budget of the company it may be helpful to give a brief definition of the Commission's function.

The company has argued with great earnestness that the system of public utility regulation in Pennsylvania does not take from the managers of utilities the rights, duties and discretion of management; that the regulating body is not vested with the powers of management and cannot substitute its discretion for that of the managers, and that the Commission's only function in passing on the reasonableness of operating expenses is to correct any gross abuses of managerial discretion, if such appear.

This proposition is too broadly stated. Conceding that the Commission may not itself assume the discretion of management it is nevertheless clear that it is the Commission's duty to see that that discretion is reasonably exercised and to check and correct any unreasonable exercise of it.

Wages

Running through many of the items of the Company's operating budget is the question of the proper wage allowance. It will therefore be dealth with at the outset.

The company has included what it claims to be its full wages, typified by the 77-cent maximum wage to its trainment. It offered voluminous evidence to support the reasonableness of this maximum wage rate. Neither the City nor any other protestant offered any evidence in support of a contrary conclusion. The criticism of the City and other protestants is not that the 77-cent rate is excessive, but that, to the extent of 7 cents, it is not in law a wage.

In our view some consideration of the reasonableness of the wage in fact is necessary to a proper discussion of the question of law thus raised. On the question of reasonableness the Company concedes that the 77-cent wage is today the highest wage paid to street-railway trainmen throughout the country. It is pointed out, however, that this is the first year under the Company's established wage policy that this has occurred. In 1924 the total wage (including the so-called wage dividend, discussed hereafter) was 3½ cents less than the Chicago wage and 1½ cents less than the Detroit wage. In 1925 it is 2 cents over Chicago. It is thus urged that the average of the last two years 1924-1925 has been less than Chicago.

The Company frankly avows that its policy is one of high wages and good labor rather than low wages and poor labor. It points to the notable co-operation and loyalty of its men and its total absence of strikes for nearly 15 years.

A study of the 77-cent wage from the viewpoint of economics and sociology shows that it produces annual earnings but little if any higher than the minimum budget necessary to maintain an average family on the basis of living costs in Philadelphia.

The foregoing evidence, and much more of like tenor, leads us to the conclusion that the wages paid by the Company are not unreasonable or excessive compensation for the labor performed.

With this conclusion in mind we pass to the legal question already indicated. This question arises from the following circumstances.

Prior to 1925 the Company's wage arrangement included a contingent payment limited to 10% of the "base wage" and designated a "wage dividend." The bargain with the men provided that they should receive a certain base wage on each pay day and at the end of the year an additional payment up to ten per cent, but payable only after payment of the current dividend to stockholders. All payments of this wage dividend were made to trustees for the men who invested the money in the stock of the Company almost exclusively.

The Company in the past treated this "wage dividend" precisely like all other wage payments; viz: as an operating expense. The lawfulness of this course was first questioned upon the appeal from our temporary order in the present case. In brief and argument upon that appeal the City urged that the contingent feature of this payment placed it subordinate to dividends upon the Company's stock and therefore made it in law a payment out of profits, and not an operating expense. The Superior Court sustained this contention, saying as to the wage dividend:

> "We agree with the contention of the City Solicitor, that it is not a proper charge against operating expenses, and constitutes no element to be considered in fixing a schedule of rates or tariffs, but must be provided for, if at all, out of the Company's fair return on investment."

This Commission does not interpret the foregoing as containing any expression of opinion by the Court as to the amount of a proper wage. It is clear that the wage dividend was removed by the Court from operating expenses solely because of its contingent feature.

Subsequent to this decision, the Company, in April 1925, abolished the "wage dividend" and raised the base wage to 77 cents, which it undertook unqualifiedly to pay to its men.

Unquestionably this action removed the contingent feature above discussed from any portion of the 77-cent wage and no argument to the contrary has been advanced. Concededly this action was taken in view of the Superior Court's decision and in our view it fully met the requirements of that decision.

The fact that a part of the resulting total wages is, by the men's direction, paid to trustees designated by them and invested in the stock of the Company does not render such payments any the less a wage. Such arrangements are not uncommon in our industrial life. In the present case the records show that the men have unanimously authorized the arrangement and further that upon retirement from the service or upon death every man or his personal representative as the case might be received from the trustees the proportionate share of the funds in their hands. In the meantime they and they alone received the income.

The 77-cent wage is now an absolute commitment by the Company to the men. It is paid entirely to them or to their trustees and cannot be diverted from their ultimate use and benefit. It is not unreasonable in amount. The Commission therefore concludes that there is no basis for a ruling disallowing any portion of the Company's wages, in considering the items of the operating budget in which wages appear as a factor.

Maintenance and Renewals

Is the Company's annual appropriation of $8,560,400 for maintenance and renewals unreasonable when tested in the light of the foregoing and other standards? This is the same appropriation and the same question which we were called upon to decide in the Valuation case. There, as here, the expert employed by the City had advocated a lower figure. The Commission then approved the figure adopted by the Company. Time has confirmed the correctness of that judgment. Had the figure then urged by the City's expert been adopted there would now exist an actual deficit in the maintenance and renewal account of approximatly $4,000,000 in place of the present reserve of approximately $6,000,000. Testing the present criticism in the same way it is clear that had the Company for the past 5 years followed Mr. Bibbins' recommendation instead of its own figure of $8,560,400 it would have but little more than $1,000,000 in its reserve today in place of the actual figure of about $6,000,000.

That there must and should be a proper reserve of this kind built up out of the Maintenance and Renewal appropriation and held to offset accruing depreciation and to meet large renewals of major items of the property as they fall due, cannot be denied and it is in fact conceded by all parties. The appropriation under discussion has resulted in an accumulated reserve that is less than 3 per cent of the minimum fair value of the property. Judged by common experience and practice in the field of public utilities and by our adjudication in similar cases it is patent that this reserve is not unduly large. It is thus clear that the general test of five years' past experience with this appropriation confirms the Commission's former judgment that it is not unreasonable.

Further test of this item is furnished by two independent studies offered of record:

(1) Mr. Bibbin's study offered by the City and (2) a study by the Committee of Consulting Engineers, offered by the Company. The actual appropriation falls between Mr. Bibbins' figure of $7,610,000 and the committee's figure of $8,768,500. For the purpose of analysis and discussion it is necessary to segregate these two figures between the two major objects of the appropriation, viz: Maintenance and Renewals. Thus segregated they appear:

	Maintenance	Renewals	Total
Mr. Bibbins	$5,260,000	$2,350,000	$7,610,000
Committee	5,709,000	3,030,500	8,763,500

The Committee's figures for maintenance are based on the average actual expenditures for the 4 years 1921 to 1924 corrected to the 1925 labor costs and then increased approximately 9 per cent. This percentage increase is based on a conceded 9 per cent increase in the car-miles to be operated in the next five years as compared with 1921-1924 and also upon such additional factors as increased vehicular congestion, increased use of concrete base under tracks and paving, etc. This does not appear unreasonable.

The record is not entirely clear as to how Mr. Bibbins' maintenance figure was reached. When originally presented the Commission understood it was arrived at as follows, viz: by taking the 1924 maintenance cost per car mile of 5.77 cents rounding it to 5.8 cents and multiplying it by the 90,700,000 car miles to be operated in 1925. Even though some different and additional basis may have been weighed in reaching the figure it is significant that the foregoing computation produces the exact figure used. It thus furnishes a convenient test by which to judge its reasonableness. Adopting this test two things are at once apparent. Full allowance is not made for the present higher wages and no account is taken of any future increase in car mileage. Proper allowance for these two factors will bring Mr. Bibbins' figure close to the Committee's maintenance estimate. Two independent engineering studies which approach so closely to the same result tend to support and not to discredit each other. They both support the conclusion that necessary maintenance expenditures for the present and immediate future will be not far from $5,700,000 per annum.

As to Renewals Mr. Bibbins and the Committee are somewhat farther apart. The Committee's estimate totalling $3,060,500 is based as to rolling stock on straight line depreciation applied to the City's own cost figures. This accounts for $922,000 annually. As to way, structures, power, etc., the Committee took the Company's actual renewal program for the next five years and itself determined the average annual cost.

Mr. Bibbins, as to all depreciable property including rolling stock, studied the neweal requirements over the next 33 years or until 1957. It may be doubted if so long a period is reasonably foreseeable. The Public Service Company Law fixes three years as the longest period during which the Commission's judgment upon such matters shall have binding force and it is felt that studies of the future which are extended over any substantially longer period lose weight thereby. Conscious of this viewpoint and in response to a suggestion during the hearings, Mr. Bibbins later presented detailed studies of renewal requirements for shorter period. These may be properly compared with the Committee's estimates. For power plant renewals, Mr. Bibbins' 5-year average is practically identical with the Committee's. For substation renewals, Mr. Bibbins estimates that nothing will be required in the next five years but if the first eight years are averaged instead of the first five, the resulting figures equal the Committee's estimate. This difference of view as to the exact years in which certain substation renewals will become necessary is relatively unimportant as it is patent that the accruing depreciation must be provided for by annual appropriations.

As to track renewals Mr. Bibbin's 33 year average requirement ($1,455,900) is almost identical with the Committee's estimate of the average requirement for five years $1,432,000. But for the first five years of the thirty three Mr. Bibbins estimates that only $913,900 will be required annually. The explanation of this lies in the fact that Mr. Bibbins adopts for the next five years a track renewal program of only 12 miles per year, notwithstanding his average for the thirty-three year program is twenty miles per year. This twelve mile program seemingly rests upon his individual judgment, or that of his assistants. A check of the record discloses that it is not based on the actual experience of past years or on any actual future plans of the company. After giving careful consideration to Mr. Bibbins' view in this regard the Commission is not convinced that the Company can be charged with unreasonable judgment is not adopting so restricted a track renewal program for the immediate future. Thus analyzed and compared the two contrasted studies before us are again seen to support rather than destroy each other. It has been already pointed out that the Company's actual appropriation falls between the results of these two studies.

In addition to these two expert studies the record furnishes an additional test of the reasonableness of the Company's $8,560,400 maintenance and renewal appropriation in the form of comparisons with expenditures for this purpose in other cities. The unit basis adopted for this comparison is the cost for maintenance and renewals per car mile operated. On the basis of the car-mile maintenance and renewal costs of the following systems in other cities the company's maintenance and renewal appropriation of $8,560,400, would be increased to the figures indicated.

Brooklyn City Railway Company	9,616,510
Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Co.	10,153,648
Cleveland Railway Company	11,678,428
Pittsburgh Railways Company	11,877,689
Boston Elevated Lines	13,982,925

These comparisons cannot, of course, be taken as conclusive of a proper maintenance and renewal appropriation for the applicant Company, but the fact that they in substantially all the cases point to figures much higher than the $8,560,400 asked by the Company is at least persuasive that that figure itself is not unreasonably high.

Furthermore the Commission is conscious of the fact that an adequate maintenance and renewal appropriation is not only essential to protect the Company's property but it is also a guarantee to the public of an adequate, well maintained and effective transportation system. As a protection to the public interest, the Commission must avoid any possibility of under maintenance. Even if in future years the appropriation should prove excessive the excess flows into a reserve devoted solely to the plant which serves the public.

Upon a careful consideration of all the evidence bearing upon this question the Commission concludes that the Company's maintenance and renewal appropriation does not appear unreasonable and that it would not be justified in disallowing any part of it as proper operating expenses.

Power Operation

Notwithstanding the city does not attack the Company budget of $3,885,000 for power operation, this figure as well as all the estimates submitted in the case, have been subjected to most careful scrutiny in the light of the reports filed for the eleven months of 1925. The actual cost of power operation for this eleven month period was $3,447,258.58 and with December estimated by assuming the same ratio of increase of December 1925 over November 1925 in car mileage as December 1924 bore to November 1924, and applying the cost of power operation per car mile for November 1925, results in a total for the full twelve months of $3,776,301 or but $108,699 below the company budget. If the cost per car mile for December 1924 be applied, the difference is reduced to $79,688. Realizing that it is quite possible that the cost per car mile in December 1925 may be in excess of that the preceding month and also that the ratio of increase in the car mileage for the periods used may not be the same, this Commission accepts the Company estimate for 1925 in considering the future requirement for this item.

Conducting Transportation

Mr. Bibbins estimated for this account for 1925 the sum of $15,942,000; the company receded from its original budgetary figure of $16,224,000 and conceding that the City's study having been made at a later date and accordingly on a longer perjod of actual experience, was the more accurate, adopted the city estimate.

Mr. Bibbins' estimate may now be subjected to test of actual experience for eleven months of 1925. For this eleven months period the total is $14,527,851.90 and with December estimated, the figure agreed upon by the Company is clearly justified as proper to be taken in testing the present fare.

General and Miscellaneous

The Company's estimates falling under the General and Miscellaneous group of accounts are not challenged in the City's brief, although much data was submitted on this item.

The record shows that these expenditures have increased from $2,690,294 in 1919 to $4,483,209 in 1924. The Company's estimate for 1925 is $4,750,880 exclusive of the Mitten Management Fee. The total on the basis of the filed reports with December estimated is $4,723,000.

Comparisons were made in the record with Chicago, directed to show that the applicant's budget is relatively high.

It is patent that no comparison of expenditures of this nature can be of doubtful value unless the circumstances and conditions in the two cities are strictly comparable and unless the classes of expenditures covered are the same. As to the detailed circumstances the record in the present case does not enable us to find the necessary similarity to give force to the comparison. As to the classes of expenditure covered, there are several imporant items of expense which are here charged to General and Miscellaneous while in Chicago the same items are charged to other accounts.

Furthermore, even if the necessary similarity were established any comparison which comprehended merely the amount spent without considering also the results achieved would be abortive. The object of General and Miscellaneous expenditures is to provide the supervision and planning necessary to make present operations efficient and effective and, as to the future, to keep the company in position to keep pace with the progress of the City. As to present operations, the Company in 1924 operated its system at an operating ration of 73%. For the same year the Chicago System, with similar fares, was operated at 80%. If results are to be the test this result justified the Company's policy and expenditures. By this test the money spent has been well spent for both the stockholder and the car rider.

It is urged that the Company's General and Miscellaneous Expenditures for the last few years have included large items for litigation expenses that may not recur. It is true that they may not, but we cannot say that they will not, for the Company, like any other citizen has an inalienable right to defend or assert its rights in all appropriate courts and tribunals.

The 1925 Reports reflect expenditures for valuation which were charged to the valuation and law expense accounts of about $30,000. This may well be a recurring sum when it is considered that good business judgment would dictate the proprietry of keeping the valuation revised for tax and other purposes. Furthermore, we can foresee in the future the possible need of additional expenditures, under the head of General and Miscellaneous, which if incurred, will more than offset any possible having in litigation and valuation expense. The planning and supervision incident to the Sesqui-Centennial—the solution of traffic congestion and the possible operation of the City's Broad Street subway for which negotiations have already been opened, may be instanced.

There is one further aspect of this subject which a regulatory body cannot overlook. The Commission cannot, undertake to become the managers of this or any other utility and substitute its discretion for that of the managers. It is in the activities covered by the General and Miscellaneous accounts that the very heart and essence of management is found. Except in a clear case of bad management no regulatory Commission would be warranted in interfering in this vital matter.

The record shows no supporting basis for a revision downward in the sub-accounts, Salaries and Expenses of General Officers; Salaries and Expenses of General Office Clerks; General Office Supplies and Equipment, Relief Department, Pensions and Gratuities; Injuries and Damages; Insurance; Stationary and Printing; Store Expense; and Garage and Stable Expense. The Commission is not convinced that the annual payment of $50,000 to the Willow Grove Park Company is not a proper operating charge. Moreover the figures estimated for 1925, for Non-operating Income ($235,000) is the same figure submitted for 1923 and it seems clear, reflects Willow Grove Park dividends ($88,440) received by the Company in the last mentioned year.

Any reduction in the other sub-accounts, Law Expense, Valuation expense, Rent of Tracks and Facilities, and Miscellaneous would either be arbitrary or so small as to have no effect on the total, in considering the future requirements of the company.

For these reasons we conclude there is no warrant for disallowing any part of the Company's 1925 appropriation of $4,750,880 as proper operating expense.

Taxes

Taxes charged by the Company to operating expenses are stated in the 1925 reports to the Commission on an accrual basis and total with the accrual estimated by the Commission for December, at $3,031,900.

The record presents more detailed studies for the year 1924 and will be accordingly used as a basis of discussion. The taxes accrued and in most instances paid during that year are:

Federal
Income	$979,000.00
Capital Stock	15,532.00

The License Taxes, City of Philadelphia Paving Tax, Gross Receipts Tax and Federal Capital Stock Tax, are indisputably allowable charges to operation and require no comment.

The Real and Personal Property Taxes are local taxes and undoubtedly include those levied on non-useful as well as useful property. The record affords no basis for an allocation. Any rents from the non-useful property are undoubtedly reflected in the income accounts but whether they exceed the taxes paid thereon is likewise a matter upon which the record is not clear. Without doubt these taxes in so far as they relate to used and useful property are a proper charge to operating expenses but the record affords no basis for making a deduction from the aggregate figures submitted.

It is now settled that the State Loans Tax is not an operating charge (Bangor Water Co. vs. Commission 82 Pa. Super Ct. 48) and this is so whether the loan tax is paid on the company's own obligations or those of underlying companies.

The dividend taxes are payable made pursuant to impositions expressly contained in charters of certain underlying companies. Some of them are computed on the dividends in excess of six per cent and others are on all the dividends when such dividends exceed six per cent. These payments are conditions upon which the franchises were granted and in the Commission's judgment differ in no respect so far as the question here involved, to wit, whether they are proper charges to operation, is concerned, than conditions contained in municipal franchise ordinances or the so called city paying tax.

This leaves for consideration the Federal Income tax and the State Capital Stock tax in respect to their relation between the lessor and lessee companies.

Each lease contains covenants that the lessee shall maintain and operate the property, as well as pay taxes thereon. Thus all maintenance expenditures by the Company are made upon the property of its lessors and are compelled to be made by covenants in the leases. Similarly the costs of operating are costs which the Company has undertaken in its leases to pay. The same is true as to taxes; for example, real estate taxes on demised property. All such payments are, as between landlord and tenant, part of the rent and may even be distrained for; Fernwood Masonic Hall vs. Jones, 102 Pa. 307. The paving obligations before the Commission in the Swarthmore case (Borough of Swarthmore vs. Philadelphia, Morton and Swarthmore Street Railway Company, 10 P. C. R. 116) were obligations of underlying companies, and assumed by the operator in the leases, including paving and other obligations not pertinent to the railway strip. In our judgment is could not be successfully contended that such payments are not proper operating expenses merely because the operator has undertaken the active duties of public service and assumed the expenses and taxes incident thereto. Regulation is not so much concerned with the leases or their terms but rather deals with the operating company and allows or disallows each item of operating expense and tax on its merits alone. Of course no utility can claim extra expense or allowance for taxes and operation because of some term in the leases by which it possesses and operates the property, and conversely no operating lessee can be denied allowance for a proper operating or tax item merely because it is a lessee and not a fee owner. There cannot in this Commission's judgment be one rule for computing the budgets of leased systems and another for computing the budgets of owned systems. The Commission disregards the leases (which are beyond its regulatory powers) and allows or disallows each payment on its merits. This we construe as the true rule of the Citizens Passenger Railway Case, 271 Pa. 39, 56, where it is expressly stated that the terms of the leases

> "do not help to determine the value of existing assets or the cost of present operation."

The same thought is implicit in Justice Brandeis' statement in the Galveston case, to wit:

> "All taxes which would be payable if a fair return were earned are appropriate deductions."

Under the coherent rule of these two cases, it is clear that if the tax question is one which must be paid regardless of who operates the property, then it is an allowable expense and the mere fact that it has been passed from one company to another by a lease does not affect this conclusion. Such taxes arise from charter, ordinance or the taxing power of the sovereign. The lease does not create them; it merely passes them on. On the other hand, if it should appear in a given case that a particular lease had itself entailed a new tax or an increment in an old tax, such new tax or increment should unquestionably be disallowed as an operating expense. Important questions of this character were entailed by the operation of the old excess profits tax and would again arise should that tax be renewed, for the basis for the tax was the relationship of income to invested capital and thus a high rate of rental under a particular lease had the effect of substantially augmenting the tax. But the excess profits tax has been repealed and it is noticeable that the present federal corporate income tax is assessed at the flat rate of 12½% unaffected by any question of the ratio of income to invested capital.

Thus in examining the tax items under consideration paid by the company in the present case, the point to be determined is whether each item would be allowable or disallowable if the company owned outright the entire system;—and the determination so reached should be controlling.

The Supreme Court has unformly held the State Capital Stock tax to be a property tax. Commonwealth vs. Standard Oil Company, 101 Pa. 119; and numerous subsequent cases. The method of assessing it is to appraise the property value of the capital stock, capitalize corporate earnings and ascertain the intrinsic value of the property itself. If the company itself owned all the property so that all the outstanding stock was the stock of the company, the total tax based on total earnings would be the same as the present total, viz. $528,000, (figure for 1924). The fact that, under the system of leases, part of the stock is that of owning companies and part the operating company's owned stock, ought not to vary the total amount of the tax. Furthermore, if the terms of the leases throw to the lessors an undue share of earnings and thus allocate to their stock a disproportionate share of the total tax, this should operate in relief of the tax assessed directly against the company's owned stock. The tax, should be allowed in full on the basis of reports filed. It amounts to $579,615 for 1925.

The Federal Corporate Income tax is assessed at the flat rate of 12½% on all net corporate incomes. The amount of the tax is no different in the case of an operating utility which itself keeps all of its income than where it is divided with lessor companies. To disallow in a leased system an expense which would be allowed in an owned system does not appear to be sustainable as a proposition of law. The whole total of income taxes should therefore be handled as prescribed in the Galveston case. The rule of the Galveston case directs: First, that the Federal corporate income tax be included in the operating budget; Second, that, because the resulting tax exemption to the stockholder is an enhancement of his return, the fact of the inclusion must be borne in mind in fixing fair return.

The true rule under the Galveston Case and in City of York vs. Public Service Commission 85 Pa. Super. Ct. 139 in our judgment is to first include the total tax in expenses and then deduct the amount of the resulting exemption from the fair return otherwise allowable. The tax is 12½%. The exemption (from normal personal tax) will under the new revenue law be a maximum of 5%, which is just 40% of the amount of the corporate tax. The amount to be allowed for 1925 appearing on estimate to be $1,110,000, there should be deducted from allowable fair return the sum of $444,000. This is in strict accord with Justice Brandeis' exact words, which are:

> "Under Sec. 216, the stockholder does not include in the income on which the normal federal tax is payable dividends received from the corporation. This tax exemption is, therefore, in effect, part of the return on the investment."

To summarize the Commission will allow for 1925, in operating expenses the following taxes:

Federal:
Income	$1,110,000
Capital Stock	21,735
State:
Capital Stock and Corporate Loans	579,615
Gross Receipts	390,543
Local:
Real and Personal Property	175,733
Paving	555,000
Dividend	115,579
License	3,286
Total	$2,951,491

Sinking Fund

Under the terms of the 1907 contract the Company is required to pay the City certain sums as a Sinking Fund which can be used by the City to purchase the property in 1957. The City, however, is not required to use the fund for this purpose. These payments now amount to $180,000 per annum. The contract provides that "these payments shall be treated by the Company as fixed charges reducing the income applicable to dividends to its stockholders and to the City." In view of this clear provision of the contract the Commission concludes that payments to the Sinking Fund must be paid by the Company out of fair return.

Frankford Rentals

No challenge is made by the City and we think under the facts of record no convincing reasons exist for excluding the amounts paid by the Company to the City for operation of the Frankford Elevated, from the Company's budget. The property does not appear in the appraisal in the valuation expense. The record does afford indications of the value of the Elevated property and until the rentals equal or exceed a fair return on the value of this city owned property the practice of the Company in classing the payment as an operating charge is approved.

What is more pertinent to be observed in considering the application of this charge to the present fare, is the fact that under the contract with the city, approved by this Commisison, the amount of the charge will in 1926 increase $156,000 over the 1925 figure and that for the year 1927 the sum will increase over 1926 in the sum of $156,000.

Motor Bus Revenues and Expenses

The applicant owns all of the stock of the Philadelphia Rural Transit Company which operates a number of bus lines throughout the city and adjoining counties and of the Pennsylvania Rapid Transit Company which operates a line of trackless trolleys in South Philadelphia. No investigation has been made as to the operating expenses or revenues of these companies nor were their respective properties included in the valuation. It appears, however, that during 1925 the Philadelphia Rural Transit Company incurred a deficit of about $200,000.

In the original presentation of its case the applicant excluded the bus and trackless trolleys from their estimates but later contended that the revenues and expenses of these two companies should be merged with those of the applicant for rate making purposes. So far as the actual disposition of the present case is concerned the question is not of great importance. It is true that in April 1925, the company estimated that the loss in bus operations during the year would be $453,000 but experience has not justified this estimate and in its brief the company accepts the city's estimate of a loss of $212,000. The Commission is of the opinion that it is not called upon to determine at this time whether the operation of motor busses should be considered as merged in and consolidated with the street car operation in a rate proceeding.

The results of our determinations with respect to Revenues and Expenses may be summarized as follows:

Operating Revenues
Estimated Passenger Revenue	$49,018,357
Other Operating Revenue	707,000
Total		$49,725,357
Operating Expenses
Maintenance and Renewals	$ 8,560,400
Power Operation	3,885,000
Conducting Transportation	15,942,000
General and Miscellaneous	4,750,880
Taxes	2,951,491
Frankford Elevated Rental	468,120
Total Deductions from Operating Revenue		$36,557,891
Operating Income		$13,167,466
Non Operating Income		235,000
Available for Fair Return		$13,402,466

The sole issue to be now passed on is the reasonableness of the present fares. The Company by its application herein asked leave to make those fares effective. Upon the prima facie showing made upon the original hearing we granted the prayer of the application by our temporary order of September 8, 1924, affirmed by the Superior Court and now in effect.

We have now upon final hearing carefully weighed all of the evidence adduced and each legal question raised. Our findings thereon as set forth above lead us to the final conclusion that the present fares have been shown to be neither unjust nor unlawful and that the Company has established its right to collect them.

Conclusion

This amount of $13,402,466 is below the return contemplated as fair in the valuation case even when the deduction ($444,000) on account of Federal Income tax is included in the equation. When it be considered that the Frankford Rentals alone will increase during 1926 in the sum of $156,000 and that increases will also occur in substantial amount in Gross Receipt taxes, and other items in the operating budget, the margin will be accordingly increased.

An order will accordingly enter dismissing all of the protests and granting the application of the Company.

Order

This matter being before The Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, upon petition, protests and answers on file, and having been duly heard and submitted by the parties and full investigation of the matters and things involved having been had, and the Commission having on the date hereof made and filed of record a report containing its findings of fact and conclusions thereon, which said report is hereby approved and made a part thereof:

Now, to-wit, January 12, 1926, it is ordered: That the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company be and is hereby permitted to file, post and publish, to become effective forthwith a new tariff schedule to be designated P. S. C. Pa. No. 87, to contain the rates and fares set forth in and to supersede tariff P. S. C. Pa. No. 84, now in effect under order of the Commission dated September 8, 1924, said rates and fares being identical with the tariff schedule accompanying the petition filed in this case.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION
OF THE
COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
WM. D. B. AINEY, Chairman.

Attest: Jno. G. Hopwood, Secretary.
(Seal)

I dissent from the conclusion reached by the majority of the Commission in the application of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company for the approval of an increase in its schedule of rates.

In my opinion, the record shows that the present rate of fare produces a return on the investment in excess of a fair return. The principles involved are important and I shall file a minority report as soon as I can prepare it, setting forth the reasons for my dissent.

(Signed) RICHARD W. MARTIN, Commissioner.

Commissioners Scattergood and Evans refrain from voting on the report in re application of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company for approval of an increase in its rates, for the reason that the Bureau of Accounts and Statistics will be unable to complete its analysis of the testimony on renewals for ten days or two weeks; and the said Commissioners feel that, until such report is received, they will not be in a position adequately and fully to pass on one of the important questions involved. They reserve the right to file separate reports at a later date.

CONCURRING REPORT

Benn, Commissioner:

The Commission's order of January 12, 1926, disposed of the single issue which was before the Commission in this proceeding since the filing of the company's application on July 21, 1924, viz., the reasonableness of the fares then proposed and now in effect.

In the fall of 1924, after the company had completed its evidence in chief in support of its application, the Commission was unanimous in the finding that the company had fully met, prma facie, the burden of justifying the proposed fares. And accordingly by Commission order of September 8, 1924, the fares were made effective until further order. The Commission's order of September 8, 1924, as well as the supporting finding that the burden of proof had been met, was affirmed by the Superior Court on appeal.

A year's actual test of the rates, and the great mass of testimony presented prior to the order of January 12, 1926, have strengthened rather than lessened the justification of the present rates and of the Commission's action in approving them. Every member of the Commission who passed upon the case at all its stages has, upon careful consideration of all the evidence, adhered to the original conclusion, notwithstanding pressure brought to bear outside the record. It is regrettable that the Commission's final conclusion was not unanimous, particularly in view of the unrestrained expressions of executive dissatisfaction with the Commission's action upon the evidence upon which the order of September 8, 1924, was based. Administration of regulatory law will become a mockery, and merit disrepute, if it ever subjects itself to even the appearance of outside interference or domination.

The majority of the Commission, in this as in all cases, was solicitous for unanimous concurrence in the final disposition. With this end in view a draft of opinion was prepared which followed in many important particulars the views of the minority, and which demonstrated that even upon such a basis the present fares were unquestionably justified. Although the opinion as adopted represented in large degree a "composing of minds," it does not seem to have effected thereby the result of unanimous approval.

In these circumstances, I deem it my duty to present, unmodified by attempted "composing of minds," the views which I have held as to certain important aspects of the question at issue on the three occasions when I have been required as a member of the Commission to pass upon it. These views were unanimously held at the time of the Valuation decision; they were unanimously held at the time of our first approval of the present fares; and I believe them today to be held by a majority of the Commission.

Revenue

I have nothing to add to the discussion of revenue in the majority opinion. The Commission's temporary approval (September 8, 1924) of the present fares was influenced largely by the desire to have actual results before it in place of estimates. Those results are now before the Commission and should unquestionably be adhered to in reaching a decision, as in fact was done in the majority opinion. To discard established facts in favor of unsupported prophecy would be patently unwarranted and unsound.

Wages

I concur in the majority opinion that the company's wages, typified by the 77c. maximum hourly rate, are no more than proper compensation for the work done by the men. Furthermore, the action of the company's directors in making this full wage an absolute commitment, in my judgment effectively removes any possible question that it is, in toto, a wage. The argument to the contrary, based on the fact that the directors took this step without a stock vote, is based on a misconception of the law of the State and the Commission's function. The law commits the management of the business of a corporation to its directors. They, and the officers whom they appoint have both the right and the duty to act for and commit the corporation in all matters connected with the prosecution of the business. That the fixing of wages falls within this field is too plain to admit of doubt. Furthermore, we deal with each public service company acting through its directors and officers and not with the stockholders. Should any question ever arise between the stockholders and directors of such a company, its adjudication is confided to the Courts and not to this Commission. And, in the present instance, it has not appeared that any such question has arisen or that a single stockholder has in any way questioned the action of the managing officials in this matter. The interjection of any such question by this Commission would be wholly gratuitous and unauthorized.

In brief as to wages, I hold (1) that the record indubitably establishes as a matter of fact that the maximum wage rate of 77c. per hour is a just and reasonable operating expense; and, (2) as a matter of law the company having removed the contingent feature of the wages which was disapproved in a finding by the Supreme Court, such removal of the contingencies makes the entire wage an absolute commitment. The fact that a part of the wage is, by the men's direction, paid to their trustees for group investment does not make such payment any the less a wage either in fact or in law.

Maintenance and Renewals

The annual appropriation of $8,560,400 has remained unchanged since 1921 and was the subject of attack in the Valuation Case. It there received the Commission's approval and that approval was affirmed by the Superior Court. As appears from the majority opinion, the sum is much under the average when compared with expenditures for the same purpose in other comparable cities. Allowing that reasonable latitude and margin of safety which should be accorded to efficient management, the company's maintenance and renewal appropriation was in my judgment further justified by the studies of the experts employed by the City.

Inasmuch as one of the non-concurring expressions of opinion attached to the Commission's report and order of January 12, 1926, implied that the Commission arrived at its decision without the completed assistance of its technical bureaus, I deem it only proper to state that extensive analysis and report of the Commission's Engineering Bureau gave no reasonable doubt that the annual appropriation of $8,560,400, was proper and reasonable. Furthermore, the major questions involved, as presented in the record and in fact, were engineering rather than accounting. It is also only fair to further state that the entire and completed reports of the Accounting Bureau, as well as of the Engineering Bureau, give no grounds or conclusions upon which the majority finding upon the question of maintenance and renewals can be reasonably attacked or disputed.

As I read the dissenting report which has been filed, it is based largely upon the figures, theories, deductions and conclusions of Dr. Milo R. Maltbie, who was called as a witness by the Commission. It is needless to refer to the circumstances under which Dr. Maltbie's services were imposed upon the Commission. Nor is there necessity for going into the question of the qualifications of this witness, or of the soundness of either his theories or computations.

The record will speak for itself in that respect. But it does seem proper to advert to some of the bases of the conclusions reached by this witness, inasmuch as these conclusions seem to have had much attention in the minority report, especially in the matter of annual depreciation.

Any study of the amount of depreciation accruing annually upon items of depreciable property must necessarily be based on some figure representing the cost or value of the items of such property.

The classification of accounts for electric railways prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission and made mandatory by this Commission, effective January 1, 1926, describes this basic figure as "ledger value."

The Company contended in the present case that "ledger value" must be interpreted to mean cost at present prices, it being argued that the adoption of any lower figure as a basis for computing depreciation would produce a fund insufficient to replace the depreciated item at the end of the service life. The Valuation record contains detailed evidence of the cost at 1919 prices of the various items in the Company's property and as to most of the items the Company and the City, represented by Mr. Feustel, were in agreement. The Company is understood to be at the present time engaged in setting up depreciation tables in compliance with the Commission's order, effective January 1, 1926. Due to the fact that that order was not effective in past years no such tables had been kept by the Company prior to the time of the hearings in this case and therefore none is in evidence before the Commission. The only figure of this character submitted by the Company is a tentative lump sum estimate submitted by Mr. Myers of $3,500,000 per year (1914a). This estimate is in general accord with the detailed tables prepared on the same basis by Mr. Feustel. These appear at pages 44 and 45 of his revised report and produce annual accrued depreciation of $3,521,609.

As contrasted with present cost, the only other basis for computing a table of annual accrued depreciation is original cost. A complete search of the entire record (including the record in the Valuation Case) discloses that the only evidence or study of original cost before the Commission is that presented by Mr. Feustel in the Valuation Case. His figures were attacked by the Company as incomplete, inaccurate and based in a large measure not upon any evidence of original cost but on historical estimate made in the absence of such record and assuming the date of conditions prevailing on that date. The reliabiliy of these figures was directly in issue before the Commission in the Valuation Case and the Commission's ruling on them was as follows:

> "This data was arranged and segregated into several separate subjects, the three most important of which were termed by the City 'Original Cost.' 'Historical Cost' and 'Cumulative Investment'. As to the first two, 'Original cost' and 'Historical cost,' no extended comment is necessary. Despite the diligence and skill used in compiling these estimates, it was admitted by the experts who presented them that it had been found largely impossible to locate accurate or complete data as to the actual cost of constructing a large part of the property now operated by the company, so that both the figures of original cost and of historical cost were largely in the nature of present estimates of past conditions. There are great difficulties in the way of an accurate estimation of even present costs of construction and when the estimator is compelled to go beyond present and known conditions to undertake the task of estimating what was the actual cost of property purchased and installed decades ago, the difficulties are much magnified and in this particular case most apparent. In many cases, it was possible to test these past estimates by later discovered vouchers, in most of which substantial discrepancies between fact and estimate exceeded in some important matters 100%. This development was sufficient to convince us that these figures of original cost and historical cost could not safely be relied upon as a controlling basis for our decision."

Opportunity was available during the hearings in the present case to supplement and complete these condemned figures or to cure them of their fatal defects if such were possible. However, neither the City nor Dr. Maltbie nor anyone else taking part in the present proceedings undertook this task. Dr. Maltbie did, however, adopt the precise figures of Mr. Feustel which the Commission had condemned, as the basis for his tables Nos. 300 and 301 appearing at pages 790b and 791b of the printed record, and purporting to show annual allowances for accuring depreciation on the Company's depreciable property.

It must be borne in mind that figures based initially upon what was assumed to be the original cost resulting in large measure from historical study which had after consideration been rejected by the Commission, furnish at best an unstable basis for findings and conclusions.

Commencing January 1, 1926, the Commission has required the Company to follow the Classification of Accounts for Electric Railways prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission and under this new system of accounting the blanket figure of $8,560,400 will disappear. The record fails to demonstrate that that figure has been excessive in the past, nor does it convincingly reveal that a smaller aggregate sum will be required in the future under the new system.

Taxes

What taxes are properly chargeable against operation and what must be borne by the owners of the utility depends not at all upon the utility's corporate structure; nor does the fact that an operating lessee has covenanted to pay certain taxes in the name of the lessor, have, in itself, any bearing upon the question, or operate to convert an item of expense into an item of rent.

As to the federal corporate income tax, the total amount of the tax is the same regardless of whether it is assessed in toto against the operating company or apportioned among the constituent companies. Furthermore, the Supreme Court of the United States has definitely held that the whole of the income tax is a proper item for conclusion in the operating budget. The effect of so including it is to increase to some extent the ultimate return to the owners of the property. Thus the Supreme Court rule obliges regulatory bodies, of which this Commission is one, to bear in mind the fact of the inclusion in fixing the rate of fair return. This rule in all its parts was laid down by Mr. Justice Brandeis in the Galveston case, in clear and unmistakable language. The Commission considered the rule and applied it in the Valuation Case, fixing fair return at seven per cent after, and mindful of, the inclusion of the full tax in the budget. The Commission's action in so doing was affirmed by the Superior Court. To apply any different rule now would not only violate the principle of stare decisis but would be inconsistent with the mature conclusions then reached and still held by a majority of the Commission. The majority opinion is not to be read as departing from the Commission's former ruling in this regard. The suggestion there made that even if the unrealizable maximum of resulting advantage to the owners be deducted from their minimum return the present fares would still fall short of yielding the resulting sum, was advanced solely arguendo and in the application of a test of ultra legal strictness to the rate schedule before us.

To avoid any possible undersanding to the contrary, I take this occasion to make clear that I adhere to the ruling pronounced in the Valuation Case and judicially affirmed fixing seven per cent as the rate of fair return on the valuation of the Company's property after the inclusion in the operating budget of the full federal corporate income tax.

The decision of the Superior Court in the York Water Case, (85 Pa. Super. Ct. 139) in my judgment, clearly sustains this position. There is no comparison possible between the controlling facts in the York Water Company and the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company cases. All the circumstances of utility operation, finances, corporate structure, obligations of service, etc., are such that would justify an even wider spread in the net fair returns that have been found for these utilities by the Commission and passed upon by the courts.

Another concession made in the majority opinion to further test the soundness of the conclusion was the suggested elimination from operating expenses of the annual payment by the Company into the City Sinking Fund under the 1907 contract. The argument that this payment is not a proper operating expense is based solely on the technical language of the contract and overlooks the true origin and character of the payment. Like all payments under that contract it is, as between the City and the Company, in the nature of a fixed charge, in the sense that it must be paid before the Company's net earnings are computed. In origin and character however it is a continuing franchise payment fixed. The Sinking Fund payment, the paving payment and the dividend taxes represent together the continuing price which the Company must pay to the City for the enjoyment of its franchises to occupy the streets. There is no dispute as to the equities involved. Legal objections that have been raised are at best based upon technicalities. All are in my judgment proper budget items.

Total Operative Budget

Following the conclusions above discussed I am of opinion that the Company has justified an operating budget as of the year 1925 of $36,819,520 exclusive of bus losses and made up as follows:

Maintenance and Renewals	$ 8,560,400
Power Operation	3,885,000
Conducting Transportation	15,942,000
General and Miscellaneous	4,750,000
Taxes	3,034,000
Frankford Elevated Rental	468,120
City Sinking Fund Payment	160,000
Total	$36,819,520

This deducted from the revenue of $49,725,357 leaves available for fair return $12,905,855. I am further of the opinion that proven bus losses should be deducted from this figure just as in the future bus earnings should be added to it. The principle has already been approved by the Commission in passing on the consent ordinances for bus operation, and in my judgment is in strict accord with the principles apparent in the Supreme Court decision in the Duquesne case (273 Pa. 287). It would appear to be clear that the consent ordinances for bus operation adpoted by the Philadelphia City Council are constructively, amendments of the 1907 contract. The Commission was insistent that the City should have the same right of recovery of bus lines and faciliies as it possesses in the contract for the recovery of the street railway system. Further, the Commission has consistently held to the administrative policy that operation of bus lines in coordination with electric and steam systems, and augmenting and supplementing the service of the latter to the public, is not only greatly to the public interest but indissolubly connected with the management and operation of such transportation systems.

Fair Value and Return

To test the propriety of the present fares as measured by the earnings, the net rate of seven per cent on the minimum value of $200,000,000 was properly applied in the mapority opinion. But it is a minimum and not a complete measure of permssible earnings under the law and the constitution. It was so used in the Valuation Case and has been so used again by the Commission.

The Commission has never held that $200,000,000 is the fair value of this property for rate-making purposes. It plainly said that the fair value was "substantially upwards of $200,000,000." And that finding was affirmed by the Superior Court. The rate of seven per cent is the minimum limit, as used by the Commission in this case, and not the full measure of a fair return. The upper limit of permissible fares and revenues is found in the reasonableness of the fares themselves. Between these two limits the Commission's administrative discretion is properly exercisable.

In the exercise of that discretion the Commission is permitted by the express terms of the Public Service Company Law to accord to the Company a fair share of the substantial results from efficiencies and economies produced in operation and management. It is contended, and I believe properly so, that the rate of wages paid to the men discharges the obligations due to them resulting from the efficiencies and economies created by their very high standard of service to the Company and the public. No claim has been made for any compensation to the Mitten Management nor has the recent finding of the Commission in its order of January 12 made any allowance for the participation of either management or stockholders in the conceded efficiencies and economies of the Company's operation. None is necessary in arriving at the conclusion reached in the Commission's report and order but it is well to bear this factor in mind in applying any yardstick or thumbrule to the fair return allowable to the Company.

It must be borne in mind that the rate of fare which has been found just and reasonable by the Commission will not, in all probability, remain unaffected by changes in conditions and circumstances that will take place before even one-half of the three-year period of repose prescribed in the Act has elapsed. It is within the judicial knowledge of the Commission that negotiations between the City and Company in reference to the operation of the Broad Street subway, now under construction by the City, will be entered into either before the close of the present calendar year, or shortly thereafter. The Company will be asked to undertake the operation of this great municipal improvement. It will have cost more than $100,000,000 and be impossible of self-sustaining operation. The City and the Company will thus have before them the problem to determine to what extent the carrying charges can be met by the rate of fare charged and to what extent the carrying charges can be met out of other revenues.

In dealing with transportation and rate questions affecting the applicant company, the Commission has always borne in mind the relationship between the Company and the City of Philadelphia, under the Contract of 1907. This is peculiiarly and essentially a partnership relationship, binding the interests of utility and municipality firmly in all matters of transportaton. The contract was executed long prior to the enactment of the Public Service Company Law, and has been accepted and dealt with by the Commission as a fundamental factor in all the problems of rendering transportation service in the City of Philadelphia. In my judgment, the public interest will best be served if the partnership relationship shall be strengthened and encouraged to meet the necessities for great impending development and expansion in the City's transportation facilities.

The Company has frequqently expressed its desire to return to a five cent fare and so recover if possible the bulk of short riding which it claims to have lost when the 5 cent base fare was increased. The integration of the City's Broad Street Subway with the present system may be the opportunity of adjusting more accurately the rate paid to the length and character of ride received, and it may well be that in agreeing upon the terms under which operation of this facility is to be undertaken as a part of the general system of transportation, something in the nature of a zone fare with a five cent base may be adopted.

Whatever may be the basis agreed upon by the City and Company for the operation of the Broad Street Subway and the remaining high speed lines to be constructed by the City, it is entirely within the probabilities that the whole problem of urban transportaton in the City of Philadelphia will come up for review in the impending negotiations. It is not going too far afield to assume that the City may decide to exercise its rights under the Act of July 19, 1917, and the Constitutional Amendment of November 2, 1920, to eliminate once and for all the burdensome situation caused by the continuance of the so-called underlying companies. The Commission is cognizant of the fact that in June, 1925, the Mayor of Philadelphia directed the attention of City Council in an official message to this subject. The Mayor pointed out the possibilities for not only acquiring municipal ownership of the underlying companies, but of reducing fixed charges so as to greatly lighten the burden upon both taxpayer and car rider.

If there was any doubt that the record completely sustains the justness and reasonableness of the existing fares, which I believe there is not, or if there was any way in which the Commission could whittle off a fraction of a cent in the fare by an attempt at reducing wages, or crimping maintenance, renewals, or any other items of expense in operation, I would still believe it to be short sighted policy to do so, in view of the obligations for developng transportation service which have been assumed by both City and Company. If a long era of unceasing litigation involving partners who for nearly twenty years have been bound in contract agreement shall be followed by one on which a similar degree of intensive effort is expanded in constructive development, the car rider and taxpayer will undoubtedly both be gainers.

CONCURRING REPORT

Stewart, Commissioner:

With the conclusion reached in the Commission's report and order of January 12, 1926, I am in entire accord. In my judgment, no other conclusion would be just and reasonable, upon the record before the Commission and the facts and law governing the case.

An extended review of the various findings in the majority report is rendered unnecessary by the fact that, as I view it, no reasonable conjunction of divergent views would lead to any other conclusion than the one embodied in the Commission's order. By way of illustration, I may say that my own views upon the subject of depreciation are not entirely in accordance with those expressed in any of the written opinions presented in this case. But so far as they might diverge from the findings upon this subject in the majority opinion, they are more than offset by my individual views and conclusions upon such economic phases of the case as are presented in the questions of wages, taxation, bus operation and continued efficiency in service.

Upon one important matter involved in the transportation problems of Philadelphia, as they have been revealed in this case and brought within the cognizance of the Commission, I desre to express the emphasis of individual opinion.

It has also been referred to in the concurring report of Commissioner Benn, and with his expressions on the subject I am in complete accord. That is, the relationship existing between the City and Company under the 1907 contract, and the obligations resting upon, and the opportunities open to, both parties for the exercise of constructive effort in the development of transportation facilities for the public service.

No review of, or conclusion upon, the fare situation is comprehensive or all-embracing unless it takes into consideration the known factors that have arisen in connection with the Broad Street Subway and the remaining projected city-built high speed lines. No foreseeable rate of fare that can be imposed upon car riders will suffice to absorb the estimated deficits of operation. Will the taxpayer, as in the case of New York subways, be called upon to sustain the burden, in whole or in part? Will a zoning system, or some other method of equitable distribution of costs in relation to service performed, answer the purpose? Or can a way be found to lessen the prospective burden upon both rate-payer and taxpayer?

As a proposition of economies I believe that the legal possibilities for the reduction of carrying charges, by municipal absorption of the properties of the underlying companies, should be availed of. Since the clear light of the Supreme Court decision in the Citizens Passenger Railway case has established the legal status of the underlying company situation, it has manifestly been plain that the road of escape from the perpetual burden of fixed charges lies in the exercise of the Constitutional and Statutory rights possessed by the municipality. If this road shall be taken, it is beyond conjecture that the employment of the city's credit would of itself be a considerable factor in the saving of fixed charges, as an offset to the certain addition to fixed charges which the construction and operation of the new subways will entail.

With the solution of these questions a problem for the immediate future, it can be seen that the whole present Philadelphia Rapid Transit fare structure is likely to be involved. If a new or greatly extended contract relationship between City and Company shall result, the door of opportunity will open not only for the rectification of mistakes of past generations, but also for the establishment of a basis of sound economic conditions for the entire transportation facilities of the City of Philadelphia.

MINORITY REPORT

The majority of the Commission, by a report filed January 12, 1926, granted the application of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company (hereinafter called "Company") for leave to file a tariff superseding Tariff P. S. C. Pa. No. 81, and increasing the rates of fare specified therein. When that report was filed, Commissioners Scattergood and Evans, having voted against the result reached by the majority, refused to vote upon the report, for the reason that they had not completed their study of the case and that the Commisison's Bureau of Accounts and Statistics had not completed its analysis of the testimony on the subject of renewals at the time the vote was taken, and they reserved the right to file separate reports at a later date.

Commissioner Martin dissented from the conclusion reached by the majority on the ground that the record shows that the proposed rate of fare produces a return on the investment in excess of a fair return.

Under the circumstances, a minority report could not be filed simultaneously with the vote that was taken and could not be completed until the present time.

The case is important, not only because the temporary increase in fare, now made permanent, affects vitally the citizens of Philadelphia, but especially because the majority ignored some of the principles upon which it should have been decided, which are vital to the effective regulation of public utilities.

It is important that these principles should be stated in order that the underlying errors may not be firmly set in our jurisprudence without protest.

Prior to June 1, 1920, the base fare for electric street railways in Philadelphia had always been five cents, with certain free transfer and three-cent-exchange privileges. The Commission had never been called upon to investigate the reasonableness of the rates. On June 1, 1920, the Company filed a tariff (P. S. C. Pa. No. 68), substituting three-cent exchanges for the free transfers above mentioned.

The City of Philadelphia and others protested and asked that the property of the Company be valued. Pending the valuation, the Commission made a temporary order, fixing the fare at seven cents cash, with four tickets for twenty-five cents, and continuing the free transfer and three-cent exchange privileges. This order was limited to a period of six months, at the end of which time the rates so fixed were adopted by the Company, and the case was continued as a complaint against the reasonableness of the fares so established.

That case is now commonly called the "Valuation Case." Hearings in it were concluded on May 13, 1923. The testimony covered six thousand pages, and two thousand additional pages were required for the printing of the exhibits in the case. Argument was had on June 11, 1923; and on June 21, 1923, the Commission filed a report fixing the fair value of the property used and useful in the public service at "substantially upwards of $200,000,000." The Commission stated: "An assumed rate base as low as $200.000,000 with seven per cent as the fair rate of return results in the amount of $14,000,000 as the fair return."

Although the operating revenue for 1922 had been only $42,530,000 and the estimate for the 1923 revenue was only $44,736,000 as against an allowable gross revenue of $47,686,000 which the Company claimed, the Commission further stated: "The present rates (seven cents cash —four tickets for twenty-five cents) and the revenues and credits which they produce should make possible further and continued improvement and extension of transportation service and facilities in Philadelphia to meet the growing needs of the City." This suggestion was in harmony with the statement in the Company's brief, dated June 11, 1923, that the evidence "shows conclusively that the present rates are not unreasonable; that they are fair to both the Company and its patrons and assure a continuance of improving and extended service vitally needed in the public interest." No detailed analysis of revenue and expenses was then made by the Commission. The City had not criticised those items except in the trend of labor costs and as to some items of taxes, and through its counsel it expressed a reluctance to prepare a budget for the Company. Hence, the Company's figures were accepted.

The City appealed to the Superior Court from this order of the Commission and made its attack upon the valuation found by the Commission. It raised no question as to the revenues and expenses. In The City of Philadelphia vs. Public Service Commission, 83 Pa. Sup. Ct., 8, this appeal was dismissed, and the order of the Commission was affirmed.

The operating revenue of the Company for 1923 was $44,930,491.18, or nearly $200,000 more than was estimated. In the spring of 1924 there was a marked falling off in traffic and a corresponding decline in revenue. On July 21, 1924, the Company filed the application upon which final action has just been taken, asking permission to increase its rates approval in the valuation decision during the three-year period of repose provided for in the Public Service Company Law.

The Company alleged that: "Compared with the figures set forth in the above report of the Commission (the report approving the increase from five cents to seven cents—four tickets for twenty-five cents), operating revenues have not increased and are at present on a sharply downward trend, while operating expenses have increased materially." The increases mentioned were $312,000 increased rental for the Frankford Elevated and $2,000,000 added labor costs, exclusive of the wage dividend, and the Company averred that the increased rate was based "upon the absolute and imperative necessity for additional revenue for current expenses."

The proposed rates of tariff (P. S. C. Pa. No. 83) were eight cents cash, with two tokens for fifteen cents, and with free transfers substituted for three-cent exchanges outside of the so-called "Central Delivery District," and with certain five-cent zones outside of the City of Philadelphia.

Hearings on this application were commenced on September 2, 1924, and continued to September 6, 1924. Considerable testimony on the part of the Company was presented. Through its witnesses it estimated the revenue for 1924 upon six months' actual experience at $44,633,000, a reduction of over $600,000, as compared with the actual revenue for 1923. Operating expenses, including only $384,000 out of $1,900,000 Cooperative Wage Dividend, were estimated at $33,218,000, leaving only $11,415,000 as the estimated return upon the property used in the publice service. The Company contended that under the proposed increased rates, the gross revenue for 1925 would be only $47,782,000, and that its gross income thereunder would be $11,562,000 although the proposed fare was estimated to produce $300,000 of added revenue per month.

When the Company rested its case on September 6, 1924, the City Solicitor requested a continuance of three weeks to enable the City to analyze the estimates of the Company and to prepare its case for presentation. Two days later the Commission granted a continuance until such time as the City was ready to proceed and at the same time permitted the proposed increase to go into effect temporarily pending a final determination after the entire testimony was concluded.

Undoubtedly this temporary order was based upon the evidence of the Company of decreasing revenue and added costs and upon the conclusion therefrom drawn by its counsel and expressed by the Commission in this language: "That the financial exigencies confronting the Company were such that delay would seriously imperil the Company's ability to properly function."

An appeal from this temporary order to the Superior Court resulted in a decision by that Court on December 5, 1924, wherein it was held (1) that the Commission had power to make the order; (2) that the order was reasonable and in conformity with law, because the Company had made out a prima facie case; (3) that the prima facies may be rebutted or overcome "by evidence showing that the amount allowed for operating expenses is too high"; (4) that the wage dividend (hereinafter described) is not a proper charge against operating expenses and constitutes no element to be considered in fixing the schedule of rates or tariff, but must be provided for, if at all, out of the Company's fair return on investment.

The Commission, in the majority report in this case, in speaking of this decision of the Superior Court, says: "It is worthy of note that the Commission's action was thus affirmed despite the Court's holding that the wage dividend as then paid, amounting to $1,900,000 per annum, was not a proper charge against operating expenses."

When the facts are considered, this means nothing. The Superior Court had before it an estimated revenue for 1925 of $47,782,000 under the increased fares. In fact, the revenue under the increased fares has now turned out to be in excess of $49,000,000, as the majority report concedes. To use the decision of the Superior Court in this manner is to disregard the facts upon which it was based and to assume that the Court would have sustained a rate of fare producing a revenue in excess of fair return. It is apparent that, when the case was before the Superior Court, the elimination of the wage dividend alone was not sufficient to affect the result. Taken with the increased revenue now revealed, it would have been sufficient; and had the Company correctly estimated the revenue to be derived from the increased fare, the Superior Court would have had an entirely different set of facts before it, and the decision would have been different.

The fact that the increased rate of fare was producing a revenue far beyond the Company's estimate introduced in the hearings of September 2, to September 6, 1924, soon thereafter became evident. When the hearings were resumed in 1925, the Company's own witnesses increased the estimate of revenue for 1925, from $47,782,000 to $50,282,000, based upon the actual experience of the six preceding months. Meanwhile the Company had done several important things as a result of the larger revenue. The dividend rate on the $30,000,000 of the common capital stock of the Company was increased from six per cent to eight per cent; the management fee was increased from $158,000 (the amount paid since 1911) to one-half of one per cent of the gross earnings and three per cent of the actual construction expenditures, estimated to be a total of $350,000.

Moreover, on April 20, 1925, nine days before the hearings were resumed, and when the extent of the increase of revenue must have been apparent to the officials of the Company, the wage dividend was abolished and the basic wage rate of the trainmen was increased by the amount of the ten-per-cent-wage dividend, changing the basic rate from seventy cents to seventy-seven cents per hour and thus, according to the company's contention, increasing its operating expenses in an amount exceeding two million dollars. This corporate action was taken only after the representatives of the men had agreed on April 18, 1925, to permit the ten per cent to be paid into the Cooperative Wage Dividend Fund as theretofore done.

The situation thus presented is entirely different from that existing when the temporary order was made. Then the case was one of decreasing revenue due to no fault of the Company and increasing costs forced upon it. Now it is a case of increasing revenue and further increasing costs not forced upon it but voluntarily assumed by the Company.

To determine whether the increased fare is justified, regard must be had to three major elements: (1) the revenue of the Company, (2) its operating expenses, and (3) the fair rate of return. No question of valuation is involved, a rate base of $200,000,000 being assumed for the purpose of this case as existing until the property is revalued.

REVENUES OF THE COMPANY

The majority report, based on eleven months' actual experience of 1925, estimates total passenger revenue for 1925, at $49,018,357, including the Chester and Philadelphia Railway Company. This is arrived at by estimating a revenue for December, 1925, on the assumption that there was the same rate of increase of December, 1925, over November, 1925, as December, 1924, bore to November, 1924. In estimating passengers carried in 1925, the majority report uses the same basis of estimate and arrives at a figure of 915,948,486 passengers. This method we consider a proper basis of estimate and one that should also have been followed by the majority not only in the question of revenue, but also in the estimates of the cost of power operation and conducting transportation. Obviously, the average fare for 1925, is obtained by dividing the number of passengers (915,948,486) into the passenger revenue ($49,018,357), which gives and average fare of 5.352 cents, instead of the average fare of 5.34 as stated in the majority report. This difference, while small in itself, makes a difference of over $100,000 on revenue when applied to 900,000,000 passengers.

Similarly, the method adopted in the majority report of estimating passengers to be carried in 1926 is unsound in that it starts with the total passengers for 1925 (915,948,486), exclusive of all bus passengers, adds the 2% normal increase (18,300,000) and the increase due to the Sesqui-Centennial (10,000,000), and then deducts a bus diversion of 18,000,000. It is to be noted that the figure of 915,948,486 passengers excludes all passengers diverted from the surface and subway-elevated system by busses. According to the evidence, about 80% of the bus passengers in 1925, which total 10,800,000, can be considered as diverted from the surface and subway-elevated system. Had it not been for bus divrsion, there would therefore have been approximately 924,000,000 passengers in 1925, instead of 915,948,486. In estimating passengers for 1926, the figure of 924,000,000 should be the starting point of the calculation.

So far as the majority report is concerned, however, any errors in estimating passenger revenue for 1926, do not affect their result, because the conclusions are based on 1925, figures and no regard is given to the situation in 1926.

The record affords ample data for estimate of both revenue and expenses for 1926, and we are of the opinon that due regard should be paid to the situation in 1926.

We believe the passengers in 1926 will total 940,000,000, as compared with approximately 916,000,000 in 1925, and we explain below the basis for this estimate.

(1) REVENUE

The temporary order of the Commission was based on estimates of passengers, revenue, and expenses made by officers of the Company in September, 1924. In April, 1925, they presented revised estimates for 1925. The City's expert, J. Rowland Bibbins, later made similar estimates.

These stimates so far as passengers and revenue are concerned may be summarized as follows and compared with actual experience:

	Co.—Sept., 1924	Co.—April, 1925	City	Actual†
Passengers	874,820,000*	918,063,000	914,652,000	915,948,486
Passenger Revenue	46,860,000	49,000,000	48,509,000	49,018,357‡
Other Operating Revenue	640,000	647,000	647,000	710,000
Non-operating Revenue	282,000	235,000	235,000	305,000
Total Revenue	$47,782,000	$50,282,000	$49,391,000	$50,033,357

* As of 1923.
† Eleven months actual, December estimated as hereinafter set forth.
‡ Including $104,184 revenue from Chester and Philadelphia Railway Company (see below).

(a) Passengers

As appears from the above table, 915,948,486 passengers were carried during 1925, as compared with the City's estimate of 914,652,000 and the Company's estimate of 874,820,000 (as of 1923) in September, 1924, and 918,063,000 in April, 1925.

On behalf of the Company, it as tesified that the annual normal increase in the number of passengers was 2%. Dr. Milo R. Maltbie, the Commission's expert, submitted tables taken from the Company's records and accepted as accurate, showing that from 1921 to 1923, the years when the 6¼ cents fare was in effect, the increase was 9.7%, or an average of over 4.8% each year. During this period, the Frankford Elevated commenced operation. A comparison of the first nine months of 1923 and 1924, shows that there was during this period very little increase, while a similar comparison of the last three months of 1924 and 1925, when the increased rates were effective, shows an increase of 4.8%.

From all the exidence, we conclude that in this instance a normal increase of 2½% per annum in the number of passengers carried may reasonably be expected during the next three years. Added to the normal increase would be the additional traffic due to the Sesqui-Centennial in 1926, which was estimated by the Company at not more than 10,000,000 passengers.

It was claimed by the Company that a deduction should be made for a diversion of traffic by buses. One of the witnesses for the City testified that, while such diversion exists when busses are first operated, it decreases from year to year. It should be noted that the total number of passengers for 1925 (915,948,486) was after bus diversion. Furthermore, it must be borne in mind that the Company operating the busses is a subsidiary of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, and that the amount of diversion through bus operation is therefore largely within its control. Taking all the facts into consideration, we are of the opinion that the number of passengers in 1926, assuming normal conditions and the present increased rate of fare should not be less than 940,000,000, including 10,000,000 due to the Sesqui-Centennial.

A reduction in the fare would inject another element into the problem. The original estimates of the Company's witnesses were that 7% of the passengers would be lost by a change in far from 6¼ cents to 7½ cents. Later they reduced the figure to 4%. During the first twelve months of the increased fare there was a decrease in revenue passengers of 7½% but this was accompanied by an unexpectedly large increase (13%) in the use of free transfers, so that the net decrease was about 3¼%. Taking into account the fact that there would normally have been an increase of 2% to 3%, there was apparently a loss of about 5% to 6% due to the increase in fare. From all the evidence, we are of the opinion that this loss was at least 5%. According to the Company's witnesses, three-fourths of this loss would be regained by a return to the 6¼ cents fare, so that, if the old fare or its equivalent were established, there should be a further increase of upwards of 3% over the normal figures for 1926, as above estimated.

(b) Passenger Revenue

The Company's reports include all of the operating expenses of the Chester & Philadelphia Railway Co., but only 65% of the revenues, the other 35% being paid as rental to the Chester & Philadelphia Railway Co. The Company owns 51% of the stock of the Chester & Philadelphia Railway Co. and includes the dividends received thereon as non-operating income. All of the property of the Chester & Philadelphia Railway Co. was included in the $200,000,000 valuation, and it is evident that in a rate case its entire operating revenue should be included in operating revenue and the dividends on the stock excluded from non-operating income. The Company admitted this and corrected its Exhibit 5 accordingly. (See applicant's Exhibit 14a.) The revenue of the Chester & Philadelphia Co., excluded from the Company's reports, amounted during 1925 to $104,184 (December estimated). Adding this to the operating revenue of $48,914,173, as reported in the Company's monthly reports, the correct operating revenue becomes $49,018,357, as compared with $46,860,000, the Company's estimate in September, 1924, and $49,400,000, its estimate in April, 1925.

The average fare per passenger, including the revenue of the Chester & Philadelphia Railway Co., has been as follows: 1923, 4.828 cents; 1924, 5.959 cents; 1925, 5.352 cents. The year 1924 include approximately nine months of the 6¼ cents fare and three months of the 7½ cents fare. In August, 1924, the average fare, exclding the Chester & Philadelphia Railway Company's revenue, was 4.758 cents; and in October, 1924, the first full month of the increased fare, it was 5.404 cents. Since that time the average fare has somewhat decreased. The actual average fare during 1925, excluding the revenue of the Chester & Philadelphia Railway Co., was as follows, in cents:

Jan.	— 5.413	May	— 5.329	Sept.	— 5.311
Feb.	— 5.378	June	— 5.314	Oct.	— 5.326
March	— 5.363	July	— 5.294	Nov.	— 5.332
April	— 5.357	Aug.	— 5.284	Dec.	—

This decrease appears to have been due in part of the fact that during the first few months of the increased fare the car riders did not take full advantage of the additional free-transfer privileges, thereby increasing the average fare during these months. From all the evidence, we conclude that on the present fare basis the average fare per passenger during 1926 will be 5.35 cents. Applying this fare to the estimated number of passengers for 1926, we conclude that the total passenger revenue, if the present rates are continued, will in 1926 be $50,290,000.

(e) Other Operating Revenue

The Company's estimate for operating revenue for 1925 other than passenger revenue was $640,000 in September, 1924, and $647,000 in April, 1925. These estimates were accepted by the City without check. The actual for 1924 was $652,317.24. This was the first full year that the new advertising contract was in effect. The monthly reports of the Company for the first eleven months of 1925 (the figures for December have not yet been filed) show other operating revenue of $651,542.10 and for the year ended November 30, 1925, $706,991. Based on the experience of prior years, we are of the opinion that the total for the year 1925, should not be less than $710,000, and that a reasonable estimate for 1926, would be $725,000.

By far the largest item in Other Operating Revenue is that of Station and Car Advertising, sometimes referred to as Car Privileges. There was a reduction in this item of over $118,000 from 1922 to 1924. This was offset to some extent by an increase of about $5,000 in the item of Weighing and Vending Machine Privileges. These differences were brought about by a change in the contract covering both privileges on May 1, 1923. For ten years prior to that date the contract had been held by the Car Advertising Company, on the basis of payments to the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company of 65% of the gross receipts from Car and Station Advertising, with a guaranteed minimum of $150,000 per annum, and 30% of the gross receipts from vending machines and 55% of the gross receipts of weighing machines. Under this contract, the receipts of the Company were as follows:

	Car and Station Advertising	Weighing and Vending Machine	Total
1918	$216,042.33	$24,642.19	$240,684.42
1919	265,064.28	27,947.75	293,011.93
1920	384,360.75	21,972.93	406,333.68
1921	483,058.87	18,895.21	501,954.08
1922	491,485.09	17,145.96	508,631.05

In 1921 negotiations were entered into between the President of the Advertising Company and Mr. W. C. Dunbar, Vice-President of Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, for a new contract to be effective May 1, 1923.

A new contract was drafted by the Company and submitted to the Car Advertising Company. In most important particulars the proposal contract was similar to the existing one, except that the amounts to be received by the Company for advertising privileges were increased from a flat 65% to the following:

70% of gross receipts to $400,000
72% of gross receipts from 400,000 to $500,000
75% of gross receipts from 500,000 to 600,000
80% of gross receipts over 600,000

This new scale was to be retroactive to January 1, 1921.

Practically all of the essential details were agreed upon, but the Company finally decided to enter into a contract for fifteen years with another agency, the Philadelphia Advertising Company. Under this contract the Company receives a flat sum of $380,000 per annum for the advertising privileges, including not only the surface, subway and elevated, but also the busses (which were not included in the proposed contract with the Car Advertising Company), and $20,000 per annum for the vending and weighing machine privileges. Those payments are increased by $140 for each car or bus operated in excess of 2,500 and by $300 for each new station opened in the case of the advertising privileges and by $500 for each new station in the case of the machine privileges.

The Company made no attempt to refute the testimony in regard to the negotiations for a new contract with the Car Advertising Company and relied solely on the testimony of Vice-President Myers, who had not conducted the negotiations and knew of them only in a general way. No explanation was given of the failure to call Mr. Dunbar, who had conducted the negotiations. According to the testimony of Mr. Myers, the officers of the Company did not know of the usual basis on which such contracts are made and knew of no other similar contract on a lump-sum basis.

The reasons advanced for not signing the contract with the Car Advertising Company were: (1) a letter from the President of that Company written in 1922, in which he referred to a falling off in business compared with 1919 and 1920 and to a considerable reduction in now business written since 1921; (2) that it was a one-man concern; and (3) that they preferred to contract with a company doing a nation-wide business. These reasons do not seem sufficient to us to justify the change in contract, particularly when it is borne in mind that the annual receipts from the old contract were over $100,000 more than the lump sums named in the contract entered into, that these receipts had been steadily increasing, and that the percentages proposed in the new contract were materially greater than the 65% named in the old contract.

We are of the opinion that the Company has lost substantially upwards of $100,000 a year on this account. We would not be inclined to charge the company for an abuse of managerial discretion in this matter, but we feel that the handling of it was not in harmony with the usual efficiency of the Company.

(d) Non-Operating Income

The Company estimated in September, 1924, that the non-operating income for 1925 would be $282,000. In April, 1925, this estimate was reduced to $235,000. The actual amount for eleven months of 1925 has been considerably more than this amount. This fact might warrant an increase of this item in the estimated budget for 1926. It appears, however, that unusually large amounts of income from unfunded securities and accounts have been received in 1925. This appears to have been largely interest on bank balances. Such may not be the case in 1926. We, therefore, shall use the sum of $235,000 as a conservative estimate of non-operating income for 1926. Should the Company sell any large amount of its securities during the year, this figure will probably be much less than will actually be received.

(2) Operating Expenses

Turning from the revenues of the Company to its operating expenses, they are divided in the budget submitted as follows: Maintenance and Renewals, Power Operation, Conducting Transportation, General and Miscellaneous, Taxes.

Before taking these items up in detail, consideration must be given to the number of car miles operated, as this is an essential factor in determining the costs of maintenance, power operation, and conducting transportation.

Car Miles Operated

The Company based its April estimates of 1925 operating costs on 91,638,955 car miles and 918,063,000 passengers or an average of approximately 10.02 passengers per car mile. The City based its estimate on 90,400,000 passenger-car miles and 914,652,000 passengers, or an average of approximately 10.12 passengers per car mile. The Company later accepted the City's figures as approximately correct. The actual figures for twelve months ended November 30, 1925 (the last twelve months for which figures on car mileage are available) show a total of 911,988,342 passengers and 89,707,678 passenger-car miles operated, or an average of 10.165 passengers per passenger-car mile. For the year 1925, based on eleven months' actual experience, it appears that there will be approximately 10.18 passengers per passenger-car mile. This is less than for any previous year. The passengers per passenger-car mile for previous years have been as follows:

	1920	1921	1922	1923	1924
Passengers	908,482,135	836,547,351	848,883,512	917,787,235	909,303,945
Passenger car miles	82,658,212	80,332,047	81,724,853	87,590,388	86,533,161
Passengers per car-mile	10,991	10,413	10,387	10,748	10,508

In parts of the testimony there is some confusion between total car miles and passenger-car miles, but the difference between them is so comparatively slight as to have no material effect on the result. For the purposes of clarity in this report, the fiured of passenger-car miles will be used and costs will be reduced to this basis.

We are of the opinion that the average passenger per passenger-car mile during 1926 will not be less than 10.18; and, applying this figure to the estimated number of passengers, we conclude that the number of passenger-car miles operated in 1926 will approximate 92,340,000, if the present rates of fare are maintained.

Maintenance and Renewals

The majority report confines itself to a discussion of the estimates set up for the City by Mr. Bibbins and his associates and those set up for the Company by the Committee of Consulting Engineers. It entirely ignores the fact that by order of the Commission, the Company on January 1, 1926, is required to adopt the Unified System of Accounts for Street Railways issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission. This uniform system requires separate accounts for Maintenance and Depreciation, and that the latter shall be based on the Ledger Values of the property. The Commission's Expert, Dr. Maltbie, introduced tables to show what would be the proper depreciation allowance under the unified System of Accounts, but this evidence is entirely ignored by the majority report. These tables are based on the actual cost and useful life of the various items of the property as reported by Mr. Feustel in the Valuation Case. It is interesting to note how nearly they check with the estimates of Mr. Bibbins, which were based on an actual program of renewals over a period of 33 years. This will be referred to later under the subjects of Renewals. The majority report attempts to harmonize Mr. Bibbins' renewal estimates with those of the Company, by averaging Mr. Bibbins' annual figures over varying periods for the different classes of property and comparing the highest average so obtained with the Company's estimates. Thus for power plants renewals Mr. Bibbins' 5 year average is taken, for sub-station renewals an eight year average, for track renewals a 33 year average.

Furthermore the majority report lays weight on the amounts which the Company has actually charged to the Maintenance and Renewal Accounts during the past four years. It appears, however, that the Company has charged to this account amounts properly chargeable to capital. This will be referred to later in the discussion of Renewals.

In the following treatment of the subject of Maintenance and Renewals we have endeavored to take into account all of the testimony and to reach a conclusion based upon a detailed analysis of the facts developed.

The Company claims in its annual budget of operating expenses the sum of $8,560,400 for maintenance and renewals. This amount has been yearly appropriated during 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924, and 1925. The amount has been underspent, as set forth below, in 1921, 1922, and 1924, and overspent in 1923 and 1925 (December estimated). Whatever has not been spent in any year was credited through a temporary "Equalization Account" to Renewal Reserve, and this reserve was conversely drawn upon through the equalization account in the two years when the appropriation has been overspent. This account was known prior to 1921 as "Renewal Reserve"; since January 1, 1921, it is called "Renewal and Depreciation Reserve." This reserve was started in 1910-1911, and was on

July 1, 1919	$1,689,168.32
July 1, 1912	1,632,430.73
July 1, 1913	2,241,226.45
July 1, 1914	1,042,952.00
July 1, 1915	1,263,055.00
July 1, 1916	1,853,242.77
July 1, 1917	2,525,214.98
Jan. 1, 1918	2,627,548.42
Jan. 1, 1919	1,126,801.69
Jan. 1, 1920	574,600.86
Jan. 1, 1921	628,425.70
Jan. 1, 1922	2,258,555.23
Jan. 1, 1923	4,737,993.10
Jan. 1, 1924	5,655,900.08
Jan. 1 1925	6,342,824.16

Thus in the four years since the appropriation of $8,560,400 was begun the unspent parts of said appropriations have built up this reserve from $628,425.70 to $6,342,824.16, an increase of $5,714,398.46, at the same time the property of the Company has been very largely rehabilitated and re-equipped, and one of the Vice-Presidents of the Company testified that it is in "A No. 1," "100% operating condition." Another witness for the Company testified that it was "neither over-maintained nor under-maintanied." In this process of rehabilitation, the installation of heavier rails in renewals of lighter rails, worn out or replaced, has been largely followed by the Company. This will be referred to more particularly under Renewals.

The amount of $8,560,400 was included in the Company's estimate of operating expenses in the Valuation Case. The Commission at that case said: "From the facts presented there is nothing in this record which would enable us to say that the allowance (for all operating expenses) claimed by the Company is excessive. But having thus accepted the Company's own figures and approved an amount which we believe to be wholly adequate, we shall expect and require from the Company a high and strict standard of maintenance throughout its property." Again, at that time, the Commission said: "With regard to operating expenses, we are not disposed to interfere with the budget submitted by the Company as long as it continues its present policy of improved service and a high standard of maintenance." We believe the Company has indeed greatly improved the condition of its property and, as stated before, has simultaneously succeeded in building up its reserve to more than six million dollars.

The present case differs from the previous Valuation case in that, while in the latter the Company's estimate of operating expenses was not made the subject of critical analysis by the City or other protestants or by the Commission, in this case all the operating expenses have been thoroughly studied by Dr. Maltbie, and the maintenance and renewal appropriation of $8,560,400 has been exhaustively analyzed by Mr. Bibbins, the City's expert, especially from the point of view of the physical state of the property and the need in the cycles of renewals. This appropriation of $8,560,400 was protested by the City as excessive and unreasonable.

In the two years prior to 1921, when, as stated, this appropriation was first made, the expenditures for maintenance and renewals were: 1919, $4,955,124.20; 1920, $5,965,408.62. The processes and methods used by the Company in first determining this greatly increased appropriation of $8,560,400 for 1921 and thereafter are a matter of conjecture. Vice-President Myers testified that the amount was determined for the Company in 1921, by a Valuation Committee of three, of which George W. Fuller, Charles P. Hansel, and himself were the members. But the correspondence in the record (322a, 790a) between applicant's then Vice-President, W. C. Dunbar, and the Valuation Committee, early in 1922, shows that the amount had first been adopted by the Company and then had been referred to its Valuation Committee for approval and confirmation. Mr. Myers, although he had been a member of the Valuation Committee of that time, was unable to explain satisfactorily the former Committee's methods in determining the amount or to produce the Company's work papers or to give separately, in reasonable detail, the Committee's apportionment of the amount $8,560,400, as between maintenance, renewals, and depreciation. Furthermore, the Company and its Valuation Committee were both called upon to produce the supporting papers for this former Valuation Committee's estimate, and all that was produced were the papers forming Dr. Maltbie's Exhibit No. 2, which threw practically no light on the subject.

In the present case, the Company's new Valuation Committee, on which H. M. Brinkerhoff replaced Mr. Myers, estimated applicant's average annual requirements for maintenance, renewals, and depreciation for the five years 1925 to 1930, inclusive, July 1, to July 1, at $8,768,500. This was at first divided: Maintenance, $6,000,000; Renewals, $2,768,500; but the figures $292,000, estimated average of so-called "Border Line Renewals," was later deducted from maintenance and added to renewals, in order to make direct comparison with the City's figures as estimated by its expert, Mr. Bibbins. The Committee's thus adjusted, then were: Maintenance, $5,708,000; Renewals, $3,060,500. The total of these $8,768,500, is $208,100 in excess of the Company's claim of $8,560,400. Details of the Committee's claim were put in evidence in exhibit form. These will be considered under the two parts separately: (1) Maintenance, (2) Renewals and Depreciation.

For the City, Mr. J. R. Bibbins and several associates also made estimates of annual requirements for maintenance, renewals, and depreciation. These will likewise be considered under the same two parts separately.

Dr. Milo R. Maltbie, the Commission's expert, submitted estimates of annual depreciation requirements only. He did not submit an estimate of maintenance.

The several estimates are here set forth for purposes of comparison.

Applicant's claim		$8,560,400
Applicant's Valuation Committee's estimate
Maintenance	$5,708,000
Renewals	3,060,500	8,768,500
Bibbin's estimate for City
Maintenance	5,260,000

1922		6,080,962.13
1923		9,451,493.02
1924		6,072,252.36
1925 (Dec. estimated—11 months actual)		8,695,676.57
Average actually spent for the 5 years		7,444,576.00

The applicant's budget figure of $8,560,400 was presented in the following detail only:

Way and Structures	$4,046,800
Equipment	4,090,000
Power	423,600
	$8,560,400

A separation between maintenance and renewals was not given, Mr. Myers testifying that he did not have such a separation and had not the work sheet of the original Valuation Committee (as stated above) from which to make the separation. The present Valuation Committee, however, later brought in a detailed estimate of maintenance and renewals (Exh. 12, 26) in which renewals are estimated separately for ways and structures, equipment and power, but maintenance as a whole. Mr. Bibbins estimated maintenance and renewals separately for each of the three divisions. The monthly reports filed with the Commission in 1925 do not show maintenance and renewals separately, and hence cannot be used for purposes of making comparisons.

Maintenance

Departing from the figures set forth above the estimates for maintenance alone, we have

Applicant's Valuation Committee for five years—1925-1930 (Exh. 12, 26, 30)	$5,708,000
Bibbins—for 1925 alone (Exh. 26)	5,260,000

The Valuation Committee's estimate is based on the average annual cost of maintenance in the four years 1921-1924, with the cost of labor in these years increased or trended to the 1925 wage scales,—viz., $5,234,005 (excluding Border Line Renewals). To this the Committee then added approximately 9% for its claim for additional maintenance on account of the following four factors: (1) "arrears in track maintenance program due to local conditions" (City's paving program), (2) "increase in use of concrete base in City paving," (3) "increasing cost of maintaining equipment due to greater age," (4) "increased car miles." Of these four factors, the first are related to track realigning and surfacing, which are "Border Line Renewals" (track realigning and surfacing, major repairs to structure, etc.), which the Committee at first had included in its maintenance estimate, but which it later transferred to its renewals estimate, as already explained; this being also in accordance with the practice of the Company. These two factors need not be considered here.

With regard to the third factor, "increasing cost of maintaining equipment due to greater age," the record shows that the average age of cars in 1925 was less than the average age in 1921-1924, by reason of purchase of large blocks of new cars in 1923 and 1925 (Brinkerhoff—pp. 2840-1a). As for power equipment, the Committee's own estimate for renewals provides for a very considerable renewal of power equipment in 1926-1930; if this power renewal program is carried out, it would seem that power maintenance costs should decrease rather than increase.

The remaining factor is car miles. The Committee estimates that the average car miles in 1925-1930 will be 9% more than the average of 1921-1924. The actual car miles in 1925, 90,072,437 (December estimated), was only about 7% over the 1921-1924 average, 84,204,712. The Committee's estimate of an average increase of 9% in 1925-1930 is, therefore, very likely to be realized. Also, the average of 1925-1930 is only 1.9% greater than 1925 actual (one month estimated). The Committee's method of going back as far as 1921 and making an average of the four years, 1921-1924, results in a much lower figure than if they had taken only the years 1923 and 1924, and consequently a correspondingly larger percentage figure for the claimed addition to the 1925 basis for maintenance cost. This will be seen by a mere statement of car miles for all these years,—viz:

80,608,566	81,879,885	87,694,521	86,635,875	90,072,427

With regard to the average cost of maintenance in the 1921-1924 period, on which the Committee's estimate was based before trending to 1925 wages, it may be noted that the City's expert testified (2881-3a) that maintenance costs in these years was high; in 1921, because of numerous car failures—15,335 pull-ins as against only 4,072 in 1924; in 1923, because, in part, of complete overhaul of 215 company-owned "L" cars; and in 1923-1924, because of thorough overhauling, including painting and varnishing, inside and out, of 3,086 cars. The same witness also testified that the systematic shipping schedule adopted by the Company in 1922, when all surface cars were equipped with "economy meters" to indicate when inspections were due, has tended to reduce ordinary maintenance costs (2883a) and also (2882a) that the trend in material prices has been downward since 1921. The year 1921 was abnormal also in regard to relatively less efficient labor (2571a). This method, therefore, of trending the maintenance labor costs of an inefficient period to 1925 labor costs is clearly not representative of present conditions. Taking the figures as they stand, however, the comparative relationship between maintenance costs and car miles is shown by the following table:

	1921	1922	1923	1924	Average 1921-1924
Car miles (Maltbie Table 1)	80,608,566	81,879,885	87,694,521	86,635,875	84,204,712
Maintenance Costs (Co. Exh. 28)	$4,967,273	$4,654,837	$5,051,212	$4,971,602	$4,911,231
Maintenance Cost Trended to 1925 Wage Scale (Co. Exh. 28)	5,496,598	4,910,856	5,317,484	5,211,083	5,234,005

The above tabulation shows that changes in car miles in maintenance costs in 1922, 1923 and 1924, as compared with 1921, were not even approximately the same ratio; but that changes in maintenance in later years moved approximately with changes in car miles, thus indicating some sort of abnormality in 1921, as has already been mentioned. The Committee's estimate of 9% additional average maintenance outlays for 1925-1930, therefore, has some basis of fact so far as the trend for future years is concerned, but for 1925 alone the addition of 9% is clearly too high. The Committee's report states (Co. Exh. 12, p. 7): "While the cost of maintenance does not keep step exactly with the increased use of track and equipment by reason of increased car mileage, it is nevertheless the major controlling factor of increase." Again, Company witness Brinkerhoff testified (2541a) "We pointed out perfectly frankly that we would admit in advance the addtional car miles would not take the full additional cost."

The City's expert, Mr. Bibbins, and his associates estimated maintenance requirements only for the year 1925,—not the average annual requirements for the next few years as the Company's Valuation Committee has done. Mr. Bibbins' estimate of maintenance, totaling $5,260,000, is in evidence as Bibbins' Exhibit 26, and is condensed as follows:

	Labor	Materials	Total	Cost Per Car Mile
Way and Structure	$1,575,000	$650,000	$2,225,000	$.0245
Equipment	1,845,000	990,000	2,835,000	.0313
Power	No estimate	No estimate	200,000	.0022
Totals			$5,260,000	$.0580

The method used in making this estimate is not clear from the record: that is, whether (1) a car mile cost for 1925 (5.8 cents) was first reached and then multiplied into the estimated number of car miles for 1925 (90,700,000), thus making $5,260,000; or (2) whether, as was testified by Mr. Lummis (the Bibbins' man who made the maintenance estimate), the total maintenance cost was first estimated—made up by calculating required man hours multiplied by 1925 wage rates and then adding material and miscellaneous items—and then, by way of check, the amount of this estimate thus found was divided by the estimated car miles, and thus the 5.8 cents figure per car mile cost obtained. In making this estimate Mr. Lummis used 6260 more man hours in 1925 than in 1924 for way and structure department (2377a) and 22,223 man hours less in 1925 than in 1924 in equipment department (2882a). He justified this judgment of lower cost of maintaining equipment in 1925 than in any of the years 1921-1924 by pointing out that the number of mechanical failures in cars had decreased from 2.21% of cars operated in 1921 to .59% in 1924 (2882a); that the beginning of a systematic shopping schedule in 1922, together with the installation of the economy meters on the cars, had resulted in "improved efficiency" in handling car maintenance; and that heavy overhauls made to cars in 1922-1924 (in which 3086 cars were "painted and varnished, inside and out, and thoroughly overhauled," "indicated that maintenance is not being deferred on rolling stock" (2882-3a). Mr. Lummis further testified that he does not expect a material increase in maintenance expense in the immediate future; and that the Company's track is in good condition except for a few streets on which are laid light rails, which, under the Bibbins' renewal plan would be replaced with heavier rail "in the near future" (2878-90a). Border Line Renewals are not included in the Bibbins' maintenance estimate (2887a). The estimate includes maintenance of Frankford "L" (287a).

In the company's brief, the applicant stresses the apparent anomaly of Bibbins' estimated man hours for 1925 being less than in 1924, although estimated car miles for 1925 are greater than in 1924. A calculation of man hours per mile for way and structures and equipment power man hours not in evidence) as taken from Bibbins' Exhibit 26 and Maltbie's Table I shows the following:

	Bibbins' estimated Man hours per car mile
1921	.05382
1922	.05209
1923	.05184
1924	.05283
1921-4 average	.05313
1925 (Dec. est.)	.05065

This table, like the previous ones, clearly shows that the year 1921 was an abnormal year, and therefore ought not to be included in a calculation of probable maintenance.

We will now compare the Valuation Committee's and the Bibbins' estimates for maintenance. The principle differences between them are these: The Valuation Committee's base, the 1921-24 average, is abnormal by reason of the inclusion of the clearly abnormal year 1921, and, according to Mr. Bibbins, another abnormal year, 1923; and Mr. Bibbins has based his estimate on fewer man hours than seems warranted from a study of the relation of man hours to car miles in 1921, 1922, 1923 and 1924.

In the following table is shown what the Valuation Commitee's maintenance estimate would have been had it been based on the year 1922 alone, or the year 1923 alone, or the year 1924 alone, or on an average of the years 1922-23-24, or an average of the years 1923-24; and on the last line is shown the Valuation Committee's basic estimate (that is, without the 9% "leading" for increase in car miles in 1925 over the 1921-1924 average car miles) to which is added the actual percentage of increase in car miles in 1925 (Dec. estimated) over the 1921-24 average (7%) instead of the larger unrealized increase in car miles estimated by the Committee (9%). (See Co. Exh. 28.)

	Labor Trended to 1925 Scale	Material (untrended)	Total Basic Estimate	Add for Increase in Car Miles in 1925 %	Amount	Total Estimate
1922	$3,323,196	$1,587,660	$4,910,856	10.00	$491,086	$5,401,942
1923	3,587,289	1,730,195	5,317,484	2.71	144,104	5,461,588
1924	3,590,760	1,620,323	5,211,083	4.00	208,443	5,419,526
Aver. 1922—23-24	3,500,415	1,646,059	5,146,474	5.50	283,056	5,429,530
Aver. 23-24	3,589,024	1,675,259	5,264,283	2.75	144,768	5,409,051
(Estimate average) of 1921-4	3,508,530	1,725,475	5,234,000	7.00	366,380	5,600,385

The basic estimate in the fourth column works out to the following car mile costs:

1922	5.997 cents
1923	6.063 cents
1924	6.014 cents
Average 1922-3-4	6.026 cents
Average 1923-4	6.039 cents
Valuation Committee's estimate on 84,204,712 car miles (average of 1921-4)	6.215 cents

If Bibbins' maintenance estimate had been based on the actual man hours for 1924, as shown in his Exhibit 26, instead of, as it was, on a less number of man hours based on his judgment of 1925 man hours requirements, his estimate in condensed form would have been about as follows:

Way and Structures:
2,322,590 man hours @ $.6763 equals	$1,570,999.87
Materials	650,000.00	$2,220,999.87
Equipment:
2,255,613 man hours @ $.8261 equals	1,863,361.89
Materials	990,000.00	$2,853,361.89
Power—labor and materials		200,000.00
		$5,274,361.76

In the above the same wage scales are used as in the Company's estimate.

This figures:—

Cost per car mile on basis of 1925 car miles, 90,072,437 (Dec. estimated)	5.85¢
And compares with:—
Cost per car mile on basis of Mr. Bibbins' estimate of $5,260,000 and his estimate of car miles for 1925 (90,700,000)	5.80¢
Cost per car mile of Mr. Bibbins' $5,260,000 estimate based on 90,072,437 car miles	5.83¢

Upon a review of all the evidence, we are of the opinion that a fair allowance for maintenance should be based on the actual maintenance costs in the year 1924, with labor costs adjusted to the 1925 wage scales. The Valuation Committee has made this calculation in its Exhibit 28, in which it shows actual maintenance costs in 1924, adjusted in this way, as $5,211,083. This figure divided by the actual number of car miles in 1924, 86,635,875, gives a car mile cost of 6.01 cents (Co. Exh. 30). Likewise this figure divided by the passenger-car miles in 1924, 86,533,161, (Dec. estimated) gives a passenger-car-mile cost of 6.02 cents. Applying this to the passenger-car-miles for 1925, 89,974,452 (Dec. 1925, estimated, based upon increase in December over November, 1924, 5.15%, we get $5,416,462, as a fair allowance for maintenance for the year 1925.

We realize that this is a higher amount for maintenance than that actually spent in any previous year, but we believe that it is a prudent policy that the standards of maintenance of the property be kept high.

Renewals and Depreciation

Separating from the figures already given, the estimates for Renewals and Depreciation alone, we have:

The Company by its Valuation Committee (including $292,000 of Border Line Renewals)	$3,060,500
The Company by Mr. Myers' method	3,500,000
The City by Mr. Bibbins' 33 years average without drawing upon Reserve	2.491.500
The City by Mr. Bibbins' 5 year average without drawing upon Reserve	2.094.800
The City by Bibbins' 33 years average drawing upon Reserve	2.350 000
The City by Mr. Bibbins' the same with 4% interest on Reserve	2.050.000
Dr. Maltbie, the Commission's expert:
By Straight Line depreciation	2,468.300
By Sinking Fund method at 5% interest	1,240.930
By Sinking Fund Method at 6% interest	1.083.510

The Company's Valuation Committee's estimate of $3,-60,500 is the estimated average for the five years 1926-1930. For Rolling stock they use the Straight Line Depreciation method, based on Feustel's original cost figures and lives (adjusted) as given in the Valuation case, and claim an annual depreciation allowance for Rolling Stock of $922,000. Included in their figures are the Frankford "L" and Bustleton cars owned by the City, the trackless trolleys owned by a subsidiary company and not involved in this case, and also the fire storage cars.

The Company also used very low values for rolling stock salvages, viz. $100 per car and $150 per car equipment, instead of the Feustal figures for salvages, which had been given him by the Company itself in 1919, and which were from two to nine times higher in amounts. These factors are the chief cause of the Committee's estimates for Rolling Stock depreciation exceeding the figures both of Dr. Maltbie and of Mr. Bibbins. In connection with rolling stock, it may here be noted that Mr. Senter for the company testified that he "did not think the present cars would wear out. I will say indefinitely—it may be fifty or one hundred years." (2154a) For all the other property of the Company, the Committee use the renewal method and figure what in their judgment would be a necessary renewal program for the next five years.

Mr. Myers later submitted an additional and wholly different method, claiming that after January 1, 1926, the Company should use it in connection with the Commission's order for strict compliance with the Uniform System of Accounts of the Interstate Commerce Commission (hereafter referred to as I. C. C.) for Electric Railways which Uniform System sets out rules for the setting up of depreciation reserves and requires that depreciation accounts shall be based on "Ledger Values." Mr. Myers' method would involve an allocation of the $200,000,000 valuation among all of the items of plant account of the Company and the setting up of an annual depreciation on all these items based upon "values" as understood in the Valuation case. This estimate was not presented in detail in the record, except that with Mr. Feustel's reproduction cost figures as a base, and using Mr. Feustel's lives upon the various property items, Mr. Myers figured the annual depreciation requirement by about $3,500,000. As to Mr. Feustel's lives, Mr. Myers testified that he thought in some instance, Mr. Fuestel's estimates were too short (1882a-1902a).

Mr. Bibbins, for the City, made a thorough analytical study of the Company's property, assigning special experts in his staff to the various divisions of Ways and Structure, Equipment and Power. From this study he built up a complete renewal and retirement schedule from 1925 to 1957, 33 years, the year 1957 being the year when the City, under the 1907 contract, will have the option to take over the Company's property. The total amount represented by this schedule was then divided by 33 years, producing $2,491,500 as the annual renewal requirement. Starting with the existing Reserve Fund of $6,342,-000, he calculates the year to year additions thereto and withdrawals therefrom and fixes $2,350,000 as a sufficient renewal appropriation to be made annually out of operating expenses.

Later, for purposes of comparison with the Company's Committee's 5 year figures, Mr. Bibbins also submitted an average of the renewal requirements for the years 1926-1930, which amounted to $2,094,800. A comparison of these two five year estimates for renewals was gone into in detail, and the differences were found in most cases to be largely due to the different times for the renewals.

Dr. Maltbie submitted estimates of annual depreciation allowance calculated (1) by straight line method amounting to $2,468,300 including paving, which will be referred to later; (2) by sinking fund method with interest at 5%, amounting to $1,240,930; and (3) by sinking fund method with interest at 6%, amounting to $1,083,510. All of these are based on Mr. Feustel's original cost figures in the valuation case brought up to December 31, 1925, by addition and subtraction of plant added or retired since the date of Mr. Feustel's studies, and then using Mr. Feustel's salvage figures and applying Mr. Feustel's lives upon the various property items.

Before taking up the determination of the reasonable annual allowance for renewals and depreciation, some features of the case, as developed in the record, should here be noted. This refers especially to the present amount of the Reserve Fund, the amount it would be if the I. C. C. rule as to certain retired equipment had been strictly followed in prior years, and the Company's method of charging betterments, as for example in the case of track renewals, to operating expenses instead of partly to operating expenses and partly to capital.

In the consideration of the amount of the Reserve Fund as of December 31, 1924, viz. $6,342,824, it is to be noted that as testified to by the City's expert, if proper accounting methods in accordance with the rules of the I. C. C. for electric railways had been followed, the Reserve Fund would on that date have amounted to $12,-149,487, or $5,806,663 more than it was. This was revealed from studies of the Reserve account back to 1912 and the charges thereto or to operating expenses for the retirement of passager cars, and also of the estimated original cost of cars retired less depreciation accrued prior to 1911, when the Reserve was first set up. The Company has stated that "with one or two exceptions" it has followed the provisions of the I. C. C. Uniform System of Accounts for Electric railways. Account 40 of this classification provides that in charging of equipment retired, where companies had not set up a depreciation reserve, the amount of accrued depreciation prior to July 1, 1914, should be charged to profit and loss and that only the original cost less such depreciation and less salvage should be charged to the depreciation reserve. The Company first set up its depreciation reserve in 1911, and from that time until the close of 1924 charged off $8,150,675 on account of cars retired, $5,188,513, of this being charged directly to the Reserve and $2,962,161, being charged to Operating Expenses. The original cost of 2828 cars retired 1911 to 1924, less depreciation accrued prior to 1911, when the Reserve was established, amounted to $2,334,-012 and it is this sum that should have been charged to Reserve. The excess charged, viz. $5,806,663 should have been charged under the I. C. C. Uniform System of Accounts to Profit and Loss instead of to Reserve, which would therefore have increased the Reserve by this amount, as stated. (Bibbins Exh. 9, & p. 127a-1131a.)

Prior to May, 1925, this Commission had not issued an order upon Electric Railways, under its jurisdiction, for complete compliance with the I. C. C. Uniform System of Accounts, but had only made use of the I. C. C. Annual Report forms for reports of companies to this Commission. The applicant, therefore, at the present time long after these wrong charges have been made, should not be ordered to make restoration of this amount of shortage to the Reserve Fund; but in any determination of the reasonable allowance for future renewals it must be considered.

Further if it should be said that the Reserve Fund of $6,342,000 is considered too small at the present time, it is because insufficient amounts had been credited to it prior to 1921, when the $8,560,400 appropriation first became effective. And this insufficiency has relationship with the way the renewal accounts were kept by the Company. Had they been kept strictly according to the method prescribed by the I. C. C. Uniform System of Accounts for Electric Railways, such parts of renewals as were betterments would have been charged to Capital account and not to operating expenses, thus releasing additional amounts for building up the Renewal Reserve. This principle would apply both before and since 1921. The problem becomes involved in a maze of considerations and conditions that it is impossible to straighten out at the present time; but suffice it to say that it comes under the rule that what the Company has gained or lost in past years has nothing to do with present rates. Newton vs. Consolidated Gas Co. 258 U. S. 165; Galveston Electric Co. vs. Galveston 258 U. S. 388. There is therefore no justice in overcharging the car rider of today either for the benefit of the car rider of the future or for the purpose of building up a Reserve Fund that would be larger than is actually needed for the cycles of renewals and the preservation of the property investment.

One phase of this problem, however, may here be enlarged upon: The Company has not followed a uniform policy as to the basis of charging renewals. Mr. Brinkerhoff for the Company testified as to its present practice of charging all of the cost of replacing tram rail with Trilby rail to renewals (p. 245a). This much can be said, that the Company has charged as renewals of track large sums where it has rebuilt and renewed track with betterments which under a proper accounting system should have been paid for partly out of capital. For example, when a piece of track was renewed the difference between actual original cost of that track and th current cost of the rebuilt track should have been paid for out of capital. Thus, owing to the practice of the Company a large part, if not all, of the additional cost due to the higher level of prices prevailing during the war and post-war period, has been charged as an operating expenses, or to the renewal fund, and in some cases even where track has been improved in character, the extra cost of such improvement has been so charged. (See Myers p. 595a, 618a, 782a.)

This practice of charging betterments to operating expense rather than to capital account is not permissible under the I. C. C. Uniform System of Accounts for Electric Railways, but in the case of companies like the applicant that have not heretofore followed this system strictly, there has been a natural incentive thus to charge to operating expense or to renewals, the current cost inflated by high prices, not only for straight renewals but also for betterments, rather than the actual original cost. Of course if original cost had been charged to operating expenses as it should have been, then the operating expenses as reported by the Company would have been much less. This policy works in a threefold way to the Company's advantage: (1) it boosts operating expenses, (2) in the case of a leased system it reduces the capital expenditures spent upon leased property, (3) it turns up in any reproduction cost valuation that may ever be made for rate making purposes.

Thus the Company first gets an allowance for such items as operating expenses, and secondly they are taken into consideration in obtaining the rate base; and the company thus gains unduly at the expense of the car riders. Although in the instant case, it is impossible now to calculate the amounts in dollars, yet there can be no doubt that such items have been substantial, and should be taken into consideration in determining the reasonable allowance for renewals and depreciation in the future.

In the fixing of the reasonable allowance for renewals and depreciation in the future, the existence and the amount of the Reserve Fund already created are factors that must also be considered. On the one hand the Reserve Fund must not be looked upon as sacred and not to be drawn upon and used for the very purpose for which it is created. If it were to be so regarded, it would become necessary that every renewal should be provided for out of the annual appropriations, and this would apply whether the renewal estimate is made for one year, or for five years (as has been done by the Company's Committee) or for 33 years (as done by Mr. Bibbins); and this would apply likewise to peak years, with the requirement for abnormal renewal appropriations to cover them. On the other hand, the Reserve Fund must not be used up and drawn down to a point so low as to endanger its true purpose of providing for emergency needs and abnormal peak years. If, therefore, an estimate is presented to cover all needed renewals, even including peak years, the result would be that an allowance would be provided that would be too high at least for non-peak years, and which accordingly would go on adding to the Reserve Fund and thus building it up beyond any real need or use. This has actually been the effect of the $8,560,400 appropriation in this Company when taken over the five year period since its inception, as already shown. To go on with the same process simply to build up an ever growing reserve is unnecessary and it is unfair thus to burden the car rider, who pays for it in the fare. The true measure of a reasonable annual allowance is one that will prove to be what actually is needed to provide for renewals and depreciation and no more.

When, now, we approach the problem of what is actually needed for Renewals and Depreciation, we are confronted with two general theories: (1) That there should be set up an annual depreciation allowance or sinking fund appropriation sufficient to provide a fund to amortize the investment, that is, to write off the original cost of the property and thus protect the invested capital: (2) That the fund so provided shall be enough to renew the property as property, regardless of its original cost or investment value. Thus the second theory results (when reproduction costs are higher than the original costs) in the burden on the car rider being made great enough to include not only the amortization of the investment in the property, but also the additional capital over its original cost that may be required to reproduce it.

Both of these theories were presented in the testimony, as already stated. The Valuation Committee of the Company estimated its annual depreciation on Rolling Stock of $922,000 by the first theory, and Dr. Maltbie also used this theory in making his depreciation estimates for all the property. This is the theory on which the I. C. C. Unified System of Accounts is based. The second theory was used by this Company's Valuation Committee for all property other than Rolling Stock and they calculated the actual renewal program for the next five years and determined the average. Mr. Bibbins likewise used the second theory, applying it, however, to all of the property carrying out his renewal estimates for 33 years and taking the average, and also making a subsequent estimate for 5 years.

Mr. Myers advocated his new basis for determining annual depreciation and asserted the Company's intention of writing off accrued depreciation on each item of physical property, and of claiming an annual depreciation allowance based on "Value" as estimated from the Valuation case rather than on original cost. This would necessitate a highly elaborate set of "Value" estimates for the separate property items, more or less arbitrarily fitted together to make up the total of $200,000,000 and would involve high, if not prohibitive, costs to carry out. We know of no such method ever having been used. It is not in accordance with the meaning of "Ledger Value" as used in the rules for the Uniform System of Accounts of the I. C. C.

In fixing the annual depreciation allowance we hold that this should be found as of the present and regardless of past excesses or losses. After reviewing all of the evidence and the different theories of Renewals and Depreciation proposed, and considering all the factors above mentioned, we are of the opinion that the Commission should have adopted the straight line method proposed by Dr. Maltbie, with certain modifications and allowances in his figures. These are: (1) the elimination of the item of depreciation on paving, as recommended by him; (2) the allowing of an addition to his figures to cover estimated renewal liability in the future which the Company will have for the Frankford L and Bustleton lines, if the Frankford lease is extended in 1927; (3) the allowing of a round sum addition to his figures to cover a reduction in salvage values of equipment.

In Dr. Maltbie's tables 300 and 301 are given the original costs of the Company's property as found by Mr. Feustel as of 1919 (in the Valuation case) revised to December 31, 1925, by deducting the property retired or abandoned and adding the additions made since the Feustel estimates. These figures are as follows:

	Revised Original cost to Dec. 31, 1925	Feustel Salvage	Wearing Value	Straight Line Annual Depreciation Allowance
Way Structures Buildings and Furniture	$61,408,570	$3,976,478	$57,432,092	$1,405,700
Rolling Stock Equipment and Transmission System	30,953,072	4,846,396	26,106,676	1,062,700
	$92,361,642	$8,822,874	$83,538,768	$2,468,400

These figures do not include the Frankford "L" nor the Bustleton cars belonging to the City, nor are the trackless Trolleys included. Buildings are included as are also the old cars no longer used, but still retained for emergencies and known as "fire storage cars." Dr. Maltbie, in the above tables, did not add any amount for depreciation on overhead items, such as Engineering, interest during Construction, administration, and Legal Expenses, to Mr. Feustel's original cost figures, because neither did Mr. Feustel in his figures submitted to the Commission nor did the Commission itself in the figures used by it in its opinion in the Valuation case compute accrued depreciation on any overheads, and because a return was allowed in that decision upon the value of the property, without any deduction in depreciation being definitely fixed.

From this total of $2,468,400 annual depreciation allowance, we are of the opinion that there should be deducted the item for paving of $433,000, (3021a). This is because, while the Company receives a return in its Valuation upon the cost of the paving without any deduction for depreciation, all of the costs of the renewal of the paving is already provided for in operating expenses, either (1) through a direct charge under maintenance for the actual paving done by the company in the cases of track renewal not in coordination with the City's paving program, or (2) through the Paving Tax paid to the City, the City at its own expense attending to the renewal of all paving in its paving program. In the Valuation case the item of over $14,000,000 for paving was definitely fixed at the original cost without any deduction for depreciation. It was there explained that the paving item was a price paid for the franchises of the Company or of its predecessors. This therefore does not represent physical property owned by the Company, on which annual depreciation should be allowed.

Allowance should be made for depreciation of the Frankford "L" and Bustleton lines. Dr. Maltbie excluded them presumably because the lease expires in 1927. This lease may be renewed to 1957 at the option of the City. The total cost of the Frankford "L," including the cars, was approximately $15,600,000. Deducting the cost of the cars and their equipment as shown in Company Exhibit 27, $2,993,144 gives $12,606,856 as the cost of wages and structures. Assuming the same life that Dr. Maltbie assumes for the Market St. L, 75 years, and as salvage value, also as Dr. Maltbie assumes, we find $168,-091, as the required straight line annual depreciation. As the L wage and structures include roadway and track, signal apparatus, power equipment, etc., the lives of which are considerably shorter than 75 years, the assumed composite life of 75 years is too long, but on the other hand some salvages would be realized from track and signal apparatus, etc., which would have an offsetting effect in reducing the amount of annual depreciation. As to the Bustleton line, Mr. Bibbins estimated total renewal for thirty-three years at $250,233, which would be $7,585 annually. As to the depreciation on the cars of the Frankford and Bustleton lines, this can be calculated from the costs and lives as given in Company's Exhibit 27; using Dr. Maltbie's salvage values, the annual depreciation is $89,019.

Allowance should also be made for adjustment of the item of salvages on rolling stock and its electrical equipment. Dr. Maltbie used Mr. Feustel's figures for salvages, but testified that they are somewhat high for the present time. The Company's Committee fixed their salvage values at only one-half to one-ninth of the Feustel figures although the salvage values used by Mr. Feustel were those given him by the Company itself. Eliminating the Trackless trolleys and including the Frankford L and Bustleton cars, the difference between Dr. Maltbie's estimate and the Committee's estimate caused by different figures used for salvage values is about $126,000. We are of the opinion that an allowance of half of this amount $63,000, should be made for this item.

There remains three items which in our opinion will offset each other, so that no further modifications of Dr. Maltbie's figures are required. These items are: (1) the depreciation of overheads, omitted by Dr. Maltbie, and also omitted by the Company's Valuation Committee; (2) depreciation on buildings including by Dr. Maltbie, but omitted by the Company's Valuation Committee on the ground that the depreciation on buildings would be offset by the appreciation in land values; this would reduce Dr. Maltbie's figures by $131,400 per year; (3) depreciation on the "fire storage cars," which would reduce Dr. Maltbie's figures by $34,000 per year. The evidence is not sufficiently complete as to depreciation on overheads accurately to calculate the exact amount, but we are of the opinion that even were same to be allowed—and the Company's Committee as stated did not claim it—this item would closely balance with and offset the other two above items, which we think should be deducted.

Considering all these factors and making the above deductions and allowances, we find that the annual depreciation allowance based on Dr. Maltbie's tables as modified should be $2,363,000, and that an annual depreciation allowance of this latter amount would be ample. Under all the present conditions and circumstances, and weighing all the above mentioned considerations we are of the opinion that this amount for annual renewal and depreciation allowance will both protect the investment, and be a reasonable charge to be included in operating expenses.

Dr. Maltbie did not include track realigning and surfacing as an element of depreciation or as a renewal, for in his analyses of the Company's operating expenses for past years he transferred realigning and surfacing track from renewals, where the Company in its accounts had classed it, to current maintenance. As for purposes of comparison, we omitted this item from Maintenance, where to us also it would seem more to belong than to Renewals and Depreciation, it is necessary that this item should now be allowed for. The Company's committee estimated track realigning and surfacing requirement for the next five years (Exh. 26) at $127,000 annually. We would allow this amount as a "Border Line Renewal"; and for the purpose of comparison with the estimates of the Company's Committee and of Mr. Bibbins' will therefore add it to the above named sum for Renewals and Depreciation, making final allowance of $2,490,000.

It may further be stated that, adding this figure of $2,490,000 for all renewals and depreciation to our previously found figure of $5,416,462 for maintenance for 1925, we get $7,906,462, which is more than Four hundred and sixty thousand dollars ($460,000) in excess of the average actual expenditures for the past five years, 1921 to 1925 inclusive, out of the Company's annual appropriation of $8,560,400 for both of these items.

It is interesting to compare this result, reached as it is upon the Depreciation Theory with the figures determined by Mr. Bibbins for the City upon the Renewal Theory. This figure $2,490,000, exceeds by nearly $400,000 the City's estimate of $2,094,800 for the average renewal requirements for the next five years; and apart from the $127,000 for track realignment and surfacing is only slightly greater than the $2,350,000 appropriation which the City advocates for the 33 years period based on Mr. Bibbins' exhaustive studies from the point of view of the present physical condition of all divisions of the property and the needs for renewals as they will occur.

In answer to the Company's objection in the Bibbins' estimate to the use of the $2,350,000 figure, that the reserve will be reduced to $1,672,336 at the end of the 33 year period, it may be noted that under Mr. Bibbins' estimate the reserve will rise and fall from year to year in accordance with the cycles of renewal needs, between an estimated top limit of $12,279,113 in 1932 and an estimated low limit of $1,384,532 in 1952. However, this is not important for the reasons stated above. The reserve would be large in every year if in the past the Company had set up a proper amount, and had followed a proper accounting practice in making debits and credits. Also the question of in what particular year or years, track work or power plant or substation renewals may occur, whether within the five year estimate of the Committee or within six or eight years or more in the Bibbins' estimate, will not alter the result if the Reserve be drawn upon as the need may require.

Finally, we feel that the close approximation of the results, (1) of Dr. Maltbie's studies of straight line annual depreciation based on Mr. Feustel's original cost figures, and as modified above, (2) of Mr. Bibbins' estimate for actual renewal needs based on a searching physical survey and analysis of the property as to both present and future renewal needs, especially when taken in the light of the Company's own expenses when so much less than this has actually been spent and when its property has been maintained and renewed upon a high standard, gives ample assurance that the Company's property investment will be fully protected and that the present day car riders will not be called upon to bear an unreasonable burden beyond the actual necessities of the situation by the use of $2,490,000 as the annual allowance for Renewals and Depreciation.

Power Operation

The majority report admits that the actual experience of 1925 indicated that the Company's estimate for this item was $108,699 too high but arbitrarily ignores this difference. The 1925 figures were arrived at in exactly the same way as in the case of passenger revenue, that is by taking 11 months actual and estimating December by assuming the same ratio of increase of December over November as existed in 1924. This method appears fair and the best available unless the decision were delayed until the actual figures for December were available. Even if the cost per car mile of December 1924 instead of November 1925 were used the Company's estimate would still be approximately $80,000 too high. It appears, however, that in 1924 an abnormal amount of the wage dividend was included in December so that all costs for this month are abnormally high. It is therefore not fair to take the figures for that month as the standard.

The Company purchases nearly three-fourths of its power from the Philadelphia Electric Company, a small amount from Philadelphia Hydro-Electric Company, and generates the balance. In September, 1924, the Company's estimate of the cost of power operation for 1925 was $3,992,600. In April, 1925, this estimate was reduced to $3,885,000. The actual figures for the first eleven months of 1925 show a total cost of $3,447,258.48 (including amounts paid into the Cooperative Wage Fund) and for the twelve months ended November 30, 1925 (the last twelve months for which figures are available) a total of $3,792,807. Estimating December, 1925, on the basis of prior years, it appears that the total cost of power operation during 1925 approximates $3,776,300. Reduced to a basis of car mileage, the cost during 1925 has been less than 4.2 cents per car mile.

On behalf of the Company, it was testified that the power contract with the Philadelphia Electric Company, which expires November 15, 1926, was unsatisfactory and that, unless more satisfactory terms could be obtained, the applicant would probably have to generate its own power or purchase its supply elsewhere on a much more satisfactory basis. The City's expert testified that he expected a substantial reduction in the power operating account for 1926, due partially to the shutting down of one or more inefficient power plants and partially to the probable modification of the Philadelphia Electric Company contract.

A complaint has been filed by the Company, alleging the unreasonableness of the Philadelphia Electric Company contract, and we would not wish to take any action in the present case which might seem in any way to prejudge the complaint which has been filed. It appears, however, that the Company is satisfied it can obtain power at lower rates than at present either by generating it for itself or by purchasing it elsewhere than from the Philadelphia Electric Company. The diminishing use of inefficient plants should also reduce the cost of power operation.

We would not, however, at this time reduce the estimated cost of power on these accounts.

In the light of all the evidence, we are of the opinion that the cost of power operation during 1926 (including amounts paid into the Cooperative Wage Fund) should not exceed 4.2 cents per passenger-car mile. Applying this to an estimated passenger-car mileage for 1926 of 92,340,000 miles, we conclude that the total cost of power operation, if the present rates of far are continued, will not exceed $3,878,000, including amounts paid into the Cooperative Wage Fund.

(c) Conducting Transportation

In September, 1924, the Company estimated the cost of conducting transportation in 1925 at $15,681,000. This was raised in April, 1925, to $16,244,000. The City's estimate was $15,942,000. This difference between the City and the Company arose from a difference in the estimate of car miles in 1925. The Company later accepted the City's estimate.

The actual figures for the first eleven months of 1925 show a total cost (including wages paid into the Cooperative Wage Fund) of $14,527,851.90 and for the twelve months ended November 30, 1925 (the last twelve months for which figures are available) a total of $16,074,481. Estimating December, 1925, on the basis of a comparison with 1924 indicates that the total cost of conducting transportation during 1925 approximates $15,884,000.

Reduced to a car-mileage basis, the cost of conducting transportation for 1925 was approximately 17.65 cents per passenger-car mile, which corresponds exactly with the City's estimate which the Company accepted. This compares with costs in prior years (including the 10% Cooperative Wage Dividend) as follows: 1922, 16.37 cents; 1923, 15.99 cents; 1924, 16.54 cents.

After a review of all the evidence, we have concluded that the cost of conducting transportation during 1926 should not exceed 17.65 cents per passenger-car mile. Applying this to the estimated passenger-car mileage for 1926 of 92,340,000 miles, we are of the opinion that the total cost of power operation, if the present rates are continued, will not exceed $16,300,000, including the amounts paid into the Cooperative Wage Fund.

General and Miscellaneous Expenses

In the majority report it is stated that in the City's brief the General and Miscellaneous group of costs is not challenged. We cannot agree with this statement because the City's brief cites numerous instances where these items of expense have clearly been abnormally high and not likely to be recurring, and it urges that these sums should not be allowed. The City particularly stressed the impropriety of the appropriations to the Willow Grove Park Company.

Reference is made in the majority report to comparisons of expenditures with the Chicago system. It is stated "as to the detailed circumstances the record in the present case does not enable us to find the necessary similarity to give force to the comparison." It then omits all reference to the unfavorable comparison with Chicago, but immediately proceeds to cite the comparison of general operating ratios in the two cities, which without explanation would appear to be favorable to the Philadelphia Company. It is misleading to say that the Chicago fares are "similar." They are:

Surface Lines 7 cents cash—3 for 20 cents.

The comparisons made in the record were between the Chicago Surface Lines only and the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company. Thus the Chicago Surface fare is clearly lower than in Philadelphia, which of course would make the operating ratio higher. Furthermore the elevated subway of the Philadelphia System would tend to make a lower operating ratio as compared to the Chicago Surface Lines above. We refer below to these comparisons between the two cities as to General and Miscellaneous Expenses, and believe with the allowances cited, that they are properly comparable.

Among the operating expenses, the two accounts of Traffic and General and Miscellaneous Expenses have been combined in the burget submitted by the Company, viz., $4,750,880. We shall consider them separately.

Traffic. The operating expenses charged to Traffic, although not large relatively to other accounts, have shown an extraordinary increase in recent years. These expenditures are largely for newspaper and car advertising and for Willow Grove Park. The totals spent have been: 1919, $6,796; 1920, $7,507; 1921, $27,842; 1922, $109,468; 1923, $68,724; 1924, $109,810; 1925, 11mos., $186,502. In the years 1922, 1923, 1924, there was appropriated each year $50,000 to Willow Grove Park Company, and in the first six months of 1925, $12,500 to the same company. All of the common stock of that company is owned or controlled, and until 1923 all of the preferred stock was also owned. by the applicant. Dividends were paid to the latter in 1922 and 1923, but nothing in 1924. Inasmuch as the Company refused access for the Commission's expert to the books of the Willow Grove Park Company and took the ground that, being non-utility in character the Park business is not under the jurisdiction of the Commission, any payments thereto or profits therefrom would have no relevancy to the rates to be charged on the utility. The case is similar to an investment that the Company might in land not used for street railway purposes; if loss or profit should arise therefrom, neither would have any bearing on the rates to be charged. We therefore would sustain the claim of the City that a payment of this character should not be allowed as an operating expense. The majority report says "The Commission is not convinced that the annual payment of $50,000 to the Willow Grove Park Company is not a proper operating charge. Moreover the figures estimated for 1925 for non-operating income ($235,000) is the same figure submitted for 1923 and it seems clear, reflects Willow Grove Park dividends ($88,440) received by the Company in the last mentioned year." This clearly is an error. The non-operating income for 1923 was $316,232, not $235,000. See applicant's Exhibit 5. Also the $235,000 estimate for 1925 clearly excludes Willow Grove dividends. See Applicant's Exhibit 14A. It was also testified to that no dividend had been received by the applicant from the Willow Grove Park Company since 1923 in spite of the fact that an examination of the report to the Auditor General revealed that there had been net earnings in 1924 though no dividends were paid. Such dividends could, of course, be held back until the termination of the rate case, thus reducing income of the company, while the expenditure of the $50,000 appropriation to the Park Company would continue as a charge to operating expenses. As stated above, we are of the opinion that the Park Company should be omitted from both sides of the account in a rate case. The principal other expenses under Traffic have been; 1922, newspaper advertising, including the reproduction of Service Talks, $50,000; 1923, newspaper advertising $11,500, car advertising $6,000; 1924, newspaper advertising $14,000, car and other advertising $27,000 1925, first six months newspaper advertising $20,600, car advertising $24,000. The abnormal expenditures in 1925, totaling $186,502 in 11 months all charged by the Company to Advertising, are extraordinary, impose an unreasonable burden upon the car riders, and are not needed for future years. Upon reviewing the expenditures for the several years mentioned, we would allow for Traffic, a total of $50,000.

General and Miscellaneous Expenses. The applicant's budget for 1925 for General and Miscellaneous Expenses, including Traffic, as stated, was $4,750,880. The actual expenditures under this heading, exclusive of Traffic, already considered above, have been: 1919, $2,690,294 (to which for purposes of comparisons valuation charges of $118.607.79, first charged to capital account and in 1921 charged off to profit and loss, should be added), 1920, $3,513,851; 1921, $3,263,867; 1922. $3,438,910; 1923, $3,991,434; 1924, $4,483,209; and in 1925 (11 mos.) $4,273,399. These figures show an increase from 1919 to 1924 of nearly $1,800,000, while passenger car miles have remained nearly the same (1919, 85,623,393; 1924, 86,533,161). The cost per passenger car mile for this group of expenditures has risen from 3.28 cents in 1919 (including the valuation figure mentioned above) to 5.18 cents, and the corresponding cost for 11 months of 1925 is 5.19 cents, or more than 58% increase. A comparison with the Chicago Surface Lines was made (both companies using the same unified forms of accounts of the Interstate Commerce Commission for electric railways), which showed that, whereas the cost per revenue (all) car mile in Chicago in 1924 (fiscal year ending January 31, 1925) was 3.03 cents the corresponding figure for the applicant in 1924 was 4.57 cents, even after excluding for purposes of comparison the cooperative wage dividend, $189,588; Mitten Management Fee. $158,000; and $172,846 for "receivers," charged in Philadelphia to this group of accounts and otherwise in Chicago. The actual out-of-pocket cost of the Chicago Company was actually less, although its car mileage was 127,213,599 against 86,635,875 of the applicant in Philadelphia. The applicant did not adequately account for the reasonableness of the higher cost of its General and Miscellaneous Expenses in Philadelphia as compared to Chicago, the explanation offered being that in the 1924 charges in Philadelphia there were amounts totaling about $250,000 for the unusual item of Valuation Expense, and that the Chicago system follows the practice of transferring to capital account at the end of each year a portion of its General and Miscellaneous Expenses, but the amount of this transfer was not set forth. The applicant also cited in defense that the operaing ratio of all expenses to gross income in Chicago was 80%, whereas in Philadelphia it was but 73.6%. In this connection, it was developed by the City that the Chicago figure is for surface railways only, while the Philadelphia figure includes the elevated and subway systems, and that therefore an accurate comparison of such full operating ratios is not possible. Furthermore the total operating expenses and taxes in 1924 in Chicago were 36.61 cents per mile as compared with 37.28 cents for the applicant company in Philadelphia the same year.

In explaining the higher General and Administration cost from 1919 to 1924, the applicant claimed that there was abundant reason for it. It set forth that during these years the valuation case had been charged to operating expenses under this group of accounts;[1] also that other unusual and heavy expenditures had been made necessary because of the present rate case and the various official investigations incident thereto. It explained that the opening of the Frankford Elevated Railway had added substantially to the number of receivers of the moneys turned in; that the establishment of the 6¼-cent fare had doubled a large body of accounting work, due to the necessiy of accounting separately for tickets, tokens, and cash; and that expensive traffic and engineering studies had been made necessary because of the ever increasing vehicular use of the streets and also in connection with the City's plans for subways, for the Sesqui-Centennial, and for the changes incidental to the new West Philadelphia terminal of the Pennsylvania Railroad. It claimed that the adjustment of salaries of officers and clerks from the prewar to the postwar basis had been deferred until this period, and that the average in the annual rate paid to clerks and officers whose salaries are charged to this group of accounts shows only a 42.23% increase, which is less than the increase in the trainmen's wages during this period; and that the additional expenditures for this supervisory class of employees had made possible increased productivity of the trainmen and shop groups, which had saved from three to five times its added cost.

We recognize the weight of these considerations, and are therefore solicitous to do full justice to the present necessities of the applicant, while at the same time protecting the car riders from the burden of carrying any expenditures that may no longer be required. An analysis of the items comprising General and Miscellaneous Expenses, as submitted in the testimony, reveals that a number of them have been abnormal in character and in amount, and should not recur in future years. In order, therefore, to prepare a proper budget, it is necessary to consider separately the charge accounts of this group of expenditures.

Salaries and Expenses of General Officers. For this charge there had been spent: 1922, $457,933; 1923, $426,431; 1924, $431,625; and 1925 (11 mos.), $250,062. In the amounts for 1922, 1923, and 1924 there is included the Mitten Management Fee of $158,000. As stated earlier in this report, the basis of compensation to Mitten Management, Inc., was changed on January 1, 1925, so that the fee was greatly enlarged. However, this fee does not now have to be considered by this Commission in this case, because during this proceeding, on March 21, 1925, the applicant instructed the Commission that with the consent of its stockholders, effective January 1, 1925, "Mitten Management Fee as well as wage dividends, have been made a charge against fair return, thus eliminating these items as factors affecting rates." The Commission was further authorized to disallow the same as an operating expense and to increase the return which the Company received by that amount in so far as relates to 1924 and prior years when the management fee was included as an operating expense. In the expenses of 1924, there were also charged expenditures incurred by A. A. Chapman of $12,912.82 and in 1923 similar expenses by him of $23,-981.18 and in 1922 of $9,429.14, all of which the applicant has authorized to be excluded from the operating expense accounts. In the accounts of 1924, as reviewed by the Commission's expert and testified to, there were "Miscellaneous Personal Expense" vouchers totaling $15,000, for which no explanation was submitted. Eliminating all of these, the adjusted figures for this account become: 1922, $290,504; 1923, $244,450; 1924, $245,713. Based on the figures for 11 months, the total for 1925 will be about $275,-000, and we would allow this amount. In connection with this account, it may be noted that the salaries and wage dividends of officers (exclusive of Mitten Management), Department Heads and Assistants, in this and other accounts, have been as follows: in December, 1918, there were 18 officers receiving $6,000 or over and 71 receiving under $6,000, with toal annual rate of $381,542; and in February, 1925, there were 44 officers receiving $6,000 or over and 49 receiving under $6,000, with total annual rate of $727,850.

Salaries and Expenses of General Office Clerks. These expenditures have been: 1922, $559,135; 1923, $617,805; 1924, $685,800; 1925 (11 mos.), $721,945. Based on the 11 months, the total for 1925 will be about $790,000. We would allow $800,000 on this account.

General Office Supplies and Expenses. These expenditures have been: 1922, $157,919; 1923, $195,681; 1924, $156,899; 1925, (11 mos.) $175,508. Based on the 11 months, the total for 1925 will be about $190,000, and we would allow this amount for this account.

Law Expenses. These expenditures have shown extraordinary increase, even when allowance is made for the special Valuation case charges. The expenditures have been: 1919, $61,635; 1920, $79,755; 1921, $94,936; 1922, $128,807; 1923, $187,032; 1924, $279,477; 1925, (11 mos.), $166,680. Deducting the Valuation charges as per the applicant's Valuation cost exhibit (none of which will apply to a new budget), the above yearly expenditures would become: 1919, $61,635; 1920, $67,755; 1921, $83,675; 1922, $90,485; 1923, $53,654; 1924, $129,253. There is a further nonrecurring item of $5,000 to be eliminated from 1924, as a basis of comparison, viz., the counsel fee in connection with the Delaware River Bridge franchise, thus reducing the 1924 amount to $124,253. In the first six months of 1925, there was a further charge for valuation of $13,212.91. In connection with these large and extraordinary charges to law and valuation expenses, it may be noted that in 1924 alone there was allowed to one officer-attorney of the applicant a total of $226,737.58, made up as follows: salary, $28,666.66; wage dividend, $2,-866.67; for valuation work charged to law expenses, $95,-244.25; and valuation account, $99,980, of which $32,000 was paid to an assistant. The law expenses for 1925, 11 months, $166,680, even after making the above deduction of $18,212, show an unexplained increase of about $34,000 over the above amount adjusted for 1924, which in turn was much larger than previous years. The Commission is judicially cognizant of other extensive legal work before it during 1925, which will not be recurrent. Upon reviewing the record, we are of the opinion that we would be liberal in allowing to law expenses the sum of $140,000.

In discussing litigation expenses, the majority report allows the full estimate of the company. Law expenses for the last few years have clearly been abnormal. We are dealing with normal conditions, and our views as expressed above are based on what we believe to be normal allowances.

Relief Department. These expenditures have been: 1922, $156,012; 1923, $162,735; 1924, $174,526; 1925 (11 mos.), $210,601. Included in these are the expenses of the Relief Department of the Savings Fund Department, and of the Cooperative Wage Fund. Based on 11 months, the amount required for 1925 will be about $230,000. The increasing amounts are due to the present arrangement, adopted May, 1924, under which the Company contributes a dollar to the Relief Fund for each dollar contributed by the men. The enlightened policy of the Company in its relief and savings funds is to be commended, and we would allow this amount $230,000 for this account.

Pensions and Gratuities. This is a new account in 1925. On the present basis, the amount for a year will be $15,-900, which we would allow.

Miscellaneous General Expenses

This account was fluctuated widely and was especially high in 1923 and 1925. There has been spent: 1919, $156,-862; 1920, $203,646; 1921, $112,719; 1922, $198,655; 1923, $301,842; 1924, $222,853; 1925, 11 months, $399,322. In this account are charged the expenses of Service talks, "which in 1924 amounted to $39,260.78, and in the first six months of 1925 had arisen to $45,220 clearly an abnormally large amount. Other non-recurring expenses not properly chargeable to the car riders and to be eliminated for 1924 are: Trip to Buffalo of Cooperative Committee $17,878.17, expenses of A. A. Chapman, $11,573.57 and proxy campaign for stockholders' meeting $2,344.53. Similar nonrecurring eliminations for the first six months of 1925 are: Sundry expenses in re Conowingo project $48,745; a payment for which there was no voucher $2,500. Making these adjustments the revised figure for 1924 is $191,058 and for 1925 (11 mos). $348,078. There is no further explanation in the testimony as to this extraordinarily high cost in 1925. As to "Service Talks," we would not be inclined to criticize the policy of a company reasonably keeping its patrons and its stockholders informed as to its plans and purposes, but we believe that the expenditures for this purpose should not be in excess of the smaller amounts spent in previous years. Upon a careful review of the record, we would allow for Miscellaneous General Expenses $250,000.

Valuation Expenses

Reference to the cost of so-called "Valuation" case was made above while we were reviewing law expenses. This valuation account was opened in 1920 and to it have been charged up to and including 1924, $588,115 of the expense out of a total cost, as already stated, of $1,078,005.57 the balance being chiefly charged to Law Expenses. These expenses have been distributed as follows: 1920, $146,-901.71; 1921, $118,949.06; 1922, $118,984.88; 1923, $103,-147.72; 1924, $100,131.63. There was also spent in 1924 for plant accounting $4,446.03, which was charged to the Valuation account. In 1925 (11 mos.) the charges to Valuation account have been $12,154.86. One of the vice presidents of the applicant stated that he knew of no further expense for valuation. However, to cover the continuance of his item of plant accounting, as above, we would allow for Valuation Account, $5,000.

Injuries and Damages

The expenditures for this account are the largest in this group of expenses, and since 1921 have nearly doubled. The amounts have been 1919, $1,283,413; 1920, $1,379,279; 1921, $1,094,630; 1922, $1,148,351; 1923, $1,421,726; 1924, $1,-802,170; 1925, (11 mos.) $1,879,663. The amounts in cents for revenue (all) car mile have been 1919, 1.49; 1920, 1.66; 1921, 1.36; 1922, 1.40; 1923, 1.62; 1924, 2.08; 1925 (11 mos). 2.28. A comparison with Chicago was submitted in which it was shown in 1916 (year ending January 31, 1917) the Chicago surface lines set aside just slightly in excess of one per cent per car mile for Injuries and Damages; by 1924 the amount had been increased to 1.92 cents per car mile, an increase of 88..2% per car mile. In Philadelphia, there was a charge for Injuries and Damages in 1916 of .76 of a cent per car mile, and in 1924 this had increased to 2.08 cents per car mile, an increase of 175 per cent. In Chicago also this appropriation had resulted in building up a reserve of $5,149,461 upon January 31, 1925 for Injuries and Accidents, while the applicant had on January 1, 1925, a similar reserve of only $981,805.97. One of the applicant's witnesses testified that 1924 as compared to 1920 showed an increase in accidents of 68% on the system as a whole, but of only 43% on one-man car lines. This 68% increase of accidents was attributed to the growing volume of traffic on the streets and the larger verdicts rendered by juries. The applicant further claimed that its enlightened policy of claim settlements had been instrumental in reducing the Injuries and Damages account from the figures of 6.08% of gross revenue in 1910 to 3.57% in 1920, and that, "the proportion since 1921 (sic) has had to be constantly advanced because of larger demands for settlements." In the 11 months of 1925 the corresponding figure is 4.24% of gross revenue and this serious upward tendency will appear to require for 1925 no less than $2,050,500. As stated before, this is almost double the requirement for 1922, nevertheless we would allow this amount.

Insurance, Stationery and Printing, Store Expenses, Garage and Stable

All of these accounts have shown little change and only normal growth in the years under consideration. It does not seem necessary to set out the details for the various years. We would allow in each case an amount based on the figures of 11 months of 1925 calculated for the full year, namely: Insurance, $82,000, Stationery and Printing, $92,-500, Store Expenses $164,600, Garage and Stable Expenses $90,000.

Rents of Tracks and Facilities

There has been spent each year for this account an amount slightly less than $5,000. It was testified that $4,000 of this is for property that was included in the Valuation of $200,000,000. This amount is therefore not properly chargeable to operating expense in a rate case and we would accordingly allow for this account only $1,000.

Cooperative Wage Fund

In all of the above figures for past years as well as 1925 and in the estimate for 1926, allowances have been made to include the 10% Cooperative Wage Fund, so that it need not be considered separately.

Summary of General and Miscellaneous Expenses

Collecting together the above determinations, we have the following amounts for the accounts forming the General and Miscellaneous Expenses, viz:

Salaries and Expenses of General Officers	$275,000
Salaries and Expenses of General Office Clerks	800,000
General Office Supplies and Expenses	190,000
Law Expenses	140,000
Relief Department Expenses	230,000
Pensions and Gratuities	15,900
Miscellaneous General Expenses	250,000
Valuation Expenses	5,000
Injuries and Damages	2,050,500
Insurance	82,000
Stationery and Printing	92,500
Store Expenses	164,600
Garage and Stable Expenses	80,000
Rent of Tracks and Facilities	1,000
Total	$4,386,500

Rounding this out and to allow for contingencies, we would add $13,500 and allow the round sum of $4,400,000 for General and Miscellaneous Expenses.

Here again we do not agree with the majority that it is only in a clear case of bad management that a regulatory Commission may interfere with the general and miscellaneous expenses of a utility. The management may be good and yet claim for expenses sums in excess of what are reasonably needed to carry on the business. It is the duty of a regulatory commission to allow such operating expenses only as are reasonably necessary to the efficient management of the utility. It would be idle to give a Commission power to fix valuations where every dollar of difference in amount means practically seven cents and to tie its hands in dealing with operating expenses where every dollar of difference means one hundred cents in the result.

Wages

In the discussion of the case up to this point, the cooperative wage dividend has been included, because in the evidence submitted it was not separated from the other part of the amount claimed as wages, in those items where it is a factor. The total amount of this cooperative wage dividend for 1925 was estimated as $2,100,000. In the final conclusion, the accompanying tables are so arranged that the profits are shown on both bases, that is including and excluding this amount of the cooperative wage dividend.

The wages paid by the Company to its trainmen have been the subject of considerable testimony and very great controversy in this case. This controversy in a large part centers about the legal status of the wage dividend and involves the question as to how far the action of the Company taken on April 20, 1925, has affected the rule laid down by the Superior Court that the wage dividend is not a proper charge against operating expenses. It will be helpful to review briefly the history of the wage policy of the Company.

In 1913 the Company agreed that the wages to be paid by it would be the average of the wages for similar service in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo. In 1922 it was agreed that the wages paid in Buffalo should no longer be included in determining the wages to be paid by the Company because the same management operated the systems in both cities. Thereafter, the so-called "Three-City Average" was established as the wage schedule of the Company in fixing the base rate of the wage to be paid.

In January, 1922, with the consent of its stockholders the Company adopted a policy of paying a co-operative wage dividend not to exceed ten per cent of its payroll after the payment of a six per cent dividend to the stockholders of the Company. We have pointed out that the Superior Court in the City of Philadelphia vs. Public Service Commission, 84 Pa. Sup. Ct. 135, decided that such payment was not a proper charge against operating expenses. The so-called "Three-City Average" was not followed uniformly by the Company in fixing the base rate of wages. The adoption of the wage dividend and its payment during the years of 1922, 1923, and 1924 constituted some departure from that principle. Further in 1923, the base rate paid by the Company, exclusive of the wage dividend, was 64 cents in comparison with the "Three-City Average" of 67½ cents. In 1924 the base rate was 65 cents exclusive of the wage dividend in comparison with the "Three-City Average" of 68½ cents.

On January 1, 1925, the base wage was increased by the Company to 70 cents per hour exclusive of the wage dividend, and for several months thereafter this wage rate was in effect with a cooperative wage dividend not to exceed ten per cent of the annual wage, payable after the payment of a six per cent dividend upon the capital stock of the Company, and the company's books were kept upon this basis.

From the time the wage dividend was established, the payments represented by it, and now incorporated in the base wage, have not been made directly to the employees in cash but to the Trustees of the Cooperative Wage Dividend (later called "Cooperative Wage Fund") consisting of two employees of the Company and two officers of the Company. The expenses of operating this Fund has been paid by the Company and charged to operating expenses. Non-transferable participation certificates are issued by the Trustees to those entitled thereto, evidencing the interest of the individual named therein in the Fund. For the most part the money paid into the Fund has been invested in the common stock of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company purchased from time to time in the open market. The voting power of the stock is vested in the Trustees. If an employe leaves the service of the Company or dies, the Trustees have the option of paying to him, or to his legal representatives, as the case may be, cash equivalent to the amount paid in or the pro rata share of the securities and cash represented by his certificate, which even may be determined by the Trustees to be for the best interests of all the members of the Fund.

The employes consented to this method of handling the Fund when the plan was formed, and sometime in the summer of 1925, practically all agreed individually to continue a ten per cent payment of wages to the Fund, so that no practical change was made in the method of payment since April 20, 1925, when the wage dividend as such was abolished.

At the present time the Trustees of the Fund hold in trust for the persons entitled thereto between one-fourth and one-third of the entire outstanding common capital stock of the Company. Participation in the Fund is not limited to the trainmen of the Company, but is applicable to all employes, extending to the general officers, some of whom receive salaries ranging from $15,000 to $30,000 per annum, upon which the ten per cent payment is made. As late as March, 1925, the Company took the position, in conformity with the decision of the Superior Court already referred to, that the wage dividend would be paid from fair return, and would not be charged as an operating expense, and through its counsel it so notified the Commission in writing.

On April 20, 1925, the Board of Directors of the Company in effect repudiated this action by abolishing the wage dividend, and attempted to make the ten per cent represented by it part of the base wage rate, retroactive to January 1, 1925, and the Company now claims that the entire amount, including the increase so made, is properly chargeable to operating expenses and the books of the Company for the period between January and April 1925 have been changed to conform to this plan. This formal corporate action was not taken until after the General Committee of the men had agreed by resolution of April 18, 1925, (Record 886a) to authorize the Company to pay the amount of the increase of ten per cent to the Trustees of the Fund. The City's position is that the action of the Board of Directors of the Company on April 20, 1925, was a subterfuge adopted to circumvent the decision of the Superior Court, so as to increase the operating expenses by the sum of $2,100,000, (the estimated sum required to pay ten per cent of the wages for 1925), and that this entire sum should be eliminated from operating expenses.

It should be noted at this point that the Majority Report mis-states the terms upon which this payment was made prior to April 20, 1925. The Majority says the wage dividend was payable "only after payment of the current dividend to stockholders." As a matter of fact the term "current dividend" is nowhere used in the record evidence of this payment. The wage dividend was payable after the payment of the six per cent dividend to the stockholders. The importance of this mis-statement becomes significant when it is known that from January 1, 1925, the Company increased its dividend from six per cent to eight per cent. The Company admits that the rate of 77 cents per hour is higher than that paid in any other city in the country, but it nevertheless contends that it is a reasonable wage, and that the question is one of managerial judgment, over which the Commission has no power in the absence of an abuse of discretion.

The questions presented by this situation are of far-reaching importance. We agree that the management of the Company is efficient. On former occasions the Commission has expressed this view, and we freely concur in it. We agree also that there is a marked co-operation between men and management, which is greatly to be desired. It must not be lost sight of, however, that from 1918 to January 1925, the base wage rate of the trainmen was increased from 48 cents per hour to 70 cents per hour. This was not a steady increase, the wage fluctuated from time to time. It passed through the following gradations of steady advance between 1918 and 1921: 48 cents, 51 cents, 54 cents, 58 cents, 65 cents, 68.5 cents and 72.5 cents. On May 1, 1921, it was reduced to 65 cents, later lowered to 64 cents, and then to 62.5 cents. It was again increased to 64 cents, then to 65 cents, and finally, on January 1, 1925, to 70 cents. The rate of wages in the city of Washington is 58 cents; in certain parts of the City of New York 60 cents; in Baltimore 52 cents; in Pittsburgh 67 cents; in Detroit 73 cents; in Boston 72.5 cents; in Chicago 75 cents and in Cleveland 75 cents.

In discussing this question, the Majority Report speaks of the payment to the Cooperative Wage Fund in this manner: "The fact that a part of the resulting total wages is by the men's direction paid to Trustees designated by them and invested in the stock of the Company does not render such payment any the less a wage. Such arrangements are not uncommon in our industrial life. In the present case, the records show that the men have unanimously authorized the arrangement, and that further, upon retirement from the service or upon death, every man, or his personal representative, as the case might be, received from the Trustees the pro-rata share of the Funds in their hands. In the meantime they, and they alone, received the income. The 77 cents wage is now an absolute commitment by the Company to the men. It is paid entirely to them or to their Trustees, and cannot be diverted from their ultimate use and benefit. It is not unreasonable in amount. The Commission, therefore, concludes that there is no basis for a ruling disallowing any portion of the Company's wages in considering the items of the operating budget, in which wages appear as a factor."

This leaves entirely out of consideration the following important factors which should enter into a decision in this matter: (1) The voting control of the stock purchased with this money is not lodged in the man but in Trustees for them. (2) That Participation Certificates, representing the ownership in the Fund, are not transferable like other property owned by individuals. (3) Upon the termination of employment, or upon death, the employe, or his representative, receives either the amount of the cash paid in, or a pro-rata share of the stock, which ever the Trustees elect, and in case the stock is worth more than the amount of money paid in, the employe may receive no benefit from its enhancement in value. (4) Under the plan the individual employe has no title to any given number of shares of the Company's stock.

A study of the plan makes it evident that it has purposes other than merely to give the men an interest in the Company. The Trustees, having the voting power of a block of stock representing at present between one-fourth and one-third of the entire outstanding issue, practically have the control of the Company in their hands, and it is impossible for anyone studying this record to believe that this fact was not taken into account when the plan was formed. We do not say that this is an illegal arrangement, but certainly it has in it the germ of a real danger to the public if the Commission ever adopts finally the theory of the Company toward which the first step has not been taken that the amount of the wages of the men and the amount of the salaries of the officers is one exclusively of managerial discretion. If the control of the Company shall pass to the Trustees by reason of the ownership of a majority, or almost a majority, of the stock, the wages and salaries can be fixed in such manner as to make it immaterial whether or not dividends are paid on the stock.

It might further be pointed out that a due regard to sound economic principles would suggest the advisability of an investment of this character in securities other than those of a street railway, burdened with underlying leases at high rentals. All the supposed benefits and the continued cooperation between men and management arising from the creation of the Fund might be threatened if the value of the securities in which the savings are invested were substantially lessened by a decrease in the value of the stock or its failure to pay dividends due to changes in the methods of transportation, general depression or other economic conditions.

The other outstanding facts upon which our conclusion in regard to wages is based are these:

The rate of fare, an increase over that previously charged, had been fixed by an order of this Commission.

That decision was approved by the Superior Court and under the law a period of repose of three years ensued during which no change could be made legally without the approval of the Commission.

During that period, the Company presented its petition for an increase in the rate of fare, alleging that its operating revenues had not increased and were on a downward trend, and that operating expenses had risen. Among the items specifically set forth was one of $2,000,000 for added labor costs based upon the fact that the three-city average had increased.

When this petition as presented, the wage dividend was a contingent payment due only when and if there was sufficient money available after the payment of a dividend of six per cent upon the common stock of the Company.

No intimation was given to the Commission of any necessity of changing the essential character of the wage dividend from a contingent payment to an absolute obligation, or of any intention to depart entirely from the three-city standard of fixing wages, which had been in force for a long time; nor was there any evidence that the Company intended to increase the dividend upon the common stock from six per cent to eight per cent, as it subsequently did.

The Commission made a temporary order granting the right to put into effect the new rates and upon appeal from that order, an intermediate step in this proceeding, the Superior Court was called upon to review the action of the Commission in approving this temporary increase.

The Superior Court in its opinion decided that the wage dividend was not a proper operating expense. Whether this decision rests upon the ground that the payment was a dividend and therefore not wages, or upon the ground that it was contingent and not definite is not of importance at this time. As we have pointed out the Company made no change in this matter until April 20, 1925, when by a voluntary action, without the approval of the Commission, it undertook to make the payment of the amount of the wage dividend an obligation upon it by making the amount part of the base wage. It increased the base wage by the amount of the ten per cent contingent wage participation. This action was not in keeping with the application of the Company for the increase in rates. It brought into the case a situation not contemplated when the reasons for the change in fare were presented. It was a voluntary act influenced in part at least, by the decision of the Superior Court, and done at a time when it was evident to every one that the revenue provided by the temporary order was very greatly in excess of the company's estimate presented in support of its application.

There was no change in economic conditions between December, 1924, when the Superior Court's decision was announced, and April 20, 1925, when the Board of Directors of the Company took its action, which would justify any increase in wages. Presumptively, the basic rate, reasonable in January, 1925, was adequate in April, 1925.

The action of the Board of Directors was manifestly taken because it became evident that the revenues had so increased that the temporary rates yielded more than a fair return unless the operating expenses were increased.

We are of the opinion that a utility which seeks to increase its rates during the period of repose cannot of its own volition, and without any proven necessity therefor, increase its operating expenses and urge the need thus created by itself as the reason for continuing a temporary increase which was granted on an entirely different ground.

We would not attempt to say to the Company that it may not pay its employes the extra ten per cent. The Superior Court indicated that this amount may be paid from fair return, and the decision as to whether this course should be adopted rests upon the Company. All we would decide is that no more than the basic rate of 70 cents per hour should be allowed as operating expenses, and that the action of the Board of Directors of April 20th, 1925, should not be permitted to increase these expenses in the consideration of the present application.

Taxes

The majority report allows as operating expenses all the sums claimed by the company, except the corporate loans tax. A total allowance of $2,951,491 is made, which includes not only taxes paid by the company on its own account but taxes of the lessor companies paid under the several leases. The obligation of the company to pay the taxes of the lessors depends entirely upon the covenants in the leases; and, in our opinion, these taxes are part of the rentals and are, therefore, no part of the operating expenses of the company. The majority report, in this particular, is in direct conflict with the principle laid down in Citizens Passenger Railways vs. Public Service Commission, 271 Pa., page 39, where the Supreme Court says, at page 56, that "the rates to the public cannot be decreased or diminished by reason of the fact that the rentals called for by the leases were unreasonable when made or are unreasonable now."

The majority report admits, because there is no escape from it, that the taxes paid on account of the lessor companies are part of the rentals, Fernwood Masonic Halls vs. Jones, 102 Pa. 307, but attempts to argue that, inasmuch as the company also agrees in the leases to maintain and operate the leased property, such maintenance and operation costs are also part of the rentals. No authority is cited for this proposition, and it is obviously unsound. The payment of the taxes is for the benefit of the lessor companies, and the sums expended in operation are for the benefit of the lessee itself. This clearly distinguishes the one set of charges from the other and makes it illogical to conclude that the taxes must be operating expenses because maintenance and actual costs of operation are such.

The majority report then proceeds to argue that the real question is what taxes the company would be obliged to pay if it operated the property as owner and not as lessee, admitting that no claim can be made for any excess allowance for taxes because of the terms of the leases. There is no evidence in the record as to what the tax liability of the company would be if it actually owned the property. This fact does not deter the majority from assuming that the taxes would be what they now are. Obviously this is not the case. Thus for instance, in the case of the Federal Income Taxes, it is conceivable that the company itself might have no income at all and yet be forced to pay the rentals to the lessors out of surplus; and the rentals so paid would be taxable income in the hands of the lessors. The company would, therefore, be required under the terms of the leases to pay income taxes on behalf of the lessors, although it would be liable for such taxes if it were the owner of the property, only when the income was earned.

As to the capital stock taxes, a similar situation exists. Section 20 of the act of June 1, 1889, P. L. 420, as amended by the Act of 30 April, 1925, P. L. 408, imposing the tax provides that the capital stock shall be appraised, "at its actual value in cash * * *, not less, however, than, first, the average which said stock sold for during the year; and, second, not less than the price or value indicated or measured by net earnings, or by the amount of profit made and either declared in dividends, expended in betterments, or carried into the surplus or sinking fund; and, third, not less than the actual value indicated or measured by consideration of the intrinsic value of its tangible property and assets, etc." Even if the company had no net earnings and declared no dividends, it still would be required to pay the cash rentals to the lessors. Because of the size of these rentals, the lessors would be liable for large capital stock taxes, which the company would have to pay as lessee. Of a total of approximately $528,000 capital stock taxes paid by the company during 1924, more than $432,600 was paid for sixty-seven underlying companies, under the terms of the leases. These sixty-seven underlying companies have a total paid-in capital stock of less than $62,000,000, but the tax was assessed on a valuation of over $86,000,000. This is due to the fact that the cash rentals applicable to the payment of dividends by these companies run as high as 36% on the par value of the stock and 70% on the amount paid in; and, as a consequence these stocks have a very high market value. In the case of the company itself, its stock, with a paid-in value of nearly $30,000,000, was assessed at slightly over $19,000,000. At the same ratio of assessment applied to the underlying lessor companies, their stock would have been assessed at less than $40,000,000, and the total taxes would have been reduced by over $230,000.

Again, in the case of the dividends taxes aggregating in 1924 approximately $115,000, the same result is present. This entire tax is paid under the leases in behalf of certain of the underlying companies, some of whose charters provide for 6% taxes upon dividends paid in excess of 6%, and some for a similar tax upon the entire dividends where they exceed 6% per annum. Had such a provision been inserted in the company's charter, it would have paid no tax in 1924, bcause its dividends did not exceed 6%. Owing, however, to the high rentals paid to the underlying companies, they paid dividends in excess of 6% and consequently became liable to a tax of $115,000, which the company is required to pay.

Looking at the question from another angle, it appears that seven of the leases do not require the company to pay the Pennsylvania capital stock tax, and nine of the leases do not require it to pay the Federal Income Tax. It would seem that in fixing the cash rentals the fact that the lessee was not required to pay the taxes assessed against the lessor was taken into consideration and the cash rentals increased accordingly. Every one concedes that the cash rentals are no part of the company's operating expenses, even where the lessors pay their own taxes. In our opinion, there is no sound logic in applying a different rule where the rental, instead of being one lump sum, is divided into a direct cash payment and a further payment of taxes on account of the lessor.

For these reasons we have reached the conclusion that all taxes paid by the company for the lessors must be excluded as operating expenses. This includes Federal Income Taxes, the Pennsylvania capital stock taxes, and the dividends taxes. It includes, also, the corporate loans tax; but we agree with the majority report that these taxes, whether paid by the company for itself or for the lessors, is not a proper item of operating expense.

The majority report also apparently allows an operating expense $20,000 normal Federal income tax paid by the company for its boudholders, under the tax-fee covenant in the bonds. We believe this item should be disallowed. It falls in exactly the same category as the corporate loans tax. "It is not a tax against the corporation, but against the bondholders." (Bangor Water Company vs. Public Service Commission, 82 Pa. Superior, 48, at page 58.)

The majority report allows, also, the company's full claim for taxes on real and personal property, including those paid on property not used or useful in the public service. The majority report says: "The Real and Personal Property Taxes are local taxes and undoubtedly include those levied on non-useful as well as useful property. The record affords no basis for an allocation. Any rents from the non-useful property are undoubtedly reflected in the income accounts, but whether they exceed the taxes paid thereon is likewise a matter upon which the record is not clear. Without doubt, these taxes in so far as they relate to used and useful property is a proper charge to operating expenses but the record affords no basis for making a deduction from the aggregate figures submitted." In this respect, the majority does not follow the rule which it adopted that the burden of proof was on the company. During the hearings, the fact that taxes on property not used or useful were included in the company's estimate was called to the attention of the company, but it produced no evidence as to what part of the taxes was paid on property owned by it and used or useful for street railway purposes. The general rule undoubtedly is that so much of the property of a public service corporation as is essential to the exercise of its franchise is exempt from local taxes; but the Act of April 21, 1858, P. L. 385, excepts "offices, depots and car houses of railroads in Philadelphia from the general rule." With these exceptions, however, all of the real estate of a company necessary for its corporate purposes is exempt. (Philadelphia vs. Electric Traction Company, 208 Pa., 157.) An examination of the record in the valuation case shows that the unused land and buildings of the company were valued in Account 404 at over $1,700,000. In addition, the company owns the Burd Home Tract in Delaware County, as to which no claim was made that it was used or useful for railroad purposes. Such unused real estate would, of course, be subject to taxes and the amounts so paid would not be operating expense. When this is done, revenue from this property should not be included. We might very properly refuse to allow this entire item of these taxes as an operating expense because the company failed to meet the burden which was upon it to furnish the data from which the proper allocation could be made; but we believe that the larger part of these taxes is a proper operating expense; and, therefor, we hesitate to do an injustice to the company by refusing it entirely. We would, therefore, allow it, but would require the company to submit annually an itemized statement of real and personal property taxes, giving location and nature of the property, the use to which it is put, and the amount of taxes thereon.

The only taxes which are properly included as operating expenses are the following: (1) Federal Income Tax paid by the company for itself, (2) Federal Excise Tax, (3) Pennsylvania Capital Stock Tax paid by the company for itself, (4) Gross Receipt Tax, (5) City of Philadelphia Paving Tax, (6) Real and Personal Property Tax and (7) License Tax. Summarizing, we would allow as operating expenses, in accordance with the foregoing discussion, and we would exclude from operating expenses the following amounts:

	Allowed	Excluded
Federal Income	$235.544.95	$723.905.04
U. S. Excise	15.532.00	20.000.00

Taxes for 1925

The actual taxes paid in 1925 cannot be definitely ascertained, because the monthly reports show estimated accruals and no actual payments. The Company in 1895 estimated those taxes at $3,034.000; and it appears that these figures will be approximately correct. Of this estimate, the corporate loans tax and normal Federal income tax paid for bondholders amounts to $57,000. In itemizing the increase from 1924, no allocation was made between taxes paid for the lessors and those paid for the company; but it seems probable that most of the increases are on the latter account. It therefore, would seem that the taxes properly chargeable to operating expenses in 1925 are approximately $1,650,000.

Taxes for 1926

In accordance with the conclusions above reached and after a careful review of the testimony, we have concluded that the total of all taxes properly chargeable to operating expenses in 1926 will not exceed $1,675,000. In reaching this conclusion, we have taken into account the increased capital of the company, due to the sale during 1925 of 3,000,000 seven-per-cent preferred stock and the probable further increase in capital during 1926.

Frankford Elevated Rental

The amount for 1925 is $468,120.00 and the amount for 1926 will be $624,120.00. As the Frankford Elevated and a part of its equipment is owned by the City of Philadelphia, it was of course not included in the valuation of the property of the applicant. The rental is therefore a proper charge against operating expenses.

Sinking Fund

Under the terms of the 1907 contract the Company is required to pay the City certain sums as a sinking Fund which can be used by the City to purchase the property in 1957. The City, however, is not required to use the fund for this purpose. These payments now amount to $180,000 per annum. The contract provides that "these payments shall be treated by the Company as fixed charges reducing the income applicable to dividends to its stockholders and to the City." In view of this clear provision of the contract we are forced to the conclusion that payments to the Sinking Fund must be paid by the Company out of fair return. The majority report states a like conclusion.

(3) Fair Return

In fixing a fair return the majority report purports to follow the decision of the Superior Court in City of York vs. Public Service Commission (85 Pa. Super. 139) but instead of deducting from the 7% return the full amount of federal income taxes allowed as operating expenses it attempts to forecast what the resulting exemption to the stockholder will be under tax legislation now pending before Congress and deducts this exception. There is not one word in the record as to the terms of the pending federal income tax legislation and even if there were it is a novel theory that a Commission in fixing fair return should predict what such legislation will be when finally enacted.

We are of the opinion that the Commission should follow the rule laid down in the York Water case and deduct the entire amount of federal income tax included in operating expenses from the amount of fair return that would otherwise be allowed.

The Commission has uniformly fixed 7% as the fair rate of return. This has applied to street railways as well as to other utilities. Thus in the case of Allied Printing Trades Council vs. Scranton Railway Company (C. D. 1668—Pa. Corp. Rep.) we stated, "As in all its previous adjudications of rates the Commission finds and determines that in this instance a rate of 7% on the fair value of the property should be allowed." (See also City of Pittsburgh vs. Pittsburgh Railways Company, C. D. 1571—Pa. Corp. Rep.)

At the times these cases were decided and at all times prior to the decision of the Valuation Case (C. D. 3504) in June 1923 the Commission had uniformly excluded federal income taxes from operating costs. Prior to the decision of that case the United States Supreme Court had decided (Galveston Electric Co. vs. City of Galveston—258 U. S. 388, 399) that federal income taxes should be deducted as operating expenses—but that "the fact that it is the federal corporate income tax for which deduction is made must be taken into consideration in determining what rate of return shall be declared fair. For under Section 216 the stockholder does not include in the income on which the normal federal tax is payable dividends received from the corporation. This tax exemption is therefore, in effect, part of the return on the investment". In the Valuation Case there was no necessity for the Commission to determine the extent to which the fair rate of return should be reduced below 7% by reason of the inclusion of federal income taxes as operating expenses, for, as the Commission there pointed out, the inclusion of these tax items could "make no difference in the final result, as the allowable return under any valuation set up would be in excess of the amount produced by the present (then) rate of fare".

It now becomes necessary to decide this question and in doing so we have the benefit of the decision of the Suprme Court in the York Water Company case. In this case the Commission allowed federal income taxes as an operating expense and at the same time allowed a return of 7%, the same rate that had been allowed in prior cases where the federal income taxes had been excluded as operating expenses. On appeal the Superior Court reduced the rate of return from 7% to 6.2% (i. e. 7% less the federal income tax) and in so doing cited the Galveston Electric Company case and stated (page 141), "If we take the view that seven per cent was a fair return before such taxes were allowed as operating expenses and so recognized by the Public Service Commission in numerous instances, we see no reason why the rate in this case should not be reduced, so that the reduction may equal the amount of the taxes included in the operating expenses. It thus preserves the amount previously paid to the stockholders and what they should now receive at the same level". (City of York vs. Public Service Commission, 85 Pa. Super. 139). In that case no consideration was given by the Court to the rate of normal federal income tax as compared with the rate of the corporate tax, as is now suggested in the majority report. Since this decision was rendered the Commission in fixing the fair rate of return has deducted the amount of the federal income tax from the rate (7%) which had previously been allowed when such taxes were excluded. (Casenave vs. Overbrook Steam Heat Company, C. D. 6270 Pa. Corp. Rep.)

Under all the circumstances we are of the opinion that the fair return in this case is 7% less the amount of the federal income tax included in the operating expenses. Any other conclusion would be out of harmony with decisions of the Commission in similar cases, decided at times when interest rates were higher than they are now. If when the federal income tax was excluded as an operating expense, seven per cent was a fair rate of return upon the property of the Pittsburgh Railway Company, then in receivership, and upon the property of the Scranton Railway Company, a smaller utility, there is prima facie no reason why a prosperous utility like the applicant, which has during the past year paid eight per cent dividends upon its common stock, should receive more favorable treatment. A careful examination of the reports of the Commission in all three cases, and of the opinions of the Superior Court in two of them, confirms this conclusion.*

In the Company's estimate for 1925 (See Myers P. 815a) $1,110,000 income taxes (invluding those paid for the underlying companies under the terms of the leases) were included in operating expenses. Upon this basis the fair return would be $12,890,000. We would, however, eliminate from operating expenses the taxes paid for the underlying companies under the leases, and would include in the estimate of operating expenses for 1925 and 1926 federal income taxes to the amount of $266,000. On this basis the fair return would be $13,734,000.

(4) Motor Bus Revenues and Expenses

The applicant owns all of the stock of the Philadelphia Rural Transit Company which operates a number of bus lines throughout the city and adjoining counties and of

* Thus, for instance, such an examination indicates that the applicant has received at least as liberal a rate basis as either of the other two companies, after making allowance for such differences as may exist among them. A comparison of track mileage shows the following, after eliminating from the Philadelphia figures all items of subways, elevated structures and power plant buildings and equipment, but including the entire track mileage, surface, subway and elevated:—

	Pittsburgh Rwys. Co.	Scranton Phila. Rwy. Co.	Rapid Transit Co.
Miles of track	600 plus	90 plus	700
Valuation	$62,500,000	$9,000,000	$164,750,000
Value per mile of track (Approx.)	$104,000	$100,000	$235,000

the Pennsylvania Rapid Transit Company which operates a line of trackless trolleys in South Philadelphia. No investigation has been made as to the operating expenses or revenues of these companies nor were their respective properties included in the valuation. It appears, however, that during 1925 the Philadelphia Rural Transit Company incurred a deficit of about $200,000, and the Pennsylvania Rapid Transit Company showed a profit of about $10,000.

In the original presentation of its case the applicant excluded the bus and trackless trolleys from their estimates but later contended that the revenues and expenses of these two companies should be merged with those of the applicant for rate making purposes. So far as the actual disposition of the present case is concerned the question is not of great importance. It is true that in April 1925, the company estimated that the loss in bus operations during the year would be $453,000 but experience has not justified this estimate and in its brief the company accepts the city's estimate of a loss of $212,000. We are of the opinion that the operation of motor busses should show little or no loss in 1926.

As a matter of policy for the future, however, the question of whether or not the revenues and expenses of these subsidiary companies should be merged with those of the applicant is of importance and is by no means confined to the present applicant nor to street railway companies in general. Steam railroads are today entering the field of motor transportation through subsidiary corporations and if in such cases the revenues and expenses of the railway are to be merged with those of busses, taxicabs and other forms of transportation conducted by subsidiary corporations it would be impossible for the Commission to determine the fair rates for each, with the result that the rate for one form of transportation might be too high and that for another too low.

We shall, therefore consider the arguments advanced by the company. Its contention is based principally on two grounds. (1) that the three modes of conveyance constitute one consolidated transportation system and (2) that the Commission has approved ordinances granting municipal consent for the operation of certain bus routes which ordinances contain the following provision: "and it is further agreed that in any investigation of the fares and income of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, or upon any application for readjustment of the fares of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, such investigation or application shall include the fares and income of the Philadelphia Rural Transit Company as a part of the system of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company." It is not entirely clear whether the meaning of this provision is that the revenues and expenses of the Rural Transit Company shall be merged with those of the Rapid Transit Company or whether the intention is merely that consideration shall be given to the income of the Rural Transit Company but without merging its revenues and expenses with those of the Rapid Transit Company. The Company apparently assumes that the former is the proper construction and we shall deal with the contention on this basis.

At the outset it is to be noted that no application of the Philadelphia Rural Transit Company or of the Pennsylvania Rapid Transit Company is before us. They are not in any way parties to the record and any order of the Commission in the present case affecting their rates would not be within the scope of this proceeding.

Furthermore, we are met by the decisions of the Supreme Court to the effect that, except in the case of joint rates, those of each utility company must be separately considered (Citizens Passenger Railway Company vs. Public Service Commission, 271, Pa. 39, Duquesne Light Company vs. Public Service Commission, 273, Pa. 287).

The former of these decisions involved an earlier phase of the street railway controversy in Philadelphia wherein a complaint was filed against the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and thereafter intervening complaints were filed against a number of lessor companies. In the course of its opinion holding that the Commission had no jurisdiction over the terms of the leases the Supreme Court stated, that (P. 55) "except in the case of joint rates, those of each utility company must be separately considered, and complaints against two or more cannot be joined together any more than two companies can jointly file a schedule of rates, those of one having no relation to those of the other; and this is true even if one is a customer of the other."

In the Duquesne Light case there were combined in one proceeding a complaint against the rates of the Duquesne Light Company and a complaint against the rates of a subsidiary steam heating company. Counsel for the respondents agreed to such joinder and the complaints were sustained by the Commission. The Supreme Court held, however, that "such a course should not have been permitted even by agreement, the incongruity of so proceeding being apparent, especially since it rendered difficult, if not practically impossible, the requisite procedure, hereinafter detailed, which was essential to a proper determination of the question raised."

The company attempts to distinguish the Duquesne Light case on the ground that the two companies there involved were engaged in different types of public service and had no joint rates, whereas here all three are transportation companies and joint rates are to some extent in force through exchange privileges. If the fairness of such joint rates were the subject of this application the company's contention would be sound. Such, however, is not the case. Nor is there controlling significance in the fact that both companies are engaged in transportation. It is just as important that the rates of a motor bus company and those of a street railway company shall each be reasonably considered individually on its own merits as it is in the case of a steam heating company and an electric light company. We would conclude then that, aside from the provisions of the ordinances the rates of each company should be considered separately and that separate accounts should be kept for each so that the fair rate for each type of transportation may be determined on its own merits.

Having reached this conclusion we would have no difficulty in disposing of the ordinances. It appears that five of the ordinances now in force containing the clause above quoted have been submitted to the Commission. In the first two applications the attention of the Commission was not called to this clause and in the absence of protest approval was granted. The other three ordinances subsequently submitted have not been approved. If we are correct in our conclusion that the Supreme Court has condemned the procedure which the company claims should be adopted, commission approval of contracts providing for such procedure would be of no more avail than was its consent to the procedure (acquiesced in by the Superior Court) in the Duquesne Light case.

(5) Economies and Efficiencies

We have given careful consideration to the claim of the Company for efficiencies and economies since 1911 when the present management first took charge.

According to the testimony of the Company's witnesses its property was at that time in a "deplorable condition." The Company asserts that the value of economics and efficiencies affected by the new management since that time amounts to $19,000,000 per annum. In making this claim no attempt was made to distinguish between the ordinary economies and efficiencies which would have been accomplished by any reasonably efficient management and superior economies above that standard, but it was stated that economies to the extent of $5,000,000 had been excluded because they were self-evidently such that any one would have practiced. For the most part the bases of comparison were standards prevailing in 1910 or 1911.

Art. III, Sec. 1 of the Public Service Company Law provides:

"It shall be lawful for every public service company—(a)———To participate, to such an extent as may be permitted by the Commission, and deemed by the Commission wise, for the purpose of encouraging economies, efficiencies, or improvements in methods of service, in the additional profits which will be afforded by such economies, efficiencies or improvements in methods of service."

It is evident that what the Legislature had in mind were not the ordinary economies and improvements common to all reasonably well managed companies in the general progress of utilities but special and outstanding economies of a particular utility when compared with other utilities the management of which is of normal efficiency.

Counsel for the Company apparently agrees with this view as he confines his claim to "instances where P. R. T. is distinctly in advance of standard practice and for which it should receive the reward contemplated by the law."

With the policy of the Act as thus interpreted we are in hearty accord though we recognize the difficulty of its application in many cases. Such difficulty is here present.

In the first place there is the inescapable difficulty of proof except in the clearest cases. The testimony in this case is vague and indefinite and the standards used are for the most part entirely unsatisfactory. Thus it is obviously out of the question to use as a basis of comparison the methods and practices of 1910-1911 under the old management when the property, according to the Company's own witnesses, was in a deplorable condition.

Again there is the difficulty of determining to what extent the efficiencies claimed are offset by inefficiencies and how far they have already been rewarded by increased compensation to the employes. As an example of the first we note that among the items for which claim is made is one of $300,000 increase in advertising revenue over that received in 1910. (Valuation Record, p. 2458-9a.) Obviously a large increase in this item should normally be expected during the past 15 years, and as we have already pointed out we believe that the Company lost in 1923 upwards of $100,000 yearly for the succeeding 15 years by its handling of the advertising contract. In our opinion no allowance should be made for this item of advertising revenue.

The policy of the Company has been to treat the 10% Cooperative Wage Dividend as a reward to the employes for economies and efficiencies. The approximate amount of this for 1924 was $1,900,000.

The same policy apparently has applied to the Mitten Management Fee which on Jan. 1, 1925, was increased from $158,000 to approximately $350,000.

Finally there is the difficulty of translating the economies into monetary standards. The claims of the Company illustrate this in a marked degree. Were they allowed at their full face value it would mean that under ordinarily efficient management the company would in 1924 have shown an actual deficit of seven million dollars instead of a surplus applicable to fair return of about twelve million dollars as stated in the Company's report. This is certainly a reductio ad absurdum.

As we view the situation the outstanding accomplishment of the Mitten Management has been a progressive labor policy which has created a spirit of cooperation on the part of the employes. This existed before the creation of the Co-operative Wage dividend. It had its rise in the increase in the base rate of wages from 23½ cents in 1911 to 70 cents in 1925.

The salaries of officers and general employes have likewise increased, in a very substantial manner from those existing when the system was inefficient. The stockholders likewise have participated. Prior to 1916 the stock paid no dividends; Dividends totalling 8% were paid in 1925.

These facts are proof that sufficient recognition has been given to the revenue producing effect of efficiencies and economies.

Applying the foregoing principles and conclusions we find that the result of operations for 1925 under the increased fare, based on 11 months, actual experience, has been approximately as follows, for the sake of convenience we have placed in parallel columns the results of (1) 1925 according to the majority report (2) 1925 according to the allowances which we deem proper, and (3) 1926 estimated by us.

Amount under Fair Return according to Majority Report	$153,534	.....	.....
Excess over Fair Return according to Minority Report	.....	$4,194,753	$4,639,880

In fixing fair return at $13,734,000, we would deduct from the full 7% return on $200,000,000 the estimated amount of the federal income tax for 1925 ($266,000) paid by the Company on its own account and allowed as an operating expense. Should a greater or less amount of federal income tax be allowed as an operating expense the fair return would be correspondingly increased or decreased.

The foregoing discussion makes it apparent that the decision of the majority in this case is erroneous.

The majority bases its conclusion as to revenue entirely upon 1925 results. It admits that 1926 revenue will be greater, but immediately ignores this fact in reaching a conclusion. This difference upon our calculation as for 1926 is $1,289,643 in favor of the Company.

The majority has also over-estimated the proper allowable operating expenses for 1925 in the following amounts:

Maintenance and Renewals	$653,938
Power Operation	108,700
Conducting Transportation	58,278
Traffic and General & Miscellaneous expenses	300,880
	$1,121,796

The majority has also adopted an erroneous legal theory of allowance for taxes which gives the Company $1,301,491 excessive allowance for operating expense, to which it is not entitled. This is partially offset by another erroneous theory as to the effect of the federal income tax on fair return. Having allowed $1,110,000 for Income taxes the majority rely on a proposed bill introduced in the Congress of the United States and which has not been enacted into law, and reduce the deduction from fair return to $444,000, because the proposed bill is expected to contain a maximum exemption of 5% from the normal personal income tax as compared with the rate of 12½% to be paid by corporations.

The question of the rate of fare is thus seen to be depedent largely upon decisions upon three major factors:

(1) The cooperative wage dividend, $2,100,000,

(2) Taxes of the underlying companies, $1,290,000, a legal question,

* 11 Months Actual, December Estimated.

(3) How much of the Company's present fixed appropriation of $8,560,400 for maintenance and renewals is actually needed and should be allowed?

The majority have found favorably for the Company on all these factors. Even with these factors so found, the majority report indicates that the revenue of the Company was for 1925 within the allowed return by the small margin of only $154,000, and no estimate was submitted for 1926.

As to the above factors, we held:

(1) That the wage dividend has been improperly included in the operating expenses of the Company, and that if paid at all, should be paid out of the Company's fair return;

(2) That the taxes of the underlying companies are parts of the rentals under the leases and that therefore they must be paid out of the Company's fair return, like other items of the rentals in accordance with the Pa. Supreme Court's decision in the Citizens Passenger Railway Co. case.

(3) We can find justification for burdening the present day car rider with only so much of the $8,560,400 item for maintenance and renewals, as is clearly necessary for adequate maintenance and renewals of the Company's property, and no more.

There are also minor modifications of the Company's expenses that affect the result.

Another factor of significance in any study of the fare question is that of free transfers and 3 cents exchange tickets. The increase of the basic fares in September 1924 was accompanied by a large increase in free transfer privileges which have been of undoubted value and accommodation and convenience to the public. The car riders have now become accustomed to these free transfers and no doubt strong objection would develop if the abolition of these transfers and the restoration of the former 3 cents exchange should be proposed.

It thus appearing that the rates of fare (8 cents cash and 2 tokens for 15 cents) provided in Tariff P. S. C. Pa. No. 83 have produced more than a fair return upon the Company's property and will continue increasingly so to do, the temporary order heretofore entered on September 8, 1924, should be revoked.

We, however, realize that a return to the old fare basis (i. e. 7 cents cash, 4 tickets for 25 cents, with the restoration of 3 cents exchanges outside of the central delivery district) may not be the best solution of the problem even if such rates would produce a fair return, which is certainly doubtful. In our judgment it would be, therefore, in the public interest to afford the applicant an opportunity to amend its application so as to provide for a tariff which would in the judgment of the Commission produce a fair return in accordance with the principles laid down in this report.

The revocation of the temporary order we would therefore suspect for a period of one month, so as to give opportunity for such amendment. Should such amendment not be filed in form satisfactory to the Commission on or before that time we would revoke the temporary order heretofore entered on September 8, 1924, and refuse the application.

In order that the Commission may be kept fully in touch with the situation the applicant should be required to continue to file monthly reports with the Commission as heretofore. Such reports should, in addition to the data heretofore included, set forth the following information (1) a segregation of taxes among (a) those paid for lessor companies under the terms of the lessee (b) those paid for bondholders and (c) those paid for the company on its own account; (2) the maximum 30 minute hour loading for a normal week day, by routes; (3) the maximum 30 minute mid-day loading for a normal week day, by routes; (4) the non-rush headways by routes; (5) the average passengers per car mile by routes; (6) the total average passengers pr car mile for the entire system.

Transit Journal January 1934, page 26 says,

"No index of electric railway construction costs is included this year, it being felt that this index corresponds so closely with that of general construction that the compilation of a separate index is unnecessary. The index of electric railway construction cost appeared for the last time in April 1933.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

OF THE

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN RE: APPLICATION FOR A DETERMINATION OF THE VALUE OF THE PROPERTY AND ASSETS OF THE PHILADELPHIA RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY } Application Docket No. , 1932.

PETITION FOR VALUATION OF THE PROPERTY AND ASSETS OF THE PHILADELPHIA RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY SYSTEM AND FOR THE FIXING OF A FIVE CENT CAR RATE.

To the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Your petitioners are S. Davis Wilson and Sara E. Wilson, citizens, taxpayers and car-riders residing in the City of Philadelphia. Their petition

RESPECTFULLY REPRESENTS:

1. In valuation proceedings brought before your Honorable Commission in the years 1920 and 1924, the Commission found the value of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company system to be $200,000,000 and upwards. Based on this valuation, the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company increased its carfares in the year 1920 to seven cents (7¢) with four tickets for twenty-five cents (25¢), and in the year 1924, again increased the fares to eight cents (8¢) with two tokens for fifteen cents (15¢); these increases were authorized by your Honorable Commission upon evidence submitted by the company and the City of Philadelphia. The latter increase is in effect at the present time.

2. Since the year 1920, when the valuation of your Commission was based on 1919 costs, there has been and is now a downward trend in the unit costs amounting to about twenty-five per cent (25%) and there has been a great depreciation of the property of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company system and an obsolescence of its power plants, equipment and other property.

3. Official appraisals and reports submitted to the Valuation Committee of the General Conference on the Transit Situation in Philadelphia, under the chairmanship of the Honorable Harry S. McDevitt, President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas No. 1, show a decrease in the valuation of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company system.

4. The appraisal of Hine, Goldthwaite and Mylott, engineers and accountants, submitted to the Valuation Committee of the Transit Conference, states the present value of the transit system in Philadelphia to be about $116,000,000, based upon the 1920-24 valuation. The appraisal of Ford, Bacon and Davis, engineers, states the present value of the transit system to be about $165,000,000, based also upon the 1920-24 valuation.

5. The appraisal of about $165,000,000 by Ford, Bacon and Davis includes factors of cost of reproduction of capital and of reproduction of paying which in the opinion of Hine, Goldthwaite and Mylott should not have been included. The inclusion of these factors substantially accounts for the difference between the two official appraisals.

6. It is respectfully submitted that a valuation of the transit system in Philadelphia made at the present time, using as a basis the valuation of 1920-1924, brought down to date by arithmetical calculation, and taking into consideration the elements of lowered costs of labor and material, of depreciation and obsolescence of the power plants, equipment and other property of the system, will show that the present valuation of the system would be less than $100,000,000.

7. It is further respectfully submitted that the car-riders in Philadelphia are paying excessive rates of fare based upon a valuation made ten years ago; and your petitioners respectfully represent that a valuation made at the present time by your Honorable Commission, in view of the lowered unit costs, depreciation and obsolescence, above said, would result in a five cent (5¢) fare to the car-riders of Philadelphia and at the same time vouchsafe to the owners of the transit system a fair return on their investment.

Wherefore your petitioners pray your Honorable Commission, under the provisions of the Public Service Company Law, to find and determine a full and fair valuation of the property and assets of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company system in the City and County of Philadelphia, and to determine and fix a fair rate for car-riders, and for these purposes to hold such hearing and take such action as may be necessary and proper.

And they will ever pray, etc.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

OF THE

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Complaint Docket No. 9363-1932

In re: Complaint of S. DAVIS WILSON and SARAH E. WILSON

v.

PHILADELPHIA RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY

ANSWER OF PHILADELPHIA RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY

To the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Comes now, Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, the respondent above named, and makes answer to the complaint filed in the above proceedings as follows:

A. GENERAL ANSWER

For general answer to the complaint, and particularly to the prayer that the Commission enter upon a revaluation of the property of Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, the Company says:

1. The Company is, and since May 15, 1931, has been, operated and managed by its Board of eleven directors, of whom six (a majority) were appointed by the Court of Common Pleas No. 1, of Philadelphia County by decree entered May 14, 1931, in the equity suit of the City of Philadelphia v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company (September Term, 1929, No. 2827), which said suit is still pending under and within the jurisdiction of said Court. Three of the remaining five directors are representatives of the City of Philadelphia, including the Mayor and two directors chosen by the City Council. Thus the Company is now and since May, 1931, has been under a continuing judicial and public control and its operation has been and is being directed in an effort to solve in the best public interest the transit problems of the City and community, under and subject to the continuing jurisdiction of said Court.

2. The performance of this public task and the solution of this civic problem have been rendered vastly more difficult by the long continuance of the worst business depression in the history of the Company or in the experience of the present generation. From the year 1925 when the Commission approved total street railway passener revenue of $49,000,000 (See 14 Pa. Corp. Rep. 308, 316, 336), its total street railway passenger revenue has shrunk to $37,600,000 in 1931 and $32,000,000 for 1932 based on seven months' actual and five months' estimated. For the year 1932 the Company's gross earning from all sources, including its bus and taxicab systems, will be but $38,500,000, which is $10,500,000 less than the figure approved by the Commission for street railway passenger revenue alone.

3. Attached hereto is a statement marked "Appendix A" showing the Consolidated Income Account of the P. R. T. system for the years 1928 to 1932 inclusive. All of the figures have been confirmed by audit of Messrs. Lybrand, Ross Bros. and Montgomery with the exception of the last five months of the present year which are closely estimated.

In connection with these figures the Company calls attention to the following:—

DECLINE OF GROSS EARNINGS: It will be noted that the system gross earnings have declined from $56,980,601 in 1928 to $38,532,093 in 1932—a decline of $18,448,508 or 32%.

OPERATING ECONOMIES: To meet this decline in earnings, operating expenses have been cut from $39,454,139 in 1928 to $25,215,948 in 1932—a cut of $14,238,191 or 36%. Notwithstanding this drastic cut in operating expenses, the Company's gross income, after operating expenses, taxes and City rentals, will be but $9,137,517 for the year 1932.

The aforesaid saving in operation has been brought about by drastic economy in every department.

The basic wage rates of our employes have been twice reduced, making an aggregate reduction of more than 15% apart from any layoffs or reductions in working hours. In addition, more than 2000 men have been laid off and working time has been cut throughout, in some cases to thirty-two hours per week. The total reduction in annual payrolls since 1928 is over $10,000,000.

Salaries of general office employes have been similarly cut and officers' salaries have been reduced by amounts as high as 22%. The numbers of the general office staff have been greatly reduced and a five day week established.

Maintenance and renewal work has been curtailed to the minimum necessary to preserve the integrity of the property.

EFFICIENCY AND SAFETY OF OPERATION: Through the cooperation of all officers and men these economies have been made effective without any lessening in the efficiency or safety of the operation. On the contrary, both efficiency and safety have increased.

The direct cost of operation per car mile has been decreased from 26.84 cents in 1928 to 23.77 cents in 1932 or 11%.

The number of accidents per 100,000 car miles operated has decreased from 39.24 in 1928 to 28.76 in 1932 or 26%.

The average number of derailments per month has decreased from 80 in 1928 to 29 in 1932 or 64%.

The average number of trolley wire breaks per month has decreased from 7 in 1928 to 4 in 1932 or 43%.

The Directors and Officers of the Company are convinced that the system is now being operated with strict economy and increased efficiency and safety. They are likewise convinced, after the most careful and detailed survey, that no material further economy is possible without jeopardizing the integrity of the plant and the safety of its operation.

INADEQUACY OF NET EARNINGS: Despite the drastic economies summarized above, the Company faces at the end of the current year a deficit of $750,000 in the amount necessary to meet its present fixed charges.

NEGOTIATIONS TOWARD A TRANSIT SOLUTION: Added to the problem of meeting its present fixed charges, the Company has jointly with the City the problem of arranging a new lease for the Broad Street Subway in which the City is naturally anxious to secure, if possible, a rental basis which will yield a greater return with the revival of business activity. The present Board of Directors of the Company are now actively engaged in negotiations with its underliers looking to an abatement of rental and in negotiations with the City upon the matter of the Broad Street Subway. They are hopeful that these negotiations will lead to an important and constructive step in the solution of Philadelphia's transit problem. They have in mind in this work the great number of citizens to whom uninterrupted and improved transit service is vital, the thousands of employes and car-riders whose savings are invested in the stock of the Company, and also their continuing responsibility to the Court of Equity aforementioned.

4. The Directors of the Company believe and urge upon the Commission that the undertaking at this time of the task of revaluing the Company's property will serve no useful purpose and will hamper, delay and complicate their present endeavors, in the completion of which the element of time is of vital importance. Not only is there to be considered the prior valuation by this Commission but also the fact that this was twice affirmed by the Superior Court, and in the second opinion reported 84 Pa. Super. 136, the Court itself goes exhaustively and in detail into the several items comprised in the determination of fair value. It is true that unit prices affecting street railway construction are now at a depressed level, but the Company respectfully submits that valuations are to be fixed with regard to prices over a reasonable period of years and not by spot prices at the bottom of a business depression. Furthermore, there have been important additions to the Company's system since the compilation of the inventory upon which the prior valuation was based, including notably the complete motor bus system and the taxicabs.

5. As is apparent from its current income account, the Company is not now earning anything as a return upon its own fully paid capital and its net earnings after taxes and City rentals are less than a fair return on any conceivable finding of fair value. Any constitutional revaluation of the Company's property will entail necessary costs and expenses in a large aggregate amount. The Company, in its present financial condition, cannot afford the necessary cost of a revaluation. It has not the money and should not be compelled to provide it by further wage cuts or curtailment of operations. Article VI, Section 7 of The Public Service Company Law, provides that the Commission shall proceed upon a complaint only "if it shall appear to the Commission from a consideration of the complaint and answer, or otherwise, that reasonable ground exists for investigating said complaint." The Company respectfully submits that no such reasonable ground exists in the present case and that the prayer for a revaluation of its property should be denied.

B. ANSWER TO SPECIFIC AVERMENTS OF COMPLAINT

For specific answer to the averments of the several paragraphs of the Complaint the Company says:—

6. The averments of paragraph 1 of the Complaint are admitted, and as to the matters there referred to, the Company says further: The Commission's prior valuation stated by it at "substantially upwards of $200,000,000" was twice reviewed and affirmed by the Superior Court upon appeal by the City (see 83 Pa. Super. 8; 84 Pa. Super. 135). The Company took no appeal and therefore its constitutional right to a higher value than found by the Commission has never been adjudicated. The Company avers that the minimum constitutional value to which it was and is entitled was and is substantially higher than that found by the Commission.

7. Answering the averments of paragraph 2 of the Complaint, it is admitted that unit prices affecting street railway construction are now at a depressed level below the level of 1919, but the Company respectfully submits that valuations are to be fixed with regard to prices over a reasonable period of years and not by spot prices at the bottom of a business depression.

It is denied that there has been great depreciation or obsolescence in the property of the Company. On the contrary, it is averred that the Company's property is at all times kept in a full state of maintenance; and further that, since the prior valuation, many millions of dollars of property have been added to the Company's property used and useful in the public service by way of additions and betterments thereto, and that the present fair value of the Company's property is in excess of its fair value at the time of the Commission's said finding in June, 1923.

8. The Company denies that the appraisals and reports referred to in paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 of the Complaint had any official character and denies that they were or purported to be thorough or complete or that they were intended to reflect or do reflect anything with reference to the fair value of the Company's property for rate making purposes. On the contrary, the Company avers that the aforesaid so-called appraisals and reports were, are and purported to be nothing more than quick appraisals, wholly ex parte, and made by persons employed by the City of Philadelphia for the guidance of said City in connection with informal and unofficial negotiations looking to the acquisition by the City of the Company's property and in no way touching upon the rates of the Company or the fair value of its property for rate making purposes. The Company accordingly avers that the said so-called appraisals and reports are wholly incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and the Company particularly points out that it is immaterial that Messrs. Hine, Goldthwaite and Mylott (as averred in paragraph 5 of the Complaint) are of opinion that the factors representing cost of capital and paving should not be included, inasmuch as the Superior Court of Pennsylvania in the decisions heretofore referred to has twice affirmed the rulings of the Commission, including these factors in arriving at the fair value of the Company's property for rate making purposes.

9. It is denied that "arithmetical calculation" or any lawful method of appraisal or valuation will show the present fair value of the Company's property to be less than $100,000,000, and on the contrary, it is averred that the present fair value of the Company's property is in excess of its fair value at the time of the Commission's finding of value in June, 1923.

10. The averments of paragraph 7 of the Complaint are denied. It is denied that the car-riders in Philadelphia are paying excessive rates of fare to the company. On the contrary, it is averred that the Company's present fares are and for some time have been inadequate and insufficient and less than it is entitled under the laws of Pennsylvania and the Constitution of the United States to charge.

WHEREFORE respondent prays that the complaint filed in the above proceeding be dismissed.

DEPARTMENT OF LAW

City of Philadelphia

October 14, 1932.

The Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Capitol Building, Harrisburg, Pa.

Gentlemen:

I have received a communication under date of September 28, 1932, from Mr. Tevell, Secretary of your Honorable Commission, enclosing a copy of a petition for revaluation of the property and assets of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit System and for the fixing of a five cent fare (See your file No. C9363). This communication states that the copy of the petition is transmitted "for such answer and comment as the City of Philadelphia may desire to make."

I wish to express appreciation to the Commission for extending to the City this opportunity of commenting upon the petition. Since the City is not a party to the proceeding and has not been consulted by the complainants, nor is a respondent, the views expressed herein are addressed to you in reply to the communication above referred to and, therefore, are not intended to constitute an answer to the petition. They summarize the views of the Municipal authorities on this matter.

Upon inquiry, I find that the last valuation proceeding, in 1920-24, for rate making purposes, cost the City approximately a quarter of a million dollars. The City is absolutely unable to undertake a costly investigation of that nature at this time or to expend any sum of money for such a purpose.

From the City's standpoint, this is a most inopportune time for any valuation proceeding. Although I recognize the desirability for such a proceeding in the event steps should be taken by the City to acquire the Philadelphia Rapid Transit System or any part thereof by condemnation proceeding or by negotiation, I see no immediate prospect of this move being made. It will, of course, be recognized that a valuation for the determination of the worth of the property for the purpose of its acquisition by the City would be far from conclusive as to its value for rate making purposes. Further, the time appears to be inopportune because valuations for any purpose cannot be fairly made at a time when values are notoriously abnormal.

At the present time negotiations are being carried on with a view toward the reduction of the underlier rents. Also, the City, which has invested approximately $150,000,000 in new modern transit facilities adapted to and built with the intention of their being operated in connection with the surface and other railway lines of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company as one unified transit system, in negotiating with the operating company for a new lease on the Broad Street subway system, which is the largest and was the most expensive of the above-mentioned City-built lines. I am convinced that a valuation proceeding, begun now, would seriously embarrass these various negotiations and would unnecessarily delay and impede their progress. If this delay and the great expense involved in such a proceeding would in any manner work toward the dissolution of the present arrangement between the City and the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, thereby affecting the coordination which now exists between City-owned lines and those of the Company, I believe this result would be of great disadvantage to the Community at large and the car riders of Philadelphia, and that such possible outcome of a valuation proceeding now is to be greatly deprecated.

It is not easy to understand precisely what is meant by the expression "by arithmetical calculation" as used in the petition. It would seem that very much more than this would be involved in the investigation of your Honorable Body. It is probable that an inquiry of this character would be long and expensive and it appears to me to be extremely doubtful whether any benefit to the City of Philadelphia, the public at large or the riders upon the cars and busses of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, its allied companies or of the City of Philadelphia, is reasonably to be expected therefrom.

Again thanking you for the courtesy of affording the City this opportunity, I beg to remain.

Yours very sincerely,

(Signed) DAVID J. SMYTH,
City Solicitor.

v.

PHILADELPHIA RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY

In re: Petition for a Valuation of the Property of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and the fixing of a rate.

REPORT AND ORDER OF THE COMMISSION

By the Commission:

This is a petition by two individuals, who represent that they are citizens, taxpayers and residents of the City of Philadelphia and car riders on the system of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company. Petitioners recite certain historical facts with regard to a valuation of the transit company's property made by this Commission for rate making purposes in 1923: City of Philadelphia, et al v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, 6 Pa. P. S. C. 431; aver that certain appraisals, reports and data, to which reference is made, show such a decrease in the fair value of the company's property as to result in a five-cent fare as compared to the present rate of eight cents, with two tokens for fifteen cents; and pray the Commission "to find and determine a full and fair valuation of the property and assets of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company system in the City and County of Philadelphia, and to determine and fix a fair rate for car riders, and for these purposes to hold such hearing and take such action as may be necessary and proper." In essence, the petition is a request for the Commission to undertake an investigation as to the present fair value of the property of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and to prescribe maximum, just and reasonable rates to be charged for the public service rendered by it.

The company has filed an answer in which it denies, generally and specifically, the allegations of the petition. It avers that many millions of dollars of property used and useful in the public service have been added to the company's system by way of additions and betterments since the last valuation, and that the present fair value of the property is in excess of that hitherto found by the Commission. It denies that its present rates are excessive, but, on the contrary, asserts that they are inadequate and insufficient to provide a proper return on the fair value of the property, and are less than the company is entitled to under the laws of the Commonwealth and the Constitution of the United States. It asks that the proceeding be dismissed.

The City of Philadelphia, complainant in the previous proceeding, to which a copy of the petition was sent, though not a party of record, has stated, informally, through its law officer, that from the city's viewpoint the time is not now opportune for a valuation proceeding. At present certain propositions with regard to all the traction interests in the city are being discussed and considered by the municipal authorities and the owners and operators of the lines, and it is the conviction of the city that any valuation proceeding begun now would seriously interfere with the negotiations now being carried on with respect to these matters, and would greatly delay and impede their progress. Furthermore, the city states it is absolutely unable to render any financial assistance for such an investigation and recites the fact that the previous proceeding cost it approximately a quarter of a million dollars.

The Commission has given careful consideration to the petition, answer and informal statement, and to all the facts and circumstances involved. It is obvious that a rate-making inquiry and determination of the fair value of a property and system of such diversity and magnitude could not be undertaken except with the services of a large number of engineers and accountants, the consumption of a great amount of time and the expenditure of large sums of money. The Commission does not presently have a staff of engineers or accountants sufficient to undertake even a superficial rate investigation of the kind here involved. To comply even parially with the request of the petitioners would mean not only a wholly inadequate and incomplete performance of the undertaking, but would completely stop all other work now pending before the Commission.

Again, to attempt even a cursory compliance with petitioners' prayer would involve the expenditure of large sums of money which we understand the petitioners can not assume, which the Commission does not have, and which it can not get except by future legislative grant.

Upon a careful review of the matter, the Commission is of the opinion that it is not possible on account of the lack of man power and of funds to comply with the request of the petitioners; Therefore,

Now, to wit, November 15, 1932, It Is Ordered: That the prayer of the petition be and is hereby refused.

APPENDIX NO. 22

BEFORE THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

In Re: Application for a Determination of the Value of the Property and Assets of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company

Application Docket No. , 1934.

PETITION FOR VALUATION OF THE PROPERTY AND ASSETS OF THE PHILADELPHIA RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY SYSTEM AND FOR THE FIXING OF A FIVE CENT CAR RATE

To the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Your petition is S. Davis Wilson, in his capacity as Controller of the County and City of Philadelphia, taxpayer and car-rider. His petition

RESPECTFULLY REPRESENTS:

1. In valuation proceedings brought before your Honorable Commission in the years 1920 and 1924, the Commission found the value of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company system to be $200,000,000 and upwards. Based on this valuation, the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company increased its carfares in the year 1920 to seven cents (7¢) with four tickets for twenty-five cents (25¢), and in the year 1924, again increased the fares to eight cents (8¢) with two tokens for fifteen cents (15¢); these increases were authorized by your Honorable Commission upon evidence submitted by the company and the city of Philadelphia. The latter increase is in effect at the present time.

2. Since the year 1920, when the valuation of your Commission was based on 1919 costs, there has been and is now a downward trend in the unit costs amounting to about twenty-five per cent, (25%) and there has been a great depreciation of the property of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company system and an obsolescence of its power plants, equipment and other property.

3. Official appraisals and reports submitted to the Valuation Committee of the General Conference on the Transit Situation in Philadelphia, show a decrease in the valuation of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company system.

4. The appraisal of Hine, Goldthwaite and Mylott, engineers and accountants, submitted to the Valuation Committee of the Transit Conference, states the present value of the transit system in Philadelphia to be about $116,000,000, based upon the 1920-24 valuation. The appraisal of Ford, Bacon, and Davis, engineers, states the present value of the transit system to be about $165,000,000, based also upon the 1920-24 valuation.

5. The appraisal of about $165,000,000 by Ford, Bacon and Davis includes factors of cost of reproduction of capital and of reproduction of paving which in the opinion of Hine, Goldthwaite and Mylott should not have been included. The inclusion of these factors substantially accounts for the difference between the two official appraisers.

6. It is respectfully submitted that a valuation of the transit system in Philadelphia made at the present time, using as a basis the valuation of 1920-24, brought down to date by arithmetical calculation, and taking into consideration the elements of lowered costs of labor and material, of depreciation and obsolescence of the power plants, equipment and other property of the system, will show that the present valuation of the system would be less than $100,000,000.

7. It is further respectfully submitted that the car-riders in Philadelphia are paying excessive rates of fare based upon a valuation made ten years ago; and your petitioner respectfully represents that a valuation made at the present time by your Honorable Commission, in view of the lowered unit costs, depreciation and obsolescence, above said, would result in a five cent (5¢) fare to the car-riders of Philadelphia and at the same time vouchsafe to the owners of the transit system a fair return on their investment.

Wherefore your petitioner prays your Honorable Commission, under the provisions of the Public Service Company Law, to find and determine a full and fair valuation of the property and assets of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company system in the City and County of Philadelphia, and to determine and fix a fair rate for car-riders, and for these purposes to hold such hearing and take such action as may be necessary and proper.

And he will ever pray, etc.

APPENDIX NO. 23

BEFORE THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Complaint Docket No. 10132—1934

In re Complaint of S. DAVIS WILSON

v.

PHILADELPHIA RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY

ANSWER OF PHILADELPHIA RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY

To the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pensylvania:

Comes now, Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, the respondent above named, and makes answer to the complaint filed in the above proceeding as follows:—

A. OPENING STATEMENT.

The allegations of the present complaint are in detail and in their entirety identical with those of the similar complant filed by the present complainant S. Davis Wilson (and by Sarah E. Wilson as a co-complainant) on or about September 28, 1932, at Complaint Docket No. 9363—1932. To said former identical complaint respondent made general and specific answer on or about October 15, 1932, and thereafter, upon consideration of the record, the Commission on November 15, 1932, entered its Report and Order refusing the prayer of complainants' petition.

As the averments of the present complaint are identical with those of the former, and as the facts upon which respondent relies in support of its prayer for dismissal are the same, though aggravated in degree, as those set forth in its former answer, they are again presented in this present answer (changed only to bring them down to date) in support of the present prayer for the dismissal of the present renewed complaint.

B. GENERAL ANSWER

For general answer to the complaint, and particularly to the prayer that the Commission enters upon a revaluation of the property of Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, the Company says:—

1. The Company is, and since May 15, 1931, has been, operated and managed by its Board of eleven directors, of whom six (a majority) were appointed by the Court of Common Pleas No. 1 of Philadelphia County by decree entered May 14, 1931, in the equity suit of the City of Philadelphia v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company (September Term, 1929, No. 2827), which said suit is still pending under and within the jurisdiction of said Court. Three of the remaning five directors are representatives of the City of Philadelphia, including the Mayor and two directors chosen by the City Council. Thus the Company is now and since May 1931 has been under a continuing judicial and public control and its operation has been and is being treated directed in an effort to solve in the best public interest the transit problems of the City and community, under and subject to the continuing jurisdiction of said Court.

2. The performance of this public task and the solution of this civic problem have been rendered vastly more difficult by the long continuance of the worst business depression in the history of the Company or in the experience of the present generation. For the year 1925 when the Commission approved total street railway passenger revenue of $49,000,000 (See 14 Pa. Corp. Rep. 308, 316, 336), its total street railway passenger revenue has shrunk as follows: 1931, $37,600,000; 1932, $31,800,000; 1933, $29,300,000. For the year 1933 the Company's gross earnings from all sources, including its bus and taxicab systems, were but $34,300,000, which is $14,700,000 less than the figure approved by the Commission for street railway passenger revenue alone.

3. Attached hereto is a statement marked "Appendix A" showing the Consolidated Income Account of the P. R. T. system for the years 1928 to 1933 inclusive. All of the figures have been confirmed by audit of Messrs. Lybrand, Ross Bros. and Montgomery.

In connection with these figures the Company calls attention to the following:

Decline of Gross Earnings: It will be noted that the system gross earnings have declined from $56,980,601 in 1928 to $34,310,754 in 1933—a decline of $22,669,847 or 40%.

Operating Economies: To meet this decline in earnings operating expenses have been cut from $39,454,139 in 1928 to $21,668,229 in 1933—a cut of $17,785,910 or 45%. Notwithstanding this drastic cut in operating expenses, the Company's gross income, after operating expenses, taxes and City rentals, was but $8,459,372 for the year 1933.

The aforesaid saving in operating has been brought about by drastic economy in every department.

The basic wage rates of our employees have been reduced by more than 15% apart from any layoffs or reductions in working hours. In addition, more than 4000 men have been laid off and working time has been cut throughout, in some cases to thirty-six hours per week. The total reduction in annual payrolls since 1928 is over $12,000,000.

Salaries of general office employees have been similarly cut and officers' salaries have been reduced by amounts ranging from 15% to 50%. The numbers of the general office staff have been greatly reduced and a five day week established.

Maintenance and renewal work has been curtailed to the minimum necessary to preserve the integrity of the property.

Efficiency and Safety of Operation: Through the cooperation of all officers and men these economies have been made effective without any lssening in the efficiency or safety of the operation. On the contrary, both efficiency and safety have increased.

The direct cost of operation per car mile has been decreased from 26.84 cents in 1928 to 21.33 cents in 1933 or 21%.

The number of accidents per 100,000 car miles operated has decreased from 39.24 in 1928 to 30.24 in 1933 or 23%.

The average number of derailments per month has decreased from 80 in 1928 to 28 in 1933 or 65%.

The average number of trolley wire breaks per month has decreased from 7 in 1928 to 3½ in 1933 or 50%.

The Directors and Officers of the Company are convinced that the system is now being operated with strict economy and increased efficiency and safety. They are likewise convinced, after the most careful and detailed survey, that no material further economy is possible without jeopardizing the integrity of the plant and the safety of its operation, particularly in the light of present increases in the cost of living under the National Recovery Program.

Inadequacy of Net Earnings: Despite the drastic economies summarized above, the Company during the year 1933 incurred a deficit of $495,043 in the amount necessary to meet its present fixed charges notwithstanding a reduction of $900,000 granted for that year by Union Traction Company.

Negotiations Toward a Transit Solution: In addition to the problem of meeting its present fixed charges, the Company has concluded negotiations with officers of the City for a new lease for the Broad Street Subway under which the City will remit a new rental 15.4% higher than the existing lease. This new lease, if and when approved by City Council, will be submitted to your Honorable Commission for its approval. The present Board of Directors of the Company are now actively engaged in negotiations with its underliers looking to a corporate reorganization of the P. R. T. system involving a substantial reduction in the existing rentals. They are hopeful that these negotiations will lead to an important and constructive step in the solution of Philadelphia's transit problem. They have in mind in this work the great number of citizens to whom uninterrupted and improved transit service is vital, the thousands of employees and car-riders whose savings are invested in the stock of the Company, and also their continuing responsibility to the Court of Equity aforementioned.

4. The Directors of the Company believe and urge upon the Commission that the undertaking at this time of the task of revaluing the Company's property will serve no useful purpose and will hamper, delay and complicate their present endeavors, in the completion of which the element of time is of vital importance. Not only is there to be considered the prior valuation by this Commission but also the fact that this was twice affirmed by the Superior Court, and in the second opinion reported in 84 Pa. Super. 135, the Court itself goes exhaustively and in detail into the several items comprised in the determination of fair value. It is true that unit prices affecting street railway construction have been at a depressed level, but the present trend is upwards and the Company respectfully submits that valuations are to be fixed with regard to prices over a reasonable period of years and not by spot prices at the bottom of a business depression. Furthermore, there have been important additions to the Company's system since the compilation of the inventory upon which the prior valuation was based, including notably the complete motor bus system and the taxicabs.

5. As is apparent from its current income accounts, the Company is not now earning anything as a return upon its own fully paid capital and its net earnings after taxes and City rentals are less than a fair return on any conceivable finding of fair value. Any constitutional revaluation of the Company's property would entail necessary costs and expenses in a large aggregate amount. The Company, in its present financial condition, cannot afford the necessary cost of a revaluation. It has not the money and should not be compelled to provide it by further wage cuts or curtailment of operations. Article VI, Section 7, of The Public Service Company Law, provides that the Commission shall proceed upon a complaint only "if it shall appear to the Commission, from a consideration of the complaint and answer, or otherwise, that reasonable ground exists for investigating said complaint." The Company respectfully submits that no such reasonable ground exists in the present case and that the prayer for a revaluation of its property should be denied.

C. ANSWER TO SPECIFIC AVERMENTS OF COMPLAINT.

For specific answer to the averments of the several paragraphs of the Complaint the Company says—

6. The averments of paragraph 1 of the Complaint are admitted, and as to the matters there referred to, the Company says further: The Commission's prior valuation stated by it at "substantially upwards of $200,000,000" was twice reviewed and affirmed by the Superior Court upon appeal by the City (see 83 Pa. Super. 8; 84 Pa. Super. 135). The Company took no appeal and therefore its constitutional right to a higher value than found by the Commission has never been adjudicated. The Company avers that the minimum constitutional value to which it was and is entitled was and is substantially higher than that found by the Commission.

7. Answering the averments of paragraph 2 of the Complaint, it is admitted that unit prices affecting street railway consruction have been a a depressed level below the level of 1919 but the present trend is upwards and the Company respectfully submits that valuations are to be fixed with regard to prices over a reasonable period of years and not by spot prices at the bottom of a business depression.

It is denied that there has been great depreciation or obsolescence in the property of the Company. On the contrary, it is averred that the Company's property is at all times kept in an adequate state of maintenance; and further that, since the prior valuation, many millions of dollars of property have been added to the Company's property used and useful in the public service by way of additions and betterments thereto, and that the present fair value of the Company's property is in excess of its fair value at the time of the Commission's said finding in June 1923.

8. The Company denies that the appraisals and reports referred to in paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 of the Complaint had any official character and denies that they were or purported to be thorough or complete or that they were intended to reflect or do reflect anything with reference to the fair value of the Company's property for rate making purposes. On the contrary, the Company avers that the aforesaid so-called appraisals and reports were, are and purported to be nothing more than quick appraisals, wholly ex parte, and make by persons employed by the City of Philadelphia for the guidance of said City in connection with informal and unofficial negotiations looking to the acquisition by the City of the Company's property and in no way touching upon the rates of the Company or the fair value of its property for rate making purposes. The Company accordingly avers that the said so-called appraisals and reports are wholly incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and the Company particularly points out that it is immaterial that Messrs. Hine, Goldthwaite and Mylot (as averred in paragraph 5 of the Complaint) are of opinion that the factors representing cost of capital and paving should not be included, inasmuch as the Superior Court of Pennsylvania in the decisions heretofore referred to has twice affirmed the rulings of the Commission, including these factors in arriving at the fair value of the Company's property for rate making purposes.

9. It is denied that "arithmetical calculation" or any lawful method of appraisal or valuation will show the present fair value of the Company's property to be less than $100,000,000, and on the contrary, it is averred that the present fair value of the Company's property is in excess of its fair value at the time of the Commission's finding of value in June 1923.

10. The averments of paragraph 7 of the complaint are denied. It is denied that the car-riders in Philadelphia are paying excessive rates of fare to the Company. On the contrary, it it averred that the Company's present fares are and for some time have been inadequate and insufficient and less than it is entitled under the laws of Pennsylvania and the Constitution of the United States to charge.

Wherefore respondent prays that the complaint filed in the above proceeding be dismissed.

DEPARTMENT OF LAW
City of Philadelphia
City Hall Annex

The Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Capitol Building, Harrisburg, Pa.

Gentlemen:

Under date of April 6, 1934, the Secretary of the Public Service Commission has forwarded to me a copy of a petition filed by Mr. S. David Wilson for a revaluation of the property and assets of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and for the fixing of a five cent rate of fare (your file No. C-10132), with the statement that "the Commission, of course, would be interested in any comment on the complaint that the City authorities may desire to make."

While the City is not a party to this record, its officers appreciate the opportunity extended to make comment upon the petition filed:

A similar petition was filed in 1932 by this same complaint and wife (see your file No. C-9363) at which time the Commission transmitted a copy thereof to this office for such comment as the City might desire to make. In reply to the communication and without making the City a party to the record, we transmitted to your Honorable Body a letter under date of October 14, 1932, stating various reasons why it was believed inopportune to engage in the revaluation proceeding asked for at that time. The Commission, by a report and order under date of November 15, 1932, refused that petition for reasons stated, and said inter alia,

"The City of Philadelphia, complainant in a previous proceeding, to which a copy of the petition was sent, though not a part of record, has stated, informally, through its law officer, that from the City's standpoint, the time is not now opportune for a valuation proceeding. At present certain propositions with regard to all the traction interests in the City are being discussed and considered by the municipal authorities, and the owners and operators of the line, and it is the conviction of the City that any valuation proceeding begun now would seriously interfere with the negotiations now being carried on with respect to these matters, and would greatly delay and impede their progress. Furthermore, the City states it is absolutely unable to render any financial assistance for such an investigation and recites the fact that the previous proceeding cost it approximately a quarter of a million dollars."

In reply to your recent communication concerning the new petition filed for revaluation of the Transit Company's facilities, the City of Philadelphia must take the same position which it did in 1932.

The City is without available capital to finance such a project and negotiations for a new lease with the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company of the City-built Street Subway, Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street Subway, Broad Street Subway South Extension, Locust Street Subway, and the Bridge Line Connecting Spur are now about completed and an ordinance embodying the terms of such proposed lease has recently been introduced in City Council and referred to its Committee on Transportation and Public Utilities which is arranging to have public hearings thereon in the near future. It would therefore seem unprofitable and unnecessary to engage in an expensive revaluation proceeding at the present time.

For the further information of the Commission I am hereto attaching additional copies of the City's communication of October 14, 1932, above referred to. It is our belief that the situation of the City with reference to any new revaluation proceedings of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit facilities remains substantially as it was in 1932.

Again thanking you for the courtesy of extending the City this opportunity to make comment, I beg to remain.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) DAVID J. SMYTH,
City Solicitor.

APPENDIX No. 25

THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION
OF THE
COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

S. DAVIS WILSON
v.
PHILADELPHIA RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY

REPORT AND ORDER OF THE COMMISSION

By the Commission:

This is a petition by an individual, filed both in his capacity as Controller of the City and County of Philadelphia and also as a taxpayer and car rider. The petition closely parallels one filed by him on September 26, 1932, and refused by this Commission (Wilson v. Phila. Rapid Transit Co., 11 Pa. P. S. C. 621). It recites the fact that in prior proceedings before this Commission a valuation of the Transit Company's property was made by the Commission for rate-making purposes: City of Philadelphia et al. v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 6 Pa. P. S. C. 431, in which the value of the system was found to be substantially upwards of $200,000,000. The petition then avers that since that time unit construction costs have trended downward and that appraisals have been made by several firms, indicating, with deductions for items believed not proper to be considered, a present value of the property substantially less than that previously fixed by the Commission. The petitioner consequently concludes that the present rates of fare of eight cents cash or two tokens for fifteen cents, are excessive in view of these reduced values, and prays the Commission "to find and determine a full and fair valuation of the property and assets of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company system in the City and County of Philadelphia, and to determine and fix a fair rate for car riders, and for these purposes to hold such hearing and take such action as may be necessary and proper." The petition is in substance a request for the Commission to undertake an investigation as to the present fair value of the property of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, and to prescribe the maximum just and reasonable rates to be charged for the public service rendered by it.

The company has filed an answer in which it denies, specifically, many of the averments of the petition; particularly that the value of the property has decreased in anything like the amount claimed by the petitioner. It is likewise averred in the answer that, notwithstanding the substantial additions which have been made to the property since the time of the prior valuations, the company's total passenger revenue has decreased substantially. The answer points out that although the Commission in the last rate case, Phila. Rapid Transit Co.'s Application, 7 Pa. P. S. C. 484 (1926), sustained a total street railway passenger revenue of $49,000,000 per year, this revenue in 1933 was actually only $29,300,000, and the revenue for 1933 from all sources, including the bus and taxicab systems, $34,300,000. The answer further sets forth that although these losses in gross revenue have in part been met by increased efficiency and safety in operation and reductions in operating expenses, the company's income after paying these operating expenses, taxes and rentals for the use of the City owned property, has been reduced to a comparatively small amount. The answer claims that if any further reductions were made it would interfere with the ability of the company to continue to render service, and would prevent the operation by the company of the City owned high-speed system which has recently been and is now being constructed. It is suggested that not only is the present net return inadequate upon any fair value which might be placed on the company's property, but also that if the company were compelled to raise the funds necessary to participate in the investigation and valuation prayed for, unnecessary and undesirable reductions in wages and curtailments of operation would be required. The answer denies that the existing rates are excessive, even at the present time, but on the contrary asserts that under present conditions they are inadequate and insufficient to provide a proper return on the fair value of the property, and are less than that to which the company is entitled under the laws of the Commonwealth and the Constitution of the United States.

The City of Philadelphia, which was a complainant in the prior proceeding, has stated informally, through its City Solicitor, that from its point of view the time is not now opportune for a valuation proceeding. It states that it is without available funds to finance its share in an investigation into these rates, and refers to the fact that its participation in the previous rate proceedings cost it approximately one-quarter of a million dollars. It calls attention to the fact that negotiations for new leases with the company for the municipally-built and owned Broad Street, Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street, Broad Street Subway South Extension, Locust Street and Bridge Line Connecting Spur subways are now in process of completion and enactment, all of which would be substantially handicapped if the evaluation proceeding would be undertaken at this time. The City concludes that its situation with reference to any new revaluation projects is as it was when the Commission refused petitioner's previous application in 1932.

The Commission has given careful consideration to the petition, answer, and informal statement of the City, and to all the facts and circumstances involved. It is obvious that an inquiry into and determination of the fair value of the property and system such as that here involved, for the purpose of fixing reasonable rates, could not be undertaken except with the services of a considerable number of engineers, accountants, and others, and the consumption of a great amount of time and the expenditure of large sums of money.

The burden on the public service company, the municipality and the Commission would be excessive and disproportionate to any benefits which might follow. The Public Service Company Law does not contemplate that every complaint filed with the Commission shall be proceeded with in detail and testimony taken. In Article VI, Section 7 of the Act, the requirement to proceed to hearing is only if it shall appear that "reasonable ground exists for investigating said complaint." Still less obligation would there be for the Commission to undertake the valuation on its own motion. The basic reason for such an undertaking would be the hope that it would result in a reduction in the rates to be paid by the car riders of Philadelphia. While it would appear that substantial changes in the situation have occurred since the time of the previous rate cases, it is not so apparent that these changes as a whole would result in a reduction in the rate to the individual car rider. We cannot but feel that greater public benefit will follow from the direction of our energies into other channels rather than in the valuation of the property of this company.

Upon a careful review of the matter, the Commission is of the opinion that reasonable ground does not exist for its acceding to the prayer of the petition to investigate these rates, and that the public interest would not be best served by such action; THEREFORE,

NOW, to wit, June 11, 1934, IT IS ORDERED: That the prayer of the petition be and is hereby refused.

REPORT OF STATE EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD PURSUANT TO HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 18.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
STATE EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD

Harrisburg, February 28, 1935.

Honorable Wilson G. Sarig
Speaker of the House
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

Dear Mr. Sarig:

In accordance with House Resolution No. 18 (The Hoopes Resolution), I submit the enclosed report, "The Development of Relief Standards by the State Emergency Relief Administration" The five items of information requested in the Resolution are not submitted in the attached report in the order in which they are requested in the Resolution. Item No. 3 in the Resolution, which refers to relief budgets, is replied to in items 1-11 in the report. Items Nos. 1, 2, 4, and 5 in the Resolution, which refer to number of persons receiving relief, distribution of relief families by size, and appropriation needed for relief, are replied to in item No. 12 of the report.

Sincerely yours,

ROBERT L. JOHNSON,
Executive Director.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF RELIEF STANDARDS BY THE STATE EMERGENCY RELIEF ADMINISTRATION

The present relief standards of the State Emergency Relief Administration are the result of 30 months of constant progress toward more nearly adequate provision for the needs of the unemployed.

In September, 1932, the first month of unemployment relief administration by the State Emergency Relief Board, food was the only form of relief given. It was believed by the State Board, for several months after its establishments, that the localities would be able to provide other forms of relief.

In September, 1932, the State Relief Administration stated the following policies:

> "All relief shall be distributed on the sole basis of actual need, to persons who have been residents of Pennsylvania for one year, regardless of race, color, religion, citizenship, or politics.
> "No relief shall be given to any person who has been offered work that he or she can do and has refused to do.
> "All funds received must be expended solely for food orders, work relief, or other forms of actual relief.
> "Every able-bodied man will, if and when possible, be offered as much work a month on a maintenance project in his locality, as will compensate for relief supplied to him and his family on the basis of their estimated need."

The development of the relief program since that date has consisted primarily of a continuous expansion in both the types and quantities of relief granted.

In the early months of the State Relief Administration, the local relief administrations were given wide latitude in the determination of relief standards and policies. As a result, there were marked variations in the amounts of relief granted in different counties. In some counties, weekly food grants were limited to $0.25 per person and to a maximum of $2.00 per family. In at least two counties weekly food grants of $1.80 for one person and $1.25 for each additional family member were allowed. The variations in standards for other forms of relief were equally marked. With such wide variations existing, it became necessary for the State Relief Administration to formulate uniform standards. The standards which have been formulated, from time to time, for each type of relief are sent forth below.

1. FOOD

The food order system, whereby an order for a stated amount is issued to the relief recipient who may use it to purchase foodstuffs in the amount shown on the order, has been in use from the beginning of the relief program, except in those counties where commissaries were operated for a time, and in Philadelphia and Allegheny counties at the present time where all relief is now granted in cash.

With the assistance of dieticians, physicians, and home economists, the minimum food budgets for adults and children, shown in Table 1, were prepared in the summer of 1933.

Cheese	¼ Lb.	.....	.....
Eggs	¼ Doz.	½ Doz.	½ Doz.

Retail prices in various sections of the state were obtained and the cost of purchasing the above food budgets was calculated. The total cost of the food budgets was found not to vary greatly in various sections of the state, and a uniform state-wide food relief schedule was therefore adopted. The cost of purchasing the above food budget for one adult is shown by months in Table 2.

* Estimated

A few changes have been made in the standard food relief schedule since it was first adopted on a state-wide basis in October, 1933. The food schedule now in use throughout the state is shown in Table 3.

It will be observed from Table 2 that the average cost of purchasing the minimum weekly food budget for one adult in the four cities was $1.69 on February 1, 1935. Food prices were higher on that date than they had been at any time during the period prices have been collected—since August, 1933. The food allowance for one adult is $2.00 per week (Table 3). This allowance appears to be adequate as compared with the present cost of purchasing the minimum weekly food budget, $1.69. The $2.00 allowance, on the other hand, is not excessive, since it is inevitable that there will be some waste in purchasing and preparing food for one person as compared with a larger number of persons.

The milk allowed in the minimum weekly food budget for children is provided in a milk order separate from the food order. The cost of purchasing the minimum weekly food budget for a child 6 to 12 years of age averages 60%, and for a child under 6 years of age 45%, of the cost of purchasing the minimum weekly food budget for an adult. Thus, on February 1, 1935 the cost of purchasing the minimum weekly food budget for one adult, one child 6 to 12, and one child under 6 was $3.47 as compared with an allowance of $3.75 in the food grant schedule (Table 3). The following tabulation compares the food allowance for various family combinations, based on Table 3, with the average state wide- cost of purchasing the minimum weekly food budgets for these family combinations.

4 Adults, 2 Children 6 to 12	8.50	9.39

It will be noted that the food allowance exceeds the cost of purchasing the minimum weekly food budget for the smaller family combinations and falls beneath it for the larger family combinations. This is in accordance with the generally accepted procedure for constructing food schedules.

As the size of the family increases, greater economy in the purchase and preparation of foods, together with smaller food requirements for some members of the family, makes it possible to scale down the food grant without inflicting hardships on these larger households.

A series of leaflets instructing relief families with respect to economical purchase of foods and the planning and preparation of meals was published and distributed with relief orders. Copies of these leaflets are attached as Appendix C of this report. It is interesting to note that there is less malnutrition among children in families receiving relief in Pennsylvania than among children in families in the low income groups not receiving relief. This has probably been due, in part, to the fact that milk has been distributed to families receiving relief in addition to the food order.

2. MILK

The State Relief Administration began distributing milk, in addition to food orders, in October, 1932. The State Department of Health previously had established a system of milk distribution for needy under-nourished children in certain communities to administer a volunteer relief fund contributed by State Employees. The State Relief Board allocated funds to the Department of Health to expand this milk relief program throughout the State.

As the volume of relief increased, the impracticability of this method of distributing milk became apparent, and in September, 1933, the State Relief Administration began to issue milk orders to retail dealers through the local relief administrations. The standards for milk relief, adopted at that time, are still in operation and are as follows:

1. To families whose eligibility for milk relief has been established the maximum to be allowed shall be:

(a) One quart per day for each child less than two years of age.

(b) One quart per day for every two children from two to twelve years of age, both inclusive. Allow one quart per day for the odd child.

2. The foregoing quantities of milk are to be allowed only when the family needs so warrant. The composition and dietary habits of many families—particularly where there are a number of children—are such that less milk will be required than rule (1) would allow. In such cases, a smaller quantity should be granted.

3. SURPLUS FOOD PRODUCTS

Since November, 1933, the State Relief Administration has obtained from the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation various agricultural commodities. These products have been distributed to families receiving relief in addition to the usual food grant. The quantities of these foods which were distributed in Pennsylvania from September, 1933 through December, 1934, are shown in the following tabulation:

Commodity	Quantity Distributed
Roast Beef	10,342,188	pounds
Fresh Beef	130,198	"
Smoked Pork	3,226,167½	"
Salt Pork	1,624,511	"
Veal	52,191	"
Lard	414,410	"
Butter	3,018,192	"
Cheese	347,257⅞	"
Flour	6,864,390	"
Pea Beans	400,340	"
Rice	308,318	"
Potatoes	2,244	barrels
Eggs	939,300	dozen

4. THRIFT GARDENS

In the spring of 1933, the State Relief Administration initiated the Thrift Garden Program as a means of assisting the unemployed to help themselves. Under this program, garden plots were obtained for families receiving relief, and seed fertilizer were purchased and supplied to them. The planting and cultivation of the gardens was supervised by the local relief administrations. Many of the gardens yielded more than could be consumed as fresh vegetables and every effort was made to assist in and encourage the canning and preserving of surplus garden crops for use during the winter months. The average cost to the State Relief Administration of each thrift garden in 1934 was $1.67 and the estimated value of the yield per garden amounted to $25.33.

5. FUEL

In October, 1932, the second month of the State Emergency Relief Board's existence, the following resolution was adopted:

"RESOLVED, That the State Board authorizes the expenditure, through and upon request of the various county boards, of not more than 5% of the amount allocated for direct relief for Fuel, but records its belief that it is the duty of every local community to provide fuel and clothing,—all fuel to be purchased out of State or Federal funds and purchased directly by the district agencies and paid out on direct requisitions, —no fuel orders to be issued to individuals."

When investigation revealed that a family needed fuel, an order was written on a fuel dealer and the fuel was delivered to the family's home.

By December, 1932, it had become apparent that limiting the total amount of fuel relief that could be distributed in a county to 5% of the direct relief distributed was impracticable. For that month, therefore, the amount of fuel distributed in each county was determined on the basis of need and not on the basis of a fixed proportion of the total food relief distributed.

In January, 1934, gas for cooking and heating was authorized in the following regulation:

"The use of gas for cooking and for heating may be authorized by the County Emergency Relief Board, in eligible cases, where the home of clients are not equipped with stoves or furnaces for burning other types of fuel. Maximum limits of gas bills shall be set by each County Emergency Relief Board, based on a reasonable consumption of gas for cooking three meals a day and/or heating a home of average size. (Suggestion: Have gas company furnish County Emergency Relief Board with information as to average amount of each client's monthly gas bills during preceding winter at time client applies for gas relief).

"At the time gas relief is authorized each client must be warned to be as economical as possible in consuming gas. This warning must be repeated if the client's gas bill exceeds the established maximum. If any client disregards these warnings, gas relief to that client must be discontinued."

At the present time fuel relief is provided in the form of coal, coke, gas, wood, kerosene, and fuel oil. The amount of fuel relief which is provided for a family is determined by need within the following maximum allowances:

WEEKLY MAXIMUM HEATING FUEL ALLOWANCE

A: In areas using anthracite coal:

Heating fuel allowance shall be permitted in the budget only during the period of October 1st to May 1st, and shall not exceed the following:

1. Dwelling of 3 rooms* or less—value of ⅓ tons of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.
2. Dwelling of 4 or 5 rooms* inclusive—value of 1/5 tons of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.
3. Dwelling of 6 rooms* or more—value of ¼ tons of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.

B: In Areas Using Bituminous Coal or Fuel Other Than Anthracite Coal:

Heating fuel allowance shall be permitted in the budget only during the period of October 1—May 1, and shall not exceed the following:

1. Dwelling of 3 rooms* or less—value of 1/6 ton of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.
2. Dwelling of 4 to 5 rooms* inclusive—value of ¼ ton of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.
3. Dwelling of 6 rooms* or more—value of 1/3 ton of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.

*Do not count bath-rooms, pantries, or unused, unheated cellars and attic rooms.

If heating is done by fuel other than coal, the maximum allowance should not exceed that which would be allowed for coal as determined in the above schedule.

No additional allowance for cooking fuel should be made between October 1st and May 1st where the family uses the same fuel for heating and cooking purposes.

WEEKLY MAXIMUM COOKING FUEL ALLOWANCE

The weekly maximum cooking fuel allowance shall not exceed the following:

$0.60 per week for a family of four persons or less.
$0.70 per week for a family of five to eight persons.
$0.85 per week for a family of nine persons or more.

The allowance for cooking fuel may be given in addition to the heating fuel allowance from October 1st to May 1st in cases where different types of fuel are used, i. e., wood or coal for heating, gas for cooking.

6. SHOES AND CLOTHING

During the winter of 1932-33, the State Relief Administration provided funds for the rehabilitation of second-hand shoes and clothing. In December, 1932, the first purchase of shoes was made by the State Relief Administration, and in November, 1933, the first purchase of clothing was made. All shoes and clothing distributed until December, 1934, were purchased centrally by the State Relief Administration The goods were warehoused in the counties and distributed directly to persons receiving relief by employes of the Local Relief Administration.

This method of distributing shoes and clothing was unsatisfactory, but was necessitated by limitation of funds. In December, 1934, this method was superseded by the clothing and shoe order system whereby orders of stated value, redeemable at any retail clothing or shoe store, are issued to families receiving relief. The amount of the weekly allowance for shoes and clothing is determined on the basis of need within the following schedule of maximum allowances:

Size of Family	Maximum Weekly Allowance
1	$0.50
2	1.00
3	1.50
4	2.00
5	2.50
6	3.00
7	3.50
8	4.00
9	4.50
10	5.00
11	5.50
12	6.00
13	6.50
14	7.00
15	7.50

7. MEDICAL CARE

The Medical Care Program which was inaugurated in December, 1933, is adequately described in the following paragraphs which are quoted from the "Rules and Regulations Governing Medical Care Provided in the Home to Recipients of Unemployment Relief" issued December 1, 1933.

"The State Emergency Relief Board of Pennsylvania, realizing the need for a uniform policy for providing adequate medical care in the home as a part of unemployment relief, has established a policy, the essence of which is:

"(a) An agreement by the relief administration to recognize within legal and economic limitations, the traditional family and family-physician relationship in the authorization of medical care for unemployment relief beneficiaries in their homes; the traditional physician-nurse relationship in the authorization of bedside nursing care; the traditional dentist-patient relationship in the authorization of emergency dental care; and

"(b) An agreement by the physician, nurse (or nursing organization) and dentist to furnish the same type of service to an unemployment relief beneficiary as would be rendered to a private patient, but that such authorized service shall be a minimum consistent with good professional judgment, and shall be charged for at an agreed rate which makes due allowance for the conservation of relief funds.

"The common aim should be the provision of good medical service at a low cost—to the mutual benefit of the unemployment relief beneficiary, physician, nurse, dentist, pharmacist, and taxpayer.

"The policy adopted shall be to augment and render more adequate facilities already existing in the community for the provision of medical care by the medical, nursing, and dental professions to the unemployment relief beneficiaries. It shall imply continuance in the use of hospitals, clinics, and medical, dental, and nursing services already established in the community and paid for, in whole or in part, from local and/or State funds, in accordance with local statutes or charter provisions. Federal Emergency Relief funds shall not be used in lieu of local and/or State funds to pay for such established services.

"The phrase 'in their homes' shall be interpreted to include office service for ambulatory patients, with the understanding that such office service shall not supplant the services of clinics or dispensaries already provided in the community.

"Authorizations for medical care for acute illness shall be limited to not more than two weeks or ten visits, and a maximum fee of $20.00. The presentation of a bill, by a physician or nurse authorized to give medical or bedside nursing care to a home relief client, for the maximum number of visits shall imply that the physician or nurse will provide necessary additional care for the patient during that illness without additional authorization or compensation from public relief funds. Authorization for bedside nursing care for acute illness shall be limited to not more than ten visits, and a maximum expenditure of $8.50.

"Medical care for prolonged illnesses, such as chronic asthma, chronic heart disease, chronic rheumatism, diabetes, etc., shall be authorized on an individual basis and in general, visits shall be limited to not more than one visit per week for a period not exceeding two months. Bedside nursing care for chronic illnesses, shall, in general, be limited to not more than six visits, the purpose of which shall be demonstration and instruction to some member of the household in the necessary care, in addition to giving such care. Care for chronic illness authorized under this section shall supplement and not supersede existing community services such as visiting nursing service or institutional care.

"Authorization for obstetrical service in the home shall include a minimum of six pre-natal visits, delivery in the home where possible and a minimum of three post-natal visits.

"In the interest of simplicity and promptness of payment that authorization from the State Emergency Relief Board insures, the following schedule of maximum fees is hereby established. Local established fees where lower, must be the basis for determining the relief rates.

"(a) For an authorized home visit—the prevailing minimum fee, but not to exceed $2.00.

"(b) For an authorized office visit—the prevailing minimum fee, but not to exceed $1.00.

"(c) For authorized obstetrical care in the home as specified under obstetrical care—not to exceed $20.00.

"(d) Accessory Service.

1. For an authorized bedside nursing visit not more than $0.85.

2. For an authorized emergency extraction (to include cost of anesthesia) not more than $1.00 for the first tooth nor more than $0.50 for each additional tooth; provided that the maximum charge for a given patient, including full mouth extractions shall not exceed $10.00."

8. SHELTER

Provision for shelter was first made in Allegheny County on an experimental basis in the spring of 1934. In August, 1934, this form of relief was authorized for the balance of the state. The basis upon which shelter is granted is set forth in the following paragraphs from the rules and regulations of the State Relief Administration.

The purpose of the Rent Relief program is to provide dwellings that comply with the legal standards of health and sanitation for families who are recipients of unemployment relief, by paying to the landlords as rent relief the current real estate taxes and an additional sum to cover, in the average case, water rent and fire insurance costs.

A family to be eligible for Rent Relief must at the same time be eligible for food relief and the family must be unable to meet its rental obligations and not occupying "rent free" quarters, in accordance with the following paragraph.

Rent Relief will not be granted to a family on relief which is occupying "rent free" quarters. This may occur (a) where shelter is supplied by others without cost to the relief family; (b) where shelter is supplied in return for services, such as janitor services, watchman services, repairs or other similar services rendered by a member of the relief family in return for living quarters; (c) where rent is furnished as part of another agreement, such as living quarters supplied to a tenant farmer, or other similar arrangements.

Local, unattached, homeless men and women and local families having no household equipment, may be eligible for Rent Relief under these Rules and Regulations. If Rent Relief is granted to such families, efforts should be made to supply them with household equipment and establish them in their own homes, as rapidly as possible.

Relief clients owning their own homes are entitled to rent relief if otherwise eligible under these Rules and Regulations.

Although families to be eligible for Rent Relief must at the same time be eligible for food relief, nevertheless, the discontinuance of food relief need not, in special cases, automatically result in the discontinuance of Rent Relief. In general, discontinuance of food relief should be accompanied by discontinuance of Rent Relief, but where the Visitor knows, from her experience with the family, that the family's income is of a sporadic nature which will necessitate in a very short period of time the resumption of food relief, discontinuance of Rent Relief need not be immediately ordered. However, it will be the duty of the Visitor, in such a case, to keep in close contact with the family, and to discontinue Rent Relief if food relief is not again warranted. . Two successive monthly Rent Relief payments shall not be made without special authorization by the Local Relief Division, if the family in the interval is not on food relief.

For a family occupying an entire dwelling, the monthly Rent Relief Allowance shall be 1/12 of twice the annual current real estate taxes on the property, subject to the maximum and minimum allowances set forth below. Where there is an annual ground rent on the ground, such rent shall be added to twice the annual taxes before Rent Relief is calculated.

For a family occupying residential space in a building of mixed uses (i. e., part residential and part industrial or business), the monthly Rent Relief allowance will be that proportion of the monthly Rent Relief allowance calculated on the entire property that the rental valuation of the residential space occupied by the relief family bears size bears to the valuation of the entire property.

Where the dwelling or building of mixed use is surrounded by a considerable tract of unused land, or other property, which, together with the dwelling, is assessed and taxed as a single property, the customary size of a lot having a dwelling of that character in that neighborhood will be ascertained, and the monthly Rent Relief allowance will be that proportion of the monthly Rent Relief allowance calculated on the entire property, that the valuation of the dwelling and the lot of customary size bears to the valuation of the entire property.

In no case shall the monthly Rent Relief allowance in the above cases exceed the maximums, or be less than the minimums, in the following schedule:

TYPE 1 OF RENT RELIEF PAYMENTS

Size of Family	Maximum Monthly Allowance	Minimum Monthly Allowance
1	$ 8.50	$3.00
2-3	10.75	3.00
4-5	12.50	3.50
6-8	14.00	3.50
9 or more	15.00	4.00

For a family occupying four or more rooms in an apartment house, flat or house devoted exclusively to residential use, the monthly Rent Relief Allowance for unfurnished, unheated living quarters, shall be that proportion of the monthly Rent Relief allowance of the entire house that the number of rooms occupied by the relief family bears to the total number of rooms in the house. This computation shall be subject to the maximum and minimum allowances set forth in the schedule above.

For the purposes of this computation of Rent Relief, porches, halls, attics, and cellars are not to be counted as rooms. Kitchens and bath-rooms used jointly by two or more families are not to be counted as rooms, except in cases where two or more families making joint use of kitchens and bath-rooms are on relief, in which cases kitchen and bath-rooms are to be counted as rooms for one of the relief families. Bath-rooms and kitchens for the exclusive use of a family are to be counted as rooms.

If utilities are furnished by the landlord to a family occupying 4 rooms or more, additional allowances for such utilities will be granted in the monthly Rent Relief allowance, in accordance with the following schedule:

TYPE 2 OF RENT RELIEF PAYMENTS

Size of Family	Monthly Allowance Unheat. & Unfurn. (Based on Taxes) Maximum	Minimum	Extra for Heat-Winter Months only	Extra for Gas	Extra for Light	Extra for Furn.	Maximum Monthly Total May-Sept.	Maximum Monthly Total Oct-Apr.
5-7	$13.00	$3.00	$3.50	$3.00	$2.00	$2.50	$20.50	$24.00
7-8	13.50	3.50	4.00	3.00	2.40	3.00	21.90	24.50
9 or more	15.00	4.00	4.50	3.00	2.80	3.50	24.30	25.00

For a family occupying one, two or three furnished or unfurnished rooms, the monthly Rent Relief payment shall be calculated in accordance with the following schedule of maximums for unheated, unfurnished quarters and of additional allowances for utilities furnished by the landlord.

TYPE 3 OF RENT RELIEF PAYMENTS

Number of Rooms	Maximum Monthly Unheat. and Unfurn. (Including Water)	Extra for Heat--Winter Mos. only	Extra for Gas	Extra for Light	Extra for Furn.	Monthly Total May-Sept.	Monthly Total Oct.-Apr.
1	$6.00	$1.40	$2.00	$0.80	$1.00	$9.80	$11.20
2	9.00	2.10	2.50	1.20	1.50	14.20	16.30
3	12.00	2.80	3.00	1.60	2.00	18.60	21.40

The maximum allowance for unheated, unfurnished quarters, under the above schedule, shall not exceed $4.00 monthly for one local unattached homeless person with allowances added, in accordance with the above schedule, for utilities furnished by the landlord.

In no case shall the Rent Relief payment under Types 2 and 3, exceed the monthly rent that the landlord has been currently asking and/or receiving.

9. LIGHT

No provision for light, other than kerosene, was made by the State Relief Administration, except for work relief cases, until November, 1934, when cash relief was initiated in Philadelphia county. Provision for light was authorized for direct relief cases in the balance of the State in January, 1935, when the "budget deficiency" basis of granting direct relief was initiated. The "cash" and "budgetary deficiency" basis of granting direct relief are described in later sections.

The maximum weekly allowances for light are as follows:

$0.30 per week for a family of three persons or less.
$0.60 per week for a family of four to eight persons.
$0.70 per week for a family of nine persons or more.

10. "BUDGETARY DEFICIENCY" RELIEF GRANTS

The preceding sections of this report described the basis upon which the grants for each specific type of relief have been determined. In determining the family's eligibility and the amount of relief granted, each type of relief needed has been considered separately in the past with insufficient consideration of the family's basic needs as a whole. This method of granting relief was inherent in the manner in which the relief program developed. Inadequate funds made it impossible to meet the family's entire needs. The most essential needs were met first, and as funds became available other types of relief were granted. Thus, first food only was granted, then milk; later fuel and shoes were granted; clothing and medical care were added after one year had elapsed; and finally shelter was provided. With the provision for shelter, all the more essential basic needs of families receiving relief were being provided. It then became possible to begin considering the family's needs, not as an aggregate of independent needs for a minimum subsistence.

Under the "budgetary deficiency" basis of granting relief, the family's needs are calculated and entered on the "Standard Budget Sheet" in accordance with the "Procedure for Preparing Standard Budget Sheets"—Appendix A of this report.

a. "Budgetary Deficiency" Basis for Work Relief

The amount of the "budgetary deficiency" as determined in accordance with the "Procedure for Preparing Standard Budget Sheets" is used as the basis for assigning workers to the revised work relief program which was initiated in October. The number of hours necessary to earn the worker's budgetary deficiency is determined by dividing the hourly rate of pay the worker is to receive into the amount of the four-week budget deficiency of the family. The worker is then assigned during each four-week period a number of work units (18 hours each) equal to the number of hours required to earn the four-week budgetary deficiency divided by 18. Assignments of partial work units are not made. Even though the worker requires only a portion of the last work unit assigned to enable him or her to earn the amount of the family's four weeks budget deficiency, nevertheless, he or she is permitted to work out the entire unit and is paid the amount earned over and above the budget deficiency.

Each worker assigned to a work project receives each week, in cash, the amount of the family's weekly budgetary deficiency. At the end of four weeks, the worker's actual earnings are calculated and if they exceed the amount already received as budgetary deficiency payments, an excess earnings check is issued to the worker.

B. "BUDGETARY DEFICIENCY" BASIS FOR CASH DIRECT RELIEF

The granting of all direct relief in cash was initiated in Philadelphia County in November and in Allegheny County in January. The following procedure is followed in determining the amount of cash relief to be granted.

(1) The family's total budget, adjusted income, and budget deficiency, is determined and entered on the Standard Budget Sheet in accordance with the "Procedure for Preparing Standard Budget Sheets"—Appendix A.

(2) The amount of the direct relief cash grant is determined by use of "Standard Budget with Adjustment for Income"—Apendix B. Families receiving cash direct relief do not receive the entire amount of their budget deficiency. The "Standard Budget with Adjustment for Income", which is used in determining the amount of the cash direct relief grant, was devised in such a manner as to grant 80% of the budget deficiency to families with no income and from 90% to 100% of the budget deficiency to families with income. Limitation of funds makes it impossible to grant full budgetary deficiency relief to all families. Further, providing 80% of the budget deficiency to families with no income and full budget deficiency to families with income and to families on work relief serves as an incentive for obtaining and seeking employment.

C. "BUDGETARY DEFICIENCY" BASIS FOR DIRECT RELIEF IN KIND

In January, the determination of relief grants on a budgetary deficiency basis was authorized for all direct relief cases throughout the State. The procedure for determining the amount of direct relief in kind grants is identical with that outlined above for the determination of cash direct relief grants. Within the amount of the direct relief grant determined as above, the local relief division works out with the family a relief plan which provides relief orders in recurring amounts for the various items included in the family budget. Instead of receiving one cash grant for the entire relief needs of the family, separate orders for food, milk, fuel, shelter, etc. are issued.

11. AVERAGE RELIEF GRANTS PER CASE

The preceding sections of this report have described the development of the relief standards of the State Relief Administration. This development has been reflected in constantly increasing average relief grants per case. The average relief grant in October, 1932 was $12.70 (Table 4 and Chart 1). By August, 1933, the average grant had increased to $16.73. One year later, August, 1934, the average grant was $27.76, and by December, 1934 the average had increased to $35.17.

December	29.70	7.82	57.25	13.06	35.17	8.99

A substantial portion of the increase in average grants in recent months had been due to the work relief program which has provided from $39.00 per family in May, 1934, to $66.00 per family in September, 1934. Average direct relief grants, however, have also shown a rapid rise in recent months, reaching a peak of $29.70 in December, 1934.

When the budgetary deficiency basis of granting direct relief becomes fully operative throughout the State, the direct relief grants will average approximately $35.00 per family per month.

12. ESTIMATED RELIEF REQUIREMENTS

Table 5 presents a tabulation of the budgets, the income, and budget deficiencies of all families receiving either direct or work relief on February 2, 1935. There were on February 2, 1935, approximately 445,000 cases receiving relief, of which 327,000 were receiving direct relief, and 118,000 were receiving work relief. Of these families, 101,000 had income sources other than relief payments. The total budget needs of these families, calculated in accordance with the "Procedure for Preparing Standard Budget Sheets"—Appendix A, was $5,208,547.53 a week, or an average of $11.71 per family. The total income of these families amounted to $446.390 per week, or an average of $1.05 per family. The total budgetary deficiency amounts to $4,742,157 per week, or an average of $10.66 per family. Since families receiving direct relief are granted only 80% of their budgetary deficiency, the average weekly grant per family on direct relief will approximate $8.22.

The average number of cases receiving relief each month from September, 1932, to January, 1935, is shown in Table 6 and Chart 2. The case load on February 2, 1935, is distributed by size of family in Table 7 and Chart 3. The number of cases receiving relief throughout the next year is not likely to average more than 400,000 per month. To provide relief for this number of cases on the basis of the present direct relief budgetary deficiency basis would require approximately $170,000,000. For a biennium this would amount to $340,000,000. This estimate does not take into consideration the additional costs which would be involved in providing work relief for a portion of the case load. The Federal Government however, would provide the funds for work relief if the $4,880,000,000 bill now before the United States Senate passes. A Federal work relief program would materially reduce the requirements for relief was estimated above. Further, the above estimates make no allowance for the possibility of improved business conditions which would still further reduce the amount required for direct relief. Taking these two factors—a Federal Work Relief Program and the possibility of improved employment conditions—into consideration, it would appear that the Governor's provision in the State Budget of $120,000,000 for the Biennium is very sound Even if we assume that neither a Federal Works Relief Program nor improved business conditions materialize, the State would be in a position to provide approximately 35% of the total amount needed to provide direct relief for the unemployed over the next Biennium. The balance of the amount needed, or 65 per cent, is a smaller proportion of the total relief expenditures than the Federal Government is now providing throughout the nation.

PROCEDURE FOR PREPARING STANDARD BUDGET SHEET

SECTION A—PROCEDURE FOR PREPARING STANDARD BUDGET SHEET FOR WORK RELIEF

Section A forms the basis and contains the schedules for the preparation of budgets for both work and direct relief.

The various schedules are designed merely for devices in estimating, case by case, the—

(1) Subsistence deeds of each case receiving relief.

(2) Amount of earnings through work relief which each case requires weekly for its subsistence.

The schedules and material for determining the budget needs will be used also in computing the "Direct Relief Budget Deficiency" for direct relief grants.

SECTION B—USE OF STANDARD BUDGET PROCEDURE FOR DIRECT RELIEF GRANTS

Section B describes the procedure for authorizing relief on the basis of the "Direct Relief Budget Deficiency." It is used in combination with Section A and the "Standard Budget with Adjustment for Income"—S. E. R. B.—2V.

SECTION A—PROCEDURE FOR PREPARING STANDARD BUDGET SHEETS FOR WORK RELIEF

Determination of "Budget Needs":

In all cases, the amount entered in the column headed "Weekly Budget Needs" shall be the minimum requirements of the family for each budgetary item but in no case shall the amounts entered exceed the maximum determined from the attached schedules. Care must be exercised in determining the amounts of the budget needs for each item in the budget. In many instances, the amount of the budget needs will be less than the amount of the maximum set. In other instances, budget needs for certain items may be applied at no cost, such as clothing supplied by relatives or wood made available for cutting and gathering. In the event that the budget needs for any budget item are supplied without cost to the family, no entry opposite that item should be made.

The maximum allowance for each budgetary item is to be determined by the attached schedules, each of which is briefly explained:

1. Food—Schedule I. To deermine the maximum weekly food allowance, it is first necessary to determine the number of adults and the number of children under thirteen years of age (all children 13 and over to be counted as adults). The maximum amount of the weekly budget allowance for food is then determined by reference to Schedule I and is that amount shown at the point of intersection of the horizontal line extending rightward from the number of adults and the vertical line extending downward from the number of children.
2. Milk—Schedule II. The maximum weekly budget allowance for milk is stated in Schedule II. There is provided on the reverse of the budget sheet a form in which the milk allowance must be calculated. The price to be used in calculating this item shall be the current established retail price as specified by the Executive Director of the local Relief Division.
3. Clothing and Shoes—Schedule III. The maximum weekly budget allowance for clothing and shoes is stated in Schedule III.
4. Heating Fuel—Schedule IV. The maximum weekly budget allowance for heating fuel is based upon the price of coal even though the family may be using other fuel. The maximum amount of the allowance is stated in Schedule IV. There is provided on the reverse of the budget sheet a form for calculating the maximum weekly fuel allowance. The price to be used in calculating this item shall be the current established retail price as specified by the Executive Director of the local Relief Division.
5. Cooking Fuel—Schedule V. The maximum weekly budget allowance for cooking fuel is specified in Schedule V.

6. Shelter—Schedule VI. The maximum weekly budget allowance for shelter is specified in Schedule VI. No entry for this item should be made for "rent free" families. "Rent free" families are those (1) whose shelter is supplied by others without cost to the relief family; (2) whose shelter is supplied in return for services such as janitorial services, watchman services, or other similar services rendered by a member of the relief family in return for living quarters; (3) whose rent is furnished as part of another agreement such as living quarters supplied to a tenant farmer; or (4) whose living quarters are furnished by similar arrangements. In the event the home is owned and occupied by the client, the allowance figured in the budget for shelter should not exceed the maximum amount specified in Column 2 of Schedule VI.
7. Light—Schedule VII. The maximum weekly allowance for light is specified in Schedule VII.
8. Total—The sum of the above seven items.
9. Incidentals—Schedule VIII. A maximum allowance of 5% of the amount of the budget items (total shown opposite item 8 on the budget sheet) may be made. This amount should then be adjusted to the nearest 5¢ unit.
10. Total Budget—The sum of items 8 and 9 gives the total budgetary needs of the family.
11. Adjusted Income—In order to determine the adjusted income, all family income must be listed on the form provided therefor on the reverse of the budget sheet. When earnings vary greatly from week to week because of irregular and/or intermittent employment, the earnings for the previous four weeks must be totaled and divided by four. This average will then be used in lieu of actual earnings in computing adjusted weekly income. Adjustments to income must also be entered. The only allowable adjustments are those specified and must be (1) necessary expenditures in connecting with job such as carfare to and from work or lunches at work or (2) an allowance to "other members of the family" for a portion of earnings not applied to the family budget. This allowance should be made with care. It may be permitted only for daughters, sons, or others who are not heads of the household. In no case shall the amount of this allowance exceed 1/3 of such earnings and the person to whom this allowance is made should not be included in determining the weekly clothing budget allowance for the family. The amount of the adjustments subtracted from the total income gives the amount of adjusted income to be entered opposite item 11 on the budget sheet.
12. Budget Deficiency—The amount of budget deficiency is determined by subtracting adjusted income (item 11) from total budget (item 10). This amount should then be adjusted to the nearest 25c unit.

*Count all persons 13 years of age and over as adults.
Allow $0.50 for each additional child—$15.00 is the maximum weekly food allowance regardless of family size.

SCHEDULE II

MAXIMUM WEEKLY MILK ALLOWANCE

The maximum of weekly milk allowance shall not exceed the following:

Value of 7 quarts of milk for each child up to 2 years of age.

Value of 7 quarts of milk for each 2 children between the ages of 2-12 inclusive. (Allow 7 quarts per week for each odd child in this group.)

Valued of milk needed in case of illness or special diet.

Note:—It is assumed that the food allowance covers normal need for cooking, cereal, coffee, etc.

SCHEDULE III

MAXIMUM WEEKLY ALLOWANCE FOR CLOTHING AND SHOES

The maximum weekly allowance for clothing and shoes shall not exceed the following:

Size of Family	Maximum Weekly Allowance
1	$0.50
2	1.00
3	1.50
4	2.00
5	2.50
6	3.00

SCHEDULE IV

WEEKLY MAXIMUM HEATING FUEL ALLOWANCE

A: In Areas Using Anthracite Coal:

Heating fuel allowance shall be permitted in the budget only during the period of October 1st to May 1st, and shall not exceed the following:

1. Dwelling of 3 rooms* or less—value of ⅛ of ton of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.
2. Dwelling of 4 or 5 rooms* inclusive—value of 1/5 ton of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.
3. Dwelling of 6 rooms* or more—value of 1/4 ton of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.

B: In Areas Using Bituminous Coal or Fuel Other Than Anthracite Coal:

Heating fuel allowance shall be permitted in the budget only during the period of October 1st to May 1st," and shall not exceed the following:

1. Dwelling of 3 rooms* or less—value of 1/6 ton of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.
2. Dwelling of 4 to 5 rooms* inclusive—value of 1/4 ton of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.
3. Dwelling of 6 rooms* or more—value of 1/3 ton of coal of the quality and type ordinarily used in the community.

If heating is done by fuel than coal, the maximum allowance should not exceed that which would be allowed for coal as determined in the above schedule.

No additional allowance for cooking fuel should be made between October 1st and May 1st where the family uses the same fuel for heating and cooking purposes.

*Do not count bath-rooms, pantries, or unsued, unheated cellars and attic rooms.
Since these budget calculations are now being made for placement or work projects during the months when fuel is needed for heating, all fuel needs should be included in the budget calculations.

SCHEDULE V

WEEKLY MAXIMUM COOKING FUEL ALLOWANCE

The weekly maximum cooking fuel allowance shall not exceed the following:

$0.60 per week for a family of four persons or less.
$0.70 per week for a family of five to eight persons.
$0.85 per week for a family of nine persons or more.

The allowance for cooking fuel may be given in addition to the heating fuel allowance from October 1st to May 1st in cases where different types of fuel are used, i. e., wood or coal for heating, gas for cooking.

SCHEDULE VI

WEEKLY MAXIMUM SHELTER ALLOWANCE

Size of Family	Maximum Weekly Shelter — Unheated Unfurnished Living Quarters	If landlord furnished any of the following the weekly allowance for shelter may be increased not more than the following amounts. Each item included in the shelter allowance should be noted and explained opposite the appropriate item on the budget.				The total Weekly Maximum Shelter Allowance Shall Not Exceed
	(1)	(2)	(3) Heat	(4) Gas	(5) Light	(6) Furniture	(7)
1	$2.00	$0.35	$0.50	$0.20	$0.25	$3.30

9 or more	3.50	1.10	.85	.70	.85	6.25

* The inclusion of the same number of persons in two groups is to take care of variations in the family make-up in respect to adults and children.

SCHEDULE VII

WEEKLY MAXIMUM LIGHT ALLOWANCE

The maximum weekly allowance for light shall not exceed the following:

$0.30 per week for a family of three persons or less.
$0.60 per week for a family of four to eight persons.
$0.70 per week for a family of nine persons or more.

SCHEDULE VIII

MAXIMUM WEEKLY ALLOWANCE FOR INCIDENTALS

A maximum allowance of 5% of the amount of the total (Item 8 on the Budget Sheet) can be made for personal incidentals and household necessities not otherwise covered in the budget. This amount should then be adjusted to the nearest 5¢ unit.

SECTION B—USE OF STANDARD BUDGET PROCEDURE FOR DIRECT RELIEF GRANTS

The general procedure for preparing Standard Budget Sheets, as given in Section A, will be used as the foundation in calculating the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency for relief grants. The regulations regarding allowances for each specific item should be carefully reviewed and will apply in determining allowances for direct relief grants.

For purposes of clarity, the following definitions will be observed throughout this Procedure:—

1. Weekly Budget Needs.
   The sum of allowances for budget items based on Standard Budget Schedules.
2. Work Relief Budget Deficiency.
   The weekly budget needs less adjusted income.
3. Direct Relief Budget Deficiency.
   The weekly budget needs adjusted by S. E. R. B.-2V Tables.

GENERAL PROCEDURE

For cases already on relief, the figures on the Standard Budget Sheet in the Column headed, "Weekly Budget Needs" will be used as the base upon which the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency will be computed. In calculating the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency, the "Standard Budget withe Adjustment for Income" Tables, S. E. R. B.-2V, will be used.

The Direct Relief Budget Deficiency so determined will represent the maximum amount of direct relief which can be granted except for Rent Relief, as noted below. The total amount of the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency will be distributed over the various budget items, with the exception of shelter, but the actual grants to be authorized will be determined by the Local Relief Division in consultation with the family

For new cases, the Weekly Budget Needs will be worked out in consultation with the family following the "Procedure for Preparing the Standard Budget Sheets" combined with the "Standard Budget with Adjustment for Income" Tables. In making allowance for the various items which will be entered in the Column, "Weekly Budget Needs" of the Standard Budget Sheet, it will be remembered that items already taken care of through some other source, such as contributions from relatives, etc., will not be included. For example, if clothing is contributed, no entry will be made opposite Item No. 3, "Shoes and Clothing." The maximum amounts given in the budget schedules will be considered as maximum and allowances will in no instance exceed these figures. The amounts entered under "Weekly Budget Needs" will be the actual weekly sums which the family requires and the maximum allowance will not be used if the family does not need that sum. Any item which the family does not require will not be included. For example, if the family does not use different types of fuel for heating and cooking, no allowance will be made for cooking fuel. Electricity, gas and water, specified on the new Relief Authorization Notice, S. E. R. B.-22B, as "Public Utilities" will be allowed only when the family specifically requests them. The Local Relief Division will then explain that the grant will be made if the family desires it but that a reduction in some other allowance will be necessary since the total of all grants may not exceed the amount of the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency.

*If the family is receiving rent relief, no authorization should be made for water rent, unless the family pay the water rent directly to the Public Utility Company and this item is not included in the rent relief allowance.

In determining the amount of coal to be authorized, the Local Relief Division will inquire of the family how many weeks a ton of coal lasts under ordinary conditions. For example, if a ton of coal lasts for four weeks, ¼ of a ton will be the allowance for 1 week. The grant for fuel will then be figured in terms of monetary values on a weekly basis. When bituminous coal is used, if the cost per ton is $3.00, the weekly grant will be 75c. This figure is given only by way of example. The Division of Procurement and Distribution will prepare scales of prices for each Local Relief Division and these scales will be used in computing weekly fuel allowances. The amount of the coal allowance may not exceed the maximum allowance for coal on the budget schedule. However, if the family later requests that coal be given more frequently, an adjustment may be made in the budget by increasing the fuel grant and decreasing some other item in order to keep the total sum of grants within the amount of the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency.

While allowance is made in the Weekly Budget Needs for shelter, this allowance will be ignored in working out the relief plan within the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency figure. If rent is paid, the rent procedure will be adhered to in authorizing rent relief and a shelter grant may be allowed in addition to the grants which make up the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency. The total of direct relief grants may, however, in no case exceed the amount of the Work Relief Budget Deficiency. Therefore, in any instance in which the total sum of recurrent grants, plus the rent payment would exceed the amount of the Work Relief Budget Deficiency, it will be necessary to decrease some other grant. This will be explained to the family and the reduction made in the item decided upon by the family. If a rent grant is made, rent will be discontinued with other direct relief grants when the case is transferred to work relief.

Example of Budget Preparation for Direct Relief Grants

The method of determining grants may be illustrated by the following example:

A family on relief consists of 6 members—3 adults, 2 children, 2-12 inclusive, and 1 child under 2 years of age. The family occupies a five-room house in an anthracite community where coal costs $10.00 per ton. A portion of the family's clothing is contributed and the family estimates its weekly clothing needs as $2.00. Cooking and heating fuel are the same, so no allowance will be made for cooking fuel. However, the family requests that an allowance be made for light. If the weekly budget needs for this family are as given in the figures below, the items in the Column, "Weekly Budget Needs" on the Standard Budget Sheet will appear as follows:

Food	$7.00
Milk	1.40
Shoes and Clothing	2.00
Heating Fuel	2.00
Cooking Fuel	-
Shelter	3.15
Light	.60
Total	16.15
Incidentals	.80
Total Budget	16.95

One of the adult members of the family has part-time employment, earning $6.00 per week. This sum, which is the gross income figure, will first be adjusted in accordance with Section A, Page 4, Item 11, "Adjusted Income."

In this case we will assume that 50¢ is allowed for carfare, 60¢ for lunches, and that the employed person retains $2.00 per week, the 1/3 maximum allowance which need not be adjusted to the family budget. The adjusted income in this instance will therefore, be $6.00—$3.10, =$2.90.

Turning to Sheet No. 2 of the S. E. R. B.-2V Table, in the first Column, run down the line until the nearest corresponding Total Budget figure is found—$17.00. Follow this line across the income columns until the figure representing the income is reached: for this family—$2.50 to $2.90. It will be found that the sum which the family may be allowed in total weekly grants is $11.60. Within this amount, the Local Relief Division will work out with the family a relief plan for recurrent grants. Consideration will be given to the family preference in deciding the items and amounts to be allowed, with the understanding that the total sum of all grants, cannot exceed the amount of the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency, and no one authorization for a particular item may exceed the corresponding budget item. While taking into account the family preferences, the preferred sequence is—

a. Food.
b. Shoes and Clothing.
c. Milk.
d. Heating Fuel.
e. Cooking Fuel.
f. Public Utilities (Light, gas, water).

When the Local Relief Division has decided with the family upon the items and amounts of the grants, these amounts will be entered in the Column of the Standard Budget Sheet headed, "Direct Relief."

In the above example, the family is entitled to relief grants not to exceed $11.60. Preference may be made for clothing allowance, heating fuel, milk, light and a partial food grant. On this basis, the Local Relief Division will enter in the "Direct Relief" Column, $2.00 for Clothing, $1.40 for milk, $2.00 for heating fuel, 60¢ for light and $5.60 for food. The total of these grants equals the amount of the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency, $11.60.

If the above family has no income, the toal sum of the grants which could be allowed would be $13.60. This is determined by following the Column "Total Budget" in the "Standard Budget with Adjustment for Income" Table until the figure nearest the total budget needs is found, in this case, $17.00. The first Column to the right of this figure, where the income is less than $1.00, gives the required Direct Relief Budget Deficiency within which the grants may be made.

Preparing the Standard Budget Sheet for Authorization of Direct Relief Grants

In preparing the "Direct Relief" Column of the Standard Budget Sheet, the following points should be noted:

A grant for any Public Utility (electricity, gas, or water), will be entered in the "Direct Relief" Column opposite the Space No. 7, "Light," and the type of utility will be indicated. Each grant authorization will be entered in the proper space. The total of grants will be given opposite "8-Total," and the space "10-Total Budget," will be used for the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency, found by us of "Standard Budget with Adjustment for Income" Table. It will be noted that Item No. 8 may equal but may not exceed Item No. 10. The figures for the above example will appear in the "Direct Relief" Column of the Standard Budget Sheet as follows:—

	Item	Weekly Budget Needs	Direct Relief
1.	Food	$7.00	$5.60
2.	Milk	1.40	1.40
3.	Clothing and Shoes	2.00	2.00
4.	Heating Fuel	2.00	2.00
5.	Cooking Fuel	....	....
6.	Shelter	3.50	....
7.	Light	.60	.60
8.	Total	16.15	11.60
9.	Incidentals	.80	....
10.	Total Budget	16.95	11.60
11.	Adjusted Income	2.90	....
12.	Budget Deficiency	14.05	....

The Column, "Weekly Budget Needs" gives the figures used for work relief and the Column, "Direct Relief" shows the figures used as a basis for direct relief grants. Item No. 12 in the "Weekly Budget Needs" Column is the authorized Work Division payment, whereas, Item No. 10 in the Column, "Direct Relief," represents the maximum sum which may be authorized in direct relief grants.

When the Local Relief Division has entered the sums to be authorized in recurring grants in the Column "Direct Relief" of the Standard Budget Sheet, these amounts will be used in preparing the Relief Authorization Notice, SERB-22B.

When rent is granted, and the amount to be paid to the landlord has been determined by the Rent Department, the amount of the rent payment will be entered in the "Direct Relief" Column of the Standard Budget Sheet opposite Item No. 6, "Shelter." The entry is made in order that the relief grant may appear in full on the Standard Budget Sheet. Since this sum will not be included in the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency which is the maximum sum of recurrent grants exclusive of shelter, it should, therefore, be entered in red to indicate that it is not counted in the total sum of grants which go to make up the total Direct Relief Budget Deficiency. However, it must be remembered that the total of direct relief grants, including rent payment may not exceed the Work Relief Deficiency. If rent is paid, when the actual rent payment is reported by the Rent Department, the total grants, plus rent, will be reviewed and if it exceeds the Work Relief Budget Deficiency as given in the "Weekly Budget Needs" Column, (Item No. 12), it will be necessary to reduce some other grant.

Revised Grant Items

If a family receiving direct relief requests a grant for any item not included among the original grants, the Local Relief Division will explain that the grant may be made but that it will necessitate a decrease in some other grant, since the total grants may not exceed the Direct Relief Budget Deficiency. For instance, a family receiving food, clothing and fuel grants may wish to have a grant for light. If the sum authorized for this item is 60¢, a corresponding decrease will be made in the food or the clothing grants.

Insofar as clerical service will permit, the Visitor should be relieved of the mechanical operation of preparing the Relief Authorization Notice. His initials in the Column "Direct Relief" of the Standard Budget Sheet, with the initials of the Supervisor will constitute the Visitor's authorization and the Supervisor's approval, from which the Relief Authorization Notice will be prepared and signed by the Supervisor.

The "Budget Clerk"

As a check upon accuracy and adherence to the regulations governing budget allowances, the Supervisor in each District will appoint one person to be known as the "Budget Clerk." The Budget Clerk has two responsibilities:—

a. As each budget sheet is completed or revised by the Visitor, the Budget Clerk will review the calculations in light of the material entered on both sides of the budget sheet. If she is in agreement, she initials the sheet and turns it over to the Supervisor, for her signature. If she is in disagreement, she clips a note of explanation to the sheet and submits it to the Supervisor. If the correction is in the addition or multiplication, the change is indicated in red pencil.

b. At the time relief authorizations are checked against the relief file for duplications, the Budget Clerk will check the relief authorization against the budget sheet to determine that all specific direct relief grants are provided for in the budget schedule.

Give each child under three years two teaspoonsful of cod liver oil during the fall, winter and spring.

Give cod liver oil to older children if your doctor advises it.

Give each child under two years orange or tomato juice in such amounts as your doctor advises. At least 1 to 2 tablespoonsful daily is desirable. Older children and adults also need oranges or tomatoes.

ONE DISH MEALS

Why?

To save fuel. The whole meal can be cooked over one burner or in the oven with other foods.

To save time and strength. Only one pot needs to be watched and later washed.

To extend the satisfying flavors of more expensive foods. A small amount of meat, fish, eggs or cheese combined with cheaper foods makes the desired flavor go further.

To use left overs. One dish meals give a new appearance and flavor to left overs.

BEAN STEW

1½ cups dried beans	2 small onions cut finely
½ cup rice	2 cups canned tomatoes
4 tablespoons of fat or ¼ lb. salt pork	Salt

Wash beans thoroughly. Soak overnight in cold water. In the morning add 2 to 3 cups of water and cook slowly until beans are soft. Brown the onion in fat. Add onions, tomatoes, rice and salt to beans. Coko slowly until rice is very soft. Add water if necessary. 5 to 6 servings.

MEAT PIE

2 cups cooked meat	6 cooked potatoes
3 small onions	1 cup tomatoes
2 cups left over vegetable water, meat gravy or stock	2 tablespoons fat
	2 tablespoons flour
	Salt

Cut meat, potatoes and onion in small pieces. Melt fat, add flour and slowly add meat stock, left over gravy or vegetable water. Heat and add meat, onion and potatoes. Pour into a greased baking dish. Cover top with biscuit dough or extra mashed potatoes. Bake in moderate oven for 20 to 30 minutes. 5 to 6 servings.

MINESTRONE

2 cups pea beans	½ can tomatoes
1 large carrot	1 cup chopped parsley or celery tops
½ head cabbage
6 stalks celery	2 slices salt pork or beef suet
1 large onion	1 cup macaroni cooked

Wash beans thoroughly. Soak overnight. In the morning add enough water to make 6 quarts. Cut pork into pieces. Cook slowly with onion until slightly brown. Add to beans. Cook slowly until soft. Add macaroni and other vegetables. Let cook 15 minutes longer. Season to taste. About 10 servings.

BOILED DINNER

1 lb. salt pork, ham hocks or butts	1 head cabbage
	6 to 8 cups boiling water
12 potatoes

Cut salt pork in slices and cook slowly in boiling salted water in a large kettle. Ham hocks or pig's feet may be used in place of pork. Have butcher cut them in small pieces. Cook slowly for 1 to 1½ hours. Peel potatoes. Add to pork or ham. Cook until tender. Remove potatoes and meat to a bowl. Cut cabbage in small pieces and add to water. Cook quickly for 10 minutes. Return potatoes and meat to kettle. Let stand for 15 to 20 minutes to flavor well. Season. 5 to 6 servings.

EGGS AND TOMATOES

4 hard cooked eggs	2 tablespoons fat or cooking oil
¼ lb. spaghetti
1 small onion chopped	2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt	1 can tomatoes (No. 2 can)

Cook spaghetti in boiling. salted water until tender. Drain. Brown onion in fat for a few minutes. Add flour, stirring well to keep it smooth. Add tomatoes, heat and stir until thickened. Pour over spaghetti. Add sliced hard cooked eggs and mix well. 5 o 6 servings.

CHEESE MUSH

2 cups corn meal	3 teaspoons salt
2 cups cold water	¼ to ½ lb. sharp cheese
2 to 3 cups of boiling water	4 tablespoons fat for frying

Stir cold water into corn meal. Add boiling water, salt and cook in a double boiler for about 1 hour. Add cheese finely cut. Stir until it melts. Pour into dampened pan. Let stand in a cold place until firm. Cut in slices about ½ inch thick. Brown slowly on both sides in fat. Serve at once. 5 servings.

The Less Money One Has to Spend the More Important Milk Becomes

Why?

Milk protects health in more ways than any other single food

Milk is especially needed for growth

Milk helps to build bones, teeth and muscles

Milk gives the best food value for the money spent

How Much?

1 quart daily for children two years and younger

1 pint to 1 quart daily for each child over two years

I quart daily for expectant and nursing mothers

1 pint daily for each adult

How?

Fresh Milk, Butter Milk, Evaporated Milk, Dried Milk Powder may be used as Plain Milk, Milk Drinks, Milk Soups, Creamed Dishes, Milk Desserts.

Keep milk cool, clean and covered. Wash the top of the bottle or can before pouring milk.

EVAPORATED MILK

Evaporated milk is fresh milk with about half of the water removed. That is why the directions on every can tell you to fill the can with water and add to it the evaporated milk. One can of evaporated milk has about the same food value as one quart of fresh milk.

These dairy products are about equal in food value:

1 quart fresh whole milk

1 tall can evaporated milk (14½ ounces)

1 quart skim milk plus 1½ ounces butter

5 ounces American cheese

4½ ounces dried whole milk

3½ ounces dried skim milk plus 1½ ounces butter

COCOA PASTE

1 cup cocoa	1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar	3 to 4 cups water

Mix cocoa, sugar and salt thoroughly in upper part of double boiler. Add water. Stir well. Cook for 10 minutes directly over fire, stirring constantly. Cook for 10 to 20 minutes longer over hot water. Pour paste into a bowl or small glass jar. Cool and cover.

Cooking a large quantity of cocoa paste saves time, fuel and makes cocoa more tasty and more digestible.

COCOA

Measure the amount of milk needed for your family. Add 1 scant tablespoon cocoa paste for each cup of milk. Stir well. Heat slowly; over hot water is best. Do not boil. Beat in the skin that forms on top of cocoa with fork or egg beater. Serve hot.

COCOA MILK SHAKE

Make same as cocoa but do not heat. Shake well. Flavor with vanilla if desired. Serve cold.

CHEESE FONDUE

2 cups bread crumbs	2 cups milk
1 cup grated cheese	½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs

Mix crumbs, cheese and salt. Beat eggs. Add milk. Mix well with crumbs. Pour in a greased baking dish. Cook in a moderate oven until firm. 5 to 6 servings.

CREAM OF SPLIT PEA SOUP

1 cup dried peas	1½ cups water
1 onion finely cut	3 tablespoons fat
1½ cups evaporated milk	Salt

Wash peas thoroughly and soak over night. Cook in same water with onion until soft. Mash peas or rub through a strainer. Add milk, water and fat. Stirr well Season. Dried beans or left over baked beans may be used instead of peas. 5 to 6 servings. Some people prefer salt pork or a ham bone for pea soup. If either is used omit other fat.

RICE PUDDING

1/3 cup rice	1 quart milk
1/3 cup sugar	½ teaspoon salt

Pick over rice. Wash thoroughly. Mix rice, sugar, salt and fresh or diluted evaporated milk. Cook in a double boiler or bake in a greased dish in moderate oven stirring occasionally until thick.

Raisins may be added during cooking. Left over fruit may be added just before serving. 5 to 6 servings.

MEAT AND FISH

Meat and fish are generally expensive foods so must be used sparingly in low cost diets. Cheap cuts of meat and cheap kinds of fish have food values similar to expensive ones.

Why?

Meat and Fish Help To
- Build strong muscles
- Build red blood
- Build bones and teeth
- Give energy and strength
- Satisfy our appetites

Use liver once a week for its special blood building value.

Pork, lamb and beef liver are as valuable as calves' liver.

The Cheapest Kinds of Fish

Dried herring, dried codfish, salt mackerel and canned pink salmon are especially good for families who cannot easily get to market.

Flounder, haddock and cod are tasty and inexpensive fresh fish.

Use Fish Once a Week for Variety.

To Make Every Penny Count

Extend meat flavor by combining small amounts with cereals, potatoes and other vegetables in stews, creamed or baked dishes.

Plan to cook enough at one time for more than one meal.

Save meat bones and trimmings for soups, stews and gravies.

Save fish heads, bones and trimmings for chowder.

Serve the oil in canned fish with the fish.

Take advantage of "specials" and sales.

BEEF OR LAMB STEW

2 lbs. beef or lamb (stewing cuts)	6 carrots
6 to 8 potatoes	1 teaspoon salt
4 onions	4 tablespoons flour

Cut meat into small pieces. Put in kettle over hot fire. Brown well. Cover with boiling water and cook slowly for 1 to 2 hours. Add potatoes, onions and carrots, peeled and cut into small pieces. Cook slowly until meat and vegetables are done. Thicken with flour. Season. Cook 5 minutes longer. 5 to 6 servings.

BAKED STUFFED HEART

1 beef heart
2 tablespoons fat
1 to 2 chopped onions
½ cup water
3 cups bread crumbs or cooked rice
½ teaspoon salt

Wash heart. Remove veins and gristle. Cook onion slowly in melted fat for 5 minutes. Add bread crumbs, salt and water. Make an opening in the side of the heart. Sprinkle well with salt and pepper. Fill with the stuffing; sew. Brown in hot fat. Place in a baking dish. Add 1 cup of hot water. Cover the dish and cook in moderate oven until tender—about 2 hours. Thicken with flour. 5 to 6 servings.

For families who use a coal range this dish offers variety in meat at low cost.

SCALLOPED LIVER AND POTATOES

1 lb. lamb, beef or pork liver
Salt
Flour
2 tablespoons fat
4 cups sliced potatoes
2 onions, finely chopped
¾ cup evaporated milk mixed with ¾ cup water

Sprinkle liver with salt and flour. Cook in fat until brown. Cut liver in small pieces. Place a layer of raw potatoes in a greased baking dish. Sprinkle with salt. Add a layer of liver and onion, then a layer of potatoes. Do this until all is used. The top layer should be potatoes. Add milk; cover. Bake in a moderate oven until potatoes are tender. Take cover off and brown potatoes. 5 to 6 servings.

FISH CHOWDER

1 lb. haddock, cod or salt herring cut in small pieces
5 to 6 potatoes
6 cups boiling water
1 to 2 onions finely chopped
1 to 2 slices of salt pork or 3 tablespoons fat
2 cups fresh or evaporated milk
Salt

Cut pork in small pieces. Brown in a pan with onions. Peel potatoes; cook in boiling water until partly soft. Add browned pork, onions and fish. Cook until potatoes and fish are soft. Add milk and seasonings. If desired, thicken slightly with flour. Serve hot. 5 to 6 servings.

DESSERTS AND SWEETS

Why?

To make meals more attractive
To satisfy our natural craving for sweets
To give a different flavor to left overs and inexpensive foods
To give energy and to help keep the body warm

When?

At the end of a meal—AT NO OTHER TIME!

KINDS OF DESSERTS

Fruit in Various Ways
Milk and Cereal Puddings
Gelatine Desserts
Cookies, Cakes and Pies
Molasses and other sweets

Fruits are one of the best desserts. Use plain raw fruits often for adults and older children. Always wash raw fruits carefully before eating.

Stewed fruits such as prunes, apricots, apples or peaches are a cheap dessert, they are more easily digested than raw fruit and are of special importance for children under four years.

Home canned fruits and fruit butters add pleasing variety. Commercially canned fruits are usually too expensive to buy.

INEXPENSIVE EASILY PREPARED MILK AND CEREAL PUDDINGS

Rice Pudding with raisins
Oatmeal or Whole Wheat Pudding
Tapioca Custard Pudding
Apple or Peach Tapioca Pudding
Bread Pudding
Cornmeal Pudding
Junket
Baked or Soft Custard
Cocoa Cornstarch Pudding
Butterscotch Pudding

Gelatine Desserts are lower in food value than fruit and milk desserts and are more expensive.

COOKIES, CAKES AND PIES

Homemade molasses, oatmeal and sugar cookies are much cheaper than those bought at the store. Plain cakes such as gingerbread, molasses or spice cake may be made inexpensively at home. Pies and layer cakes with sugar icing are more expensive.

MOLASSES AND OTHER SWEETS

Molasses is one of the cheapest and most nourishing sweets. Used on bread or toast it makes a good dessert occasionally. Molasses may also be used in place of sugar in making desserts. Corn syrup has less food value than molasses.

Maple syrup and honey are healthful, but too expensive if bought at the average store.

Homemade candy may be used as a dessert occasionally.

STEWED DRIED FRUIT

Wash dried fruit thoroughly in several waters. Soak 8 to 10 hours in fresh, clean water. Cook 10 minutes in the same water in which fruit has soaked. Many stewed fruits need no sugar. If it is used, add in the last few minutes of cooking. About half the usual quantity is then necessary to obtain the desired sweetness. One lb. of dried fruits usually gives 10 to 12 servings.

MIXED FRUIT

2 raw apples
1 orange or ¼ cup seeded raisins
1 or 2 bananas thoroughly ripened

Wash the apples thoroughly. Do not peel Cut in small pieces. Cut bananas, orange or raisins into small pieces and mix with apples If raisins are used, no sugar will be necessary 5 servings.

Any of these fruits may be combined with stewed, canned, or other fresh fruits.

WHOLE WHEAT PUDDING

2 cups hot milk
2 cups cooked whole wheat
¾ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup seeded raisins
1 egg
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix milk, wheat, salt and sugar. Add raisins, meaten egg and vanilla. Pour into baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven about 30 minutes. Chill before serving. 5 servings.

Evaporated milk may replace fresh milk. 2 cups of cooked oatmeal or cornmeal may be used in place of whole wheat.

COCOA CORNSTARCH PUDDING

1 qt. milk
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons cornstarch
4 tablespoons cocoa

Heat three cups of milk in upper part of double boiler. Mix sugar, salt, cooca and cornstarch. Dissolve in remaining cup of milk. Add slowly to hot milk, stirring constantly until it thickens. Cover and let stand for five minutes without stirring. Add a few drops of vanilla if desired. Cool and serve with milk. 5 to 10 servings.

GINGERBREAD

1 cup molasses	1 teaspoon ginger
3 tablespoons fat	1 teaspoon soda
½ cup boiling water	2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt

Mix and sift flour, salt, soda and ginger. Mix molasses, fat and boiling water. Add to flour mixture and beat well. Pour into a greased pan. Bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven. 5 to 10 servings.

MOLASSES COOKIES

1½ cups molasses	1 teaspoon ginger
1 cup white sugar	1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup hot water	2 teaspoons soda
1 cup fat or oil	1 teaspoon salt
1 egg	Flour to make a soft dough

Beat egg. Add sugar, melted fat, molasses and water. Mix well. Mix all the dry ingredients thoroughly with 2 cups of flour. Add to the molasses mixture with enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Drop dough from a spoon on a greased baking pan. Cookies should be 1½ inches apart. Bake in a moderate oven.

BREAD AND CEREALS

Why?

Bread and Cereals
- Are among the cheapest foods
- Are very filling
- Give us strength for work and play
- Help to keep the body warm

How Often?

Bread at each meal

Cereal at each breakfast

Rice, macaroni or cornmeal at the noon or evening meal at least two to three times a week when food money is limited.

Dark cereals are made from the whole grain White or refined cereals have had the outside coverings of the grain taken off When these are left on the cereal is more nourishing.

EAT SOME WHOLE GRAIN BREAD OR CEREAL EACH DAY

How to Make Every Penny Count

Buy dry uncooked cereals as oatmeal, cornmeal, hominy, rice, whole or cracked wheat Cereals grown and ground locally are usually cheapest.

Prepared or ready-to-eat cereals are expensive. They cost 2 to 5 times as much as uncooked kinds.

Buy loose rather than packaged cereals.

Buy in quantity when there is a saving—2 lbs. cornmeal for 9 cents.

Buy some brown or whole grain cereals such as oatmeal and cracked wheat. The dark cereals give more health protection.

Soak cereals needing long cooking over night This shortens the cooking time.

Cook enough cereal at one time for two days.

Use left over cereal for puddings, soups and baked dishes.

Buy day old bread.

Buy some whole wheat or whole rye bread. Dark breads like dark cereals give more health protection.

Use stale bread for toast, crumbs and puddings.

Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Mix sugar and fat thoroughly. Add well beaten egg. Add flour alternately with milk until all are added. Add oatmeal and raisins. Stir well Drop from a spoon on a greased pan. Bake in a moderate oven 12 to 15 minutes. 20 to 30 cookies.

CEREAL RECIPES

To help your family enjoy cereals make them tasty. Some people like cereal thin—others prefer it cooked thick. Try different amounts of water and salt, longer or shorter cooking, until the most desirable consistency and flavor is obtained.

CRACKED WHEAT

2 cups cracked wheat 4 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon salt

Stir cracked whole wheat into boiling salted water slowly, stirring until well mixed. Cook slowly over direct flame for 20 to 30 minutes. Stir occasionally. 5 to 6 servings.

Oatmeal, cornmeal and other cereals are cooked in the same way. Use 2 to 3 cups of water for one cup of oatmeal and 4 to 6 cups of water for one cup of cornmeal, hominy and farina.

For variety, cereals may be cooked with any dried fruit. Add fruit after the first 10 minutes of cooking or after the cereals have become thick.

SPANISH RICE

1 cup rice	1 cup cooked meat
4 to 6 cups water	1 cup canned tomatoes
1½ teaspoons salt	1 tablespoon fat
1 onion, finely chopped

Wash rice. Cook in boiling salted water until nearly soft. Brown onion in fat. Add meat, finely ground and cook for 5 minutes. Mix with rice and tomatoes. Cook until thick. 5 to 6 servings.

Ground raw beef may be used instead of cooked meat. Cook longer if raw meat is used. Meat may be omitted from the recipe and 2 tablespoons more fat used for flavor.

SCOTCH SOUP

6 cups water	2 tablespoons fat
1½ cups oatmeal	2 finely chopped onions
1 teaspoon salt	1 cup chopped celery

Add oatmeal slowly to boiling salted water. Cook for 30 minutes. Cook onion and celery slowly until slightly brown. Add to oatmeal. Add milk. Cook slowly for 30 minutes over hot water. 5 to 6 servings.

Celery tops may be used instead of the celery stalk.

APPLE BETTY

1 quart of sliced apples
2 to 3 cups bread crumbs, dry or toasted
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup boiling water
2 tablespoons butter or other fat

Mix sugar, salt and cinnamon Pour over apples and stir until well mixed. Grease a baking dish and put a layer of bread crumbs in the bottom. Cover with a layer of flavored apples. Continue with alternate layers of crumbs and apples until all are used. Dot top with butter. Add water and cover. Bake in a moderately hot oven for 30 minutes Remove cover and allow top to brown. Serve plain or with milk. 5 to 6 servings.

VEGETABLES

A VARIETY OF VEGETABLES IS VITAL TO HEALTH

Why?

Vegetables Help to
- Build good blood, strong bones and teeth
- Prevent constipation
- Give energy and strength

How Many?

Potatoes every day
Green leafy vegetables at least three times a week
Tomatoes three to four times a week
Dried beans or peas one to three times a week
Root or other vegetables daily, if possible

HOW TO MAKE EVERY PENNY COUNT IN BUYING

Buy vegetables in season. Buy the cheapest kinds.

Buy at the store or market where you get the best prices.

Buy in quantity when there is a saving; as potatoes by the peck or bushel Keep in a cool dry place.

Buy perishable vegetables only in quantities for immediate use

Take advantage of "specials" and sales.

Buy canned tomatoes of standard grade. Fancy and choice grades of all vegetables are expensive.

Buy old vegetables when the new crop is expensive.

IF YOU HAVE GARDEN SPACE GROW YOUR OWN VEGETABLES

You can grow seasonings like parsley or chives in window boxes.

HOW TO MAKE EVERY PENNY COUNT IN COOKING

Cook fresh vegetables in a small amount of boiling water Cook only until tender—no longer. Cooking too long destroys much health value.

Bake or steam vegetables whenever possible.

Cook as many vegetables as possible in their skins.

To help save food value of vegetables never add soda to the cooking water.

Save water in which vegetables have been cooked or canned for soups and gravies.

Heat canned tomatoes only long enough to become hot. Long cooking destroys part of the food value.

Wash all dried vegetables very thoroughly before soaking. Soak 10 to 12 hours. Cook in same water to save flavor and nourishment.

Save and use tender leaves of vegetables, such as beet and turnip tops.

Save left over vegetables for soups, salads, stews and baked dishes.

Cabbage, escarolle, dandelions, carrots and turnips are more healthful for adults and older children if eaten raw. Both food value and fuel are saved when such vegetables are served raw.

Prepared by Nutrition Advisory Committee
State Emergency Relief Board
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

REPORT OF COMMITTEE INVESTIGATING RELIEF IN ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PURSUANT TO HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 44

To the Honorable, the Members of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

The undersigned, your Committee appointed to investigate the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, and the Relief situation in said County, respectfully report as follows:

Your Committee held eight days of public hearings in the rooms of the Allegheny County Bar Association, and in addition its members made personal inspections and investigations, and received hundreds of statements and complaints, oral and written, from groups and individuals desiring to present their views, and whom the limited time available in view of the necessity of reporting as early as possible did not permit the Committee to give formal public hearings.

Remarkable Agreement on Essential Facts

The investigation, as was to be expected, brought forth a mass of charges and counter-charges, apparently believed by those making them to be in hopeless conflict. Actually, when the testimony is sifted and analyzed, and the actual facts testified to by the many witnesses are taken, as distinguished from the conclusions which they drew from the facts appearing to them from their divergent viewpoints, the agreement of all sides upon the important facts is truly remarkable. There may be legitimate difference of opinion as to the conclusions to be drawn, and the remedies to be adopted. There is no room for difference of opinion as to the basic conditions existing, and the need for correction.

Statutory Organization

Relief in Pennsylvania is carried on under the State Emergency Relief Board, consisting of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Auditor General, State Treasurer, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, under the Act of August 19, 1932. P. L. 88. Said Board is hereinafter referred to as the S. E. R. B. Under said statute, the Board has extremely wide and undefined powers. The Act was necessarily framed in that manner, as the emergency was great, and the problem undefined. The Board is authorized and required to adopt plans for the expenditure of State and Federal funds, involving equitable allocation of funds among the counties, taking into consideration need, funds locally available, etc.; nature and character of contemplated public works; the method and manner of distributing direct relief, and the public and private agencies through which relief shall be distributed in the various counties, and the manner in which private agencies shall be organized in counties where the same is deemed necessary; and, coordination of State and Federal funds available, so that the best results may be obtained, and duplication avoided, and the available funds from all sources made to extend over the longest possible period of time. The Board is specifically empowered to revise the program from time to time, as experience shows the necessity for the same.

It is thus at once apparent that some experimentation was and is necessary. The statute is broad enough to permit of almost any readjustments. It may be that future legislation will be required, in order to compel permanency of the best feasible program. At the present time it is felt that the new S. E. R. B., in view of the mistakes of the previous Board, and the lessons to be learned therefrom, should be permitted to retain this flexibility of the statute, and to institute changes which this investigation has shown to be necessary, and future changes as infrequently as possible, but as required by changing conditions or newly apparent difficulties, without detailed mandatory legislation unless the advice and investigations of the Legislature should be so far ignored as to require such legislation.

Scope of Report

In this Report, references to the S. E. R. B., and to the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, hereinafter called A. C. E. R. B., are necessarily almost exclusively to the old Board, as the new Boards had hardly had opportunity to function during the period covered by this investigation.

In the criticisms contained in this Report, your Committee is not to be understood as impugning either honesty, motives, or intelligence, unless otherwise stated. The inauguration of an entirely new method of meeting a new and entirely emergency problem necessarily involved adoption of the time-honored method of trial and error. Undoubtedly, there was an abundance of both trial and error. While the errors were doubtless largely necessary in such an enormous period of necessary experimentation, they should now be recognized and avoided, for the future, in order that advantage may be taken of the lessons which they teach.

County Board Powerless

The A. C. E. R. B. is a body appointed by the Governor, with the approval of the S. E. R. B. In the public mind, it is responsible for most of the unfortunate conditions existing. It has powers of recommendation only, and while its recommendations may, and doubtless do carry weight with the S. E. R. B., it actually has no powers of its own. In the opinion of the Committee it should be given broad powers and responsibilities.

Procedure

The S. E. R. B. has issued an enormous mass of detailed directions for the performance of every possible function, known as "Procedures." These Procedures have the force of law, as applied to those operating under them. While it is doubtless necessary that each public employe involved in the expenditure of taxpayers' money should be thoroughly familiar with his duties, and generally familiar with the duties of those around him in the organization, the very mass of these Procedures, supplied from Harrisburg for the entire State, has unquestionably caused bewilderment among employes from top to bottom, caused delays in familiarizing employes with complicated red tape and consequent delays in necessary distribution of relief to those in need of it, and caused widespread, if unintentional, violations of rights plainly afforded by these regulations. In the opinion of the Committee, while some fundamental central from Harrisburg is doubtless necessary, especially under present legislation, the vast majority of details contained in these procedures should vary with local County conditions and requirements, and be made locally by local County Relief Boards, to fit local conditions.

Disjointed Organization

In Allegheny County there are five separate and distinct bodies responsible for certain elements of the distribution of relief funds. They have no connection with each other. The proper and efficient handling of relief problems and of the relief load demands that they be under one head, and properly coordinated under that head, who should be responsible directly to the A. C. E. R. B. The popular impression is that such a head exists in the person of Mr. George P. Mills, Executive Director of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board. He was appointed by the S. E. R. B. on recommendation of the A. C. E. R. B. Mr. Mills has possibly ten per cent of the power and authority popularly attributed to him. The A. C. E. R. B. has none. The situation is very serious, as both Mr. Mills and the A. C. E. R. B. are constantly the target of vast quantities of complaints from organized and unorganized recipients of relief, and from claimants of different kinds, and from citizens who believe funds are being wasted or misapplied. The vast majority of these complaints are made in good faith, and are entirely proper from the point of view of the parties making them. On the other hand, the vast majority of the complaints are of applications of new rulings from Harrisburg or Washington, for which neither Mr. Mills or the Board can be responsible, including bewildering changes in the character of relief available, at the moment, and of delays and misunderstandings between the various entirely separate departments, over none of which he has any control. Popular unrest is fomented by what appears to be indifference on the part of Mr. Mills and the A. C. E. R. B., and at the same time his own efficiency in the operation of his own department is cut down, through constant bombardment of conflicting protestations as to matters undoubtedly inequitable, but over most of which he has no semblance of control.

Relief Division

The actual function of Mr. Mills is directing the "Relief Division," whose function is solely determination and certification of eligibility for whatever kind of relief chances, at the moment, to be available. In the past this has included commodity relief (orders for food, clothing, coal, etc.). The past few months it has been confined to cash relief, i. e. one weekly check, supposedly calculated on a basis to permit the recipient to buy these necessaries for himself, and which he spends as seems good in his own eyes. Under this Relief Division have operated about 750 "investigators" or "workers," whose duties are to ascertain original and continuing eligibility of applicants for relief They operate from district offices, under district supervisors. There are four field supervisors, and the entire staff is under Miss Noll Scott, head supervisor, who is responsible to Mr. Mills. There are likewise about an equal number of office employes.

Financial Division

An entirely distinct division is the "Financial Division." It has no connection with the Relief Division, and is under charge of an unbonded "Acting Controller," responsible only to Harrisburg. The Committee was advised that if there ever were a "Controller," he would be required to be bonded, but that an "Acting Controller" need not be. This department employing nearly 400 people, prepares the checks for direct relief, payroll, and work relief. The organization is so separate that, with knowledge that a man should not be getting relief, it is bound to go on paying him until receipt of the form required by the S. E. R. B. from the Works Division, which it may request or suggest, but may only request or suggest. Under previous forms of commodity relief it paid the invoices for commodities furnished upon orders from the relief department. When the checks are prepared, they are sent to the disbursing office, which is charged with the duty of seeing that they are mailed to the recipients on time.

Disbursing Office

The Disbursing Office is again entirely separate from the other divisions, and responsible only to the Chief Disbursing Officer, in Harrisburg.

Works Division

Another entirely separate division is the Works Division. Its function is operation of the various projects for which work relief is given. When the various city, county, or other governmental units desiring a project have planned it, they report it to the Works Division, which checks the plans and requirements, and, when approved by it, certifies the plan to Harrisburg for final approval. On receiving this final approval, it again communicates with the originator, arranges for the time of starting, and proceeds to obtain the required number of men, of the various classifications required. With their selection, it has nothing to do. It merely certifies the number to still another body, entirely distinct from all those mentioned, known as the State-Federal Employment Bureau. It receives, through that Bureau, relief cases if possible, and otherwise non-relief, classified according to the requirements for number and kinds of laborers certified by the Works Division. It reports their working, on appropriate forms, from which the Financial Division is supposed to make change from Direct Relief to Works payroll on the project, and the Relief Division to note that the man is working. When the employment is ended for the individual, a corresponding form notice from the Works Division is supposed to be returned to the Relief and Financial Divisions, who again transfer the individual to direct relief.

State Federal Employment Bureau

The State-Federal Employment Bureau keeps classified lists of persons qualified for various kinds of employment, and when Work Relief employment upon a project is available, upon certification from the Works Division, selects from the cards in its files the number and kind of men required, and notifies them to appear for work on the project. Instances of entirely unqualified men being sent are frequently reported Most of them are doubtless due to improper classification, which may in turn be due to the individual claiming qualifications which he does not possess, in the hope of obtaining work of some sort, to mistakes in making up the cards or in selecting from the wrong list, or to inefficient and improper listing. In large part, the listings are made up from reports turned in by investigators of the Relief Division in reporting the case as a relief case. Neither the Relief Division nor the Works Division has any choice in the individuals assigned to work relief, which is determined entirely in the Employment Bureau. The latter is supposed to furnish relief cases, when possible, and otherwise to certify that it is sending non-relief cases, when relief cases properly qualified are not available. The Committee has found numerous rumors that the State-Federal Employment Bureau was politically dominated, and that dictation from one political group largely controlled the particular individual to be selected when Work Relief was available. In its investigations of these rumors, the Committee and its counsel found absolutely no evidence worthy to be introduced in support of these rumors. Where a few men must necessarily be selected for work, from a long list equally qualified, the necessary discrimination quite possibly seems to the qualified and disappointed applicants like improper discrimination. One difficulty is that in Work Relief projects, only the lowest paid labor is required to be selected from relief rolls, if available, whereas superintendents, time keepers, and foremen are not. Instances where inefficient men are selected for such positions on Work Relief projects, while relief roll men either are kept idle or given the lower paid positions reserved for them, although believing themselves better qualified for these non-relief positions than some of those assigned to them, have given rise to charges of favoritism and of political dictation. It is suggested that the mass of relief roll material contains enough men of comparatively high quality to permit of a requirement to be filled from relief rolls where possible, and that more study be given to correct classification of candidates for employment. At present, the Bureau is not equipped to make proper investigations, and the reports from workers in the Relif Division, upon which it is forced largely to rely, are somewhat incidental, and made by persons not necessarily equipped for determination of trade skill and aptitude.

Budget Deficiency

The amount of relief for the individual or the family is based upon a complicated and theoretical thing known as "Budget Deficiency,"—theoretically necessary, and doubtless practically necessary in some form, but a source of much mystery and misunderstanding, as well as of much injustice, mass and individual. Upon a prescribed and exact schedule the investigator calculates for each individual or family applicant for relief a theoretical minimum requirement weekly to cover food, light, fuel, clothes, rent, etc., with a definite amount allocated to each item, plus 5% for incidentals. He receives the amount in a lump sum weekly check. In arriving at the sum, any income he may have is deducted, and any items such as rent which he may be in position to receive are deducted. In addition, unless he be on work relief, 20% is deducted from the theoretical minimum required for subsistence. Here, immediately, is a source of constant irritation, in telling the recipient that he is to receive 20% less than enough to live on, if the A. C. E. R. B., through no fault of his own, is unable to provide him with work relief. The purpose, laudable enough, is to make work relief attractive enough to provide an incentive. The psychological effect, from the phraseology of the system, is to outrage most recipients of relief, by proclaiming a purpose to give deserving cases a carefully calculated penalty of 20% of their needs through no fault of their own. A large proportion of the protests of the relief recipients may be traced to this source. It is entirely unnecessary, since the "Budget Deficiency" is a purely theoretical figure, based upon theoretical needs of a theoretically situated family, and under a cash relief system of varying retail prices can never be any more than a rough approximation. Assuming that no more money can be available for relief, and that it must be distributed in exactly the existing proportions, much unnecessary complaint could be eliminated by rephrasing to indicate a reward for work, rather than a penalty for misfortune in not being able to obtain work through the Board. The "Budget Deficiency" is a maximum, which the investigator may reduce in awarding relief, in his or her discretion, but may not exceed. This gives rise to apparent discriminations in relief awarded in apparently identical circumstances. Certainly, in the mind of the investigator, there is reason for the differences, and it may be good reason. Or it may be bona fide difference in the impression made by identical circumstances upon two different individual investigators. It is, nevertheless, of course a source of complaints and of accusations of discrimination. There has been, in some districts at least, a reluctance to indicate to the recipients how their weekly allowance is calculated. All they are permitted to know is that they are entitled to a certain sum. For good or bad reasons, they may legitimately feel themselves entitled to more. Without the facts on which the official calculation has been made, they are in position only to make outraged but unintelligent protest. At very slight expense, the first check could be accompanied by a printed form, saying, in substance: "Your weekly check is calculated upon the following basis: Food, $3.50, rent, $2.50, etc. (with detail). We are not dictating how you shall spend it, but are indicating how it is calculated, as a suggested method of budgeting, and in order that you may suggest corrections, if it is improper, or if your situation changes." Likewise printed thereon could be the regulations under which the calculation is made, so that the recipient may know whether his dissatisfaction, if any, is with individual estimate of his situation, or with the general system, which would require vastly different methods of redress. Knowledge of these facts would eliminate much necessarily blind protest, and complaint directed at the wrong sources, and would enable analysis of complaints, and their correction, to be much more easily made.

Chaotic Fluctuation

A source of much difficulty, and the basis of many complaints, has been the constantly changing systems under which relief has operated. Certain kinds of relief may be allowable one week, and not the next, and later restored. Individual relief claimants may thus receive entirely different treatment, under identical circumstances, merely because of slight differences in the time their cases are brought up. A general public conviction that there has been gross discrimination naturally results, especially if because of press of business or because of false assumption that the rulings are known, the worker fails to explain the change. Even in the majority of such cases, where the change has been due to orders from Harrisburg or from Washington, there is a natural tendency on the part of organized and unorganized relief recipients to blame the apparent discrimination upon the individual worker, even in the face of attempted explanations to the contrary. Not only from the point of view of relief recipients, but likewise from that of efficiency of operation of the relief organization, the rapid and confusing changes of policy and system have been most disastrous. Frequently it has been impossible to tell for more than a week in advance what would be available, or the plan of distribution, and much complaint of broken promises has been due to changes in policy, as unexpected to the local relief officers as to the recipients, which have caused much dissatisfaction due to placing the local relief officers in the position of breaking promises made in good faith. Such changes of policy have doubtless, in the main, been necessary, both in the search for the best method, and in view of uncertainties as to funds and supplies available, but they are unquestionably causes of much dissatisfaction, complaint and inefficiency, and should be avoided as much as possible.

Local Control Vital

The necessity for less State control, and more local control, cannot be overemphasized. The S. E. R. B. should be retained, for the purpose of determining allotments to the various Counties, and with power to correct local conditions when necessary, but, subject to this, the manner, organization, distribution, and planning of relief is distinctly a local problem, and should be in the hands of a responsible A. C. E. R. B., with both power, centralized authority, and responsibility. At the present time, and in the past, one of the main causes of trouble has been that, while popularly supposed to possess all of these things, it has had none of them. The Works Division, Financial Division, Disbursing Office, and Relief Division, and likewise the Employment Bureau, should be under one man, himself locally responsible to the A. C. E. R. B. The present system of having several disconnected units, responsible solely to Harrisburg, and these governed separately according to State policies, instead of local policies adjusted to County problems, is the worst one which could be adopted, from the point of view of efficiency, ability to meet local conditions, public satisfaction both among relief recipients and taxpayers, and any other point of view except that of useless bureaucracy. The Committee recognizes the necessity for the S. E. R. B. to determine what funds shall be available for relief among the various Counties. Unquestionably under present conditions the preservation of the taxpayer as an essential to the existence of relief and all other governmental functions will make it impossible to afford to any County Emergency Relief Board sufficient funds to function as it would like to function,—as the genuinely unfortunate and worthy on relief think it should function,—or as it would function under ideal conditions. All that can be asked legitimately is an equitable distribution of available funds between the Counties, and this must be done by the S. E. R. B. It can be done better by the S. E. R. B. if its attention is devoted to this, instead of to attempts at minute regulations of details all over the State, which can better be treated locally with variations to meet local conditions. Of course, likewise, the S. E. R. B. must retain the power to control local Boards, to insist upon correction of abuses that may develop, and, if necessary, to change local Boards. All this power is given in the Act of Assembly, and should be exercised. But, subject to state determination of the amount of funds available (of which the County Boards should be advised as long in advance as possible), and state control and supervision, the details of methods and plans are distinctly local County problems, and frequently sufficiently local that they should vary, under supervision of the County Board within the County, and State interference should cease. The minutes of the A. C. E. R. B. are filled with letters and appeals to the S. E. R. B. pointing out the necessity, under local conditions, for many kinds of items, and for many changes in operation. Some were approved. Many were not. In the meantime, individuals, "pressure groups," etc., poured complaints into County and District offices, blaming the A. C. E. R. B. and the local officers for the lack of the very things which the A. C. E. R. B. and these officers were moving heaven and earth in an effort to obtain for them. In this we are not blaming the S. E. R. B., which was undoubtedly trying its best to work out a statewide problem. The difficulty is that it was attempting too much in making these details a statewide problem. Were the Board to say to the local Boards, in substance, "You will have this sum available each month for six months; distribute it the best way you can in view of local conditions," the local Board could plan intelligently, the organized and unorganized relief recipients could learn where responsibility for quantity of relief available and for methods of distributions lay, the S. E. R. B. could devote itself to the task which it alone can do, and the A. C. E. R. B. and the other local Boards could devote themselves to efficient organization and planning and operation, rather than to fighting off misguided but sincere and justified complainants on the one hand, and appealing in the dark for what attempt at statewide standardization of local problems made impossible, on the other hand. For example, if the County Board, after investigation, and with State authority, reports to Harrisburg approaching necessity for 100,000 pairs of shoes, sizes 4 to 8, for a certain date, and after six weeks delay during which the local offices have been beseiged by persons in need of the promised shoes 40,000 pairs, confined to sizes 3 to 12, arrive, coupled with the advice that no more are available, and in the meantime other Counties have received a surplus, the local relief recipients get the suffering and disappointment and become fertile material for the activities of radical agitators, the local Board gets the blame and the worry, and the State authorities get the dubious satisfaction of having struggled manfully with a problem which they were not in position to work out. The exact illustration may or may not have occurred. Hundreds of similar illustrations which did occur were presented, and have been the basis of much bitterness, recrimination, and suffering.

Illustrations of inefficiency and lack of cooperation between various local departments, costing the taxpayers vast sums of money without corresponding benefit to any worthy case, and due to the disjointed and topheavy system which has many different disconnected local branches operating more or less at random in spending the same fund, are too frequent to enumerate except as illustrations. Under the present system of disconnected responsibility solely to Harrisburg, and Harrisburg interference, continuance of such expensive blunders, responsibility for which can hardly be traced except to the system itself, can hardly be avoided. The same ones may not be repeated. Others will continue to develop unless unified local responsibility and central and cooperation are instituted.

Relief Continued Weeks After Stop Order

Relief checks have continued to be mailed for four weeks after they were known to the workers not to be deserved, and slow machinery had been set in motion to stop them. One form after another had to go round and round the mulberry bush from the worker to the district office of the relief division, and thence to the works division, and thence to the chief timekeeper's office, and thence to the financial division, and thence to the disbursing office, while taxpayers' money, with little or no chance of recovery except through voluntary payment, was mailed out four times after one of the numerous links in what should be a single chain had known that it should cease. Delays of a day or two while tired and overworked employees in many different departments attended to what they probably legitimately regarded as their chief duties grew into expense and waste which, multiplied by the number of times such things must occur under the present disjointed system, must have been enormous.

One Entire Project Paid Double for Weeks

Without the knowledge of the local authorities, Harrisburg commenced a Pittsburgh project known as the Assignment Bureau, wherein 75 people were placed on work relief, not locally, but through Harrisburg. At the same time they were receiving direct relief checks from the A. C. E. R. B., and continued to receive both relief checks because they were not working, and pay checks because they were working, for weeks. Investigators from the relief division were supposed to be checking these and other cases, to determine continuation of relief need. The waste and duplication was discovered, not because of anything within the relief organization which would ever have made ie possible, but because one of the relief recipients called attention to the fact that double checks were being issued. Nobody knows the total lost to taxpayers.

Expensive Delay in Moving Routine Form

Many cases of overpayment for work relief, after the man had ceased working, and amounting to more than $100. per man in many cases have been discovered. The usual explanation is failure of the Works Division to send in form notices to the Financial Division to cease "Budget Deficiency" (work) payments. Similarly, complaints of interminable delays in payment for work, ascribed to failure of the Works Division foreman to send in cards authorizing commencing of work pay are frequent. These foremen are selected, theoretically, for their peculiar fitness for the task, and not from the relief rolls. The seeming regularity with which they have neglected the easy task of sending in these forms, notifying the Financial Division officially of the commencement and termination of work, leaves much doubt as to whether the relief rolls do not contain the names of men at least equally competent to assume these higher paid positions, with corresponding reduction in the relief load by their removal from direct relief rolls, and with additional reduction because of their possibly greater attention to the duty of keeping forms up to date. At the same time, proper County integration of the relief organization would permit much better cooperation between the Works Division and the Financial Division, instead of having each separately responsible only to Harrisburg.

Promoted for Inefficency

Cases where an employee, dismissed by one division on account of inefficiency, has been promoted to a better position in another department, are not unknown. In such cases, the State authorities have approved the recommendation. The local authorities employing such people would seem primarily responsible, but if the local relief organization were integrated under one responsible head, subject to the A. C. E. R. B., the danger of such mistakes would be greatly minimized.

Failure to Check Nonrelief Payroll with Relief List

A prolific source of loss to the taxpayers has been in paying relief checks to supposed members of the "unemployed," who were actually working at the time they were receiving relief checks for not working. Difficulties in checking the facts, and in opportunities for overloaded investigators to discover the facts with respect to employment, particularly with reference to small private or odd job employers, would relieve individuals from blame in many cases under the present system, but would not relieve taxpayers from suffering the expense caused by such oversights. The same excuse would not apply to cases where the relief organization itself was paying salaries to persons whom it carried on its relief rolls as unemployed. Losses of public funds in this way are explained as due to employment on nonrelief payrolls. A check has been maintained with reasonable efficiency against a man receiving both direct and work relief at the same time, but it has only been within the past month or two, at the most, that any attempt has been made by the Financial Division to check nonrelief payrolls against relief lists.

Overloading of Investigators

An essential, under any system, is the employment of more investigators. The case-load per investigator has been as high as 175, and at present averages 120 for the County. The Relief Division expected to have each relief case visited once during the month of March, 1935, but explained that this would be the first time such a record had been achieved. Obviously, with such a case-load, efficiency on the part of the visitors can hardly be hoped for. In the work of private social agencies, the work of the visitor is confined to as low as 30 or 40 cases in some instances, with nothing over 75 considered possibly efficient. In the matter of relief, which faces these Relief Boards, there is no need for social work as such, in the majority of instances, but only for the ascertainment of the facts with reference to necessity for relief. These cases may become cases where social work, as such, is required, but most of them are merely due to economic conditions and should be treated as such. Under this view of the problem, a case-load of about 100 per visitor could probably be carried. Actual experiment in employing additional visitors, conducted in 1000 cases in Allegheny County in 1933, demonstrated that the difference between ordinary investigation by overloaded investigators, and intensive investigation by a sufficient number of investigators, permitted 10% of relief recipients to be dropped as not entitled to relief. From a purely dollars and cents standpoint of benefit to the taxpayers, therefore, without injury or loss to a single worthy recipient of relief, a large increase in the staff of investigators is indicated as a necessity

The Type of Workers

Very conflicting theories have been advanced with reference to the type of workers and the requirements of investigating. It was stressed to the Committee by Dr.

Bernstein, President of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the American Association of Social Workers, and Executive Director of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of Pittsburgh, that there was a great difference between understanding the problems of a family and a mere mechanical determining of whether they needed support. The latter is the most primitive service that can be rendered. The state cannot merely send a check and let it go at that, but must be interested in solution of the problems which the individual family is facing. Family relief is merely one phase of the work. In addition Child Welfare, Character Building, and a thousand and one different phases of public relief service must be provided. The relief load per worker, for this purpose, should be gradually reduced to not more than 75 cases, and preferably thirty or forty. For this purpose about 1500 additional social workers should be employed in Allegheny County. There are not that many available for employment, which would involve a broad and constructive program over a period of years, wherein they could be trained and educated, and brought into the field of service in this regard. Dr. Bernstein added that it is the dream of every social worker that some day he may be entirely eliminated from the picture, but it is a dream. In the opinion of the Committee, suggestions of this nature make it a very distant dream. Undoubtedly one of the functions of the state is general improvement of conditions, and elimination of family problems as far as possible, but the Committee doubts whether this can best be attained by furnishing each family, at public expense, with intensive supervision from a trained social worker. It might better be obtained by advice to the public authorities, from time to time, from such experts as Dr. Bernstein, leaving them free to exercise their own judgment in the light of such advice. His suggestions were welcomed by the Committee, but seemed to the Committee to be due to a perhaps one-sided view of the problem from a distinctly professional social worker point of view. At present, the Committee repeats, the problem of the unemployed, as a class are largely economic and not social-case problems. Reemployment would help more than social service advice. By this we do not for a moment intend to be understood as saying that the services of professional trained social workers can or should be wholly dispensed with in the administration and planning of unemployment relief, but only that the professional trained social worker is by no means the whole solution, or the most important solution, to a problem which, in its essence, involves taking as little money from the overburdened taxpayer as possible, in this emergency, to keep from starvation a multitude of people who, through no fault of their own, are unable to be self-supporting at present, but who, in normal times, can be expected to be self-supporting, and to resent professional interference with their private affairs. The situation must necessarily be treated as an emergency, however unfortunately lengthy. The taxpayer cannot perpetually support one fourth of the population as a social workers' experimental laboratory. Entirely aside from the taxpayer, the best interests of the unemployed demand that reemployment, and not social uplift, be the primary consideration, and that refusal of support except where economic need requires taxpayer support be the rule, not only for the preservation of individual self-respect, but for the preservation of funds which cannot last forever, in order that they be made to last long enough to carry us over the emergency.

An exactly opposite point of view to that of Dr. Bernstein comes with some urgency from some groups of the unemployed. They contend that the necessity of a college education, theoretical training, and similar qualifications for workers has been greatly overemphasized, and that they have, among their own ranks, large numbers of people who could take over the tasks of investigation with better results than have heretofore been obtained, and who have, within the ranks of unemployed organizations, conducted investigations into need for relief, with entire success, and who have learned, by practical experience among their own kind, far more concerning how the problem of distinguishing between real and feigned need for relief should be solved than can any group of college graduates who possess qualifications now specified as requirements.

The truth lies somewhere between these two points of view. Undoubtedly more investigators are required. As an experiment, if nothing more, it is suggested that the relief rolls be reduced by employment of some investigators who have had such experience, within the ranks of unemployed organizations, and the results checked against those obtained by professional investigators. Our suggestion is not that untrained and uneducated persons can compete with trained social workers within their own field, but that this field of unemployment relief is not so much as has been supposed the true and exclusive field of the trained social worker, and that experiment to determine the truth of this suggestion could be no more expensive than many previous experiments undertaken in connection with relief, and might be beneficial.

An enormous amount of antagonism has grown up between groups of unemployed relief recipients and the social worker group who have dominated relief administration. If cooperation could be substituted, it would be extremely beneficial to the public who foot the bills. It might prove illuminating to members of the unemployed organizations who have heretofore complained of relief administration shortcomings without understanding the difficulties, if they themselves were in the position of attempting to solve those difficulties from the inside. And it might prove illuminating to the relief authorities to have cooperation from members of their own organization who knew, by actual experience, the other side of the picture.

We are not for a moment suggesting that administration of relief can or should be turned over by the S. E. R. B. or the A. C. E. R. B. to any league of unemployed, but only that the relief rolls be reduced, microscopically as it would be, by the employment of some individuals as investigators, who were properly qualified for the duty, although not necessarily qualified according to the specifications now laid down for the position. If they proved inefficient, the question of whether we are not making a mistake by excluding them would at least be answered. Now it persists.

The present somewhat rigid specifications of requirements for the position of investigator are prescribed from Harrisburg. But they were prescribed from Harrisburg on recommendation of the A. C. E. R. B. when it was organized, and drawn according to the recommendation of a group of local social workers. It would seem that these requirements are drawn by special workers as proper requirements for social workers. It is doubtful whether such requirements as that of a college education or equivalent should be unbending as a requirement for the somewhat different, and certainly less technical position of investigator into the existence and continuance of temporary economic need. These investigators should be carefully selected, and selected locally, but intelligence in the person selected, should be emphasized rather than rigid adherence to state regulations based upon social workers' conceptions of the proper requirements for a social worker.

At present, relief need has nothing to do with appointment as investigator. The selection is made solely upon "fitness." But the "fitness" is determined upon the well intended but somewhat artificial rules just discussed, approved by Harrisburg after drafting by social workers with their own peculiar qualifications for a somewhat different task in mind. It is suggested that the requirements be relaxed, without cutting down the requirement of fitness, but that the fitness be fitness for the task, and not necessarily rigid conformity to unnecessarily detailed specifications. And it is suggested that the requirements for the position are not so rare as to make it impossible to consider relief need of the application for employment, whether upon the relief rolls or not, as an important element in the selection, fitness otherwise being apparently equal.

The Organization of the Investigating Staff

Mr. George P. Mills is head of the Relief Division containing about 750 investigators, and possibly an equal number of clerical employees. He reports directly to the State Administrator and the A. C. E. R. B.

Reporting to Mr. Mills is Miss Nell Scott, County Supervisor, who has charge of 20 district offices. District Supervisors report to Miss Scott. They, in turn control the operation of the investigators, through case supervisor. Dr. Bernstein, as chairman of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the American Association of Social Workers, testified that they had nothing but praise for Miss Scott, and for the professional qualifications manifested by herself and by the district and case supervisors. He expressed some regret at having to qualify this with respect to the visitors, of whom a tremendous number had no experience, and would commit sins of commission and omission.

The Committee has no criticism of the action of the A. C. E. R. B. and Mr. Mills in selecting Miss Scott for this task. An entirely new and unfamiliar task confronted the A. C. E. R. B., and while what was needed was not social workers, the organization and training of such a large staff in the duties of investigating even into economic problems of many families come nearer to falling within the field of the trained social worker than that of any other occupation. Miss Scott had been in social work since 1914, and was at the head of the largest staff of social workers in the County. At the time of her selection, it was perhaps the best that could have been made, in the emergency.

The necessity for organization and for discipline being unquestioned, the question arises whether Miss Scott, despite her proven abilities within her own field, possesses the personal attitude required for this somewhat different field. Naturally, the selection and control of the district supervisors is largely under her control. Her personal and entirely bona fide selection and retention of these district supervisors may or may not be tinged by personal predictions not entirely consistent with faultless functioning of the organization. Complaints which came to the attention of the Committee, both from within and without the relief organization, tended to indicate that certain district supervisors were much better qualified for their tasks than were others, with consequent constant difficulties in certain districts not reflected in others. The impression persisted that personal friendship with Miss Scott, or agreement with her own peculiar habits of thought, were more important in obtaining places of preferment, or even in keeping employment, within the organization dominated by her, than was efficiency in the public service. In disputes between visitors and other subordinates and their supervisors, the reports of the latter would seem always to have been conclusive.

The Committee has no doubt of the good faith and good intentions of Miss Scott in any of these matters, which were utterly obvious to anyone. The Committee has no doubt of her competence and qualifications as a social worker. The Committee has very much doubt whether she is entitled to be considered as infallible in her decisions as to controversial matters not necessarily connected with social work strictly as such, as to which there may be room for much legitimate difference of opinion, particularly as to personal motives and actions not strictly within the field of social work.

Our criticism of the A. C. E. R. B. and of Mr. Mills in this connection is of affording her decisions too much finality, on matters upon which the Committee is convinced their uninfluenced decision would have been more accurate than hers. We are not necessarily saying that Miss Scott should not be retained, nor that her services within her own field of directing social work are not valuable. We are suggesting that serious consideration should be given to the thought that neither as a social worker nor as an individual should Miss Scott be permitted, as she has been, to dominate the field beyond the legitimate scope of her training and experience, to the exclusion of the judgment of the members of the A. C. E. R. B. and of Mr. Mills, which would appear to be better as to many matters concerning which she has been permitted to assume infallibility.

"Fibbing" or Public Utilities?

There was, employed by the A. C. E. R. B. indirectly under Miss Scott, a young lady who had worked for the A. C. E. R. B. and its predecessors for three years, and in that time had been absent from work four times of one day each—an excellent record of attendance. Before obtaining this employment, she was injured in a taxicab accident in Philadelphia, and quite property, entered suit against the company. Several months before the suit was reached for trial, it was intimated to her, as coming from Miss Scott, that she had better drop the suit, of which Miss Scott had learned from outside sources, or she might lose her job with the A. C. E. R. B. Miss Scott denies this, and says her knowledge of the case at that stage came from a discussion as to the possibility of a day's absence for the trial becoming necessary, and her suggestion that the girl arrange her vacation schedule to conform to the time of trial. Both from seeing and hearing the witnesses, and from their manner of testifying, and from the impossibility apparent to anyone familiar with court schedules and procedure of arranging a vacation months in advance to concur with a one or two day trial in such a County as Philadelphia, the Committee finds the facts as testified to by the young lady, and not by Miss Scott. Disregarding that feature, however, the result is the same. The only possible reason why the young lady should not have notified her superior of her intended absence from the city for one day was fear of losing her job. That fear could normally come only because some one, her superior, had previously suggested it. She left, was absent one day, and on her return was notified that she had lost her position. The ostensible reason, given by Miss Scott, was "fibbing." But she had no opportunity to fib. She was accused of telephoning that she was at home sick, but she was in Philadelphia, to the knowledge of Miss Scott, and could not have made the telephone call. She was told she was discharged before she had opportunity to say that she had been sick, if such was her intention. In addition to "fibbing," the discharge was attempted to be placed upon the ground of cheating the public out of one day's pay by pretending sickness. But Miss Scott said there was no sick leave on pay. Assuming that she was mistaken, the young lady offered to refund the pay for one day, which was not accepted. The Committee can place no other construction upon the occurence than that she was discharged for failure to accept the suggestion that it would be inadvisable for an employee of the A. C. E. R. B. to maintain what seems to have been an entirely legitimate lawsuit against a Philadelphia taxicab concern. Nor does Miss Scott's attempted explanation of how she knew, without being told, that the young lady was in Philadelphia on the day in question, help her. She testified that she was contacted by the "local correspondent" of the "Mitten Interests" and asked whether the young lady had her permission to be absent from work for the purpose of attending the trial of her case, and replied that she had not given permission. She was again contacted by the local correspondent, and asked to have the young lady watched to see if she left work on the day set for trial without permission. This check-up resulted in the dismissal "for fibbing." After much pressure, she reluctantly stated the identity of "the local correspondent of the Mitten Interests" as being the Pittsburgh Railways Company!

"Fibbing", and potential loss of a day's salary possibly paid to this girl while she attended the trial of a suit in which she was vitally interested, seemed to Miss Scott a legitimate reason for the discharge. The girl had worked three years, with four days off in that time. She had worked overtime, as did practically all employees, many many times without pay for the overtime, in the face of definite procedural regulations forbidding overtime unless definitely authorized in advance by Harrisburg for specified emergency reasons. Overtime was routine, and was never reported on the payrolls which falsely stated working hours in accordance with the procedural requirements. Miss Scott was so sincere in her ignorance of the existence of these regulations forbidding overtime that she must be believed. She knew, however, of the universality of overtime, and that it was unpaid. And she professed to believe that "fibbing" which might result in payment for a period of seven hours not worked, as against many unpaid hours of unpaid overtime worked, was a cause of dismissal!

As to the actual "fibbing," it certainly did not occur, if for no other reason because of lack of opportunity, since the young lady was discharged, or notified that she would be, immediately on her return from Philadelphia, before she had had opportunity to "fib," and because Miss Scott and the Pittsburgh Railways Company had been maintaining a careful check upon her movements, with a view to penalizing her by loss of employment if she had the temerity to proceed with litigation in which neither Miss Scott nor the Pittsburgh Railways Company had the slightest excuse for legitimate interest, and in which the plaintiff had every legitimate interest.

The shocking feature about this whole case was that Miss Scott herself told this story, including the inquiry from the Pittsburgh Railways Company, and her taking time for which the taxpayers were paying her to serve them to spy at the request of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, with apparent sincere belief in the righteousness of her actions, and testified that she would do the same thing again under similar circumstances. The actual time employed by Miss Scott and her subordinates under her direction in doing this spying was probably very little. But the principle is very vital. In the opinion of the Committee, any public employee who would take public time to spy for the private profit of a public utility in a distant city, and utilize the results of that spying to manufacture cause for discharge of a subordinate public employe otherwise entirely satisfactory, and to do this in order to prevent a legitimate suit from being prosecuted against that public utility, whether or not at the request of a local public utility, manifests a fundamental unfitness to be at the head of any large group in which there is any necessity for maintaining esprit de corps or decent self-respect. If it was necessary to conceal from Miss Scott the intention to go to Philadelphia for this purpose, it should not have been necessary. Apparently it was necessary, as is proved by the result of her conspiracy with the defendant to penalize the plaintiff for participation in legitimate litigation.

Mr. Mills, on appeal, refused redress. Upon his report of the story as it was reported to him, he may have been justified. The criticism of the Committee, as applied to Mr. Mills in this connection, is that his approval of her report of the disgraceful occurrence reveals a childlike faith in Miss Scott, on the part of Mr. Mills, which her testimony on the stand did not create in the Committee, and which should be replaced on his part by a more definite assumption of his own responsibility for and undoubted capacity for independent and intelligent decision.

"Chiseling."

A serious condition undoubtedly exists with regard to what has been referred to as "chiseling," i. e. the acceptance of relief funds by people not entitled to them. This is one of the most contemptible offenses conceivable, resulting in defrauding of the taxpayer, and of the legitimate relief recipient as well, by virtue of reducing the funds available for legitimate relief, while putting additional burdens on those already crushing the taxpayer. It is rendered worse by the necessity of hypocriticial assumption of an appearance of deserving need, in order to enable the thief to have his illicit takings handed to him.

We believe Mr. Mills' estimate that there was about 10% of chiseling going on to be founded on very good reason, in that it is the result of noting the reduction to that extent in relief cases where intensive investigaion, now impossible by virue of the inadequate investigating staff, was adopted on a large experimental number of cases. Ascertainment of the exact proportion is largely conjectural. The Committee had estimates of from as high as one third to as low as one half of one per cent. These may have been true in local exceptional situations. In general, we believe Mr. Mills to be correct, and believe, with him, that the chief remedy will be to supply more and better investigators.

Recent legislation permitting the Board to demand bank information as to relief cases will doubtless likewise be helpful. Hitherto such information has been rarely available, and resulted, when given, in the bank often losing the business to rivals who were less interested in protection of the public. With all on the same footing, and the information a matter of public right in the Relief bodies, there should be a reduction in the number of cases where relief checks are weekly deposited in savings accounts, etc.

From such glaring examples, the chiseling system shades off into cases of concealment of small amounts of income, or of the fact of occasional odd jobs. These latter are almost impossible to discover, and from the point of view of the individual relief recipient, who sees a chance to eke out an inadequate dole by a little honest employment, doubtless entirely legitimate. Certainly they do not deserve to be classed with those cases where men actually regularly employed falsely represent themselves as unemployed, or where people possessed of adequate funds or assets for their support falsely place themselves in position to receive as "relief" funds taxed from people not as well off as themselves, but honest enough to make every effort to pull their own weight in the best. The odd jobs likewise present a problem of next to impossibility in discovery. And much complaint of overzealousness in investigators arises, legitimately or otherwise, when the investigators discover that a relief recipient has done small odd jobs for a neighbor, which may or may not have been paid for, as distinguished from neighborly kindness, and attempts to go into the question of income from work in connection with such employment. The odd job problem is one which verges on actual "chiseling," and shades into it, but to which the local Board should devote study and attempt to classify as to how far it is legitimate. Certainly, such work should not under any circumstances be discouraged, while income from such work should not be duplicated to the individual at public expense.

It is pointed out in the testimony of Mr. Mills that there is no way to discover whether work, or work opportunities, are enjoyed by relief recipients, except possibly through large employers, by which is meant those employing 100 or more. Even here there has been some lack of cooperation with the A. C. E. R. B., since these large employers have been willing to check lists of relief recipients submitted to them by the Board, but have been strangely unwilling to submit lists of their employees, or statements of work opportunities, for checking by the Board. We say strangely unwilling, since, entirely aside from questions of patriotism, such large employers are undoubtedly subjecting themselves and others to payment of painful taxes because of the seeming necessity for supporting chiselers who could be weeded out, with corresponding elimination of necessity for additional taxes, by their cooperation.

On the other hand there has been no public request, through the newspapers or otherwise, for cooperation of employers, particularly those "small" employers of less than 100 men, along similar lines. Were such request made, it is probable that cooperation might be obtained which would be extremely valuable to the Board in its efforts to eliminate chiseling.

Maid Problem.

In this same connection, there appears in the testimony adduced a brief reference to an increasing problem, causing great complaint among housewives all over the County. In these times of unemployment, it should normally be easy to obtain capable domestic servants willing to work for reasonable wages. On the countrary, it is extremely difficult. The explanation seems to lie in the operation of "Budget Deficiency." Under this scheme, the needs of the family are calculated. On direct relief, they are subject to deduction of 20% for no reason understandable by the unemployed. But where members of the family are employed, their earnings are subtracted in calculation of how much the family needs for subsistence. When domestic employment is available, as it is in many instances, the answer tends to be: "Why should I work? The amount of my earnings would merely be deducted from what my family gets on relief." The answer is quite logical from the point of view of the individual. The answer is disastrous from the point of view of the potential employer, who is forced to pay taxes to support the person who should be working, and refuses to work, for the reason that it is easier to accept the same income in the form of "relief" from tax sources, without the work. Perhaps the problem is more generally perceived with reference to domestic employment, which is available, than otherwise. It must exist otherwise in somewhat corresponding scale. There is much to the Scriptural injunction: "If any man will not work, neither shall he eat."

It is recommended that the publis as a whole be solicited to acquaint the proper authorities (and that facilities be made available whereby they may do so) with opportunities for work which are available and unaccepted, and that if these opportunities be found to be suitable, and when they are called to the attention of qualified persons on relief rolls who refuse to accept them, such persons be immediately stricken from the rolls of those eligible for relief.

The testimony of Mr. Mills is that such instances are so rare as to be negligible. The feeling of a large part of the general public is that they are rather common. The question is one which should be settled, and which can only be settled by some corelation between local employment offices and local relief divisions, which would make possible the test. Taxation of those willing to give employment, for the support of those able to accept such employment, but who prefer to be supported at the taxpayers' expense, is an outrage. The possibility of such a thing is a serious reflection upon relief recipients who do not fall within that class. In the interests both of the taxpayers and the legitimate recipients of relief, the possibility of the development of such a class of professional relief recipients should be eliminated. It can be, by the method suggested.

Prosecutions for Chiseling.

The word "chiseling," at best a slang phrase but a descriptive one, can mean anything from the deposit of relief checks in savings accounts, or the use thereof to purchase automobiles, to the silent acceptance of an occasional odd job along with full "relief," involving little or no moral deficiency.

In its serious phases, it involves the lowest form of dishonesty.

Although chiseling, in some of its extreme forms, was known to be going on from the institution of relief, it is significant that not one prosecution had been brought for this loathesome offense until after this Committee had been appointed and had announced its intention of going into the question.

At the time of the hearings, eight such prosecutions had been brought, but it was publicly announced that if refunds were made prosecutions would be dropped.

To the minds of the Committee, even this improved policy is equivalent to an announcement to burglars or sneak thieves: "Go ahead and help yourselves: if we fail to catch you, the joke is on us; if we do catch you, you will be asked to refund what you have stolen, but on doing so there will be no further penalty; you have everything to gain and nothing to lose by your dishonesty, so feel perfectly free to see how far you can profit by crime."

To state such a policy is to demonstrate its fallacy.

But it was actually the declared policy of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania after this Committee was appointed, and it was an improvement over the previous policy, since prior to the announcement of the intention of the Committee prosecutions had not been attempted, even to be dropped on premises of restitution.

The Committee is happy to note the announcement of a more stringent policy by which more return of what was stolen will not necessarily result in immunity form prosecution.

All this was State policy, for which the A. C. E. R. B. was in no way responsible. We trust the belated effort to protect the suffering taxpayer will not be abated. We do not imply that in every case where the taxpayer has suffered a $10. loss from each crime, $500. of taxpayers' money should be spent in prosecution. We do imply that, even in such extreme cases, the criminal should not know that he was exempt from prosecution, and that occasional examples should be made of even such small-scale offenders, to the end that such small scale offenders should not be entered upon with knowledge of complete safety.

The chief remedy, as hereinabove pointed out, is in the employment of an adequate number of visitors to permit reduction of the case load to a point where it can be handled with efficiency.

Complaint as to Mention of Chiseling

Much complaint came to the Committee from organized and unorganized relief recipients because of the Committee's investigation of the subject of chiseling.

It was felt that reflection was cast upon all relief recipients, by the mere mention of chiseling as a possibility, as giving rise to the suggestion that any recipient of relief might be chiseling.

The Committee feels that this complaint is unjustified, and that the fullest publicity given to the whole matter, and to attempts to stamp out the practice, will be beneficial.

While Mr. Mills' testimony that about 10% of relief recipients were chiseling to some extent attained the headlines, the corrolary that about 90% of relief recipients were honest and deserving follows equally.

There is no foundation for fear of any honest person that his honesty is being impugned, by public assertion of apparent fact to the effect that there are nine chances out of ten that he is fully deserving.

At the same time, the more publicity is given to the fact that offenders, who cheat legitimate relief recipients and groaning taxpayers by demanding and accepting public funds to which they are not entitled, are not clever embracers of opportunity, but rather cowardly and contemptible swindlers of their suffering fellow-citizens on relief and not on relief, the better will be the chances for eliminating these parasites from the starving body of the nation.

Unjustified Complaints Against Investigators

Several complaint was made, in some instances, that relief investigators pried too much into the private affairs of relief candidates or recipients. Instances particularly raised were of discoveries that relief complaints had insurance policies having surrender values, or pensions, and of demands that the policies be surrendered, or that pensions be deducted in calculating the amount of necessary relief.

The Committee feels such complaints to be wholly based upon misunderstanding of the problems facing relief authorities. They are constantly torn between the pressure of relief claimants who feel that they should be afforded incomes sufficient to maintain some assemblance of comfort, and should not be penalized, as they term it, by being deprived of the benefits of past thrift such as annuities, pensions, or insurance, in order to obtain relief benefits, and the equally insistent pressure of less organized taxpayers, who may be in an identical financial situation, and who desire to avoid themselves becoming public charges, but who feel the necessity of protest against being taxed into surrender of their own insurance policies, annuities, and savings, while continuing to support themselves, for the mere purpose of preventing relief recipients being compelled to make similar sacrifices of their own savings while receiving relief. The position of the taxpayer would seem to be the more logical in this divergent viewpoint, and his situation is desperate. In seeking to protect him, by demanding that all relief candidates exhaust their own resources before forcing their neighbors to pay taxes for their support, the relief workers are doing a painful duty, but one necessary to the long continuance of relief in any form.

Public Misunderstandings General

Unquestionably, the public as a whole have very little idea of the nature of relief, its problems, its methods, and its machinery.

The thought in some quarters is that a large body of the population is being supported in very comfortable idleness at public expense. Certainly, when the funds available for relief purposes are compared with the number in actual need of relief, it is obvious that the proportionate share available for each individual and family is so small that no one legitimately on relief is receiving or can receive more than bare necessaries. Any excessive comforts or luxuries among relief recipients are manifestly confined to the ranks of the chiselers, and do not exist in legitimate cases.

An exactly opposite impression prevails among groups of relief recipients, who employ the phrase "chiseling" in describing conduct of the relief authorities in not furnishing support in much larger amounts. The impression in these circles, unexpressed in terms, but clearly assumed in demands and in arguments, is that there exists, somehow, an infinite fund of governmental resources, and that the manifestly small amount of support being furnished to those in need is due to nothing but an arbitrary refusal on the part of the relief authorities to tap this supposedly available supply. Most of the unemployed seem to prefer the present system of cash relief (one weekly check), but are insistent that the amount be raised immediately. Demands made to the Committee for immediate increase in each checks varied from 40% increase, through 50% increase, to one that the present rate of $12.20 for direct relief checks to a typical family of five (two adults and three children, one under two years of age) be upped at once to a minimum of $29.60 weekly. These demands were presented by representatives of the organized unemployed with such vigor and confidence as to leave no doubt of their belief that nothing except stubborn parsimony on the part of the relief authorities prevented immediate granting of the demands. The attitude of many representatives of organized unemployed seemed to manifest inability to see behind the relief authorities to the struggling taxpayer from whom the relief funds are being squeezed. Unquestionably, $120. per month would not enable the family of five to live in extravagant style, although many a family of five has been and is being supported on less than that through the earnings of wage earners not on relief, and whose taxes, direct and indirect, are helping to bear the relief load. The latter individual can hardly justly be accused by the unemployed of "chiseling" upon them, if he objects to paying still higher taxes from his meagre earnings in order to provide the unemployed with incomes greater than his own. And the relief authorities are really the representatives of the taxpayers, many themselves unemployed and struggling along in the effort to make meagre savings last as long as possible, when they distribute relief funds in sums inadequate to the actual needs of the recipients.

$12.20 cash allowance weekly is not enough for decent living for a family of five. But to far more than double the already crushing burden of taxes for relief purposes would ruin most of the taxpayers, and eliminate the source of event the $12.20, with consequent disastrous consequences not only to the taxpayers, but likewise to the present relief recipients, and to enormous numbers now self-supporting, but who would be forced upon relief rolls by the additional burden.

The Committee feels that the solution lies, not in adding to the tax burden any more than can possibly be avoided, but rather is seeking for more economical methods of getting the subsistence to those who must have it, and thus making the tax dollar go farther in its results to those who must have it for existence.

Complaints are made that the relief authorities are slow in providing glasses; that they do not allow enough to furnish proper burial; that families on relief occupying houses pay no rent, and do damage, for which the landlord, perhaps paying mortgage interest as well as taxes, is not reimbursed. The fact is that the A. C. E. R. B. is not authorized to furnish any of these things, and the efforts of its workers to cooperate and assist in obtaining them for those in need from other sources have, through misunderstanding, given rise to accusations of inefficiency and unfairness in the performance of functions which are not the functions of the A. C. E. R. B. at all. Rent relief existed to a limited extent, under certain somewhat onerous conditions, and for only a short and definite period. Many landlords, hearing only that there was such a think as "rent relief," and without knowledge of the limitations, believed themselves the object of unjust or even fraudulent discrimination, merely because of failure to obtain what the Board never was authorized to furnish.

The enormous and frequent changes in what was available as relief, both in form and in quantity, and frequent and unexpected changes of policy, largely originating in Washington and in Harrisburg, have given rise to many charges of discrimination, double dealing, and bad faith against the local workers, Mr. Mills, and the A. C. E. R. B., due in large part to failure of the public, and particularly those of the public who were on relief, to recognize the difficulties of this nature under which the A. C. E. R. B. operated, due to remote control.

Many people confuse the Relief Administration with various private chartiable organizations, community chests, and almost anything else to and including the E. R. A. Resulting misunderstandings give rise to rumors and beliefs of all kinds, to impossible demands, and to unfounded accusations.

A program of public education as to exactly what is the nature, source, and extent of relief furnished from tax funds to the needy, the machinery of distribution, the requirements for eligibility, and who is responsible for the various rules, their application, and the functioning of the machinery of distribution in its various phases, would be most helpful to all concerned, both in enabling legitimate complaints to be intelligently directed to the proper authority, eliminating honest but mistaken complaints, and fostering general understanding of the problem, and mutual sympathy between the relief recipient, the taxpayer, and the relief authorities who must endeavor to serve the conflicting interests of both.

"The Superiority Complex of the Social Worker"

Very much complaint was registered, in the public hearings and privately to members of the Committee and their counsel, with reference to what was sometimes described as "the superiority complex of the social worker." Such a thing undoubtedly exists, in some individuals, and undoubtedly, its presence is more easily discovered by the relief applicant than by the guilty social worker, or by other social workers. The attitude is one which Mr. Mills has endeavored to keep out. There have been dismissals, and reprimands for it. The trouble would naturally be somewhat difficult to check, as reports by the complainant and the social worker in question would tend to differ. Questioned as to whether attempts had been made to make unexpected observation of district offices in which complaints had been general, Mr. Mills replied: "No, we have not sent out any detectives or anyone of that sort." It is suggested that in the case of offices where complaint is severe and continuous on this ground, such inspection might be worth while in enabling the authorities to determine whether or not the complaint is justified. Nothing could be more certain to cause dangerous dissatisfaction among relief recipients than the adoption of such an attitude.

There are other reasons for the appearance of such an attitude, from the point of view of relief recipients, which imply no fault on the part of the workers. Some of the district offices have been small and desperately overcrowded, and the long waits under such circumstances have been ascribed by relief applicants to the fault of workers and investigators who were themselves struggling to do their best under such handicaps for which they were in no wise responsible. Under such bad conditions, there being human beings involved on both sides, tempers sometimes snap, and bitterness crops out which it would be better for both sides to avoid.

Use of Force

A result has been the formation, among groups of unemployed, of five "Pressure Groups." Their system, among other remedies adopted by them, has been the use of force to obtain what they believe to be their rights. They consider this a successful method of combatting the "superiority complex of the social worker." In several instances, crowds from one or the other of these organizations have invaded offices of the relief authorities, where they considered themselves to have been ill treated, and have adopted tactics which have resulted in calls for the police, and in more or less serious breaches of the peace.

This condition is extremely dangerous, and should be checked. One method of checking it would be very careful investigation by the A. C. E. R. B. to determine whether the use of force is actually necessary in order to enable these unemployed to obtain their rightful relief. If it is necessary, there should be such swift and thorough changes in employes that the use of force would cease to be necessary.

Another method would be such frankness, openness, and publicity to the operation of the relief administration that it will be possible for these groups to understand when and why unpleasant situations for them are necessary, and who is responsible for unnecessary ones, in order that time, tempers, and force may not be wasted in complaints and intimidation directed at an overworked individual who is personally powerless to remedy the condition complained of. In this connection the suggestion from one of these groups that each relief recipient be advised upon a printed form of exactly how and by what authority and method of calculation the amount of relief awarded to him has been arrived at is most pertinent. It may very well be that the calculation of the amount of relief to be awarded to a desperately needy man is in exact accordance with the rules, but if he honestly believes it should be higher, according to his understanding of the rules, and an overworked clerk tells him it is correct and must be accepted as such, without giving him opportunity to discover whether the difference is in his misunderstanding of the rules, or the clerk's misunderstanding of the rules or the facts, the use of force tends to be as likely as it is regrettable.

The use of force by any relief claimant, or by anybody on his behalf, in order to obtain his rights, or a hearing, should be made absolutely unnecessary. At the same time, when force or intimidation are attempted to be used unnecessarily, the public authorities can have no choice but to keep the peace.

Organizations of Unemployed Proper

There are a number of organizations of unemployed, and of relief recipients. They differ in methods, and purposes, and in views, to various extents. They argue in desiring that their members get all the relief to which they are entitled. Most of them feel, quite honestly, that there should be much more relief granted.

Beyond doubt, for the unemployed to organize for the protection of their mutual interests is entirely legitimate. Among themselves they have performed public service in warning or keeping from the ranks of relief recipients those whom they discover not to be entitled to relief.

Beyond doubt, for the unemployed to organize for the protection of their mutual interests is entirely legitimate. Among themselves they have performed public service in warning or keeping from the ranks of relief recipients those whom they discover not to be entitled to relief.

The organizations, through their officers, are helpful in presenting vocally the views of the unemployed as a class, and pointing out situations which seem to them to call for correction. They are likewise helpful in presenting the claims of those who do not seem to be getting the relief to which they are entitled, and who are not capable of convincing presentation of their own cases.

The Committee believes that any relief claimant who desires to do so should be permitted to be represented, in his dealings with the relief authorities, by an officer of one of these unemployed organizations (or by anyone else, for that matter), and that such experienced assistance should be welcomed by the relief authorities, whether investigator or other official, as making easier the task of the investigator in understanding the situation of the applicant fully. By such representation and assistance, we mean proper and legitimate presentation of facts and argument, and assistance in understanding foreign languages, if necessary. We do not mean the use of forces, or intimidation by numbers.

In the testimony of the officers of these various groups, while in some instances there was manifest a most extreme antagonism to the relief authorities, and a tendency to make fantastic charges against them, and to ascribe the worst possible motives for everything that was done, as well as to present hearsay assertions as conclusive proof, the Committee was much impressed by discovering that, when accusations which disproved themselves, and conclusions, and generalization based upon a particular fact assumed to be universal, were discounted, and the actual underlying facts of the situation as a whole as presented by these various organizations were compared with the facts shown by testimony of the relief officers themselves and of other witnesses, they were in startling agreement.

Possibly the greatest divergence was between the opinion of Mr. Mills that employers tended to give a preference to older men and heads of families over younger men, and an opinion voiced by one of the representatives of an unemployed group that the employers of labor were doing exactly the opposite, and throwing out old employes in favor of youngsters. This raises an interesting question, but one of economic tendency rather than of relief, as such.

Public Relations Office

A recent source of great irritation to the unemployed groups has been the establishment of a central Public Relations Office. Its function has been to receive complaints, largely from the organized groups, and, in so doing, to relieve the District Offices and Mr. Mills and the central office from continuous appeals and arguments which seriously interfered with their ability to attend to their regular business of administration. The organized groups were earnest in demanding that the office be abolished.

The conclusion of the Committee, on the contrary, is that this office should be retained, but greatly strengthened and enlarged. In the course of examination of most of the witnesses for the relief recipient groups as to the nature of their protest against he Public Relations Office, it developed that this protest could largely be removed by the adoption of such a system.

As organized at present, this Public Relations Office has little or no power. Complainants at the District Offices are generally referred to this Central Public Relations Office. On arrival, they tell their story, which is then reported to the District Offices. The power of decision is lodged not with the Public Relations Office, but with the worker or district supervisor whose supposed mistake originally gave rise to the trouble. Any system by which one party to a controversy is made the judge of whether he or his opponent is right therein is bound to be unsatisfactory. Even if the decision is fair and correct, the other party, if disappointed, can not be convinced that it has been. The net result has been largely delay in sending inquiries and reports back and forth between the District Offices and the Public Relations Office, with the decision eventually made by the same parties who are accused of the original mistake. The benefit, if any, has been in relieving the congestion in the various offices.

At best, the controversies are finally reported to Miss Scott and Mr. Mills, who are not in position to determine them accurately, and who tend, in large measure, to adopt the report submitted by their subordinates. If they have confidence in these subordinates, as they should have if they continue to employ them, they could scarcely do otherwise. And yet much injustice may be done because the subordinate sincerely or otherwise persists in adhering to the original mistake. If there is no mistake, but the claimant honestly believes that there has been, dissatisfaction with the system is inevitable.

Volunteered advice from individuals, as to matters of supposed relief cheating and the like, is possible, but is not sought at the Public Relations Office. Only organized relief recipients are invited there.

Likewise, at the District Offices, when individuals attempt cooperation as to pointing out what they conceive to be cases of relief cheating, they frequently get very little cooperation, from their own point of view. Replies that the authorities are sorry, but there is nothing to be done, etc., are frequent. Doubtless effort is made to investigate all such complaints, where the visitors do not already know the circumstances, but the casual volunteer of information is not given that impression. The whole relief administration is deluged with such complaints, largely in the form of anonymous letters, and is so overworked as to find time and patience scarce when opportunities for more work of this nature are forthcoming. But the public, furnishing the money for relief, has a legitimate interest. Cooperation of this nature should be encouraged. The place for such encouragement would seem to be a greatly enlarged and more powerful Public Relations Department.

Another important function which should be given to such a department is the hearing of disputes within the organization. Under the present set up, a dissatisfied employee may complain to the superior at whom his complaint is directed. He may, possibly, carry his complaint further, to Miss Scott or Mr. Mills, or whoever may be at the head of the particular division, as was done in the case of the young lady whom Miss Scott discharged for pursuing a Philadelphia suit upon which the Pittsburgh Railways Company did not smile. Taking that case as an illustration, Mr. Mills accepted Miss Scott's "fibbing" explanation at its face value, evidently without going impartially into the details of the story, as did the committee.

A similar illustration presented itself, with reference to a young lady investigator, who did not testify. Her private report to the Committee was that she had been employed as an investigator for eight months, after having completed a college course specializing in sociology. Her immediate superior had likewise had a college course, specializing in pottery. There was not a word of complaint as to her work or efficiency, until she was summarily discharged. On inquiring the reason, she was told that it was for being late to work and for going home early. Neither of these charges were true, and her superior was in no position to know, as she herself always came to work later and left earlier than the employee whom she elected to discharge. On this being pointed out to her, she placed the discharge likewise upon the ground of "wrong attitude." This was explained as taking too much personal interest in the families under her care, as manifested in discussion of their cases in her reports. The matter was taken up with Miss Scott and Mr. Mills, who supported the action of discharging her. Never at any time was she permitted, in their presence, to meet with her superior, and to go into the nature of the charges against her, or how they were supported.

Not having her sworn testimony on the matter, owing to her request that she be kept out of it, the Committee did not mention the particular case to Miss Scott, but did question her upon such a hypothetical case. Her answers on the stand indicated that she would be as much shocked as was the Committee at the thought of a discharge under such circumstances. Not having the sworn testimony of this former investigator, who, however, made a very favorable impression upon the Committee, the Committee was in no position to attempt a decision upon the merits of the particular discharge, particularly as Miss Scott was not given opportunity to discuss her views of the particular case. But it was entirely obvious that there was a bona fide dispute, and that the subordinate employee felt keenly that the decision given against her was unfairly given, by taking as conclusive against her the secret and prejudiced account of her superior, and without giving her a chance to confront that superior.

Again, the Committee states that when one party to a dispute is made judge of the merits of the dispute, not only is a fair and unprejudiced decision next to impossible, but if given fairly and justly by the interested party in his own favor, a rankling sense of injustice and suspicion can not help but persist in the mind of the losing party. This applies as well to disputes within the organization as to disputes with relief claimants who are dissatisfied with decisions against them. It may be that in a private organization the wishes of the superior should be conclusive as to whom he cares to employ or discharge, for any reason or for no reason. In such a public organization as this relief administration, the chief essential is that the public be protected, and they can not be protected if possibly prejudiced and inefficient superiors be permitted to protect themselves in public office at the expense of the public through the discharge of subordinates who are better qualified for public service of this nature than are they.

This situation should likewise be remedied by giving jurisdiction over such disputes to an enlarged Public Relations Office, with power to make decisions, as distinguished from the recommendations, or reports of complaints, which is all it can make at present. As to this matter of favoritism and unjust discharge, it now has no power whatever.

The recommendation of the Committee is that the Public Relations Office be enlarged, and given additional powers, and that branches thereof should be established in the District Offices, where disputes with relief claimants could immediately be heard, where the facts and records, as well as the claimant and his witnessess, if any, could be immediately available without the delay and inconvenience now incident to reporting and inquiring back and forth between the present office in the City County Building and the various local District Offices.

The Committee further recommends that the normal operation of the Relief administration be made as nearly automatic as possible, but that disputes which cannot be settled to mutual satisfaction between the District Offices and the claimants be referred to the local branch of the Public Relations Office, which should have the power and duty to go fully into the dispute, and to decide it, subject to appeal by either party to the central Public Relations Office.

Disputes arising within the organization, such as illustrated by the opposition of the Pittsburgh Railways Company to an employe of the A. C. E. R. B. suing a Philadelphia taxicab company, and by the discharge of the graduate in sociology because of some doubtful dissatisfaction on the part of her superior who had specialized in pottery, should be impartially determined by the central Public Relations Office.

Public suggestions as to supposed relief cheating should be investigated by the Public Relations Office, through qualified investigators of its own. The present system puts a premium upon an investigator, who has made an original mistake in determining eligibility for relief, protecting herself and her record of skill as an investigator by perpetuating her mistake, after some volunteer has made it possible for her to discover something which she had overlooked, by keeping the ineligible person on relief at public expense. An independent investigator, from a different department, need feel no such scruples.

The investigator with a certain case load is and should be primarily interested in the routine duties of looking after that case load, and for that reason likewise is not in position to enter upon an intensive investigation of a particular case, involving possible travel to another district, as would a separate investigation force approaching the case from a new viewpoint.

While such an enlarged and strengthened Public Relations Office should be responsible to the A. C. E. R. B., it should be distinct and separate from the reorganized relief administration recommended under one unified County head, and, while parallel to it in District Offices, and with power to decide impartially upon complaints, as above outlined, should have no connection except through the A. C. E. R. B. It should have no part in the routine administration of relief in any form, but should function solely with reference to complaints, general or special, and investigations, leaving the routine administration and planning of relief to the regular organization, which is enough of a task to occupy all its time, and which task has been much interfered with in the past by attempting to function as a Public Relations Office in addition to its regular duties.

Overtime

The amount of overtime required of employes of the various departments has been enormous. On several occasions there was difficulty with the Department of Labor and Industry because of working women for periods in excess of that permitted by state laws.

Mr. Mills testified that now they are within the labor laws, and working under 54 hours per week, and stated this as a considerable improvement. The definite procedural requirements under which the relief administration is operated limit the working hours, not to 54, but to 38½.

Working till 8, 9, or 10 o'clock at night has been almost usual. It has been testified that there was no overtime under normal conditions, but that normal conditions were extremely rare. Much of this overtime was undoubtedly made necessary by the constantly changing programs of work relief and various methods and manners of affording direct relief, imposed from Harrisburg or Washington without warning, and which made revising of the whole system of administration an almost constant occurrence, with little or no time to develop a proper routine under which the business could be administered.

It was not unusual for the Disbursing Office employes to wait till as late as 4 P. M. for thousands of checks to arrive from the Financial Division, which were required to be mailed that day, and which should have been there by 9 A. M. This was explained on the ground that there were such constant changes in the nature and amount of relief that it was impossible to adjust the clerical staff to routine. In the Financial Division, as well as in the Disbursing Office and the Relief Division, overtime was constant and excessive.

Under this slipshod arrangement of excessive overwork and constant emergencies, individual employees were bound to make mistakes, for which they could hardly be held responsible, and they made them in abundance, with resulting loss to taxpayers and suffering to relief beneficiaries. Again, the defect seems to refer back to impossible condieions imposed by Harrisburg, and not to individual faults. But the results have been as unfortunate for everybody concerned as if they were attributable to individual fault.

Unofficially, the state officials knew of these conditions. Repeated requests for funds for overtime pay and for supper money were refused, but the overtime kept on. The thought was that the emergency was such that the work must be done, no matter how long it took. But the emergency seems to have been due, in large part, to such fluctuations of plan as to make emergency itself a regular thing.

In this connection there has been universal and nonchalant disregard by the Financial Division, Disbursing Office, and Relief Division of the plain requirements of Section VI, Payment and Payroll Instructions, of the Procedure issued from Harrisburg under which they were required to operate. The various officers who made overtime a routine seemed so genuinely surprised at the existence of these requirements that we quote them, so far as pertinent.

"ITEM 4. REGULAR WEEKLY PAYROLLS

Weekly payrolls will be prepared on WD Form PR-151 'Payroll for Personal Services' for every employe on every type of project who is not paid on a budget deficiency basis. All persons appearing on these payrolls are to be considered as non-relief workers."

At this point, the discussion of Item 4, Regular Weekly Payrolls, is divided into two classifications, A. Administrative Payrolls, with which we are here concerned, and B. Payrolls for all employes other than administrative and those paid on a Budget Deficiency Basis, which are discussed in their separate features. We continue the quotation from page 5, under the heading of A. Administrative Payrolls, quoting only the first Paragraph:

"Employes on Administrative projects must be on a weekly salary basis, and will be paid on the basis of days or half days worked, five and one-half (5½) days constituting a standard week. The time for Administrative employes must be designated on the payroll by showing a '1' or '½' in Column 6, (WD Form PR-151) under the days worked, indicating full days or half days worked."

Omitting balance of the procedure relating specifically to Administrative Payroll, and all of the second division, referring to employes "other than administrative," we come to where Item 4, Regular Weekly Payrolls, returns to directions for working conditions upon both administrative and nonadministrative payrolls, having completed discussion of the separate peculiarities of each. And we quote from Page 12 as follows:

"Hours of work for employes appearing on Payroll for Personal Services." (WD Form PR 151) shall be in accordance with the following schedule:

Project Classification	Regular Projects Days per week	Regular Projects Hours per day	Regular Projects Hours per week	Special Projects Days per week	Special Projects Hours per day	Special Projects Hours per week
Work	5	7*	36	6	6	36
Professional and Non-Manual	5	7*	36	5½	7	38½
Educational	5	6	30	5½	7	38½
Administrative	5½	7	38½	....	.....	.....

*Eight (8) hours are worked every Wednesday.

It was suggested by Mr. Mills that in his opinion this did not apply to the Administrative Payroll, but only to the Works Division. It specifically, in the last line, covers the Administrative Payroll, and further specifies hours of work for employes appearing on Payroll for Personal Services, and to leave no doubt identifies that payroll as WD Form PR 151, being the same payroll which the above quoted first general paragraph of Item 4 requires for these employes, and in fact the identical one upon which every one of them was entered.

We again quote from the same document, now from page 13:

"In an emergency involving public welfare or protection of work already done, the above standard hours may be exceeded. A complete explanation of the emergency must appear on the payroll (WD Form PR-151) or the Earnings Statement (WD Form L-18A)."

"Any exceptions to the above standard working hours must be specifically authorized by the S. E. R. B., Harrisburg.

It is beyond question that never once was there specific authorization for violation of these specified hours, and that their violation was constant. Nor were they reported as required.

The method adopted was not that specified in the regulations, but to make up the payrolls regularly with knowledge of their falsity to show that each employe had regularly worked exactly the number of hours he was forbidden to exceed. If he missed a day, that fact was shown, and he was docked in his pay. If he worked regularly 12 or 14 hours a day, the records were falsified to show the 7 permitted, and he was paid for only the 7.

In using this word falsification, we intimate no intention to deceive. The attitude of the local authorities was that Harrisburg, without being asked for specific authorization for violation of the regulations, knew that violation was constant, and hence that it was entirely legitimate to work the employe for eight or ten or twelve hours, regularly, in violation of the regulations, if only the payrolls were falsified, with no intent to deceive, and with the full knowledge of everybody concerned, to show on their face a compliance.

And these are the people who dismissed, for "fibbing," a young lady who had the courage to sue a Philadelphia faxicab company against the advice of Miss Scott and the Pittsburgh Railways Company, when their own payroll truthfully showed her absent one day, and hence not paid, and their own payroll had falsely showed her working seven hours a day for several years during which, with their knowledge, she, like everybody else, worked overtime very regularly, and was not paid for it! Can it be that "fibbing" is reprehensible only when not approved by the Pittsburgh Railways Company?

The Committee is convinced that these officials, somehow, misinterpreted the requirements as to Administrative Payroll on WD Form PR-151 as not applying to Administrative Payroll on WD Form PR-151, and hence did not realize that overtime was unlawful unless specifically authorized by the S. E. R. B. But the officials certainly could not help knowing that the record of time worked was false as a matter of routine, even though with no intent to deceive. Fibbing? Perish the thought.

It is utterly obvious that no organization could function with any degree of morale or efficiency, when working conditions were of this nature.

The whole thing may have been an emergency. But it was a continuing emergency, made such by conflicting and everchanging programs, rules, and supplies, and plans. Again, the remedy is in giving power and authority to the A. C. E. R. B. and permitting it to work out local problems in view of local conditions, with the S. E. R. B. interfering as little as possible, and confining itself as much as possible to keeping the local Boards advised as far in advance as possible of what funds will be available to them.

Overpayments of Rent Relief

Merely as an illustration of the prevailing inefficiency, it may be noted that during the short period when "Rent Relief" (mailing to landlords of checks covering slightly more than taxes on property occupied by relief families) was in effect, more than 200 cases of overpayments are known to have occurred. The surface explanation is that the overworked staff of visitors and supervisors did not discover that the party had moved out, or had not moved in, or whatever may have been the cause why payments were improper, until one or more monthly checks had been mailed out wrongfully. Some of this money has been recovered. Much of it will not be. No suits have been brought. It is doubtful whether the returns from suits would pay the expense. Many landlords feel entirely justified in retaining the excess checks, on the ground that they had possibly had their property used by relief families without compensation for years, and that this slight technical excess does not compensate for the much longer loss. Here, the remedy is in public education as to what is permissible, and likewise in reconsideration of the entire relief system to determine what is most equitable and should be permitted. And the further remedy is in arriving at a plan for relief and adhering to it long enough to permit the staff to familiarize themselves with it, in having one unified relief administration for the County instead of disconnected units reporting only to Harrisburg, and in having an adequate staff capable of maintaining proper investigation.

Unequal State Distribution of Surplus Commodities

Unquestionably determination of the proportion in which relief funds and commodities are to be distributed to the various Counties, in view of need, local conditions, local supplies, etc., is a very important feature of the work of the S. E. R. B. under the statute, and should be continued.

However, a fertile source of complaint from among the ranks of relief claimants is a discrimination in this regard, frequently blamed upon the A. C. E. R. B., which has no powers in the matter. Merely as illustrative, we quote from the testimony of one representative of a group of relief claimants:

> "S. E. R. B. has not made an equal distribution of surplus commodities in Pennsylvania, having had shipped into Philadelphia the following items offered by Federal Surplus Relief Corporation for month of November, 1934—800,000 pounds of sugar, 400,000 yards of sheeting, 629,736 yards of Huck toweling, and 224,280 yards of Terry toweling. Not one of these items were furnished relief clients in Allegheny County."

Cash Relief

Allegheny County has recently followed Philadelphia into the system of giving one weekly check to each family, which theoretically covers subsistence for the week, including in the calculation items for each necessary element of subsistence. Once the check arrives, it belongs to the recipient, who may spend it as he pleases. Under the budget deficiency system, the last thing done in calculating the amount of the check is to deduct 20% therefrom, it being previously a theoretical minimum for subsistence. Regardless of amount, the needy recipient could hardly help being outraged at the way the calculation is phrased in this regard.

The system is much more expensive than commodity relief from the point of view of the relief clients, since the sums represent, on milk, coal, etc., prices at which the state could buy the commodities wholesale, but prices at which the recipients can not buy the same commodities at retail. The same thing applies to clothing, bedding, or almost anything of similar nature. Its advantage, from the point of view of the recipients, is having everything in one check, with less bother, and in individual freedom to do as they please with the amount, instead of having to haggle with an interviewer as to the items. It tends towards a more independent and self respecting attitude on the part of the family,—or would if it were adequate. If unwisly spent, it is gone. There is constant danger from this source. Considering the amount allowed, wise spending is almost impossible.

From the point of view of the taxpayer, the experience in both Allegheny and Philadelphia Counties has been that the cash relief system increases expense of relief by about 25%.

With cash relief checks remaining at the same scale, and the vast and continuing increase in the cost of necessaries, continuation of cash relief would seem to be in danger of putting the needy relief recipient into a desperate situation. Actual experience on the part of purveyors, corroborated by representatives of the unemployed, indicate a decrease of about 30% in purchases of necessaries since the system was adopted.

The ideal system, from the point of view of the relief recipient, and assuming the taxpayer to be of infinite capacity, would be to make such enormous increases in relief appropriations as to enable cash relief to be continued at an increasing scale, to keep up with the cost of living, and to permit relief recipients, from their weekly checks, to provide themselves with all necessities and occasional comforts. One relief organization, after much investigation, estimates the amount necessary at present prices (and they continue to rise) at 25% of what is now being paid. Nor would this supply any degree of luxury. But, in view of the fact that approximately 25% of the population is now living at the expense of the taxpayers, it would seem that the final result of 250% increase in the present expense would be that, after the taxpayers had starved to death, the relief recipients would cease to be relief recipients, and their situation, like that of the taxpayers, would be worse than it is now.

Cash relief, at best, is not suited to some communities, and we have all sorts of communities in Allegheny County. An illustration appears in the town of Coulter, without gas or electricity. Coal is necessarily used for cooking, and when it is shut off for the summer, under uniform rules because furnaces are not needed, then money needed for food must go for coal. Medical attention cannot be had, at the allowance nominally covering it, and hardships are multiplied under cash relief because of peculiar local conditions. The medical problem is not confined to Coulter, and may require salaried physicians.

What is very badly needed is a careful study of the best methods of distributing relief, for Allegheny County, and with recognition that different systems in different parts of Allegheny County, in view of the great dissimilarity in local conditions, will probably be required. Probably no one can now state definitely what that best system is.

With knowledge that the taxpayer can not possibly bear the burden of providing all the relief that is desirable, and with knowledge that cash relief under a system of rising prices can only result in making the relief recipients neglect some necessaries in favor of others, purchasing at retail not what they need, but only what they can, it would seem that some modification of this plan will become necessary. It is ventured that some combination of cash and commodity relief will eventually be found the best.

In the matter of coal, several experiments were tried. All proved unsatisfactory for one reason or another. An elaborate system was designed by representatives of all three of the important coal dealer groups in the County, which would seem to be capable of furnishing coal much cheaper than any other method, of the very best quality, in full quantity, and with an incidental check upon the necessity for and use of the coal, and on the family situation in general, with no expense for these additional services. The plan is discussed in detail in the testimony of Mr. R. F. Sanguini. In the opinion of the Committee, the plan should be adopted. It never was tried at all.

A somewhat similar arrangement could probably be made as to milk. Under the present system, relief clients receive in their weekly cash allotments a sum theoretically ascribed to milk, and at which it is known they can not actually buy the milk. Milk consumption has been greatly reduced, and malnutrition is increasing.

It is axiomatic that wholesale purchasing of almost any commodity can be done at a great saving over retail purchasing. There has never been any effort to take bids for large supplies of food and clothes. Shoes were at one time supplied to the local Board through Harrisburg, which obtained them at wholesale and allocated them to the Counties. The difficulty was in obtaining from Harrisburg the filling of orders given in correct sizes and amounts, and at the necessary times. After need had been determined, and shoes promised on assurance from Harrisburg that they were available, the wrong sizes would arrive, and that too late. The result was the development of an immense amount of ill feeling among relief recipients who thought they had been defrauded by the A. C. E. R. B.

Commissary System

To some slight extent a commissary system has been tried experimentally, but on too small a scale to give indication of its value.

A suggestion has come to the Committee which is not submitted as a sure cure, but is suggested as well worthy of consideration. It is reported to have brought satisfactory results in Milwaukee for a number of years. The plan involves wholesale buying of large and diverse kinds of food, clothes, bedding, etc., allowing low prices and considerable choice. A visitor calls on the family and takes orders for what will be needed for the coming week, within the allowable budget, but allowing considerable individual selection in accordance with individual tastes and needs. The orders are taken on one blank for the family, on which the choices are noted. The following week, the family call at the commissary, and find everything ordered wrapped in one bundle under the family name. This seems to provide the low prices only available at wholesale with the individual choice and lack of complexity available from the cash relief system. Combined with the Sangaini plan of coal distribution, and a somewhat similar plan for milk (which could be much less complicated), it would seem well worthy of consideration by the A. C. E. R. B.

Unquestionably, it should reduce the cost of adequate subsistence for the relief families. Unquestionably they are not obtaining adequate subsistence under the present system. Unquestionably, the taxpayers can not afford to provide adequate subsistence for them under the present system. Complete satisfaction cannot be obtained under any system, in view of the impossibility of satisfying at the same time the legitimate need of the taxpayer to be mulcted as little as possible, and the legitimate need of the relief recipient to receive as much as possible, within reason.

Other Problems Requiring Flexibility

The whole matter of relief eligibility needs much more study, and seems to need more flexibility. It has constantly fluctuated. Innumerable complaints have come to the Board that claimants were refused relief of one kind or another where it had been given under identical circumstances. The answer would be that the rulings had changed. All these were illustrated to the Committee by complaint after complaint, to which were added descriptions apparently showing the rankest injustice. The reply from the relief authorities would be that that situation could not occur, but that if it did, it must have been before March 16, or February 18, or some other date. The impression left with the Committee was that of attempting to discover stability, rhyme, or reason, in ever shifting sand. To the similar impression more deeply forced upon the minds of relief claimants may be ascribed a large amount of the bitterness and antagonism existing among them. Nor can the A. C. E. R. B. be blamed, to any large extent. Experiment was necessary, and much of it was superimposed from Harrisburg and Washington.

The budget deficiency seems to center these problems. Income is deducted from budget deficiency. But what is such income? Is it gross or net income? Has a property owner, receiving just enough rent to pay taxes, insurance, and repairs, and possibly interest on his mortgage, and income? A small business man has some income, and expenses as large or larger. Shall he be forced out of the business in which he is trying to be self-supporting, and may be if conditions improve only slightly, and made to depend solely on the taxpayers for support, as the price of receiving any relief at all? Or would the taxpayers be required to subsidize a losing business in addition to granting relief? All these are questions not yet solved. They go far deeper than consideration of an individual case would indicate. They have been treated as state problems and subjected to varying rules of necessarily much injustices in individual cases. To the Committee they seem rather to be matters of local concern, to which the answer should be reached with some discretion, and in view of peculiar local conditions incapable of statewide solution.

Work Relief

To some supposedly fortunate relief recipients, comes opportunity for "work relief." If they obtain it, they receive their entire budget deficiency for the period. Otherwise, through no fault of their own, they are penalized 20% of the bare necessities of life, in theory. This way of stating it is idiotic. Were the same amounts to be distributed and called a 20% bonus for those working, there would not be half the dissatisfaction, inadequate though they might remain.

Mr. Mills testifies that there are very few cases of refusal to accept work relief.

Mr. Reppert testifies that the increase of 20% for working is so small that the men get discouraged, and have no spirit.

This accords with statements of men on the relief rolls made to the Committee. As an illustration, a man of apparent intelligence, and certainly of honest intentions, remarked to counsel for the Committee that he received relief of approximately $7.20 per week, and had been offered work which would give him about $9.00. His question was: "Why should I work for them for $1.80 a week? I should be getting $7.60 instead of the $7.20 they give me. They are chiseling me out of 40 cents every week, and then they want me to work for $1.80 a week. Until they are willing to give me part of their $6,000 a year salaries, they need not expect me to work for them for $1.80 a week."

The wrong attitude? Certainly. But logical from his point of view. Of course the taxpayers are furnishing him with the $7.20, and if he should be getting $7.60, the taxpayers are not responsible. But if he works, he can only get enough to bring himself up to the "budget deficiency," and he gets 80% of that for no work at all, whereas he must work sufficiently to earn 100% to obtain the other 20%.

For some reason, about 25% of those assigned to a work relief project fail to appear. One explanation suggested is that when carfare, etc., are deducted, the difference is hardly enough incentive to do 100% work for 20% pay when 80% pay is available anyhow.

Work relief is only given sufficient to bring the man up to 100% budget deficiency. There is no incentive to excellence, since when that has been obtained he must give the work to another. The turnover on projects is enormous and expensive. Just as a man is broken in at the job, a new man takes his place and must be broken in afresh. The purpose of spreading the work and avoiding pauperization to some extent is achieved. But these work relief projects are the most expensive method of construction. Of course this applies to efficiency on the job, not the work relief purpose.

Having most public works done in this manner results in cutting down opportunities for non-relief labor, and in forcing upon relief rolls men who would otherwise be self-supporting. And, in the new relief programs of public works, if work is to be confined to those on the relief rolls, the tendency will be to force upon relief rolls men who would otherwise be self-supporting upon these jobs, and do them more efficiently and cheaper for the taxpayers, merely because accepting relief dole is the only doorway left open to employment.

In pointing out these questions, the Committee is by no means solving the various problems, but is pointing out that the problems are not solved, and that more expenditure of funds on relief or on work projects will not alone solve them.

One definite suggestion in this connection is that every effort should be made to have the public list work opportunities with the A. C. E. R. B., and that if suitable men are found on relief rolls who refuse to accept suitable employment offered in this way from private sources, they should at once be dropped from the relief rolls. If they do accept the employment, they will at once cease to be part of the unemployment problem, and be in position, through their taxes, direct and indirect, to help in the support of the unemployed.

Another suggestion is that, for eligibility for work upon public works programs, while need for employment should doubtless be considered, appearance upon relief rolls need not, perhaps, be a sine qua non as to eligibility for employment. As much is accomplished with the problem of unemployment relief if a worker can be kept from the relief rolls as if he be taken therefrom, and the increase in efficiency would make the burden upon the taxpayer who must pay for these public works somewhat less in proportion.

Conclusion

Necessarily, owing to the short time available, and the enormity of the field of study, your Committee has merely scratched the surface in its investigations. But it had been startled at the agreement on fundamental facts which appeared beneath the divergent and antagonistic viewpoints presented.

Your Committee recommends no startling changes in legislation, though it does recommend that the representatives of the people keep a closer check upon the operation of this gigantic business which has crept upon us, and which we have not yet learned how to control.

Your Committee definitely recommends that the A. C. E. R. B. be given definite and large powers as to the method and manner of relief administration in Allegheny County, to the end that it may adapt itself to local conditions, not merely throughout the County but varying within the County when necessary, without interference from Harrisburg except in exceptional circumstances as to the method adapted; your Committee recommends immediate change in the organization of relief in Allegheny County, to provide for unified control under one head, responsible to the A. C. E. R. B., and who shall have under his control and responsibility the entire organization over everything except the Public Relations Office; and your Committee recommends enlargement and increased powers for the Public Relations Office, as herein set forth, with responsibility by it only to the A. C. E. R. B. Your Committee recommends that these changes be put into effect immediately by the S. E. R. B., and that the later confine itself, so far as possible, to determination of the funds to become available, from every source, so far in advance as possible, and to equitable allocation thereof among the Counties, leaving the manner of their expenditures, so far as possible, to be determined by County Boards in accordance with local conditions, but subject to such changes in said County Boards as may become indicated as necessary, should they fail to function with such satisfaction to the legitimate relief case and to the taxpayer as may be possible in view of their conflicting interests.

And your Committee recommends to the consideration of the House, of the S. E. R. B., and of the A. C. E. R. B., the detailed suggestions contained in this Report, which are suggestions only, in view of the Investigation and the facts brought out therein, but which are believed to be worthy of experimental adoption, in the effort to arrive at a satisfactory solution of the problem, which has certainly not as yet been reached.

EXTRACTS OF VARIOUS MINUTES OF THE ALLEGHENY COUNTY EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD

ALLEGHENY COUNTY
Emergency Relief Board
321 Penn Avenue
Pittsburgh, Pa.

April 30, 1935.

Hon. John J. O'Keefe, Chairman,
House Investigating Committee,
House of Representatives,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Honorable Sir:

We are enclosing four copies of a brief which we would like to file as a part of the record of the information obtained by your Committee. This brief is in two parts.

Part I covers extracts from the Minutes of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, with supporting exhibits, being copies of letters and telegrams taken from our files. We feel that this part of the brief will show you that the County Board had informed itself of the relief situation in Allegheny County and that time and again had taken positive action in an endeavor to relieve distress and improve the efficiency of the organization.

Part II of the brief is submitted in order to possibly clarify some of the testimony that was submitted based on a very hurried reading of the testimony.

We appreciate the opportunity of submitting this brief and trust that it will be of value in the final preparation of your report.

Respectfully yours,

GEO. P. MILLS,
Executive Director.

PART I

Extracts from the Minutes of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, with supporting exhibits, being copies of letters and telegrams taken from the files.

Meeting of February 4, 1933.

Subject:—"Feeding in Schools"

"Mr. Oliver reported meeting with the Governor at which the subject of obtaining State funds for feeding children in the schools was discussed. Upon his pointing out to the Governor that funds for providing milk in the schools for school children had been approved, whereas funds for feeding children in the same way had not been approved, the Governor stated that he would refer the matter again to the Attorney-General.

Upon motion of Sen. Harris, seconded by Mrs. Rauh, Mr. Oliver was authorized to appoint a committee of three persons, including two lawyers who would be delegated to confer with the Attorney-General on the subject."

Meeting of March 18, 1933.

Subject:—"Shoes"

"Mr. Mills reported on the situation involving shoe distribution, stating that the State had placed an order for 150,000 pairs of shoes, to be followed by a second order for 150,000 pairs. That of the first allotment Allegheny County is to obtain 25,000 pairs of shoes. He stated that 12,500 pairs of this amount have been received and that the additional amount had been promised next week. Mr. Mills further advised that it was his understanding that on the second allotment Allegheny County will obtain 15,000 to 20,000 pairs of shoes probably about April 15th. That up to the first of May there would be possibly 40,000 pairs of shoes to distribute. Stated that in his contracts with the State authorities he had learned that beyond the orders placed by the State as above described, they have no idea what they will do. Further informed the members of the County Board that the number allotted to Allegheny County will be entirely inadequate as orders have already been written for some 35,000 pairs of shoes. He stated that in January an estimate had been made for the following six months ending with June which indicated that 90,000 pairs of shoes would be required for the City and County. That the 45,000 pairs which would be received from the State would leave a gap of 45,000 pairs. It was estimated by Mr. Mills that about 20,000 pairs of shoes would be required immediately in the City at a cost of about $35,000.

"It was moved that the allotment of shoes which is expected to be received within the next week shall be used entirely in the County outside the City; that the City funds be called on to furnish shoes in the City during that period and that a committee composed of Major Miller, Col. McGovern and Major Mathews exhaust the possibilities of securing funds from the Poor Board or the County Commissioners.

"It was estimated that the sum of $35,000 would be required for shoe purchases in the City; that a blanket ordinance which had been passed would cover this. Mrs. Rauh was instructed to make the proper requisitions upon Col. Dunlap, Director of Supplies of the City of Pittsburgh so that bids for shoes could be taken."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 1)

Meeting of March 18, 1933.

Subject:—"City Funds for Supplementary Relief"

"The financial situation was discussed with a view to securing funds from the City.

"On motion of Mr. Casey, seconded by Senator Harris, it was moved that City Council be requested to arrange for the disposal of $500,000 of the direct relief bonds to protect the city against the exhaustion of State and Federal funds which threatens as of April 1st."

NOTE: The above request was made and favorably acted upon by Council.

Meeting of April 1, 1933.

Subject:—"Shoes"

"Reporting on the shoe situation in the City, Mr. Mills advised that considerable pressure was being brought to bear by the family relief agencies due to the lack of shoes. That it was his understanding that bids would have to be advertised for which would entail a delay of from two to three weeks. Messrs. Herron and Mathews agreed to look into this situation with a view to obviating any needless delay in obtaining of the shoes."

Subject:—"Milk"

"In regard to a letter under date of March 28, 1933, submitted by the Operating Committee to the County Board on the subject of "Milk Distribution," Mr. Mills reported this matter was being brought to the attention of the State Emergency Relief Board through a letter submitted to Senator Harris who was to present same at the State Board meeting. That the purpose of the letter is that the Emergency Association wishes to go on record that there is a great difference between the amount of money expended in the city and that expended in the County."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 2)

Meeting of April 8, 1933.

Subject:—"Inadequacy of Relief Funds"

"The Chairman announced that the Governor has called a conference of legislative leaders to consider the ultimatum presented to them at Washington with regard to the State's furnishing relief before funds are given by the Federal Government. The question was raised as to whether it was thought advisable by the County Board to address a letter to the Governor who is calling the conference, re-iterating telegram which was sent to the State Board last week on the inadequacy of the proposed Twenty Million Dollars and the urgent need for immediate action.

"Mr. Oliver was directed to address such a letter to the Governor as representing the views of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board."

NOTE: (See Exhibits 2 and 3) 3A; also 4.

Meeting of April 8, 1933.

Subject:—"Undernourishment among Children"

"The subject of malnutrition more particularly among children was discussed. The Chairman suggested Dr. Price have a committee of doctors assemble available information from the Public Health Nursing Association and the school authorities on this subject."

NOTE: This discussion was one of the forerunners for the formation of the Emergency Child Health Committee.

Subject:—"Unification of Administration under the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board"

"With reference to the unification plan for the administration of relief submitted to the State Emergency Relief Board by Mr. A. K. Oliver in letter under date of April 3, 1933, the following Resolution was passed at the meeting of the State Emergency Relief Board, April 5, 1933:—"Upon motion of General Shannon, seconded by General Martin, it was 'RESOLVED, That the Board hereby approves the unification plan presented by the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board.'"

Meeting of April 15, 1933.

Subject:—"Elimination of Commissary at Tarentum"

"It was reported by Mr. Mills that he had been requested by Mr. Titus of the Allegheny Valley Emergency Relief Association to present to the County Board the fact that they are quite willing if the County Board thinks best, to discontinue the commissary and put Allegheny Valley on the basis of food orders as is the balance of the County. It was reported that the people of the Allegheny Valley, particularly the small grocers are very much incensed about the Community Market Plan. Mr. Mills reported he had been advised by Mr. Titus that money had been spent in making a wholesale warehouse available but thought some of the fixtures could be liquidated which would take some time in the event the commissary was discontinued.

"It was moved that the State Board be notified by letter that it is the opinion of the County Board that the Community Market in Tarentum should be discontinued and the Tarentum District be handled as is the rest of the County, i. e., on a food order basis. Mr. Mills was directed by the Chairman to so advise the State Board by letter."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 5). This action was approved by the State Board and the Commissary was closed.

Meeting of April 15, 1933.

Subject:—"Water Shut-offs"

"The matter of water shut-offs in the County was brought to the attention of the Board, it being stated that Glassport has 80 to 100 houses without water service; also the same condition applies in communities in the Ohio Valley District and that this situation has been going on for several months. Mr. Mills reported these instances have been called to the attention of the Borough officials.

That in the case of Glassport and Ben Avon the borough officials have advised their boroughs are bankrupt and have no funds to provide water. Mr. Mills further advised this matter had been taken up with the County Poor Board who advised they were unable to remedy the situation.

"Mr. Mills was directed, as representing the County Board to write a letter to the State Health Department calling their attention to this condition and also the fact that no money is available, suggesting that the condition be investigated by the State Health Department."

Meeting of April 22, 1933.

Subject:—"Shoes"

"The shoe situation in the City and County was discussed, Mr. Mills stating that the Operating Committee of the Emergency Association had referred the entire subject of shoes to the County Board with the request that they refer same to the State Board. Mr. Mills read list as to shoe requirements. Stated that at the present time there is available approximately 26,000 pairs of shoes from the $35,000 Bond Issue of the City and that the allotment from the State is 22,233 pairs making a total of 48,233 pairs now available. That the City from October 24th to December 31, 1932, has expended $63,263.03 for shoes and from January 3, 1933, to date the sum of $36,726.11 or a grand total of $99,989.14. That the Poor Board in the County expended $90,788.78 for shoes in 1932 and $84,061.30 in 1933 with an additional $11,470.60 for shoe repairs. It was felt that if the available shoes are distributed in the City, some provision should be made for the County distribution. Mr. Mills reported he had written the Poor Directors and the County Commissioners but had received no reply. Mr. Oliver suggested that the situation be called to the attention of the State Board by Mr. Mills, asking that they appropriate additional funds for shoes."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 6)

Subject:—"Medical Care"

"The inadequacy of hospital facilities for the caring of maternity cases and cases of venereal disease was called to the attention of the Board by Mrs. Irish who reported that both the Magee and the Southside Hospitals are overcrowded to such an extent that they cannot take on additional cases. It was further reported that the County pays $5.00 to the doctor on these cases but the City makes no payment.

"Mr. Oliver instructed that Mrs. Irish on behalf of the Board take this matter up with Dr. Price, Medical Advisor of the Board."

NOTE: This discussion resulted in City Council appropriating money for maternity care for relief cases in the City of Pittsburgh.

Meeting of April 29, 1933.

Subject:—"Water Shut-offs"

"Mr. Mills reported a recent survey of water shut-offs in the County revealed approximately 600 to 700 client families without water service in their houses. That the State Health Department had been contacted on this matter but advise they have no jurisdiction. Mr. Oliver requested that Mr. Mills furnish him with a list showing the names of water companies serving communities where service has been discontinued, together with the name of the President of the company involved, in order that a letter from the County Board making the request that service be re-established might be written to the President of each company."

NOTE: These letters were written with the result that some water service was re-instated although not all.

Meeting of May 6, 1933.

Subject:—"Shoes"

"Mr. Mills reported that he had been directed by the Operating Committee to approach the Poor Directors on the shoe situation. That a letter had previously been written to the State Board outlining the need for shoes as previously discussed to the effect that the need in Allegheny County represented about 60,000 pairs a month. Mr. Mills reported the receipt of a reply from Mr. Biddle, stating that at the present time there are no additional funds in sight for shoes, certainly not until the relief legislation is completed. Mr. Mills read to the County Board the letter he had written to the Poor Directors pointing out to them the shoe situation."

NOTE: (See Exhibits 7 and 8)

Meeting of May 13, 1933.

Subject:—"Administration Expense"

"In this connection Mr. Oliver reported that the letter written on the subject of "Administration Expense" has never been presented to the State Board. That he had been requested by Mr. Biddle to appear before the State Board next week and personally express the attitude of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board as to administration expenses. Mr. Oliver also reported that on the items of shoes and clothing Mr. Biddle is making a recommendation to the State Board to provide money. It was also reported by Mr. Oliver that Mr. Biddle had approved of the plan of a centralized relief agency and suggested that it go forward."

Meeting of May 20, 1933.

Subject:—"Shoes"

"Mr. Mills advised of the receipt of a letter dated May 19, 1933 from the Directors of the Poor in regard to shoes. Stated the letter was to the effect that at a meeting of the County Poor Board held on May 18, 1933 with all members of the Board present, it was decided that the Board were unable to furnish any shoes at this time owing to the fact that they had expended Sixty Thousand Dollars over and above their set-up in the budget."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 9)

Meeting of June 9, 1933.

Subject:—"Inadequacy of Funds"

"Mr. Mills read copy of a letter sent to the State Emergency Relief Board dated June 1st, protesting the reduction of 20% in relief appropriation for June. Mr. Oliver advised that inasmuch as the State Board held no meeting last week, no action as yet has been taken on the letter. In this connection Mr. Oliver read to the Board a telegram received by Mr. Casey from Mr. W. Logan McCoy, Chairman of the Philadelphia County Board requesting the cooperation of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board in appearing before the State Board at their next meeting to protest the reduction.

"On motion of Major Mathers, seconded by Mrs. Irish, it was moved that the matter of cooperation with the Philadelphia County Board and the presentation of the situation in Allegheny County be referred to a committee composed of Mr. Casey and Mr. Oliver. The Chairman, Mr. Oliver requested that Dr. Price write him as Chairman of the County Board giving his idea as to the effect of the reduction from a health standpoint."

NOTE: (See Exhibits 10 and 11)

Meeting of June 16, 1933.

Subject:—"Miscellaneous Supplies"

"The Board were advised by Mr. Mills that in the City such items as coal stoves, lamps, medicines, medical supplies and other emergency items in the past have been taken care of from the Bond Fund. In the County (there being no public money set up to take care of these items) they have so far been taken care of by the agencies from their Welfare funds. Stated that at the last meeting of the County Board a letter from Mr. Irish of the Family Society of Allegheny County had been presented, indicating that after June 15th this agency would be unable to continue making such expenditures. Mr. Mills stated he had been instructed by the Emergency Association to address the Poor Directors of Allegheny County on this subject, requesting that they provide a sum of money for the furnishing of these items for the balance of the year."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 12)

Subject:—"Elimination of Commissary and Inadequacy of Funds"

"Letters addressed to the State Emergency Relief Board and to the Governor advocating the discontinuance of the commissary at Tarentum and placing this district on the basis of the food order system as in use in the rest of the County were submitted by Mr. Oliver for the approval of the County Board. These communications met with the approval of the Board.

"Messrs. Oliver and Casey reported on their recent visit to Harrisburg where they appeared before the State Board to protest the reduction of 20% in the amount of relief grant for June."

Meeting of June 23, 1933.

Subject:—"Miscellaneous Supplies"

"Inquiry was made of Major Miller as to the action taken by the Poor Board relative to letter addressed to them by Mr. Mills requesting that they provide funds for the purchase of stoves, medicines, medical supplies, etc. in the County, heretofore purchased from their private funds by the agencies. Major Miller advised this matter would be taken up by his Board tomorrow; that it had been temporarily but not definitely tabled pending their ability to provide funds. Major Miller advised his Board had provided for the filling of some 5900 prescriptions last month. It was stated by Mr. Mills that the Family Welfare Association now being financially unable to assume the cost of such necessities were providing same and billing the Emergency Association for payment through private funds. It was the consensus of opinion of the Board that this practice should be discontinued and that before any purchases are made the approval of the Emergency Association should first be secured. Mr. Mills was instructed to notify the agencies to this effect."

Meeting of June 30, 1933.

Subject:—"Inadequacy of Relief"

"It was reported by Mr. Mills that there had been requested for food relief for July the sum of $1,457,700. That this request was based on 65,000 families or about 305.000 individuals at an average of $1.07 per individual and 8000 single individuals at $1.75 each. Stated that the sum of $1.250,000 was granted or a reduction of $207,700. Advised the request was based on an increase to the family individual of 17 cents and on the single individual on an increase from $1.50 to $1.75 per person. Further advised that the grant received was based on the case-load we estimated at the present rate of relief. Stated that as of the close of business this date (June 30th) it is estimated there will be a balance of $76.000 from June which will decrease the reduction to $131,700. Stated that some food orders are being written for a two week period and that therefore, as of this date, there has probably been written food orders to the extent of $90,000 for July consumption. Mr. Mills stated that it was his opinion that taking the grant of $1.250,000 plus the $76,000 balance, plus the fact that some orders have been written for July and plus a decrease in the case-load, sufficient funds will be had to increase the food budget for July up to the amount estimated, i. e., $1.07 per family individual and $1.75 per single individual.

"On motion of Major Miller, seconded by Dr. Hammers it was moved that the State Board be notified that after next Wednesday (July 5, 1933) food orders will be written on the basis of the new schedule submitted. providing word is not received contrary from the State Board, advising the State Board at the same time that this will not mean an additional grant for July."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 13)

Meeting of July 14, 1933.

Subject:—"Increase of Relief Denied"

"It was reported by Mr. Mills that he had received a phone call from Mr. Biddle on the previous day indicating that definite action had been taken by the State Board denying the increase of relief relative to which a letter had been written Mr. Biddle on July 3rd and again after the last meeting of the Operating Committee. Mr. Mills further reported that Mr. Biddle had indicated that he felt that further agitation of the subject would be unwise at the present time. That the State Board had met in Philadelphia last Wednesday. It was further reported by Mr. Mills that Mr. Biddle had indicated his intention of visiting Pittsburgh the early part of next week. After discussion it was decided that the question of increase in relief be not agitated pending Mr. Biddle's visit."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 14). For Clothing See Exhibits 16 and 17.

Meeting of July 28, 1933.

Subject:—"Increase of Relief"

"In this connection Mr. Oliver submitted to the Board a letter which he had prepared, addressed to Governor Pinchot, Chairman of the State Emergency Relief Board, this letter protesting the delay on the part of the State Emergency Relief Board to increase food relief in Allegheny County.

"On motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Major Miller, it was moved that this letter be approved and directed that it be sent to the Governor as of this date. It was also the consensus of opinion of the Board members that copies of letter be submitted to the newspapers for publication."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 15)

Meeting of August 25, 1933.

Subject:—"Increase of Relief"

"A recommendation of the Operating Committee to the County Board that consideration be given to increasing the amount of food orders now being distributed to those families which average less than 90 cents per person. to an amount that would average 90 cents per person, was submitted by Mr. Mills.

"On motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Mrs. Rauh, this recommendation was approved, Mr. Mills being requested to notify the agencies to put into effect."

Meeting of August 25, 1933.

Subject:—"Any Vendor Food Order"

"Mr. Mills advised of receipt of a letter from Mr. Biddle dated August 23rd on the subject of the writing of food orders on specified grocers, which he read to the County Board. This letter requests that plans be made to discontinue the specified grocery order on September 1st, or in any event not later than October 1st. Mr. Mills advised he has been requested to go to Harrisburg for the purpose of discussing method of writing food orders, the State Board insisting that this County go along with the balance of the State in writing food orders on any vendor. It was felt by members of the County Board that the present system of writing orders on a specified grocer presented a greater safeguard in the expenditure of public funds than the proposed method of writing orders on any vendor. It was the consensus of the meeting that Mr. Mills advise that the County Board are still unsold on the open order idea and wish to protest it."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 18)

Meeting of September 15, 1933.

Subject:—"Increase of Staff"

"As a matter of information Mr. Mills advised that at the Operating Committee meeting last Wednesday he had presented an estimate of the increased amount of Workers that would be necessary to cover the vulnerable territories with sufficient Aides to reduce the case-load down to about 85 to each Aide, which would mean the addition of some 110 Workers at a total cost of about $9.200.00. Advised he had in mind the preparation of a schedule for the State Board showing how rapidly these Workers were being placed if permitted to go ahead with the idea. Advised this increase in staff would not be uniform throughout the County; that the City districts would be heavily increased rather than districts like Duquesne and Braddock where a close check is maintained on the payrolls. Mr. Mills advised that if he proceeded with the plan it would probably mean an increase in administration expense of about $5.000 for October and some 55 people for the month. That in addition to this there is the possibility of the recommended salary schedule being put into effect. That in the main this salary schedule effects some 450 Aides only and the recommendation was that they be increased from $75.00 to $80.00 per month. Advised this would represent some $2.250.00 so that if the increase in the Aides salary were made plus recommendation that Staff be increased as per schedule, over October there would be needed approximately $7.250.00 to $7,500.00 over present salary scale. Mr. Mills requested the approval of the County Board of the general procedure and approval of this additional request.

"On motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Mr. Casey, it was moved that the general procedure as outlined by Mr. Mills be approved and also that the additional request be approved."

Meeting of September 15, 1933.

Subject:—"Clothing"

"As a matter of information Mr. Mills advised that he had again presented to the Operating Committee at their last meeting the need of clothing for school children of the City. That after deducting the amount of Red Cross materials available, an estimate of some $200.000.00 was arrived at for the city. Advised that it was the thought of the Operating Committee that this matter should be submitted to the State Board. In this connection Mr. Mills stated that the State Board had been notified as early as July of clothing requirements and that their reply had been to the effect that there were no funds available for such expenditures. Mr. Mills advised that it was the thought of the Operating Committee that the matter be again presented to the State Board. In a discussion of this subject it was the opinion of the County Board that united action with several other Counties would seem desirable, reference being made to a recent letter received from Judge Schaffer of the Berks County Board soliciting the cooperation of the Allegheny County Board along these lines. Mr. Casey pointed out that much good would result from continued co-ordination between the Allegheny County Board and the Philadelphia County Board especially due to conditions in the two Counties being comparable. Mr. Mills advised that after replying to the letter of Judge Schaffer he had heard nothing further; that he had again written him a letter several days ago. That if a reply was not received within a reasonable time he would phone Judge Schaffer and if his Board had no intention of participating in a joint action, he would contact some of the other larger Boards."

Meeting of September 22, 1933.

Subject:—"Administrative Staff"

"In this connection Mr. Mills read to the Board a letter which he had written to Mr. Biddle on the subject of Administrative Expense Grant for the month of October, this letter having attached thereto a copy of the full report of the experiment conducted in the Penn-Butler District."

NOTE: (See Exhibits 19 and 20)

Subject:—"Increase of Relief Withdrawn"

"As a matter of information Mr. Mills advised that after increased relief schedule had been put into effect on Monday he received a phone call from Mr. Biddle on Wednesday withdrawing the schedule. That Mr. Biddle advised that after making a check it was found the new schedule would require considerably more money than they had available. Mr. Mills advised he expects to receive a new schedule within a few days which he understands will be a compromise between the ninety cents and the amount the schedule allowed."

Meeting of December 8, 1933.

Subject:—"Coal"

"Explaining the procedure relative to Federal Replacement coal which is to be put into the City and County, Mr. Mills advised, as a matter of information, that bids had been opened on Tuesday to establish a delivery and handling charge. That with the assistance of the Code Authority and representatives of the F. E. R. A., a price of $1.25 per ton had been established in Allegheny County for the month of December. Mr. Mills explained that this does not include the price of coal but rather is for handling and delivery only. It was further explained that the purchase of coal will be made by the Code Authority in this area. That although the original specifications gave preference to rail-mines and rail-yards, it was found imperative to recognize truck mines so that after some negotiation he had established 50% truck mine and 50% rail and river delivery. It was further pointed out by Mr. Mills that he anticipated no delay on city coal. That the City coal would be held in reserve. In this connection Major Miller advised that the County Poor Board would also hold their coal in reserve and would discontinue the writing of orders on Monday, December 11."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 21)

Meeting of December 15, 1933.

Subject:—"Coal"

"As a matter of information Mr. Mills explained the steps that had been taken to provide relief coal in Allegheny County as follows: Prior to December 5 Mr. J. H. Thompson, Assistant to Mr. L. A. Sneed, Fuel Advisor to the Federal Relief Administration arrived in Pittsburgh to assist in setting up the procedure used in the distribution of coal. After his arrival a set of rules and regulations were received from Harrisburg outlining the general policy to be followed. In both the original Federal and State regulations it was quite clear that rail yards and rail mines only were contemplated in the distribution of coal. On his arrival in Pittsburgh, however, Mr. Thompson found that almost all of the rail coal had been distributed by trucking companies from the truck mines. It was felt then that it was necessary to recognize this source of supply. In accordance with the State Regulations all of the coal dealers possible were contacted and bids were opened for handling and delivering of fuel in this office at 11:00 o'clock Tuesday morning December 5. It was announced before the opening of the bids that the bids were being received for the purpose of establishing a fair price for the handling and delivery of coal in one ton lots and that the low bidder would not necessarily obtain the business. Further, in accordance with the State Regulations the bids were tabulated and copies of the bids were forwarded to Mr. William Nielander handling the coal situation for the State Emergency Relief Board. After a number of conferences with various coal dealers and associations of dealers, the Director, with the assistance of Mr. Thompson of Washington and Mr. B. H. Cannon, Secretary of the Code Authority made certain decisions which were later approved by Mr. Nielander of the State Emergency Relief Board. The main factors involved are:

"1. A price of $1.25 per ton was established as a fair handling and delivery charge;

"2. That 50% of the relief orders received would be sent to the Retail Coal Merchant's Association of Greater Pittsburgh for allotment to responsible rail and river yards without favor as to membership in this Association.

"That 50% of the orders would be sent to the Code Authority for allotment to truck mines who would be considered responsible by the Code Authority in having proper quality of coal and proper facilities, including tipples and scales for handling. The truck mines would be responsible for distributing orders to trucking companies and truckers who normally obtained coal from these mines."

Meeting of December 22, 1933.

Subject:—"Coal"

"As a matter of information Mr. Mills advised that bids are being requested for delivery of coal for January. That a committee consisting of representatives of truck mines, trucker's association and Retail Coal Merchants after several meetings have presented an allotment that they are requesting, i. e. 37½ per cent of the orders in each district to go to the Code Authority for allotment to the truck mines; 37½ per cent to be allotted to the Retail Coal Merchant's Association for delivery to rail and river yards and 25 per cent to go to the Coal Trucker's Association for the hauling of coal either from rail yards or truck mines. Mr. Mills further explained that letters have been written, explaining that bids would be taken not for the purpose of awarding the contracts but for the establishment of a fair price."

Meeting of January 6, 1934.

Subject:—"Shoes and Clothing'

"Reporting on clothing, shoes and rubbers, Mr. Mills advised that a few blankets had been received and that there is a small allotment of clothing coming through. That he has planned to distribute in the same manner as shoes, i. e. through the shoe distribution organization. That the State has indicated that the supply of shoes will be continued to keep the stock up to the amount of about 50,000 pairs. Mr. Mills further advised that if this supply is maintained he felt there would be ample shoe distribution. He also advised that he had on hand a stock of approximately 75,000 pairs of rubbers and that although he had provided a medium of distribution, relief clients in a number of instances for some unknown reason, were reluctant to accept rubbers."

Meeting of February 20, 1934.

Subject:—"Coal"

"Mr. Mills advised of notification from Mr. J. H. Thompson, Assistant Fuel Administer that after tomorrow night no more Federal Replacement coal orders could be written; that the Federal Replacement Coal Program had been terminated. Mr. Mills advised he had phoned Harrisburg and received confirmation of this. Advised that beginning Thursday morning it would be necessary to formulate some other plan for the supplying of coal. Mr. Mills advised that he had recommended to Mr. Marshall of the State Board that the County Board be permitted to establish a price and write an order on any vendor, giving order to client and permitting client to go to a mine or yard and get his coal. During the course of the County Board meeting Mr. Mills phoned Mr. Alvin H. Guyler, Field Director of the State Board, he suggesting that Mr. Mills direct a request to Mr. Biddle for a fuel allotment and proceed to write coal orders, the County Board to establish the best possible price for the coal for immediate delivery until March 1. At the request of the Chairman Messrs. H. L. Hudson, Secretary of the Retail Coal Dealers Association, Richard Sanguini and Edw. McCready of the Independent Trucker's Association and W. N. Murphy, Manager of the Mutual Supply Co. were summoned to appear before the County Board for the purpose of establishing a price on coal. After some discussion the following prices were agreed upon by the coal dealers:

"If coal orders allocated—$4.00 per ton

"If coal orders written on any vendor—$4.20 per ton.

"Mr. Hudson of the Retail Coal Dealer's Association while not definitely agreeing to the above price quotations, advised he was having a meeting with members of his organization this date and would advise Mr. Mills on Wednesday morning of the action taken. It was explained by Mr. Mills that for the time being the County Board are purchasing coal on a cash basis to be paid for from State funds, this to be effective until March first. During the course of the meeting Mr. Harman, representing the Coal Code Authority who had also been requested to attend the meeting with the County Board arrived and was advised by Mr. Mills of the action taken relative to the establishment of a price on coal."

Meeting of February 23, 1934.

Subject:—"Report of the Bell, Herzog, Mathews Committee"

"The report of the Committee consisting of Messrs. Bell, Herzog and Mathews was submitted to the County Board. After carefully considering the report, on motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Mrs. Irish, the following resolution was passed with instruction that the Chairman forward a copy thereof to Eric H. Biddle, State Director of Relief, with the request that he communicate it to the members of the State Board:

"RESOLVED, that the County Board unreservedly approves the report and, in view of the critical conditions now existing, respectfully insists that action on the recommendations contained in the report be taken by the State Board either at its next meeting on February 28th or at a special meeting to be held within a week of that date, at which the Committee and representatives from the County Board will be given an opportunity to appear in support of the recommendations made:

"That unless definite action on each recommendation be taken by the State Board on February 28th or, following that—a special meeting as suggested be called, the County Board feels that in justice to itself and those dependent upon it for relief it must release on March 1st for publication in the Pittsburgh newspapers the committee's report and a statement of the action taken with respect to it by the County and State Boards;

"That it is the unanimous feeling of all members of the County Board present at the meeting that unless a substantial part of the recommendations—particularly those with regard to personnel and quarters and equipment be approved by the State Board either on February 28th or at the special meeting referred to, then these members do not feel that they should be asked by the State Board to continue to accept the responsibility for the distribution of relief in Allegheny County under conditions which they believe render prompt and efficient distribution impossible."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 22)

Subject:—"Medical Care"

"The suggestion was made by Mrs. Irish that some provision be made for funds for continuing the handling of maternity cases before the present city fund is exhausted. In this connection Mr. Mills advised that the State Medical Program does not include hospitalization; that it calls for home delivery and is a contemplated plan on the basis of $20.00 per case. Advised there are no State funds for hospital cases.

"On motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Mrs. Irish, it was moved that an additional Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000) be transferred from the City Bond Fund for the handling of maternity cases, with the suggestion that where case is one requiring hospitalization the city funds be used for this purpose and where a case of home delivery, State funds be used."

NOTE: This action was taken by City Council.

Meeting of March 2, 1934.

Subject: "Supply of Cod Liver Oil"

"The Chairman presented a communication from the Public Health Nursing Association under date of February 28th, 1934 advising that at the annual meeting of that organization held on Tuesday, February 27th, 1934 a resolution was unanimously adopted requesting the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board to take steps toward the provision of Cod Liver Oil which is recognized as being essential in the diet of infants and children.

"In this connection Mr. Mills advised that a request could be made by the County Board through Director Hay to have the city purchase Cod Liver Oil and distribute to the eight city offices.

"On motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Mr. Oliver, it was moved that the Public Health Nursing Association be advised by letter that the City will be requested to purchase Cod Liver oil for relief cases only, to be distributed through the City District offices."

NOTE: This action was taken.

Subject:—"Coal"

"In discussing the coal situation Mr. Mills advised of a shortage of 2" lump coal. Stated that the dealers have a supply of 4" lump but that the price of this grade is $4.20 per ton. Advised that orders at a price of $4.20 per ton, written on any Vendor, would speed up coal deliveries.

"On motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Mrs. Irish, it was moved that coal orders for the month of March be issued on any vendor at a price of $4.20 per ton which has been authorized by Harrisburg."

Meeting of March 2, 1934.

Subject:—"Inadequacy of Funds"

"Reporting on food relief and administration grants for month of March, Mr. Mills advised there had been requested for food and milk on the basis of a five-week month the sum of $1,791,038.57. That the grant received was in the amount of $1,100,000. Advised further that as of Monday, March 5th not counting the $1,100,000. there is a deficit of $345,000. That if this deficit is deducted from the $1,100,000 there will be a balance of $754,000 for food and milk. That there are four weeks in which to write food and milk orders and on the basis of the present week are writing orders at the rate of approximately $310,000 per week. Mr. Mills advised further that there will be approximately $500,000 short for March, viz, there are enough funds to carry on to about March 21st.

"On motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Major Miller, it was moved that Mr. Mills notify the State Board at once of this condition in order that they may have ample notice of the deficit."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 23)

Meeting of March 6, 1934.

Subject:—"Coal"

"As a matter of information Mr. Mills reported having met with the coal dealers representatives this date and noifying them of the plan to begin writing coal orders on any vendor. Advised that they definitely approved that the State would obtain a discount of 10% under the code price. That a price of $4.00 per ton was established for coal coming from truck mines and $4.20 per ton on coal from rail yards with the further provision that if 20% discount on the rail transportation was granted that their price would be reduced 20 cents per ton to $4.00. Mr. Mills advised that while this matter pending, the price will be $4.00 per ton.

NOTE: (See Exhibit 24)

Meeting of March 13, 1934.

Subject:—"Rent Relief"

"Mr. Mills advised that the Relief Committee at their last meeting had suggested that the County Board bring to the attention of the public officials such as the County Commissioners and Directors of the Poor the grave situation facing Allegheny County on April first when private funds from which rent payments in cases of eviction were formerly made, will be exhausted. It was the opinion of the County Board that their first action should be to communicate this situation to Mr. Biddle and the State Board, in order to ascertain what position they will take on this question.

"On motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Mrs. Irish, it was moved that two telegrams be sent this date—one to Mr. Biddle and the other to the State Emergency Relief Board outlining the rent situation and making a request for funds."

NOTE: (See Exhibits 25 and 26)

Meeting of March 17, 1934.

Subject:—"Relief Funds"

"Referring to his statement at a recent County Board meeting relative to a deficit of funds for food and milk for March, Mr. Mills reported having requested of the State Board an additional food and milk grant for the balance of the month of March advised that he had yesterday received a telegram to the effect that no grant could be made due to the fact that no Federal funds available. That he had this date telephoned Harrisburg giving notification that unless a grant were approved or some arrangement made he would be obliged to immediately cease the writing of food orders. Mr. Mills advised he was instructed over the 'phone to continue the writing of orders."

Subject:—"Rent"

"Mr. Mills read a letter from Mr. Eric Biddle on the rent situation, this being in reply to telegrams and letters of Mr. Mills on this subject. This letter of Mr. Biddle is to the effect that the State Board while gravely concerned with the rent problem in Allegheny County deem it impractical to grant rent funds to Allegheny County in view of the uncertainty of funds, advising that the request of this county is one of many similar requests at this time. The letter further states that the State Board will be glad to reconsider the matter in the future when the State and National Relief Program is more clearly defined. Mr. Mills read to the County Board copies of telegrams sent to the State Board and Mr. Biddle on Tuesday, March 13th on the rent situation. It was suggested by Mr. Oliver that Mr. Biddle's letter be answered, acknowledging the decision of the State Board and also advising that it is not the function of the County Board to raise funds even if they so desired and that the private funds which have been used in the past for rent payments will be exhausted April 1st. That this situation will have to be faced on April 1st and that the burden of responsibility will rest with the State Board, also reminding that the State Board were formally notified of this situation on February 5th and that no action had been taken. It was suggested by Mr. Mills that before this letter be written the possibility of securing city funds be explored. It was the opinion of the County Board that Mr. Mills discuss this matter with the Operating Committee of the Emergency Association having in mind the possibility of using city bond issue funds for this purpose."

Meeting of April 13, 1934.

Subject:—"Rent Relief"

"Relative to the rent situation Mr. Lawrence read letter received from the Welfare Fund advising of provision for an advance of $10,000 but also advising that this $10,000 granted with the definite understanding that it is to be a stop-gap pending action on the rent situation by the State Board. Mr. Lawrence read to the County Board copy of letter written by himself to Mr. Biddle on the rent situation, requesting that sufficient funds be made available by the State Legislature; also read copy of letter written by himself to the Governor, stressing the need for rent payment and urging upon him the necessity of a Special Session of the Legislature. In this connection Mr. Mills reported that including the $10,000 advance from the Welfare Fund there was at present a $6,140.78 balance available for rent payment; that so far the current week the sum of $3,065.50 had been spent for rents which would mean that the fund would be exhausted in about 10 days. Advised that the Operating Committee had requested that he review items paid by the Emergency Association during 1933 up to the present time with the idea of requesting the State to reimburse the Emergency Association for certain expenditures that could have been assumed by the State in the light of what they are now assuming, with the understanding that the money received in reimbursement would be used in paying rents under the present schedule.

"On motion of Major Miller, seconded by Mrs. Irish, it was RESOLVED, that the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board urge the State Board to reimburse the Allegheny County Emergency Association in the sum of $66,768.91 for expenditures made for services and materials which might properly have been furnished by the State Board; with the understanding that the Allegheny County Emergency Association will use all funds so reimbursed to continue the payment of rents for relief families facing eviction until such time as funds for the payment of relief rents are made available out of State or Federal appropriations."

NOTE: (See Exhibits 27 and 28)

Meeting of May 11, 1934.

Subject:—"Rent Relief"

"On the subject of rent payments Mr. Mills reported that the Operating Committee at its last meeting voted to continue the payment of rents to the limit of the funds available; that when such funds are exhausted application be made to the Community Fund for the $8,260.00 balance which still remains of the first allowance for rents. Mr. Mills advised further that the State Board has again been notified that funds for the payment of rents will be exhausted by June 1st.

"On motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Mrs. Irish, it was moved that in view of the critical situation in Allegheny County with reference to the payment of rents and the danger involved of violence as a result of evictions and our inability to meet the situation due to lack of private funds, we request the State for postage stamps to the amount of $9,000 so that our private funds may be released from purchasing stamps for the much more important function of paying rents, until such time as the State takes care of that item of relief or until our money is exhausted."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 29)

Meeting of May 17, 1934.

Subject:—"Cash Relief"

"Relative to the request of the Unemployed Councils for an expression by the County Board as to their attitude as regards the payment of relief in cash, Messrs. Lawrence and Oliver recommended that the County Board pass a resolution approving the payment of relief in cash as recommended by Mr. Biddle, Executive Director of the State Board."

Subject:—"Food Relief))

"Relative to minimum food schedule recommended by the Unemployed Councils which was submitted to Harrisburg, Mr. Mills advised of receipt of a telegram in reply to the effect that the present food budget was approved by a committee of doctors and dieticians; that the budget submitted is not materially higher except meat, carbohydrates and fats and the State Board are, therefore, unable to change the standards at this time. In discussing this matter it was the thought of the County Board that while the State has set up a minimum food budget which might maintain the health standard of a person equipped with a knowledge of dietetics, the average person lacking such knowledge cannot use the food budget to the best advantage. Mr. Mills was instructed to address a letter to Mr. Frankfeld of the Unemployed Councils for use at the State meeting which he is planning to attend."

Meeting of May 24, 1934.

Subject:—"Cash Relief"

"With further reference to the recommendation of Messrs. Lawrence and Oliver at the County Board meeting of Thursday, May 17, 1934 that the County Board pass a resolution approving the payment of relief in cash as recommended by Mr. Biddle, Executive Director of the State Board, Mr. Mills reported that he had, as per instructions of the Chairman, contacted the following members of the County Board who asked that their vote be recorded as follows:

Approving Payment of Relief in Cash	Opposed to Payment of Relief in Cash
Mrs. F. C. Irish	Maj. Philip Mathews
Maj. J. C. Miller
Mr. Southard Hay
Col. C. C. McGovern
Mr. A. K. Oliver
Mr. J. W. Lawrence

NOTE: Mr. Mills reported unable to contact Senator F. J. Harris and Mr. John S. Herron.

Meeting of October 1, 1934.

Subject:—"Shoes"

"On the question of shoes Mr. Mills advised that the stock of shoes for the entire county is almost depleted but that he has received the promise of a shipment this date which will take care of the county."

Meeting of October 1, 1934.

Subject:—"City Funds to Supplement Relief"

"As a matter of information Mr. Mills reported having met on Saturday, September 29 with City Solicitor Benner, Controller Kerr and Mr. Lang of the Department of Supplies for the purpose of drafting an ordinance to be presented to City Council on Monday, October 1, providing for the appropriation of $500,000 of bond funds. Stated it was Mr. Benner's opinion that it should be stipulated in the ordinances the items for which it is intended to make the expenditure. Advising that this proposed ordinance includes a number of new items Mr. Mills cited in particular "car fare to clinics" and repairs to houses."

NOTE: Action taken by City Council resulted in the sale of $500,000 of bonds.

Meeting of November 7, 1934.

Subject:—"County Board organization"

"Following a general discussion, without action, of various problems confronting the Board, upon motion by Mrs. Irish, seconded by Major Mathews it was voted that a number of sub-committees of the Board be appointed, each committee to assume responsibility for general oversight of certain departments of the relief work. In accordance with this action the Chair appointed a committee on Clothing with Mrs. Irish as Chairman, and a Committee on Administration, with Major Mathews as Chairman.

Meeting of November 27, 1934.

Subject:—"Public Relations Office"

"Major Mathews reported he had contacted Dr. Hovde and requested him to keep a more detailed record than has been kept and keep record by districts so that the County Board would have a basis of evaluating the work of the various districts. Also stated he had instructed Dr. Hovde to keep a record of cases that present themselves where there has been a mis-placement of orders. Major Mathews advised that in the near future he expected to have a very clear picture of what the situation is in the district offices."

Subject:—"Shoes and Clothing"

"The distribution of clothing and shoes was discussed, Mr. Mills advising of a shortage of shoes. Stated the stock in the State warehouse was very much depleted. Advised he had been informed that there is a possibility there might be a sufficient supply by December 15. In this connection the necessity of providing outer garments and blankets to those on relief was also discussed.

"On motion of Major Miller, seconded by Major Mathews, the following Resolution was adopted:

"WHEREAS, there is an existing shortage of shoes, clothing and blankets in Allegheny County with no hope of immediately remedying this condition owing to depletion of stocks of this merchandise in the State Warehouse, and

"WHEREAS, the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board recognizes that with the approach of the Winter Season energetic measures will be necessary to alleviate wide-spread suffering among those on relief due to the lack of sufficient and proper clothing,

"THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board hereby petitions the State Emergency Relief Board for permission to advertise locally for bids on shoes, clothing and blankets and place orders for direct shipment of merchandise to Allegheny County as a temporary measure to meet the present emergency until such time as the stocks of the before mentioned merchandise can be replenished from the State Warehouse."

Meeting of December 10, 1934.

Subject:—"Shoes and Clothing"

"In this connection Miss Scott reported on the experience of Philadelphia as regards cash relief, advising that the difficulties they had anticipated had not materialized but that landlords especially had resisted on the rent and there had been some difficulty on this question. Mr. Mills reported that in the event of transferring to cash relief in Allegheny County, the State has agreed to continue to write clothing orders and to get the families well stocked with clothing before cash relief goes into effect and, even after the institution of cash relief unfilled clothing orders will be filled to the extent that they can out of the $3,000,000 inventory."

"On the shoe and clothing situation Mr. Mills reported that on December 8 an inventory showed 35,491 pairs of shoes in the County with 20.854 pairs coming this week which will bring the inventory up to about 56,000 pairs. Stated, however, that by the time the shipment of 20,854 pairs comes in, the inventory will have been reduced to the extent of possibly 10,000 pair. Advised further that Harrisburg has indicated that Allegheny County can expect about 20,000 pairs of shoes a week for the next few weeks which will definitely help out on the shoe problem. Stated that an inventory on clothing revealed about 36,-000 doz. garments as of last Saturday. Advised that the non-available list of clothing sent out this week covers practically every type. Further, that clothing orders are coming in at the rate of about 2000 per day. Reported he had set up additional packaging room, which added facility means that there can now be packaged about 2200 a day. Reported that nearly 4000 orders were actually caught up last week. It was further reported by Mr. Mills that when the State shoe and clothing representative called upon him last week he agreed to increase the basic stock for Allegheny County. It was directed by the County Board that Mr. Mills again contact Harrisburg by telephone in order to learn what assistance can be rendered on the clothing problem."

Subject:—"Combination of the Three Divisions"

"Mr. Mills reported a recent visit to Harrisburg by Messrs. Oliver, Stuart and himself at which time there had been discussed with Mr. Biddle the merging of the three divisions. Stated that after this meeting Mr. Biddle received notification that he had been replaced so it was decided to take no further steps toward the merging of the three divisions at this time."

Meeting of December 21, 1934.

Subject:—"Coal and Clothing"

"Mr. Mills reported that the clothing supply is not all in as yet but it is now coming in very rapidly. Major Mathews suggested that the County Board concentrate on such items as coal and clothing so that relief clients will not purchase these items on their first cash order. Felt that as a matter of protection to the relief client, he should be supplied with clothing and coal."

Meeting of January 4, 1935.

Subject:—"Shoes and Clothing"

"As a matter of information Mr. Mills reported favorable progress on coal, clothing and shoe distribution, advising however, that there will be some items of clothing that will not be available from State stock. That Mr. Turner is meeting with the City Committee relative to filling orders that have been written prior to January 11 for non-available items for relief families living in the City on Department of Public Welfare orders. Advised that if this arrangement was approved by the Committee meeting this date he felt certain that relief cases living in the city would be supplied with clothing. Stated that the County would not be so well supplied as they will be dependent upon the State stock only."

NOTE: The filling of non-available items on Department of Public Welfare orders was not approved.

Meeting of January 4, 1935.

Subject:—"Transfer of Unemployables to local communities"

"As a matter of information Mr. Mills advised of reports emanating from Washington to the effect that the Federal Government intends curtailing expenditures restricting expenditures to families with employable persons only. In this connection advised that he had a sample study made of about 9% of the case-load which indicated about 5.3% of Allegheny County's case-load had no employable member in the family. Advised he anticipated the cost that might be transferred to the local community would be very small but if, on the other hand, the Federal Government should reduce their expenditures to work relief only, then the amount transferred to the State and local community would be large.

"Mr. Mills was instructed by the Chairman to address a communication in the name of the County Board to the State Emergency Relief Board, making inquiry as to what is planned in this respect in order to prepare the City and County authorities in the event that this expenditure is transferred to the local communities."

NOTE: (See Exhibit 30)

Meeting of January 7, 1935.

Subject:—"Discussion of Cash-Relief"

"The special meeting was called for the purpose of considering protests of the unemployed groups against the present plan of cash relief as set up, they claiming it to be inadequate. In the discussion by Board members it was pointed out that there was not sufficient differentiation between what a person could earn in private industry and what is given in the form of relief.

"On motion of Mr. Hay, seconded by Mr. Herron, it was moved that Messrs. Mills, Mathews and Mrs. Irish be appointed as a committee to visit Harrisburg for the purpose of contacting Mr. Biddle and Mr. Johnson and discuss the entire cash relief plan with them, reporting to the County Board the result of their interview."

Meeting of January 10, 1935.

Subject:—"Discussion of Cash-Relief"

"The Committee reported that after discussing the proposed cash relief plan with Mr. Johnson he had recommended that the County Board proceed to put the plan into effect as scheduled with no change or modification and that it be tried out on an experimental basis for the period of one month after which he expected to visit Pittsburgh when he would again discuss the question. With a view to securing all available information from all angles as to how the cash-relief plan is functioning in Philadelphia it was thought advisable by the County Board to have Dr. Hovde visit that city.

"On motion of Mrs. Irish, seconded by Major Mathews, it was moved that Dr. Hovde be instructed to visit Philadelphia and survey the situation from all angles."

Directors of the Poor of Allegheny County,
New County Office Building,
Pittsburgh, Penna.

Gentlemen:

On account of the present uncertainty of relief funds we wish to review the general situation in Allegheny County.

The total number of cases receiving relief in Allegheny County during the week of March 11 was 61,757. Of these cases 32,384 were in the County outside the City of Pittsburgh. We would point out that this case-load in the County outside the City has been increasing at the rate of one thousand to twelve hundred cases per week for the past four weeks. In order to provide food during the week of March 11th for these cases in the County Poor District, the sum of $123,640.00 was expended from State and Federal funds.

Since the first of September, 1932, all food relief in the County has been taken care of from these State and Federal funds, notwithstanding the fact that the basic supposition was that these funds were to be considered as supplementary to local funds.

In addition to the above, State Funds have been allotted and used for the purpose of supplying milk in the County.

We recognize the fact that the directors of the Poor have been supplying the needy in the County with coal and shoes for school children. There are, however, a number of items for which there is the greatest need and for which neither Federal or State funds are available. The situation on these items may be summarized as follows:

(1) On account of the fact that the County physicians are seriously over-loaded, medical service to unemployed relief cases is most inadequate. It is also difficult or impossible to obtain medicines and medical supplies.

(2) Although we are at the present time distributing our total allotment of State shoes, other than school shoes, in the County outside the City, the supply does not begin to meet the need.

(3) There are no means to provide coal stoves in cases where gas service has been discontinued.

(4) We have no provision for the supplying of water service in cases where the water companies have turned off the supply due to delinquent accounts.

In view of the conditions which have been briefly stated above, and further on account of the fact that Federal and State funds may be seriously reduced or possibly withdrawn entirely, it seems incumbent upon the local authorities to immediately make available a fund which may be drawn upon for the current needs of relief other than food, as well as food itself in the event of a decrease or withdrawal of State and Federal money.

Very truly yours,

JOHN F. CASEY,
Chairman Operating Commitee.

Subject: "Milk Appropriation"

Dear Dr. Appel:

Confirming telephone conversation of yesterday, and referring to your letter of March 8 in connection with appropriation for the City of Pittsburgh, we wish to advise that we will require for the month of March approximately thirty-five thousand ($35,000.00) dollars as against thirty thousand ($30,000.00) dollars allotted us.

We realize that you will make every effort to allow us the additional $5,000.00, and trust that this can be obtained from the saving in the County appropriation of $88,000.00.

As we explained to Mr. McNamara on last Friday, our family unemployment relief load in the City is approximately 26,000 cases as against 29,000 cases in the County outside the City. From these figures you can see that we are keeping a very close check on the milk distribution in the City.

We would appreciate it very much, indeed, if you will reply to us immediately on this matter, and also what we may expect for the month of April.

Very truly yours,

GEO. P. MILLS,
Assistant Director.

State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen:

The Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, at a meeting held this morning, instructed me as Chairman to bring to the attention of the State Emergency Relief Board the critical situation existing with respect to administration expenses for the distribution of relief in Allegheny County, and to request instructions from the State Board as to what course the County Board should follow in the event of failure of the State Board to provide administrative funds after April 15.

Up to December, 1932, the private relief agencies of Allegheny County bore from their own funds the entire cost of relief distribution. On January 1, 1933, the State Board assumed this expense and the workers engaged wholly in the administration and distribution of relief from public funds were placed on the State Board payroll and became, in fact, State employes. When the County Board was notified on April 1 that the State Board would not be responsible for administrative expense after that date, the County Board requested the eight agencies under whose supervision relief has been distributed in Allegheny County to assume responsibility for the payment of the salaries of the workers heretofore carried by the State. This morning the County Board received from each of seven of these agencies a letter, copy of one of which is enclosed for your information, (all being of the same general tenor), stating definitely that the agencies could not possibly assume the expense of relief administration.

It is the unanimous opinion of the members of the County Board that the private agencies cannot and should not be asked to carry this additional burden. Furthermore, it is the hope of the County Board that some means will be found to reimburse these agencies for the expenditures for relief administration from April 1 to April 15, the responsibility for which they were forced to accept in order to save the entire distribution of relief in Allegheny County from a condition of chaos on April 1.

Regardless, however, of whether or not such reimbursement may be possible, the County Board, in view of the admitted inability of the agencies to carry on under their own power, feels that it must know at the earliest possible date the answers to the following questions:

(1) Whether or not funds will be available from the State Board to meet administrative relief expenditures after April 15th?

(2) In what manner the State Board, in the event of a negative answer to the above question, would propose to distribute food orders and other forms of relief in Allegheny County?

The County Board, an organization which has always operated with no funds of any kind at its direct disposal, of course cannot assume responsibility for the employment of any individuals. Since the agencies assure us (and we are in full accord with their view) administrative funds cannot at this time be secured from private sources, and since the funds available from the Relief Bonds authorized by the City of Pittsburgh cannot, due to limitations imposed by the vote of the people authorizing the bonds, be used for administrative expenses, the conclusion is inescapable that unless the State Board can guarantee the payment of these workers there is no way in which their services can be retained.

To impose on the County Board the task of attempting to distribute relief with no organization with which to carry on the work would, we believe, be unfair to the Board and—what is much more important—to the sixty-eight thousand families whose very existence, in many cases, depends upon prompt and regular service. Nevertheless, if it is the decision of the State Board that the present administrative and distributive organization be discontinued, the County Board stands ready to attack the problem to the best of its ability, though with no hope that the result will be even remotely satisfactory to any one concerned.

Last week the County Board notified the State Board of its intention to reorganize the distribution of relief by placing this distribution in the hands of a single organization working directly under the County Board. Obviously, it would be futile to take any steps toward such a reorganization until the funds necessary for this new administrative program are assured. Frankly, it is our belief that there is nothing that either the local or the State Board can do to prevent an almost complete breakdown of the machinery of relief distribution in Allegheny County unless funds for the administration of that relief are made available. As these funds must come from the State, we appeal to your honorable Body to make every effort to secure them in time to assure the continuance of the present system after April 15.

Respectfully yours,

ALLEGHENY COUNTY EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD,
Augustus K. Oliver, Chairman.

Capt. W. B. Rodgers,

State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

Dear Captain Rodgers:

At the meeting of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board on Saturday morning, April 15th, the following motion was made by Major Philip Mathews, seconded by Mrs. F. C. Irish, and carried:

"RESOLVED, That the Allegheny County Emergencyy Relief Board recommend to the State Emergency Relief Board the discontinuance of the Community Market plan for the distribution of relief at present in operation at Tarentum, and that the method of distributing relief being used at present in the balance of Allegheny County, namely, by the issuance of food orders written on grocery stores, be extended to cover the Tarentum District."

This action was taken after a thorough discussion of the situation, in which it was forcibly brought out that the citizens of the Tarentum District very strongly feel that they are being discriminated against, and that they should receive relief on the same basis as it is being distributed in the balance of the County.

The County Board would appreciate your response giving approval to this action.

Very truly yours,

GEO. P. MILLS,
Executive Director.

Mr. Eric H. Biddle,
Assistant Director,
State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Penna.

Dear Mr. Biddle:

At a meeting of the County Board held Saturday morning, April 22nd, the serious need of shoes in Allegheny County and the City of Pittsburgh was discussed at length, and the writer was directed to address you on this subject pointing out the local need, as well as the steps which have been taken locally to meet this need.

For the week ending April 15th we had 298,571 individuals on relief in the City and County. On the basis of one pair of shoes for each individual every six months this means a monthly need of 50,000 pairs of shoes. The lasting of a pair of shoes for six months where the individual has only one pair was seriously questioned, and rightly so, at the Board meeting. If a five months average life is taken, the need is 60,000 pairs of shoes per month.

From October 24, 1932, to March 1, 1933, the City distributed 66,000 pairs of shoes at a cost of $100,000.00. In 1932 the Directors of the Poor of Allegheny County spent approximately $91,000.00 for shoes, and from January 1, 1933, to date, the Directors of the Poor have purchased 46,450 pairs of school shoes for approximately $84,000.00. During this same period approximately $11,500.00 was expended by the Directors of the Poor for shoe repairs.

For the reason that no adults shoes had been distributed in the County we allotted our first assignment of State shoes to the County, and ordered heavily on men's and women's shoes. Unfortunately, our first allotment was sized approximately on a commercial cross section so that we were seriously under-stocked on adult shoes for the County, and relatively over-stocked on school shoes. This over-stock, however, is being consumed in the supply of school shoes for children in the City.

At the present time we have been allotted some 22,000 pairs of State shoes, and we have a recent additional appropriation of $35,000.00 by the City, which will buy approximately 26,000 pairs of shoes, making out total available shoes approximately 48,000 pairs. This supply, you will note from the above figures, will not supply our need for one month.

Although the County Board is on record as favoring the purchase of all the items of relief through local trade channels, it feels that the State Board has done an exceptional job in the matter of purchasing of a very high quality of shoe at what we understand is a very low price, and we would, therefore, request that in view of the extreme need for shoes in both City and County that additional shoes of the same quality and price be made available to us.

As noted above, our monthly requirements will be approximately 60,000 pairs on a commercial size scale.

Very truly yours,

ALLEGHENY COUNTY EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD

Gentlemen:

We are attaching copy of our letter of April 25th to the State Emergency Relief Board on the subject of shoes.

We have just received the following reply from the State Board:

"In reply to your letter of April 25th, I see no prospect of additional grants of shoes being made in the near future—certainly not until the relief legislation program is completed."

In view of the above reply we must urge upon you the necessity of providing additional funds for shoes to be distributed in the Poor District outside the City.

We are just completing the distribution of our first allotment of 25,000 pairs of State shoes in the County outside the City. The next allotment of State shoes of 22,000 pairs will be distributed in the City of Pittsburgh, leaving no shoes whatever available for the County. The need is so great that we ask that you give this matter your earnest consideration, and that you let us have a reply within the next ten days.

Sir:

Answering your letter of the 17th inst., in regard to shoes, wish to state that at a meeting held yesterday at Woodville, with all members of the Board present, it was decided that we would be unable to furnish any shoes at this time owing to the fact that we have expended sixty thousand dollars over and above our set-up in budget.

EXHIBIT 10

June 2, 1933.

State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Penna.

Gentlemen:

We have received today notice of grants for food relief for Allegheny County for June. The sum allowed in the amount of $1,093,920.00 indicates a flat reduction of 20% from the amount requested—$1,367,400.00.

This request was figured on an honest accurate estimate of the need based on the anticipated case-load in June at the relief schedule in effect in Allegheny County since January this year. This schedule was figured on minimum diet at prices in effect in January. Although pressure is constantly being maintained through our Fair Price Committee to keep prices down to a minimum, the actual cost of the average minimum diet has increased. Further than this, our cost of relief schedule does not include bread-stuff, which has for the past year been supplied by Red Cross flour.

The seriousness of the situation is now intensified by the fact that we have sufficient flour for less than three weeks in June. As stated above, the relief schedule set in January was based on minimum rations. Due to rising prices and the termination of free flour our present schedule represents food value of 32% less than minimum.

From observations by physicians of the Public Health Nursing Association it is quite apparent that the minimum set was too low to maintain the health standards of the people. Bearing this out we have the following statement from Dr. H. T. Price, Director of the Children's Hospital and Chief of Staff of the Children's Welfare Division of the Public Health Nursing Association.

"It is clinically evident that there is an increase of malnutrition and tubercular. This is particularly true of children and mothers. This is probably due to the prolonged period of underfeeding."

In Allegheny County we are keeping a close check on employment and, in addition, to assigning relief cases to Highway work and the Reforestation camps, as well as even the most casual employment.

Although our case-load is continuing to increase (due to additional families coming to the end of their resources and the termination of industrial cases in some instances), on account of careful watching of income to our families, our actual expenditures decreased approximately 1% for the week ending May 20th as compared with the previous week, the first decreases we have had in many months.

The case load carried by the County Board is not so directly affected by the recent general pick-up in business in Allegheny County as may be the case in other counties differently situated. This is due to the fact that the heavy industries have been carrying their own relief to the extent of from 15,000 to 20,000 families. When these large industries put men back to work they naturally take men off their own relief lists.

Notwithstanding the above fact, and although we are still having a net increase in case load, we have been closing cases at the rate of over 1,000 per week for the past few weeks.

We have gone to this length to explain the conditions with which we are faced in Allegheny County. As indicated, we are watching our expenditures most carefully and will surely continue to do so.

Faced as we are with a relief schedule 32% below a minimum, which has been shown to be too low by the declining health of our people, we must ask that our food relief grant be increased by $273,480.00 to the full amount requested for June.

And, further, we must indicate to you that while we hope the case load will not be seriously increased for July, it will be essential that the schedule of relief be increased for the coming months. This will, of course, be covered in our request for July.

Our immediate concern, however, is that the full amount of our request for June be granted.

A favorable reply at the earliest possible moment will be appreciated.

My dear Governor Pinchot:

On behalf of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, I wish to express appreciation for the courteous reception accorded Mr. Casey and me by the State Emergency Relief Board at its meeting last Thursday.

The Board has asked me to let you know, also, that we appreciate your voting—as reported in the newspapers—for the full amount requisitioned by Allegheny County for June. Frankly, we were quite disappointed at the action of the State Board in still insisting upon a reduction, and at a meeting of the County Board on Friday the hope was expressed that if, in the future, the State Board feels that it cannot grant the full amount requisitioned for any month by Allegheny County it will, before taking arbitrary action, notify our Board of the reasons for the contemplated reduction and give us an opportunity to justify the estimate submitted.

May I take this opportunity to renew the invitation to you and the other members of the State Board to visit Allegheny County soon? I feel that such a visit would do much to clear away any misunderstandings which may now exist or which might arise in the future.

Sincerely yours,

AKO:MG

Major J. Clyde Miller, President,
Directors of the Poor of Allegheny County,
New County Office Building,
Pittsburgh, Penna.

Dear Major Miller:

From January 1st to June 1st, 1933, the Family Society of Allegheny County, have spent $3790.28 for relief items needed for the families of the unemployed living in the County, in accordance with the following tabulation:

	Jan.	Feb.	Mar.	Apr.	May	Total
Household Furnishings (stoves, lamps, furniture — when burned or sold for rent.)	$84.17	$101.29	$68.01	$1230.05	$990.00	$2473.52
Medicine and Medical Supplies (glasses, special shoes etc.)	21.21	15.96	42.20	139.77	80.00	299.14
Clothing (clothing lost in fire replaced. tuberculosis patients outfitted for Cresson, Layettes)	177.02	160.42	214.00	301.18	165.00	1017.62
						$3790.28

Requisitions for items of this type for families living in the City have been honored by the City Controller's Office and paid for from the City Relief Bond Issue.

It is our understanding that up to the present time no money has been available in the County for such items.

The Family Society now notifies us that as of June 15th they will be unable to make further expenditures for these items of relief due to the fact that they have already over-drawn their Welfare Fund budget by more than $21,000.00.

These facts were presented to the Operating Committee of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, and the writer has been instructed to call these facts to your attention with the earnest request that the Directors of the Poor undertake to provide a sum of money to purchase these very necessary emergency items for the balance of the year. As indicated from the above tabulations, this expense has averaged approximately $177.00 per week for the Family Society alone. As they are carrying 77% of the relief load in the County, we would estimate that the expenditures by all agencies for these items would be approximately $230.00 per week.

We would appreciate your favorable action in this matter.

Very truly yours,

Mr. Eric H. Biddle,
Executive Director,
State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Dear Mr. Biddle:

Replying to your letter of July 6th and in further reference to our letter of July 3rd in connection with the increase in food allowance for Allegheny County:

We have made a thorough study of the effect of rising prices and the termination of free flour on the food value represented by food orders being distributed in Allegheny County. A comparison of the minimum ration priced in accordance with our Fair Price List in January, and the same ration made to include flour priced in accordance with our current Fair Price List of July 6th, shows that the July cost has increased 26% over the January cost.

In the light of this information the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board at its last meeting was of the unanimous opinion that the food allowance must be increased as outlined on the relief schedule attached to our letter of July 3rd, a copy of which is enclosed herewith. The County Board feels that it cannot postpone the increasing of the food allowance longer than Thursday, July 13th, and we feel that we have every reason to request the approval of the State Board in taking this action.

We are using every means at our disposal in checking family income, and are eliminating cases from our relief load as rapidly as possible. We are thoroughly in accord with the statement in the last paragraph of your circular letter of July 1st to the County Boards that adequate relief should be allowed those families that are proven eligible for relief.

We trust that the State Board will take favorable action on our request at its meeting this week.

Sincerely yours,

Honorable Gifford Pinchot, Chairman,
State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Pa.

Dear Sir:

At a meeting of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, held today, the Board voted unanimously to address the following communication to the State Relief Board:

"The Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board desires to register a vigorous protest against the continued refusal of the State Emergency Relief Board to increase the food allowance to persons now receiving relief through the Allegheny County Board. The present basis of 90 cents per person per week was fixed in January as providing minimum subsistence at prices then prevailing. Since that time food prices have risen at least 20% and in addition the supply of Red Cross flour has been exhausted and families must now purchase out of their weekly allowance the flour which, during the winter and spring, they received free.

"In view of the above facts the Allegheny County Board presented its requisition for July on the basis of $1.07 instead of 90 cents per person per week. This requisition was refused by the State Board and the County Board was instructed to continue to write food orders on the 90 cent basis.

"With costs of all commodities continuing to rise sharply during July, the County Board based its August requisition on $1.10 per person per week. The Board has been informed that this requisition also has been refused.

"A careful and painstaking analysis of food prices and food budgets has convinced the members of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board that this figure of $1.10 represents the minimum upon which an individual can maintain health at present food prices in Allegheny County. Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins is quoted as saying, "There is no use in letting people starve slowly." The County Board is in full agreement with Mr. Hopkins and feels that the State Relief Board is failing in its duty to the people who look to it for relief from suffering and hardship when it insists that they attempt to exist on an allowance which competent medical authority states is wholly insufficient to maintain even a minimum degree of health."

Dear Mr. Biddle:

At the request of the State Board in January of this year, we submitted a list indicating the need for clothing in Allegheny County as of the first of the year. This list indicated the need of 954,779 garments.

We have revised this list as of the first of July and the present indicated need is 709,600 garments.

We expect some material and some garments from the Red Cross, although at the present moment they are unable to tell us in what quantity clothing requirements can be met.

While the relief lists are showing a downward trend, there will, undoubtedly, be a serious need for shoes and clothing in the coming Fall and Winter.

Do you anticipate making provision for these items?

Mr. Eric H. Biddle,
Executive Director.
State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Penna.

Dear Mr. Biddle:

At the regular meeting of the Operating Committee of the Allegreny County Emergency Association this morning, I presented briefly the outline of the proposal which you are submitting to the State Emergency Relief Board to-day in connection with changing the method of handling food orders in Allegheny County, involving in particular the two points—

(a) Writing the order on any vendor, and
(b) Making the order in the form of a check.

After a thorough discussion of this proposition we were instructed to voice a vigorous protest to you and to the State Board against the elimination of our present practice of writing orders on individual grocers, and against the proposed check form of order.

We have already discussed the reasons for this stand in Allegheny County with you, but would like to again confirm them as follows:

(1) During the past 2½ years the Emergency Association, and latterly, the County Board, has built up the present system in order to, as far as possible, exercise a control and prevent fraud in the distribution and handling of food orders.

(2) While we realize that there are still loop-holes in our system which may be taken advantage of by fraudulent dealers and clients, if such cases come to light we can place the grocer on the unauthorized list and eliminate him from participation in this business.

(3) The question of patronage does not enter into our present system in as much as the client in each case has the opportunity to choose the grocer on which he wants his order written, with the exception of the unauthorized list. We are using regularly some 3000 to 3500 grocers

(4) The general attitude of the County, including both the Relief and Operating Committees of the Emergency Association, the County Board, the Fair Price Committee and the Credit Men's Association, favor the continuation of our present plan.

(5) At the present time our saving to the State in corrected items more than offsets the cost of the special auditing involved in checking quantities and prices with the Fair Price List.

(6) While this saving is slight, it is the opinion of the various groups mentioned above that when it becomes known that no auditing or checking whatever is done, that the number of irregularities will be greatly increased, and we will have no definite method of control.

(7) The recent regulation issued by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration makes it incumbent upon us to write relief orders only on those vendors who have accepted the NRA code of fair competition. It is felt that we have no sure means of carrying out this ruling other than by writing orders on particular vendors.

(8) Even with full publicity our committees are doubtful of our legal ability to refuse payment on orders or checks presented by any food vendor regardless of his status.

(9) In view of the above, even though the State Board desires to eliminate the audit, our committees feel that we should continue to make our own audit on Allegheny County orders for the purpose of the control which we now have and which we feel is essential to safe-guard the interests of the State.

(10) Our committees feel that with the issuance of the check form or order, which may be deposited at the bank immediately upon its presentation to the grocer there will be a tendency on the part of many grocers to "short change" the clients by establishing fictitious balances. The only way we could hope to control this would be to put on a publicity and educational campaign to have the clients insist on obtaining account slips from the grocer with each purchase.

(11) A further fear in connection with the issuance of check form of order is that it leads itself more readily to discounting for cash.

As indicated above we have previously, at various times, discussed most of these points with you, but are again bringing them to your attention for your further consideration before making final decision.

Sincerely yours,

ALLEGHENY COUNTY EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD

September 21, 1933.

Mr. Eric H. Biddle,
Executive Director,
State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Penna.

Dear Mr. Biddle:

We are enclosing our application for Administration Expense Grant for the month of October, 1933. In making up this application we have taken into consideration the expressed views of the State Board when it issued instructions that all food orders be written on any vendor, viz:

(1) That the only possible control is at the source, i. e., in the original granting of the order, and
(2) That any families and individuals who have benefitted from the recent upturn in business must be eliminated from the lists as rapidly as possible.

These two requirements can be met most efficiently by increasing our investigation staff. For Allegheny County we proved this conclusively during the month of August when we made an experiment on intensively invesigating a group of cases in our Penn-Butler District. A copy of the full report of the results of this experiment is attached. Briefly, we found that in that particular district, at an extra administration cost of $727.50, we made a net saving in relief of $2864.00 for the month.

Based on this experiment we have made a careful study of all the districts in the County, and where conditions warrant it we are proposing to increase our investigating staff beginning the first of October. In some districts where one large industry represents practically the only means of employment and where payrolls are very easily checked, we do not plan to make any material increases in our staff. In other districts, however, where possible employment is divided into many small firms, and where payroll checking is different, we plan to very materially add to our investigating staff.

This study indicates the necessity of adding ninety-two (92) additional Aides and twelve (12) Supervisors. We propose adding these as rapidly as they can be absorbed into the districts, which will probably be at the rate of one-fourth (¼) of the additional staff each week during October. Added in this way, this group of people will increase our salary item $5211.00 for the month of October. There will be some reduction in our clerical staff so that our salary item will be $75,382.49 as compared with $72,745.13 for September, indicating a net increase of $2,637.36.

We have included in our supply item for October the amount of $552.00, the first month's rental on the addressograph equipment. As soon as the addressograph system is in full operation we will make a further reduction in our clerical staff, which will more than offset the rental item.

In total, the amount requested from the State Emergency Relief Board for October administration is $87,098.48 as compared with our request of $82,605.32 for September, indicating a net increase of $4,493.16.

We estimate that the increase in staff as outlined above will mean a differential of at least 1000 additional cases eliminated from our lists. At the present rate of relief this 1000 cases would cost in relief $19,350.00, or 4.3 times our increased administration cost. With the increase in relief schedule this saving will amount to apppoximately $25,000.00, or about 5½ times the increase in administration expense.

We have taken this 1000 case differential into account in presenting our application for Food Relief Grant for October, which is based on an estimated family case-load of 44,000. Our present trend of case-load reduction does not justify this low estimate, and our food budget will most certainly have to be increased an equivalent of 1000 family cases unless the additional staff is granted.

In view of the above, therefore, we urge you to allow us the full amount of our October request.

Sincerely yours,

ALLEGHENY COUNTY EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD

Executive Director.

EXHIBIT 20

September 11, 1933.

To the Members of the Operating Committee, and the Members of the Relief Committee of the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

At the regular meeting of the Operating Committee on July 26th, the sum of $1100.00 was appropriated for the purpose of carrying on an experiment to determine the value of intensive investigation of individual cases in the administration of unemployment relief. Accordingly, the Penn-Butler District was selected, and Miss Nell Scott, acting through Miss Anne Rabinovitz, Assistant District Supervisor in that district, carried out this experiment during the period of August 1st to August 31st. We are attaching the complete report as submitted by Miss Rabinovitz.

In working out of this experiment we transferred personnel on the State payroll from other districts to the Penn-Butler District, so that we did not have to use any of the fund appropriated by the Operating Committee.

The "Cost of the Experiment" shown on Page 5, amounting to $1356.00, is the total cost of the staff used on the experimental group. Had no experiment been made the normal cost for staff for handling this group of cases would have been approximately $727.50, so that actually the net cost of the experiment is the difference between $1356.00 and $727.50, or $628.50. This is the cost that should be compared with the savings of $2684.04 shown on sheet 2 of the report.

While the full report is attached, a very brief summary will show the importance of the finding. The case-load of the district was divided into two groups and sufficient workers placed on the experimental group to reduce the case-load per worker to 85, whereas the case-load on the other group remained at the normal average of 158 cases per worker. During the month, 265 cases, or 25% of the experimental group were dropped, whereas with the normal group 70 cases, or 10% were dropped.

During the period of this experiment, our case-load reduction in the City and County as a whole was approximately 8%.

Of the 265 cases dropped, 133 were discontinued immediately upon obtaining sufficient income to make them ineligible, whereas the 132 were found to have had resources over a period of possibly two months or longer. In this latter group, of course, are found the cases on which it was necessary to obtain information from outside sources, which requires a great portion of the workers time.

The analysis of the numbers of calls and the sources of information are shown in detail on sheet 3. It should be noted that the employer represents the most valuable source of information and that, without exception, the employer co-operated with our workers fully.

The analysis of the territorial distribution of the load is important in evaluating the results of this experiment. For instance, in the Strip District where the population is of a very unstable type, only one-sixth of the total cases handled were dropped, whereas in other sections of the district where the population was of the more stable type, and where they were definitely aligned with industry, one-fourth to one-third of the cases handled were dropped. This analysis will serve as a valuable guide in selecting districts for special investigation.

The general comments submitted by Miss Rabinovitz on Page 6 are of particular interest and indicate that the families reacted favorably to more careful investigation, and that the workers themselves were stimulated to cover their work in a more intelligent and efficient manner.

GEO. P. MILLS,
Executive Director.

REPORT ON REDUCED LOAD EXPERIMENT
FAMILY SOCIETY———PENN BUTLER DISTRICT
August 1st to August 31st, 1933.

	Experiment Load	Regular Load
Number of families handled	1061*	711
Number of Aides	12½ (10½ experienced) (2 new)	4½ (3½ experienced) (1 new)
Average load per aide	85	158*
Number of Supervisors	2½	1

* The project originally involved 975 cases. As families were taken off relief and the cases became inactive, the experienced aides were given additional cases, new intake as well as transfers from other workers. The 711 cases in the regular load represent the number of cases actually worked on.

 The experiment began with 13 Aides. On August 15th one aide was withdrawn from the field to assist with the supervision.

 One aide out of the 4½ was away on her vacation two weeks.

* The average load per experienced aide was considerably higher, as the new aide only handled about 60 cases.

RELIEF

	Experiment Load	Regular Load
Number of families off relief	265 (25% of load)	70 (10% of Load)
A. Families who had first access to adequate income	133	58
a. First adequate pay 128	128	48
b. First access to other resources, (rent, dividends, etc.) 5	5	10
B. Families who had resources over a prolonged period of time (2 stock, etc.)	132	12
a. Adequate pays	99	10
b. Other resources (rent, savings, months or longer)	33	2
Total amount of relief saved on the experiment load during the month	$2696.64*	$2864.04
In groceries	167.40

Milk—55 families receiving
60 qts. milk daily
@ 9c a quart.

* The amount saved in grocery orders was derived in the following manner: The actual cost of the grocery orders for one week for the particular 265 families that were taken off relief was $1124.76—or an average of $4.24 per family a week, or about $16.96 a month. If the number of families in the experiment were taken off relief in the same ratio as in the regular load (10% instead of 25%) only 106 families instead of 265 would have been taken off. The difference of 159 families based on the average cost of grocery order per family would amount to $2696.64. Besides the specified amount of milk, about one quarter of the families were receiving fuel, clothing and shoes as the need presented itself and the particular items were available. The cost of these items per month does not seem possible to estimate.

CONTACTS

	Experiment Load	Regular Load
Number of families visited	1061*	501

Total number of outside contacts per aide ..	162	122
Total number of visits made	1994	720
Total number of visits per aide	158	160

See page 7598 at top for * **.

* It is to be noted that while the total load in the experiment had at least one (1) home visit, only 501 out of the 711 active cases in the regular load have had visits Also the total number of outside contacts in the experiment group is about twice as high as the load, while in the regular load it is only slightly more than the number of visited families It is possible with the smaller load the aide was able to keep in closer touch with the family and was not detained by phone calls and visits to the office. Closer supervision of each case and the contact with outside sources may have helped the aide to plan her visits more purposefully.

 This figure may be partial explanation of the difference in average number of visit per aide in the two different groups.

† This figure represents the number of families who took the initiative in informing the worker of the income. Some brought the information to the office; others waited until the worker called at the home.

In a number of cases where the information was first secured from the employer, the client volunteered the information when the worker called at the home. Several of the Aides believe that having the information from another source helped them to steer the interview so as to give the client the opportunity to volunteer the information. In several of the cases the client resisted confirming this information. This was particularly true when the knowledge of resources was secured from sources other than employers.

TERRITORIAL DISTRIBUTION

The load carried in each section of the district is perhaps not a large enough sample from which to draw any definite conclusions or generalizations. Nevertheless the figures in even these relatively small samples seem rather significant. The following were the more distinct divisions of the district:

1. HERRON HILL UP TO BIGELOW BOULEVARD

This section represents a fairly stable Polish and colored group. The industries which claim most of the wage earners are the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Crucible Steel Company, the Reliance Steel Company, the Armstrong Cork Company, the Kress Box Factory and the Standard Cigar Company. Out of seventy nine (79) cases handled in the experiment twenty-two (22) families (somewhat less than one third (1/3) were taken off relief).

2. STRIP DISTRICT (21st to 33rd Street inclusive)

This section represents the transient, unstable colored group and a very few Polish families. Few of the wage earners have any definite connection with industry. Out of sixty three (63) families, handled ten (10) about one sixth (1/6) were taken off relief.

3. BLOOMFIELD 34th Street to 45th Street Penn Avenue and Above

This section represents an Irish-American Group in which most of the wage earners have no industrial connections. They are independent skilled workers—carpenters, painters, contractors, etc. It is rather difficult to verify employment and income in this group. Out of 178 cases handled thirty-five (1/5) were taken off relief.

4. LAWRENCEVILLE 34th Street to 46th Street, Butler Street and below—above only to Penn Avenue

Most of the workers in this section are lined up with local industries, such as the Phoenix Roll Works. Pittsburgh Piping & Equipment, Heppenstall Company, McConway & Torley Company, American Bridge Company, R. D. Nuttall Company. Out of 368 cases handled in this section ninety-nine (99) somewhat more than one fourth (¼) were taken off relief.

5. LAWRENCEVILLE 47th Street to 72nd Street

The major industries represented here are the Atlantic Refining Company, Hubbard & Company, Union Steel Castings, Pittsburgh Engineering Company. It represents largely a Croation Group and between 60th and 72nd Street a very stable, colored group. Out of 343 families ninety eight (98) less than one third (1/3) were off relief).

The following were the industries with whom the agency has most contact during the experiment and who have given employment to the bulk of the wage earners involved in the group that were taken off relief:

Crucible Steel Company	21	(2	new	jobs	19	old	jobs)
Phoenix Roll Works	14	(9	"	"	5	"	")
Heppenstall Company	11	(5	"	"	6	"	")
Hubbard Shovel Company	9	(3	"	"	6	"	")
Carnegie Steel Company	8	(-	—	—	8	"	")
Waverly Oil Company	8	(1	"	"	7	"	")
McConway and Torley Company	5	(1	"	"	4	"	")
Reliance Steel Company	4	(-	—	—	4	"	")
Pittsburgh Screw & Bolt Company	3	(-	—	—	3	"	")
Mesta Machine Company	3	(1	"	"	2	"	")
Pennsylvania Railroad Company	2	(-	—	—	2	"	")
Union Steel Castings Company	2	(1	"	"	1	"	")
Armstrong Cork Company	16	(6	"	"	10	"	")
Kress Box Factory	7	(3	"	"	4	"	")
Heinz Company	6	(3	"	"	3	"	")
Tri-Lok Company	4	(1	"	"	3	"	")

Vang Construction Company	3	(3	"	"	—	—	—)
Department Stores	1	(-	—	—	1	"	")
Breweries	1	(1	"	"	—	—	—)

The number of old jobs represents the number of men recalled to work as well as those who have been working part time, but just begun to draw large enough pay to be dropped off relief. Besides the industries listed a number have taken on only one or two men—Atlantic Refining Company, Keystone Bronze Company, A. J. Logan Company, Ward Baking Company, Pittsburgh Box Company, Hamilton Glass Company and H. K. Porter Company.

COST OF THE EXPERIMENT

GENERAL COMMENTS

The aides and the supervisors in the study felt that it was the reduced load as well as the more intensive supervision that made a more efficient field work job possible. Each aide was given three (3) hours a week scheduled conference, during which time records were reviewed and further steps of procedure outlined. Several of the aides commented that the more frequent review of the case with the supervisor has been most helpful in evaluating and utilizing the information secured on their visits.

The families as a whole have seemed to welcome the more frequent visiting and several of the older aides felt that even this short period of one month has helped them to establish a better relationship with the clients; their visits were longer and covered more ground. Some of the new aides encountered considerable resistance when they attempted to review resources and to check or complete face sheet information. This naturally was found to be particularly true in families, where discovered resources made them ineligible for relief.

The most helpful approach in finding resources, however, was not the family, but other sources. The very careful approach to employers justified itself particularly and has been used most frequently. It may be well to note here that most of the industries have been most willing to check with us employment, earnings and to discuss employment possibilities.

As a final comment, the reaction of the aides participating in the study may be of some interest. Most of them found in the project a fresh stimulating approach. The older aides felt that the closer contact with the families has helped them to individualize and understand each family somewhat better. Practically all believed that the contact with other resources has been of most constructive value, not only in helping them to secure and to evaluate information more objectively, but also in giving them a somewhat broader view of the job.

Respectfully submitted by (MISS) ANNE RABINOVITZ.

Mr. William A. Nielander,
State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Penna.

Dear Mr. Nielander:

At eleven o'clock this morning we opened bids to cover handling and delivery of Federal replacement coal. We are enclosing a summary of the bids received together with copies of all those bids which were received in duplicate. You will note that the bid prizes vary from 60c to $1.60 per ton.

In conference this afternoon with Mr. Cannon, Secretary of the Code Authority for this area, and Mr. Thompson, representing Mr. Sneed of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration of Washington, we decided to recommend a price of $1.25 per ton of 2000 pounds to cover this service throughout Allegheny County and the City of Pittsburgh for the month of December.

We have not finally established the method of allotting the coal deliveries. We have three types of coal merchants with whom to deal:

(1) The Rail Yards
(2) The River Coal
(3) Truck Mines

We also have a large number of truckers with no mine yard responsibility. Some of the bids were received from these groups. At present we do not see how this group can be recognized as proper participants in this business.

In working out the delivery allotments for group 1, we are compiling a list of rail yards obtained from the five railway companies serving Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, namely:

The Pennsylvania Railroad
The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad
The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad
The Union Railway
The Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway

For group 2 we can very readily obtain the information from the river coal basins.

For group 3 we have asked Mr. Cannon, secretary for the code authority for this area, to supply us with a list of responsible truck mines equipped with scales.

We will list the relief coal capacity of all of these companies and endeavor to pro-rate the tonnage to be allotted to the responsible dealers on an equitable basis.

Tomorrow morning we will endeavor to set up this arrangement with the Pittsburgh Retail Coal Merchants Association. Just how successful we will be in working this out with this association remains to be seen.

For January deliveries we are preparing to divide the County and City into areas and receive bids in these areas on December 20th. It is quite possible that we will be able to save money and, at the same time, give a fair return to the dealer for services rendered in these areas.

The urgency of getting deliveries started immediately prevented our doing this for December.

Mr. Thompson will remain here tomorrow making final arrangements.

Since talking with you this afternoon I have determined that I will not be in Harrisburg until Monday, the 11th, so that I trust I may see you here on Thursday, the 7th.

Sincerely yours,

ALLEGHENY COUNTY EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD

February 17, 1933.

Mr. Gifford Pinchot, Chairman,
State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Dear Governor Pinchot:

Since the transfer of the distribution of unemployment relief from private agencies to one central public administrative organization several months ago, it has become increasingly evident to the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board and other reliable organizations actively interested in the relief problem, that the system as at present operated has failed in a startlingly large number of cases to achieve its primary object, namely, the prompt and efficient distribution to unemployed persons and their families of the relief made available by State and Federal funds.

Recognizing the imperative need for immediate improvement in existing conditions, a committee representing the three groups that have borne the responsibility for distribution of relief in Allegheny County for the past three years has been formed, first, to ascertain the reasons why the present system fails to function properly and, second, to make recommendations for improvements possible within the known limitations under which the State Emergency Relief Board and the Federal Emergency Relief Administration are obliged to operate.

The committee presents the following report:

FOREWORD

In making this investigation the committee recognizes the fact that the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board is responsible for the administration of relief to the unemployed in Allegheny County, subject to the regulations of the State Emergency Relief Board and the regulations of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration as interpreted by the State Board. It further recognizes the desirability of standardizing relief and administration, as far as possible, throughout the State. Notwithstanding this, however, it must point out that there are special problems in Allegheny County that may not be found in any other parts of the State and for this reason must receive special attention.

Allegheny County has an area of 728 square miles and a population in 1930 of 1,374,310, and has, at the present time, 64,200 cases on relief, representing over 244,000 individuals. It has every type of community from the congested districts in the City of Pittsburgh down through the smaller heavily populated communities and the mining towns to the most rural areas.

The committee has approached the investigation on the premise that the functions of the State Board and the County Board are, first, to grant immediate assistance to relief suffering of the needy unemployed; second, to eliminate ineligible families and individuals from the relief lists; and third, to organize the administration of relief on as economical a basis as possible consistent with the above.

It finds that there are four major factors definitely affecting the proper functioning of the County Board in the prompt, adequate and economical distribution of relief:

I. The variety in the methods by which various items of relief are distributed.
II. Inadequacy of staff.
III. Inadequacy of office quarters and equipment.
IV. The delays caused by making of records and lack of control by records.

The findings and recommendations on each of these points are given separately under the following headings:

I. THE DIFFERENT METHODS BY WHICH VARIOUS ITEMS OF RELIEF ARE DISTRIBUTED

Food and Surplus food is distributed by delivering weekly to the client an order which the client takes to any vendor. This method of distribution places the responsibility of obtaining the supplies on the client once the order has been delivered. It likewise establishes a definite day when the client should receive the order and if the order is not received the client is on notice to report that fact at once to the district office. This enables close contacts to be maintained with the clients on food and surplus food and prevents suffering and hardship.

Milk is distributed by giving the client every twenty eight day an order on any dairy. This operates as does the food and surplus food distribution, the only difference being the longer interval for which orders are issued.

Coal is distributed by sending an order to any one of three designated coal associations. The association in turn forwards the order to a dealer who delivers the coal to the client at the address shown.. The time required to get an order from the district office to the central office, from the central office is the association, from the association to the dealer and to get the coal from the dealer to the client requires a normal minimum of four days and the possibility of additional delay or the loss of the order as it passes through four recording offices is considerably increased. The client in this case can do nothing but await delivery after requesting the coal. The client not knowing when to expect delivery and in practically all cases not understanding the procedure followed, either comes into the office and reports delivery has not been made prior to the time when delivery could be made, causing unnecessary additional work not only in the district office but in the central office, the association's office and the dealer's office, or else waits if delivery is not made for a period of time in excess of that which should be required for delivery and suffers while the district office remains in ignorance of the fact that the order was lost or misplaced and does nothing to relieve the client's need. This is a most cumbersome and inefficient method of distribution.

Shoes are distributed by writing an order which is sent to the shoe warehouse. When the size shoe becomes available the client is notified by a post-card when and where to call for the shoes. In attempting to make this system work the County Board has maintained stocks of shoes and distributing points in nineteen locations throughout the County. This being found impracticable the stocks are now being drawn into ten different warehouses, and these, in addition to some twenty other temporary points, will be used for distribution, the shoes being trucked back and forth from the warehouses to the temporary points. As the stock of shoes on hand has not been sufficient to meet the call for all sizes required, these orders have, at times, been held for months before the client is notified that the shoes are available. The long delay in obtaining the right size shoes ofttimes causes the clients whose requests were first authorized, to go without shoes while those who applied later receive them. This causes much dissatisfaction and misunderstanding and is a constant source of distress and complaint.

Rubbers are distributed in the same manner as shoes.

Clothing is distributed by sending an order to the clothing warehouse where the individual packages are made up and the client notified by a post-card when and where to call to receive the package. The stock of clothing available is so exceedingly small and incomplete that the same condition exists with clothing as with shoes only magnified through the fact that some of the articles requested may be on hand and delivered to the client while the other articles cannot be supplied. This partial delivery of an order may cause the client to go through the entire winter without receiving the necessary clothing. This is a particularly unfortunate situation where children's clothing is involved and the children forced to remain out of school because of lack of wearing apparel.

Each item of relief is subject to its own rules and regulations. When viewed as a whole the problem becomes so involved and cumbersome that it requires constant study on the part of the supervisors and aides. Even assuming that they understand every detail it is practically impossible to get a complete understanding across to the client.

RECOMMENDATION

Assuming the continuance of the present system of relief distribution, the committee recommends the immediate discontinuance of relief in kind (as it is now being done on coal, shoes, clothing and surplus foods,) and the substitution of relief orders on any vendor in specific amounts, directly to the client, for all types of relief other than medical, (in general, as it is now being done on food). In this way the client may have the order filled promptly by any vendor, thus establishing the usual customer-merchant relationship, without the irritating and distressing delays caused by the present system.

Medical relief orders are written in the Central Office on authorization of the district office. The orders are mailed to the client if no emergency call has been made; to the doctor under certain conditions if an emergency call has been made. This procedure has been in effect since February 7th, the orders having been written prior to that time in the district offices.

The billing for this service by the physicians, dentists, druggists and nurses is involved and difficult to handle properly. Bills have not been paid for services rendered two months ago.

RECOMMENDATION

The committee recognizes that the system of writing the medical orders in the district offices used prior to February 7th proved unsatisfactory because it provided no check on the number of orders issued. The present system has been in effect only a short time, but the delays and difficulties that were anticipated are now apparent, and the committee recommends that the entire procedure on medical relief be reviewed by the State Board with the Medical Committee.

II. INADEQUACY OF STAFF

The attached tabulation, Table 1, shows the number and classification of each employee in the twenty district offices, with total and average case-loads per aide. This tabulation shows an unbalanced condition which has developed due to sudden case-load increases in some districts which have taken place during the transfer. A balance is being re-established, but there are certain very definite conclusions to be drawn from the averages.

As a measure of the work required of the aides it will be noted that the average active relief load is 177 per aide. This does not represent the total load carried by each aide, however, as there is a turn-over of cases each month, and taking this into consideration, the average load is 190 cases. This figure still does not include the investigation required on applications which prove to be ineligible for relief. These latter cases frequently require a considerable portion of the aide's time, as they are usually difficult to handle and are most important from the standpoint of economy.

The committee realizes that case-work, in the usual sense of the term, is not necessary or even to be attempted, under present conditions, on unemployment relief cases. However, with a case-load of 190 plus, per aide, it is physically impossible to visit the families frequently enough to keep a close check on the economic status of each case. Infrequent visits are the source of two serious complaints. First, relief is delayed with resulted suffering to eligible cases; and, second, relief is granted to ineligible cases.

That the total cost of relief can be materially decreased by the employment of a sufficient number of aides and supervisors to reduce the case-load to a workable maximum was conclusively shown by several carefully worked out experiments, the details of one of which, made in September, 1933, in the Penn-Butler District, Pittsburgh, are as follows.

In this district the case-load was approximately 2000, which was divided into two random groups of approximately 1000 each A sufficient staff was provided for group one to reduce the load per aide to 85, whereas the load per aide in group two was 158.

During the month, 25% of the cases in group one were dropped, some of which had been ineligible for a period of two months or more, whereas only 10% of the cases in group two were dropped from the relief lists. This net difference of 15% represented a monthly saving of $2864.00. The extra cost of administration, in salaries, due to the additional workers on group one, amounted to $727.50 per month, or about 25% of the actual saving in relief granted. To a great extent this saving was permanent, although the additional staff used on the experiment was eliminated.

Another serious consequence of loading the aide too heavily is that due to delay in taking care of the application for relief, the case is likely to become one of emergency need which necessitates special handling, requiring extra time of both the investigational and clerical staff, which still further reduces the effective time of an already over-burdened staff.

RECOMMENDATIONS

The committee recommends that an Assistant Executive Director and an Assistant Director of Relief be employed immediately.

That sufficient aides and supervisors be employed, as rapidly as they can be absorbed by the organization, to reduce the average monthly load per aide to a maximum of 125. This would mean increasing the number of aides employed from 417 to 600, an increase of 183 individuals.

That the number of assistant supervisors be increased so that the average number of aides per assistant supervisor would not exceed eight (8). This would mean the increasing of the number of assistant supervisors from 47 to 75, or an increase of 28.

We find that the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board recommended an increased salary schedule for the employees of the County Board, and that this schedule was approved by the State Administration. However, due to cuts in the administration budget it has never been possible to put this increase into effect. The committee recommends that funds be made immediately available to put the increased schedule of salaries into effect.

It recommends further that with the increase of personnel, a study on the re-districting of the relief areas of Allegheny County be made with a view to dividing some of the larger districts in order to develop more uniform conditions in each district office, and that this study be made to include the establishment of outposts or calling points in communities remote from the district offices.

III. INADEQUACY OF QUARTERS AND EQUIPMENT

Because the State Board does not provide funds for obtaining or maintenance of office quarters and equipment, the County Board has been obliged to get along as best it can with such quarters and equipment as it has been able to beg or borrow from the Family Agencies, corporations, individuals and local municipalities.

Due to lack of funds, many of the district offices are entirely inadequate. A list of the offices is attached, Table 2, showing the source from which each office is obtained, whether or not rent is paid, and, if so, by whom.

In the course of this investigation the committee secured the co-operation of the Bureau of Inspection, Department of Labor and Industry, who inspected each office and made a brief report on conditions found. These reports show that two (2) offices should be vacated due to serious fire hazard and new quarters found. Three (3) others represent a fire hazard. Toilet facilities and plumbing is insufficient or in bad repair in six (6) offices.

In addition to this investigation on inspection by members of the committee and the County Board, it has been found that in at least three (3) offices the space that can be allotted to waiting rooms is entirely too small, and that other arrangements must be made.

The County Board is endeavoring to make the necessary improvements in quarters that now have sufficient space on a C. W. A. project. If this can be done, improvement in condition will result, but funds for additional regular maintenance must be provided.

While a great deal of used furniture has been secured, it is not sufficient to provide even a minimum comfort for the staff. The serious lack of good quarters and equipment lowers efficiency and morale.

RECOMMENDATION

The committee is convinced that it is poor economy for the State Board to refuse to furnish proper quarters and equipment to its employees. Such a short-sighted policy makes any degree of efficiency practically impossible and we, therefore, recommend:

That funds be made available immediately for the rental of adequate quarters.

That the C. W. A. project be carried out for the repair and reconditioning of quarters where the expense can be justified.

That funds be made available for the regular maintenance and repair of quarters which are now adequate and are being donated by the owners.

That funds be made available for the purchase of rental of sufficient office furniture and equipment to provide for reasonable minimum requirements.

IV. DELAYS CAUSED BY MAKING OF RECORDS AND LACK OF CONTROL BY RECORDS

It is essential that the duties of the investigating staff be so organized that the aides will use a maximum of their time in the field in visiting and follow-up work. The regulations require the aide to write Relief Authorization Notices, shoe rubber footwear and clothing orders, on each of which the client's name, address, case number, composition of family and income, if any, must be written out. Also that case reports be written up in long hand. The volume of the work seriously cuts down the visiting time of the aides, thereby reducing the possible number of visits and increasing complaints which require extra non-routine work, further reducing the time available for field work.

RECOMMENDATION

The committee believes that the staff of the County Board should co-operate fully with the State Administration in installing methods and records to conform to the State requirements. It recommends, however, that the entire procedure be subject to review and possible change in order that THE CHIEF FUNCTION OF THE COUNTY BOARD, WHICH IS TO GRANT AT MINIMUM EXPENSE IMMEDIATE RELIEF WHERE NECESSARY TO ALLEVIATE SUFFERING, BE CARRIED OUT. This means that the clerical work required of the aide be kept at a minimum and that a system of control and accounting be adopted to be maintained by a sufficient clerical staff.

The recommendations herein made can be carried out promptly and we believe are absolutely essential to prevent acute suffering on the part of many eligible cases. If it is necessary to obtain changes in rulings by Federal authorities, we believe the State Board should move at once to secure such changes.

Recognizing the proper desire of the State authorities to have uniform methods used throughout the State, nevertheless, we insist that present conditions in Allegheny County demand immediate action. The committee recognizes that adoption of these recommendations will cause an increase in administrative expense, but in no other way can we be assured that cases requiring relief obtain it promptly, and cases not entitled to relief be kept from the relief rolls.

In the light of our experience we are convinced that, in the long run, the total expense of relief will be decreased rather than increased by the expenditure of the sums necessary to provide the personnel, quarters and equipment as recommended in this report.

Very sincerely yours,

FRANK B. BELL, Chairman.

Mr. Thomas L. Evans, Auditor and Comptroller,
State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Dear Mr. Evans:—

Confirming conversation with you in Harrisburg on Friday we quote from the County Board Minutes of March 2nd:—

"Reporting on Food Relief and Administration grants for month of March Mr. Mills advised there had been requested for food and milk on the basis of a five-week month the sum of $1,791,038.57. That the grant received was in the amount of $1,100,000. Advised further that as of Monday, March 5th not counting the $1,100,000 there is a deficit of $345,000. That is this deficit is deducted from the $1,100,000 there will be a balance of $754,000 for food and milk. That there are four weeks in which to write food and milk orders and on the basis of the present week are writing orders at the rate of approximately $310,000 per week. Mr. Mills advised further that there will be approximately $500,000 short for March, viz: that there is enough funds to carry on to about March 21st.

On motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Major Miller, it was moved that Mr. Mills notify the State Board at once of this condition in order that they may have ample notice of the deficit."

We certify that the above is a true and correct copy of the Minutes.

In view of the increasing trend of our case load which is at the present moment 68,634 cases, we estimate that we will need an additional grant for the month of March of $535,000 to cover the purchase of food and milk and would appreciate it if you will have this sum of money authorized as an additional grant to Allegheny County for the month of March.

Very truly yours,

GEO. P. MILLS,
Executive Director.

Mr. Frank W. Marshall,
State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Penna.

Dear Mr. Marshall:

Confirming the conclusions reached at the meeting with a group of coal representatives in my office this morning, which you attended, we wish to outline the practice which we expect to put into effect in Allegheny County beginning Monday, March 12th.

1. Coal orders will be writen in the Central Office on any vendor, and mailed directly to the client, who will present the order to a coal dealer, trucker or truck mine and assume the responsibility of obtaining delivery on the coal.

2. These orders will be written at a price of $4.00 per ton. This price is established as being fair to the trucker and truck mine, and also fair to the rail dealer provided the 20¢ credit on transportation charges can be obtained.

3. If the credit on rail transportation cannot be arranged an immediate adjustment would be necessary for the rail yard dealers in as much as their price, without this credit, would be $4.23.

Please let us have your approval.

Sincerely yours,

GEO. P. MILLS,
Executive Director.

At a meeting of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board held this afternoon I was instructed to wire you requesting a definite answer as to whether or not we can expect the State Board to authorize funds for rent relief beginning April first. Please refer to my letter of February fifth giving details on our present method of handling eviction cases. Our private funds for this purpose will be exhausted April first. Funds required for April and May based on present most inadequate method of caring for evictions only—Thirty Thousand Dollars. This information taken from actual disbursements for April and May 1933. At a meeting of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board held this afternoon I was instructed to wire you for a definite statement as to whether or not you will make funds available for rent relief in Allegheny County beginning April first. Mr. Eric Biddle, Executive Director,
State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Penna.

My dear Eric:

You have been advised, weeks ago, that there would be no more money available for the payment of rent in Allegheny County after April 1st. I fully appreciate your position in view of the fact that there is not enough State money available to include the item of rent in our relief schedule. This is no more an answer to the problem today than it was in the beginning, because in light of what other states are doing, Pennsylvania can no longer evade the granting of more adequate relief for their unemployed citizens. Sufficient funds must be made available by the State Legislature. There seems to be no other method of securing these funds than by additional taxes, this while unpopular I feel is absolutely the answer.

The Allegheny County Emergency Association, a member agency of the Community Fund, has been paying rents from private funds since October 1930. The average weekly expenditure being between Twelve and Fifteen Hundred Dollars. At the present time the rent item is approximately Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) per week. As you know this is only paid when eviction has taken place or is imminent, and only provides one months rent in the new location. The larger landlords have born up under this unjust treatment better than the smaller ones, and are even now willing to entertain any reasonable plan that might be offered them. The smaller ones are our most difficult. They are refusing to accept tenants unless they can guarantee three months rental and give proof of employment. I, personally, do not blame them, for there is no more reason why we should ask this type of business man to "stand and deliver" than we should ask the grocer or coal merchant. I am enclosing a letter from the Community Fund of Allegheny County which tells it's own story, and I was rather surprised that they would go even as far as this, knowing the difficulty of raising private funds in this County and particularly for an item of relief which is considered by increasing numbers of people a State obligation, just as much as food. Pennsylvania, in view of what New York is doing, can no longer expect private citizens to carry this burden. This additional Ten Thousand ($10,000) will only see us through, in this County, until about May 1st. At that time we anticipate serious conditions among our unemployed. I believe that private funds have done their part and it is now up to the State, which can no longer offer any defense for the human suffering and anguish that eviction will cause wholesale numbers of families in our county.

We are hoping that a Special Legislature will be called, but as time is an element in our situation here, even that will not meet the issue.

Sincerely yours,

Chairman,
Allegheny County Emergency
Relief Board.

Mr. Eric H. Biddle,
Executive Director,
State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Dear Mr. Biddle:

Please refer to Mr. Lawrence's letter of April 12th to you in regard to the relief rent situation in Allegheny County.

At a meeting of the County Board yesterday afternoon the following resolution was adopted:

"RESOLVED. That the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board urge the State Board to reimburse the Allegheny County Emergency Association in the sum of $66,768.91 for expenditures made for services and materials which might properly have been furnished by the State Board; with the understanding that the Allegheny County Emergency Association will use all funds so reimbursed to continue the payment of rents for relief families facing eviction until such time as funds for the payment of relief rents are made available out of State or Federal appropriations."

Although Mr. Lawrence indicates in his letter that the $10,000.00 from the Community Fund would carry the payment of rents until about May 1st. I regret to say that at noon yesterday, the 13th, we had a balance for this purpose of $6,140.78. At the present rate of expenditures we will be doing well if this carries us through April 21st. As you can well imagine, the situation with us is most serious. May 1st is our renting season and evictions are at a peak. Unless we get some assistance from you, or an additional appropriation from the Community Fund, which, in view of their letter of April 11th to Mr. Lawrence seems unlikely, we will have many families actually in the street.

It occurred to me that if the State Board feels inclined to give us some assistance in this direction pending the development of a state-wide program and without establishing a precedent, favorable action might be taken on the resolution of the County Board quoted above.

I am attaching an analysis of the expenditures of the Allegheny County Emergency Association from January 1st, 1933 to March 31st, 1934. The items included in making up the total mentioned in the resolution are checked in red on this analysis, and are as follows:

(1) Salaries—Headquarters	$59,391.90
Stationery and Office Supplies	7,377.01
Total	$66,768.91

We can support these amounts with certified copies of payrolls and receipted invoices covering the supplies. These items, you will understand, cover the salaries of members of the headquarters staff during this period who were transferred later to the State payroll. Supplies cover purchases made in behalf of the County Board and paid for from the Emergency Association funds.

Based on expenditures made for eviction rents during the same period last year, $66,768.91 would carry us until about October 20th. 1934.

You will remember that the State Board reimbursed the Allegheny County Emergency Association for salaries paid to staff in December, 1932, and I believe that the present suggestion would be in line with the action taken at that time, although the crisis which we are now facing is of much more serious nature.

Your favorable action will be appreciated.

Dear Mr. Biddle:

Under date of May 7th we sent you the request of the County Board to establish a $10,000.00 revolving fund in Allegheny County. This request was refused to Mr. D. W. Wallace's letter of May 10th.

On May 11th at the regular County Board meeting, the following resolution was passed:

"On motion of Major Mathews, seconded by Mrs. Irish it was moved that in view of the critical situation in Allegheny County with reference to the payment of rents and the danger involved of violence as the result of evictions and our inability to meet the situation due to lack of private funds, that we request the State for postage stamps to the amount of $9,000.00 so that our private funds may be released from purchasing stamps for the more important function of paying rents, until such time as the State takes care of that item of relief or until our money is exhausted."

The thought behind this resolution is that we could requisition the number of 1c, 2c and 3c stamps needed each month, and that these stamps could be purchased in Harrisburg and shipped to us so that control of the funds might be definitely kept in Harrisburg. We would be in position to certify each month as to the number of pieces of mail sent out for each stamp denomination in order to account for the use of the stamps sent to us.

Our position in the rent situation is daily becoming more difficult. For this reason it is our desire to release money from every available source to continue this most important item.

We would appreciate hearing from you immediately on this matter.

Sincerely yours,

Executive Director.

State Emergency Relief Board,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

Gentlemen:

The Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board at its meeting of January 4th discussed press reports from Washington indicating that the responsibility for the care of relief cases, in which there is no employable member, would be transferred to the States and local communities.

If this transfer is to take place it is important that we know at the earliest possible moment what the State policy will be. The volume of cases to be transferred will depend on the definition placed on "unemployability."

It is assumed that the State will provide funds for the care of cases which are transferred to the unemployable classification. If the State does not assume this total burden and it becomes necessary for the local communities to contribute to the support, this fact should be made known to us, as it may be necessary to have enabling legislation passed at the present Session to make it possible for the local communities to provide funds.

The 1935 budgets for both the City and County have been passed upon, and the tax rate, if not already set, will be fixed within a very short time. The poor tax rate for Allegheny County, outside the City of Pittsburgh, for 1935, has already been approved by the County Commissioners.

In view of the above, therefore, we would appreciate if you will advise us as fully as possible, in order that we may take whatever steps are necessary.

Sincerely yours,

GEO. P. MILLS,

ALLEGHENY COUNTY EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD

321 Penn Avenue
Pittsburgh, Penna.

May 13, 1935.

Mr. John J. O'Keefe,
Pennsylvania State Legislature,
Harrisburg, Penna.

My dear Mr. O'Keefe:

It was not until this morning that I happened to have the opportunity to look over the testimony as recorded in the minutes of the hearings before the Legislative Committee. Unfortunately, I do talk too fast and indistinctly so I have every sympathy for the secretary who took the material. There is only one place, however, in which I think the phrasing is vital to the complete understanding of the point to which I was testifying. That answer is in line 8 of page 206, where I am quoted as saying, "certainly to protect herself, and she had reason to think she could lose her job." I do not recognize the thought conveyed in those words. What I think I had in mind (and it has to be recollection) was something like this: Certainly anyone who fibs does it to protect himself in some way and that would be true if Miss Groves did think she was in danger of losing her job. It is the latter point I would contest. Miss Groves was not in danger of losing her job simply because she was involved in a suit against a given company.

There are several points to keep in mind. The Philadelphia Company, as correspondent for the Mitten Interests, made their first approach to us as Miss Groves' employer, to learn whether she had missed much time, since the basis of the affair was a matter of injury and it would be natural that they would raise that question with the employer. We would do it with any employer. In the second place, Miss Groves had lost little time from illness and had never lost any salary as a consequence either with the Family Society or with the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board.

During the period of operation of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board we have let two or three workers go for exactly the same offense—misrepresenting the facts of absence by reporting illness. Earlier in 1934 we let a field worker go on this basis, a worker in whose behalf there was an attempt at intervention by well known people, which was withdrawn immediately on discussion of the facts. The fact that someone in behalf of Miss Groves reported she was ill the morning of her absence has never been contested. Miss Groves was not dismissed the morning she returned because we had no specific information that she had actually been in Philadelphia, we merely suspected it from the relationship of the dates.

Yours very truly,

NELL SCOTT,
Director of Relief.

October 16, 1934.

Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The executive committee of the Pennsylvania Unemployed League held a lengthy meeting on Saturday, October 13th for the consideration of the proposals of your Board for setting up a central complaint bureau to be known as the Public Relations Office.

Our executive committee has not had opportunity yet to present your proposals to the full membership of the league. This will be done this week. However our committee has agreed that it is necessary that we go further into discussion of the P. R. O. with the A. C. E. R. B.

To further clarify our position and in order that you may have our reactions to your proposals we submit the following counter-proposals.

1. We agree with the A. C. E. R. B. that the unemployed have a right to organize and be represented by persons of their own choosing.

2. We also agree that the P. R. O. "must be so organized and so equipped with authority that it can speed up action on complaints,—it must constitute an actual improvement in administration, and not some more red tape."

3. However we wish to emphasize again what we have contended before; that interviewing regularly constituted and authorized committees does not hamper or retard the adjustment of complaints in the units. We hold that this method, when properly carried out by the supervisor, will speed up the adjustment of complaints. It is our contention that increase of work and the slowness in granting justifiable relief has been caused by the large case load of the individual visitor, by the policy of attempting to hold down relief and the time consumed in devising schemes to evade seeing unemployed committees and individual clients.

Suggested Plan for a P. R. O.

1. We recommend that unemployed committees meet with the A. C. E. R. B. once each month.
2. That committees meet with Mr. Mills once a week.
3. That committees meet with the supervisor in the D. O. once each week to present routine cases.
4. That Emergency Cases be presented to the D. O. by a committee each morning at 9:00. Answers to be delivered to the committee each day before the close of the D. O.

THE P. R. O.

1. Complaints are to get into the P. R. O. under the following conditions:

2. When and if a committee presents a Routine Case to the D. O. at the weekly meeting and if at the following meeting with the D. O. the decision is against the client, then the unemployed organization shall present the case to the P. R. O. On the fifth day after the P. R. O. shall give its decision to the committee. This to be the procedure for Routine Cases only.

3. In Emergency Cases or "Urgent" complaints, if a case has been presented to the D. O. in the morning and relief is not granted before the closing of the D. O. the same day, then at the beginning of office hours the following morning the committee shall present the complaint to the P. R. O.

We insist that in this type of case the P. R. O. must have authority to grant relief within a few hours, the same day that the complaint is presented. The P. R. O. should have the authority and the equipment to issue relief orders at once in Emergency Cases. If an investigation is necessary such investigation should be conducted after an emergency order has been granted and placed in the hands of the client. Whatever the procedure the emergency order should be given before the close of the P. R. O. on the same day that the complaint is registered.

4. The P. R. O. should have authority to issue an Emergency Order under certain conditions even is cases where the client has not made application to the D. O. These will be the cases where it has been impossible, for various reasons, for the client to apply to the D. O.

5. We recognize the fact of course that the granting of an Emergency Order cannot be interpreted as placing the client on permanent relief. We are concerned that the client have relief while the investigation is proceeding.

6. The P. R. O. should have authority to grant Emergency Orders without consulting either Mr. Mills or the Board. Such delegation of authority is certainly nothing unique. It is not a usurpation of authority since it has been delegated by the higher body which in this case would be the relief board. Hospitals have emergency rooms in which emergency operations are performed. It is not required that the doctor on duty consult either the surgeon-in-chief or the board of directors or the superintendent. A client who is about to be evicted, who is without food, or clothing or who needs medical attention requires the same type of emergency attention.

7. We hold that Emergency Relief must include more than food. It should include also Rent, Clothing and Medical Attention, Heat and Light.

8. According to the proposals of the A. C. E. R. B. a large amount of authority is delegated to the D. O. We do not object to this. For instance in the matter of placing a client on permanent relief, "only the D. O. can do that." Since this is the case then the unemployed committees should have access to the D. O.

We do not oppose the establishment of the P. R. O. as such. We are only concerned that it have authority to get a job done with dispatch and efficiency. We do not want to deal with an exalted messenger boy. We have had experience already with these messenger boys in the various units.

We hold that the counter-proposals which we make are the only efficient method of getting the job done.

At the meetings of the PUL locals this week the proposals of the A. C. E. R. B. and the counter-proposals of the executive committee of the P. U. L. will be presented.

Submitted by the E. C. of the P. U. L.

Chairman.

LOANS FOR PRODUCTIVE USES DWINDLE AS RELIEF LOANS MOUNT

Government Takes the Place of Private Industry and Business as Main Outlet for Idle Investment Funds.

Government is changing place with private industry as the nation's great enterpriser.

Since 1929 vast sums of money—capital—have flowed into its ventures. Dollars that once worked for private enterprisers turned to working for government as the new enterpriser.

The result: Millions of men going to work on government enterprises. The State venturing into the power business, into the banking business, into the building business, into a multitude of businesses, government hiring labor, buying huge amounts of material, starting new projects, borrowing, spending, lending.

Thus government takes the chances that the private venturer once took. The state becomes a modern capitalist—state capitalism appears.

Above is a pictogram that tells the story in figures.

WHEN CAPITAL DREW BACK

Money—capital—the fuel that turns the wheels of capitalism—is being loaned and borrowed in a volume nearly two-thirds as large as in the boom year 1929.

But then private industry, prosperous and venturesome, borrowed eight billions of new dollars. Uncle Sam was still cutting down debt and borrowed nothing. States and local governments took a billion and a half.

The years that followed brought a complete change.

By 1934, private enterprisers, frightened by legislative barriers in their path, and aware of the timidity of investors in the face of uncertain conditions, borrowed almost no new money. Government, venturesome, and realizing that investors were compelled to seek some outlet for their funds, borrowed six billions.

This same high volume of government borrowing is to continue.

The government borrowed billions to provide relief for destitute citizens. Industry, whose borrowings normally cared for those citizens by providing them with productive jobs, took almost no new money.

CREDIT MONEY IN BANKS

Yet huge reservoirs of credit money are piled up in banks waiting for use.

Their size, officials advise, is due largely to lack of demand from those private borrowers that used them in the past to venture into new enterprises and to expand old enterprises.

It is there that the government now comes in.

So intense is the pressure to lend, as idle money seeks a job, that the federal government can obtain funds for use during one year at nominal cost. It borrows for four years at a cost of but 1¼ per cent in interest. Money for twenty years can be had at 2¾ per cent.

Industry in the past put money to work at interest rates of 4, 5 and 6 per cent. It gave that money a long-time job providing the plant and the equipment for industrial production.

The government now is offering short time work for the credit that it absorbs.

MOSTLY SHORT-TERM MONEY

Out of five billions of federal government borrowings in 1934, short term money, involving use up to five years, accounted for nearly four billions of it.

But what would happen if private industry suddenly should see a use for the credit reservoirs?

Money would seek employment where it was offered the highest return. Government would need to pay more for its huge loans.

Are there signs that a turn may be coming back again to the private borrower? Are private capitalists giving signs of venturing more?

Some government officials see faint signs of a shift. Industry is borrowing to refund old debts. Next may come borrowings of new money for expansion. If so that would signify private industrial revival.

But government continues the dominant borrower of new money. Its venturings are to expand under a $4,000,000,000 program.

The State, as the figures show, is the big present day enterpriser.

FOREWORD

The present Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives has made a study of the injustices of the existing practice of distributing funds to the 163 state-aided hospitals, in an effort to determine upon a systematically-equitable method of procedure to guide it, and future Committees, in recommending allocations to such institutions.

From the beginning of state-aid to private hospitals in Pennsylvania, there has been no attempt made to allocate these funds upon the basis of thorough and systematic study.

Since the assumption of this function by the Commonwealth, state-aid to hospitals has been a major logrolling item at each session of the legislature.

The result has been that an inequitable structure of state-aid to hospitals has been developed which has not promoted the most effective use of the funds of the state which are budgeted each biennium as a subsidy to assist the recipient institutions to provide free care for those persons who cannot pay for such service.

Development of services by hospitals under the present chaotic, preferential and indefensible practice of allocating state-aid has created a situation which the Committee is forced to conclude cannot be completely rectified at one session of the Legislature without seriously disturbing the function of free service in many of the hospitals which have been favored with a disproportionately large share of state aid. An abrupt and too-extensive re-adjustment might prove to be as unfair in its effect upon certain institutions, and the public they serve, as has been the logrolling practice to the majority of state-aided hospitals.

The Committee is of the opinion, however, that, so far as is practically possible at present, a reconciliation should be made between the amount of grants to those institutions which have been receiving more than fair share of state-aid and those which have been receiving less than their fair share, in order that these funds may more nearly reach the place of greatest need and so that the individual allocations may be more defensible by, and acceptable to, the institutions which receive them. The Committee's recommendations will include such limited re-adjustments.

The members of the Committee realize that it is possible that opposition to re-adjustment of state subsidies will be indicated by those institutions which in the past have enjoyed preferential treatment and which may hope to continue to enjoy preferential treatment and which may hope to continue to enjoy such favor at the expense of the other state-aided hospitals. The Committee is confident, however, that the ultimate wisdom of its effort to withdraw state aid to hospitals from the realm of politics, preferences and personalities, and to allocate funds on a more equitable and justifiable basis, will be recognized even by those institutions which receive reductions in the amount of their subsidy.

The Committee has during the course of its study the active assistance of the Pennsylvania Hospital Association, through a sub-committee, headed by Maj. Roger A. Greene; and of the Department of Welfare of the Commonwealth, through courtesies extended by the Hon. J. Evans Scheehle, Secretary, and S. Hawley Armstrong, institutional disbursement accountant. The Committee also had the full cooperation of the Auditor General's Department and of the hospitals which receive state-aid.

HERBERT B. COHEN,
Chairman.

SUMMARY OF THE STUDY

The attention of the Commonwealth was directed to the complex problem of state-aid last year by the "Report on State-Aid to Private Charitable Institutions and Agencies" submitted on December 15, 1934, by Alice F. Liveright, the then Secretary of Welfare, to the Hon. Gifford Pinchot, the then Governor of the Commonwealth, which report later was presented to the Members of the General Assembly.

The report was based upon a study made for the State Welfare Commission by a sub-committee composed of Margaret C. Madeira, Dr. Earle D. Bond, and J. Prentice Murphy.

The Commission evolved a set of seven principles which it declared to be fundamental to a definition of the duties, and a limitation of the responsibilities, of the Commonwealth with respect to the giving of state-aid. The Commission said it believed (1) that no institution or agency should receive state-aid unless the service it renders is one for which there exists a generally recognized need; (2) that no institution or agency should be given state-aid which, though qualified as far as meeting the requirement of the existence of a generally recognized need, does not meet an established local need; (3) that no institution or agency should receive state-aid unless a co-ordinated state-wide program will be promoted by the services of such an institution or agency; (4) that either no institution or agency performing a given service shall be considered eligible for state-aid, or all such institutions and agencies shall be so considered; (5) that no institution or agency should be given state-aid whose policy is not in harmony with the policy of the state as formulated by the Department of Welfare; (6) that no institution or agency should receive state-aid which does not at least conform to the minimum standards set by the state; and (7) that state-aid should be given on an equitable basis and so far as possible on the basis of service.

With respect to state-aid to private hospitals, the Commission found that "there is considerable evidence" that the present inequitable distribution of state-aid has (a) encouraged overhospitalization in certain centers; (b) given impetus to the establishment of hospitals on the basis of personal ambition rather than on that of community need; (c) encouraged the building of hospitals that are too small to be efficient units; and (d) has kept alive hospitals which are neither necessary nor worthy of support.

The Appropriation Committee confined its present study largely to a development of data on which can be based recommendations to carry out, as far as at present feasible, Principle No. 7, of the Commission's report, since it is that which is of most immediate concern, and most clearly a present duty of the Committee. It is presumed by the members of this Committee that Principle No. 4, will be studied by any Constitutional Convention which may be created by the voters, since a revision of the constitution would be necessary before state-aid could be allocated to any of the 28 sectarian hospitals in the state which give free service. While not in full agreement with all points made by the State Welfare Commission in its report, the Appropriation Committee suggests that the Department of Welfare of the Commonwealth authorize studies to be made with a view to formulating a broad program with reference to the generalizations and recommendations of the Commission.

For this summary of the survey of state-aid to private hospitals, the Committee has prepared tabulations, which appear in the Appendix, showing (Table No. 1) a statement of the percentage of approved free service of state-aided hospitals which was reimbursed by the state for the year ending May 31, 1934; (Table No. 2) a statement of the percentage of free service to total service rendered by state-aided hospitals for the year ending May 31, 1934; (Study No. 1) a statement of estimated appropriations which would be made for the 1935-37, biennium on the basis of an average percentage of free service which the state could reimburse with the present budgetary allocation, the percentage in this case being 51.668, which was reached by dividing the approved total earnings for free service of state-aided hospitals for 1933-35, actual for 18 months and anticipated for 6 months, into $7,500,000, the amount budgeted for state-aid appropriations to hospitals for the 1935-37, biennium; (Study No. 2) a statement of the estimated appropriations to hospitals for the 1935-37, biennium on the basis of $1.44 for each of the free days provided by the state-aided hospitals, the amount of $1.44 having been reached by dividing the total number of free days of service of all hospitals into $7,500,000, the amount set aside in the budget for state-aid during the 1935-37, biennium.

These tabulations were prepared to emphasize the total lack of any plan of scientific application of state monies to the uses of hospitals which provide free service. A careful study of Table No. 1, in comparison to Table No. 2, shows clearly that for the biennium to which the figures apply, there was no plan of allocation for a fair distribution of state-aid in relation to the free work performed by the individual hospitals.

Table No. 1, shows that 11 hospitals received between 90% and 100% reimbursement of their free service; 16 received between 80% and 90%; 23 received between 70% and 80%; 35 received between 60% and 70%; 38 received between 50% and 60%; 24 received between 40% and 50%; 10 received between 30% and 40%; 2 received between 20% and 30%; one between 10% and 20% and two below 10%.

In contrast to the figures as to reimbursed free service, Table No. 2, shows that two hospitals performed between 90% and 100% free service to total service; 9 performed between 80% and 90%; 8 performed between 70% and 80%; 21 performed between 60% and 70%; 36 performed between 50% and 60%; 35 performed between 40% and 50%; 29 performed between 30% and 40%; 18 performed between 20% and 30%; 3 performed between 10% and 20% and one performed below 10%.

The glaring disparity between the percentage of free service performed by the individual hospitals and the percentage of reimbursement for such free service is illustrated by an examination of the figures for the individual hospitals set forth in the two tables.

The comparison afforded by this examination of the percentage of free service to total service shows that, with few exceptions, allocations have been made haphazardly and without regard for the primary object of state-aid, which properly should be equitable assistance of institutions to finance free service for which there is need, modified by factors hereinafter set forth.

As concrete illustrations of the inequities of the appropriations for the previous biennium, the Committee calls attention to the fact that the Rochester General Hospital, Beaver County, performed but 21% of free service to total service and received 100% reimbursement; that the Providence Hospital of Beaver Falls, Beaver County, performed but 19% of free service and received 91.6% reimbursement; that the American Hospital for Diseases of the Stomach, Philadelphia, performed but 21.8% of free service and received 100% reimbursement; that the Simon H. Barnes Hospital of Susquehanna County, performed but 20.6% of free service and received 86% reimbursement; the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy and Hospital performed but 8.8% of free service and received 71.5% reimbursement; that the Mercy Hospital and School for Nurses, Philadelphia, performed 87.1% of free service, the largest percentage of free service of any General Hospital in the Commonwealth, and received but 54.6% reimbursement; that the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, performed 82.2% of free service and received but 28.4% reimbursement.

A further source showing the inequities of the previous allocation is Section 4, of the Budget of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the fiscal biennium, June 1, 1935 to May 31, 1937, submitted by the Honorable George H. Earle, Governor of the Commonwealth, which appears on pages 60, 61, 62, and 63. This section of the budget contains detailed statements of the state-aided medical and surgical hospitals.

These reports include the variation in per diem costs. This variation causes the principal differences in the estimated appropriations between Studies No. 1 and No. 2 included in the Appendix of this summary. Some hospitals have a low per diem cost while others utilize the full $3.00 per day allowed by the Commonwealth. A hospital having a low per diem cost would be benefited by its low cost if allocations were made on the basis of a contribution of $1.44 per free day by the state. No benefits would accrue to the hospital with a low per diem cost if the allocations were made with 51.668% of costs reimbursed by the state. The reports show variations of from $1.98 per day in the case of the Braddock General Hospital, Allegheny County, to $5.32 per day in the case of the Grand View Hospital, Oil City, Venango County.

A study of the quarterly audit of the Auditor General of the Commonwealth for the year ending 1934, of which the Committee has made a careful study, shows that the factor of additional sources of income of hospitals also has been largely ignored by the previous Appropriations Committees in allocating funds to hospitals. It is evident that this factor must be given weight by this and future Appropriations Committees.

An indication of the importance of the factor of supplemental income is given by the case of the Providence Hospital of Beaver Falls, Beaver County. The quarterly audit of the Auditor General for the year ending 1934 shows that this hospital received over $5,250 from the Commonwealth, over $10,000 from the County Commissioners of Beaver County, and gifts approximating $600, while the free service given by the hospital during that year cost but $12,000, indicating that in 1934, the hospital realized a profit on its free service of approximately $4,000. The same audit shows that this hospital suffered a loss of $9.000 on its operating expense occasioned by care of pay patients.

The economic situation of the country since 1929 also has served to increase the disproportion of reimbursement to hospitals of the cost of free service, since many hospitals have curtailed free service while others have maintained or increased the amount of that service.

It obviously is unjust for a hospital which has either curtailed or increased its free service to be reimbursed in the same amount as if there had been no change, since, in general, the first consideration in determining allocations for state-aid and must be the amount of free service which the hospital performs.

The Committee has made a careful study of these changes since the 1929-31, biennium and its recommendations for allocations for state-aid for the ensuing two fiscal years will take into consideration these variations.

The tragic situation of unemployment and deplorably lowered wage levels has greatly increased the problems which hospitals have had to face during the past five years.

The need for free service has increased and in the case of families of small income whose members may not desire to accept free bestowal of necessary hospitalization, there seems to be definite need for reclassification of rates in order that such persons may avail themselves of hospital care upon a reduced-cost basis.

A study submitted by the American Medical Association in the issue of its magazine for March, 1935, reveals that hospitals in this Commonwealth have a 61.2% average occupancy or, in other words, that slightly more than 6 of each 10 beds are occupied throughout the year.

The Committee does not feel that the indicated low percentage of occupancy shows that there is a plethora of hospitals in the Commonwealth, since there are 314 persons, according to population, for each hospital bed, a greater number than the national average.

The low occupancy percentage indicates, rather, that either (a) hospitals are performing an insufficient amount of free service, or (b) the cost of pay service is so high that many persons needing hospitalization cannot pay present rates for such service.

On the basis of its study of existing inequities, the Committee concludes that factors which must be taken into consideration in a determination of the amounts of allocations to state-aided hospitals are: (1) the percentage of free service to total service which the hospitals have provided during the previous biennium; (2) the type of community, i. e., rural or urban; (3) type of hospital, i. e., general, tubercular, children's, maternity, et cetera; (4) sources of funds other than state-aid, such as (a) contributions made by local governmental bodies; (b) contributions of local welfare; (c) interest on endowments; (d) bequests, gifts, and other sources of increment, including the profits made on services paid for by the recipients; (5) cost of per diem service; and (6) amount of allocation (the Committee believes that gradually this factor may be disregarded).

The Committee feels that it should take this occasion to recommend (1) that hospitals make a study of their service costs in an effort to derive a means whereby those persons who do not desire to become free patients, but who cannot afford, under present rates, to become private pay patients, may receive hospitalization upon a reduced-cost basis, and (2) that the Legislature seriously consider passage of measures to provide reimbursement for emergency and other service performed by hospitals as the result of the apparently ever-increasing number of motor vehicle accidents. the two recommended measures being (a) one to permit a hospital performing free service to have a lien on the amount recovered in damages by accident victims receiving hospital service, and (b) one to allot a percentage of the receipts of the motor vehicle fund from which hospitals may seek reimbursement of the cost of hospitalization provided for indigent patients who may have no legal recovery in damages as the result of motor vehicle accidents.

The foregoing summary of the study made by the Appropriations Committee of the existing practice of allocating funds for state-aid to hospitals is respectfully presented to the members of the House of Representatives, to the members of the Senate, to the Executive Officers of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and to the various hospitals which are recipients of state-aid, with a view to bring about a general recognition of the present inequities of this Commonwealth activity and a consequent willingness on the part of all concerned to co-operate with this committee in its desire to take a step in the direction of a more equitable distribution of these funds. Recommendations of the Committee for specific allocations to hospitals will follow publication of this summary.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE EMERGENCY RELIEF IN NORTHAMPTON COUNTY

To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the undersigned, constituting the Legislative Committee appointed to investigate the Emergency Relief Board and the various other relief agencies in the County of Northampton, respectfully report as follows:

That your Committee, in pursuance of its duties, held various public meetings in the City of Easton, City of Bethlehem, Borough of Northampton, Borough of Walnutport, as well as private meetings with individuals and Committees representing various sections of the County. Numerous complaints were received and considerable testimony taken relative to the relief and unemployment situation in Northampton County. It was necessary for the Committee to a great extent to rely upon volunteers for the taking of testimony and other services necessary and requisite to a proper investigation of conditions, as there was no appropriation to the Relief Committee. As a result of this condition, your Committee did not receive transcripts of testimony as promptly as it would have desired. However, your Committee desires to publicly thank and commend those who so generously gave their time and services, in order that the work of the Committee could be carried on.

The Committee, from the mass of material submitted to it and from its investigations, has come to certain definite conclusions which it feels would be proper to incorporate in this preliminary report, with a full report carrying detailed explanation and examples to follow at the next Special or Regular Session of the House of Representatives. As above stated, the Committee feels that the following changes should be made and so recommends:

1—That a different system of distribution should be established which would not be so complex and so dependent upon Harrisburg or any other centralized office. In connection with this, the Committee feels that the local people are better familiar with local conditions and have a better understanding of the problems of its people than a centralized bureau, which has no personal knowledge of the applicant but has only a case history.

2—That the Relief Investigator should be chosen more for their experience in life and ability to understand economic conditions, rather than upon the basis of courses taken in sociology. The Committee does not underestimate the value of proper training of social workers. It does, however, feel that this training should be coupled with mature experience and judgment, and that the mature experience and judgment and understanding is, in the present circumstances, of far greater value to an investigator than a course in one of the social sciences. The Committee feels that there are many local people who have had the necessary experience in life to act as Investigators and who would be able to approach the case investigations with a more humane and sympathetic understanding of the problems involved. At the same time, this change would give the opportunity of work to many people now on the relief rolls and the Committee feels that the entire personnel of the relief should be taken from the relief rolls in so far as possible.

There are, in the present set-up, positions held by many who have other independent sources of income entirely adequate to support themselves, which simply means that a deserving party, equally as competent, is compelled to be on the relief rolls, while the party with independent income, no better qualified, is receiving pay which really should go to reduce expenditures.

3—That a certain portion of relief should be cash relief. If this cash relief should be given, it would enable the shrewd housewife to take advantage of different sales in different stores held at the same time. The Committee feels that the majority of relief cases in Northampton County are relief cases through no fault of their own, and that they are just as competent and able to manage their financial affairs as any centralized bureau. The Committee further feels that the individual housewife could secure more for her money if a system of at least partial cash relief were given.

4—That a re-adjustment of the amounts allowed for relief should be made. In view of the rising cost of food, the Committee feels that in almost all cases the relief is inadequate. This is especially true in cases where children are involved. There is no asset of a community which is of greater value than the health and strength of its youth. It is, therefore, not only necessary that relief be given to keep the youth alive, but that relief be given in an amount which would enable the children to have a full and normal American standard of livelihood. The growing child must be fed not only with a view to its present existence, but its future existence as well.

5—That better provisions should be made for the medical care of those on relief. Cases have been brought to the attention of your Committee which were tragic and pathetic, which will be set forth in detail in the complete report to be filed later. At the present time, no provision is made for the relief of chronic sick but only emergency relief. In addition, those on relief complain that the Doctors are not given adequate compensation for the services rendered. In this connection, the Committee feels that it is proper to compliment the Doctors of the County who have so generously given their time and medical supplies without expectation of proper recompense. Those on relief are surely entitled to medical care, if their cases are chronic and should not be restricted only to emergency medical relief.

6—That the provisions for rent relief are entirely inadequate. As a result those on relief find it exceedingly difficult to retain the homes in which they are living or to move to new locations, as people are not anxious to rent for the amounts allowed as rent relief. It should be kept in mind that the property owner is receiving an inadequate sum and thus bearing part of the relief cost, and at the same time, is taxed upon his property to bear a further burden of the relief cost.

7—That chiseling would be prevented by the use of local investigators familiar with the people and the community wherein they reside. However, the records of chiseling, as disclosed from the Investigation of your Committee, would not seem to be out of proportion to the large number of cases involved at the present time. From the date of the announcement of the Relief Investigation to the present time, there has been a vast reduction in the number of parties on relief, which may be attributed in part, of course, to better working conditions. This announcement of the Relief Investigation may also have purged the lists of many chiselers.

8—That in the issuing of fuel orders, proper regard should be had to the size of the family and the place where they reside, as well as the season of the year. In the past, in many cases, the fuel order has been inadequate and in some cases there has ben too great a delay in the granting of said fuel order. When this relief is required, it is required promptly and provision should be made for prompt granting of Emergency Relief of this nature.

9—Another phase of relief work which was forcibly brought to the attention of your Committee was the many cases of compulsory work submitted. While there may be a slight doubt as to whether these cases should be discussed by your Committee; yet the Committee feels, in view of the great injustice which has been done, that this matter should be brought to the attention of your Honorable Body. Numerous cases were given to your Committee where individuals had worked and were entitled to receive sums far greater than the amount they actually received in relief. In addition, there were many other cases brought to the attention of your Committee where individuals, during a certain period, had performed work of far greater value than the relief they had received during the same period. Also, other cases were brought to the attention of your Committee, where the value of the work performed was equal to or exceeded by the relief granted. In all of these cases, no cash was paid, and it was a compulsory work which the parties on relief performed. Due to their economic need, this work really amounted to slavery. The Committee feels that in all of these instances, adequate re-adjustment of compensation should be made and that the State of Pennsylvania would surely intend to pay a dollar for a dollar's worth of labor, and had no intention of defrauding its citizens out of their just dues. The Committee would recommend that appropriate legislation to properly recompense the parties involved be passed by your Honorable Body. The persons, who appeared before the Committee, were the ordinary and formerly substantial citizens of the County of Northampton, and were not radicals nor permanent unemployables, and the Committee therefore feels that their testimony is entitled to be considered.

Your Committee will submit a detailed report, giving actual cases and figures at the next Special or Regular Session of your Honorable Body.

Respectfully submitted,

HENRY K. Van SICKLE,
CHARLES B. COAKLEY,
WILLIAM SINWELL.

REPORT OF LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE APPOINTED PURSUANT TO RESOLUTION NO. 61

To the Honorable House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Your Committee appointed pursuant to Resolution No. 61 of the House of Representatives of the sessions of 1935-37, has the honor to submit the following as its report.

Foreword

Resolution No. 61 of the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania was introduced on February 19, 1935, by the Honorable Herman P. Eberharter, Allegheny County, reported from the Committee on Appropriations on March 12, 1935, adopted by the House on March 14, 1935. Subsequent thereto, the following Representatives were named to serve on the Committee:

EUGENE A. CAPUTO, Beaver, Chairman.
THOMAS W. BARBER, Erie.
HOMER S. BROWN, Allegheny.
JAMES E. LOVETT, Westmoreland.
FRANK J. ZAPPALA, Allegheny.

In pursuance to the aforementioned resolution, the Committee held a series of public hearings in the Council Chambers in the City-County Building, in the City of Pittsburgh, commencing on April 5, and ending on May 11, 1935, during which eighty-one persons were called and testified before the Committee. Of these witnesses, six were former members of the faculty of the University; thirty are present members of the faculty; nine are administrative officers, one, the Chairman of the Investigating Committee of the American Association of University Professors; thirty-six other witnesses included twenty-three students, or former students of the University. In addition the Committee visited the Administrative offices of the University where the books of accounts, budgets, and other documents were examined, at which time the University Auditor, and the representative of the Auditor General's Department, of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania were present. Numerous exhibits were offered into evidence, some of which were made part of the record, and others because of their length, were accepted as schdules, reference thereto being made on the record.

The specific assignment given the Committee is expressed in the Resolution of the House of Representatives hereinbefore referred to, and is stated as follows:

> "RESOLVED, that the Speaker of the House of Representatives is hereby authorized to appoint five members of this House, who are members of the Committee on Appropriations, whose duties it shall be to fully, fairly, and impartially inquire into and investigate the attitude of the Board of Trustees and those in charge of the University of Pittsburgh, toward members of the Faculty and Student Body, who both inside and outside of the classrooms, advocate liberal views and freedom of thought and expression on the subjects of economics, and politics, and other subjects wherein academic freedom should be allowed, and further, to inquire into and investigate all matters touching the said University of Pittsburgh, which are pertinent to the question of making an appropriation of public funds, and to ascertain whether or not said Institution is worthy of receiving further large appropriations of public funds."

The Committee takes pleasure in acknowledging the assistance and cooperation of the City of Pittsburgh for permitting the use of Council Chambers for the purpose of conducting the hearings, and also to all others whose efforts aided the Committee in the conduct of the investigation.

The Committee, before stating its conclusions on the matters assigned to it under the aforesaid Resolution, deems it advisable to discuss briefly the testimony given by certain witnesses as follows:

The first witness called was Prof. Colston E. T. Warne, who said that he became an instructor in the Department of Economics in the Academic Year of 1921-22; that after the Academic Year 1921, he left the University of Pittsburgh, and went to the University of Chicago, where in the Spring of 1925, he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy; that he spent one year at the University of Denver, and returned to the University of Pittsburgh, as Assistant Professor in the Academic Year of 1926. During the year 1926, Prof. Warne was called into the office of Chancellor Bowman, concerning a letter written to the Chancellor by Mr. Samuel Harden Church, Secretary of the Pennsylvania Lines West, in which letter it was alleged that Mr. Warne had made statements in his classroom to the effect that "The Pennsylvania Railroad is not well-managed."

As the result of this interview, Mr. Warne was requested to see Mr. Church, which he did. In the Fall of 1927, Prof. Warne became interested in a Coal Strike that occurred in the Coal Regions of Western Pennsylvania. His activities consisted of visits to the area affected, conferences with the miners, and a general study of the disturbances in this area.

Sometime in January, 1928, Prof. Warne addressed the Hungry Club of Pittsburgh on this subject, stressing two points, first: Collective Bargaining, and second; Government Control. Immediately after the talk, Prof. Warne was again called into the office of Chancellor Bowman, and informed by the Chancellor that "A person in academic circles has no place in heated controversies. Nothing is gained, and the Institution is imperiled."

The witness further testified that Chancellor Bowman during this interview, informed him that his participation in such controversies might imperil the financial status of the University. At the close of this interview, Chancellor Bowman advised Prof. Warne to visit Mr. Samuel A. Taylor, a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of Pittsburgh. The witness further testified that he did visit Mr. Taylor, and discussed with him the question concerning the miners, and that there was a sharp cleavage of opinion as to the demands of the strikers, Mr. Taylor expressing the feeling that the demands of the strikers were unjust, and that Mr. Warne was merely propagandizing for the miners.

Subsequently, the witness was asked to write a number of articles on his observations in the mining area, but desisted as he felt the Dean of the Department of Economics was not in accord with his activities in this matter. During the latter part of April, 1928, the witness stated that he addressed a group in the Smithfield M. E. Church of Pittsburgh on this same subject, and that shortly thereafter Mr. E. T. Weir, of the Weirton Steel Company, wrote to the Chancellor of the University, protesting against statements alleged to have been made by the witness, and the witness was again called into the office of the Chancellor, and told that he would be re-appointed to the Faculty of the University if he agreed not to write or speak on the coal problem, and to that proposal the witness assented, and a few days later was re-appointed for another year.

Prof. Warne was, during this time, a member of the Pittsburgh Branch of the American Civil Liberties Union, which organization addressed a letter to the then Governor of Pennsylvania, John S. Fisher, demanding an investigation of the State Police, particularly the Coal and Iron Police. Shortly after this incident, the witness states that in April, 1929, he was called into the office of J. Steele Gow, and administrative officer of the University and told that he would not be re-appointed. However, according to the testimony of the witness, he was further informed by Mr. Gow a few days later that he would be re-appointed.

Subsequently, Prof. Warne resigned his position on the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh to accept a position as associate Professor of Economics at Amherst College.

The testimony of W. Ellison Chalmers, who appeared before the Committee, revealed that he was hired as an instructor in the Department of Economics at the University of Pittsburgh in 1928, and taught during the academic year of 1928-29. That during his first year at the University, he acted as one of the advisors to the Liberal Club.

The testimony of the witness shows that after the Liberal Club had been discontinued by the University authorities, he invited a number of students to meet at his home, which was adjoining the campus, to discuss certain social questions. Some of these students had been members of the Liberal Club. Witness' testimony further disclosed that Acting Dean Gow called him into his office and questioned the witness about permitting students to meet at his home to discuss these problems. The witness also was interested in the Student Branch of the American Civil Liberties Union, which was then in the process of formation, and the activities of the American Civil Liberties Union, according to the witness, centered largely around the Barcoski Murder Case, the facts of which are well-known to the people of Western Pennsylvania, and ultimately resulted in legislation asking for the abolition of the Coal and Iron Police System.

The witness further stated that, at the end of his academic year, he was called into the office of the Chancellor and offered a sum of money to continue his studies away from the University of Pittsburgh, but that he did not accept this offer and was re-appointed for a second year.

The witness further testified that he became interested in what was known as the Pittsburgh Labor College, a voluntary and free effort on the part of certain laboring groups to secure better training in their trades.

The winess' testimony further disclosed that during his second year a the University, a Taxicab Strike occurred in the City of Pittsburgh, and that he became interested in the question on the side of the strikers; that on one occasion he addressed one of the meetings of the strikers in one of the downtown Auditoriums in the City of Pittsburgh.

The witness stated that he was constantly informed that his activities in these various labor groups were distasteful to the Chancellor, although it does not appear from the testimony that the Chancellor ever made any such statements directly to the witness.

On March 29, 1930, according to the testimony of the witness, Dean Manly informed him that he would not be re-appointed, which fact became known in the Department of Economics and resulted in a letter sent by the Executive Committee of the Department of Economics to the Board of Trustees asking for the re-appointment of Mr. Chalmers, who was ultimately re-appointed, but resigned on May 23, 1930, to go to the University of Wisconsin to complete graduated work required for an advanced degree.

It is apparent from the testimony of the witness that he had perfect freedom in his classroom activities, but according to the witness' further testimony, inference is given that the University does not approve of members of the faculty engaging in discussions concerning social movements that challenge the present status of our economic system.

Dr. P. W. Whiting, now a resident of Philadelphia and a teacher at the University of Pennsylvania, testified as follows: He was graduated from Dartmouth and Harvard receiving a Master's Degree from Harvard, after which he was engaged in research work at Burns Institute, Harvard University.

In 1916, he received the Doctor of Philosophy Degree from the University of Pennsylvania, and engaged in research work under a Harrison Research Fellowship, University of Pennsylvania.

Subsequently, he became Professor of Zoology at Franklin and Marshall, and later Professor of Biology at St. Stevens College on the Hudson.

He later occupied the chair of Eugenics at Iowa State, and was Professor of Biology at the University of Maine, from which institution he came to the University of Pittsburgh in 1928, as Assistant Professor in Zoology.

During the academic year, he was approached by several students and asked to become one of the faculty advisors to the Liberal Club, and as such, he attended meetings and assisted in obtaining speakers for the Club.

During the Spring of 1929, as a faculty advisor to the Liberal Club, he was asked to introduce the speakers at the meeting at which Dr. Harry Elmer Barnes was to speak. To this he consented, and attended the meeting having had no knowledge or information that the permit for the meeting had been revoked by the University administration.

His testimony concerning the incidents following the meeting of the Liberty Club, is substantially the same as the testimony offered by some of the students, and which will be discussed at a different place in this report.

Subsequent to the meeting of the Liberal Club to which reference has been made, he was called in by Mr. Gow, at which time he was asked to cease his activities in connection with the Liberal Club, because such activities were frowned upon by the administration. As a result of this conference, Dr. Whiting resigned as advisor to the Liberal Club.

With reference to the matter of being dismissed from the faculty of the University of Pitsburgh, Dr. Whiting specifically states that he is of the opinion that he was not dropped because of his activities or connections with the Liberal Club, but that he believes there were other reasons for the action taken by the University.

Dr. Whiting also testified that in his opinion, the conditions on the University campus insofar as academic tenure is concerned, are very unsatisfactory, and this condition appears to be the principal complaint which he had to make.

Charles Wesley McDowell is a brother of Arthur McDowell, one of the students who was expelled following the Liberal Club episode. He is now a graduate student at the University of Pittsburgh. He originally entered the University of Pittsburgh in 1926, and received his Batchelor's Degree in 1930.

Mr. McDowell testified that, several days before the date set for the meeting of the Liberal Club, at which Dr. Barnes was to appear, a letter addressed to his brother was received from the Dean of Men, requesting the presence of Arthur McDowell at the Dean's office, on the same day, and the same hour at which the meeting was to take place.

His testimony discloses that members of the Liberal Club assembled in a room in Alumni Hall on a date and time set forth for the meeting, and that before they were able to proceed with the meeting, a representative of the administration informed them that the permit for the use of the room had been revoked, and that the meeting should not take place. The group then removed themselves to the steps of Thaw Hall, where again the University authorities notified the group that the meeting could not take place on University property. From this place, the group moved to a vacant lot, adjacent to the University's property, where the meeting proceeded. The meeting had been called for the purpose of discussing the Mooney-Billings case.

The testimony further discloses that two days after this incident, notice was received from the University authorities that the charter of the Club had been revoked, and the organization dissolved.

On Friday of the same week, disregarding the orders of the University authorities, the Liberal Club attempted to hold a meeting in the Alumni Hall, without first requesting a permit. This meeting was presided over by William Albertson and Arthur McDowell. During the course of the meeting, an official of the University appeared and requested that the meeting be discontinued.

Following this meeting, William Albertson and Arthur McDowell were notified that they had been expelled from the University.

Mr. McDowell further testified that, in 1930, together with other students, he made an effort to organize a Social Club to replace the dissolved Liberal Club. In accordance with the rules and regulations of the University Student Body, an application for the granting of a charter was made, which was refused. The students took the matter before Chancellor Bowman, and according to Mr. McDowell, during discussions as to the question of the charter, the Chancellor was alleged to have stated that if the organization was opened to former members of the Liberal Club, a charter would not be granted because such men were not fit to be in the University, and he would not have them there.

King Derr is still a student at the University of Pittsburgh, being a member of the Senior Class, and having been very active on the campus.

In the Spring of 1931, he organized a University of Pittsburgh Branch of the League for Social Justice for the purpose of Discussing Questions of Social and Economic Importance. This group was affiliated with the City group composed of persons not connected with the University of Pittsburgh. The group made application to the Student Relations Committee in accordance with the rules of the University for the purpose of obtaining a charter, and receiving proper recognition from the governing body.

A temporary charter was granted to the group on March 17, 1933, with the understanding that the organization would receive a permanent charter in the Fall upon request, and further consideration. Consequently, in the Fall of 1933, the group again petitioned the Student Relations Committee for a permanent charter, and after several conferences, and demands, the charter was denied.

Marjorie Hanson is a graduate of the University, and at present a student in the Law School. Miss Hanson became interested in the League for Social Justice, and attended many of the conferences together with Mr. Derr. Her testimony is substantially the same as Mr. Derr; in addition, she testified that in a conversation held with Mr. Weber, the Business Manager of the University, Mr. Weber stated to her that such an organization as the League for Social Justice could serve no purpose on the campus of the University, and therefore was not necessary.

She also testified that because of the fear that existed on the part of the faculty, it became very difficult to secure faculty advisors.

Dr. Ralph E. Turner received his undergraduate education at the University of Iowa, from which institution he also received his Master's Degree. After teaching at Cedar Rapids High School for two years, he obtained a fellowship at Columbia University, from which institution he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. He was given a position as Assistant Professor of History at the University of Pittsburgh in 1925, and taught as a member of the faculty of the History Department throughout his nine years at the University.

He received promotions and was finally placed in complete charge of English History. According to his testimony there were neither complaints, nor any interference with his teaching up to the academic year of 1928.

In the following year he was called in by Mr. Gow and was told that some person who happened to be a parent of one of the students had objected to "what went on in Dr. Turner's class."

After some discussion as to what disposition should be made of the complaint, Gow used a directory of some kind, and after ascertaining the position held by the party complaining, made the following remark: "Well, this man is Secretary of one Coal Company, and President of another Coal Company. He is small potatoes, and we won't pay much attention to him."

Towards the close of the academic year, 1928-29, Dr. Turner was called in by Dean Sieg, and there was asked whether or not he would exclude part of the discussion on the theory of evolution which was part of his course, and which had met with some objections, to which suggestion Dr. Turner agreed.

In the Spring of the academic year, 1930-31, he again was called in by Dean Sieg and was told that some minister had complained about his teaching, and reminded him that he should consider that Pittsburgh was, in some respects, a Fourteenth Century community. This was the last occasion for any complaint concerning his classroom work.

In 1933, he was asked by a student at one of the classes, which he was at that time conducting at the Y. M. H. A., to preside at a meeting of the Friends of he Soviet Union, to which request he consented; however, because of conflicts in engagements, he was not and did not preside at that meeting. It appears that handbills and other advertising matter pertaining to the meeting contained the statement that Dr. Turner was to preside at this meeting, and because of the publicity which this meeting received in the newspapers, the matter came to the attention of the University authorities, and, as a consequence, Dr. Turner was called in by Dean Sieg and was told that the Sons of the American Revolution had complained about Dr. Turner's associations and activities in connection with the Friends of the Soviet Union, and suggested that Dr. Turner be more careful in the future, especially in view of the fact that it was his opinion that this group was exploiting Dr. Turner and the University.

Concerning the Liberal Club incident, Dr. Turner advises that the only connection he had with this matter was with reference to the petition signed by members of the faculty, to which he affixed his name, and presented it to Dr. Bowman at the request of these members of the faculty.

He also stated that because these men had signed this petition they had since that time become marked men, and every one of them, one by one, had left the University. This statement was later found to be erroneous by the Committee.

In February of 1933, he was requested to become chairman of the Allegheny County Committee of the Pennsylvania Security League, and subsequently became the State Chairman of the League. Because of his connections with the League, he became very active in lobbying for Social Legislation, and together with other persons, published the "Black News" which contained the record of members of the Legislature, on matters pertaining to social legislation.

As a result of his activities, he failed to receive notice of his appointment for the following year, and when he inquired for the reason, was told that although his name had been included in the budget, and submitted to the Chancellor, his case was awaiting the special action of the Chancellor. As a result of this information, Dean Sieg and Dr. Turner called on Mr. Gow and discussed this matter. During this conference, Gow asked Dr. Turner whether he intended to follow a scholarly or a political career, to which Dr. Turner answered that it was his desire to follow a scholarly career, and he was willing to give up all his outside activities.

This resulted in his re-appointment for the following year. During his last year at the University of Pittsburgh, he was called upon to give several lectures to various organizations, among which was a lecture delivered before the Western Pennsylvania Historical Association. The subject of this lecture was "History in the Making in Western Pennsylvania." After making his appearance before this group, a great many protests were received by the University from persons who had attended the lecture, among whom were Ex-Governor Fisher and Judge Ewing. In spite of these protests, he was given a contract for the year 1934-35. Following the close of the academic year, about June 30, he was called in by Dr. Oliver, the Head of the Department of History, and was told that, although he had received a contract for the following year, he would not be permitted to teach, but would be paid his salary for the year. Upon approaching Dean Sieg of the College, in order to obtain a reason for his dismissal, he was told that, because of his activities, he had brought severe criticism to the University, and had interfered with the campaign for funds, which was at that time being conducted by the Chancellor.

Not being satisfied with this explanation, he called upon the Chancellor in order to discuss the question of his dismissal. During the course of the conference with the Chancellor, Dr. Turner asked the Chancellor what had happened since he received his contract that made it necessary for the Chancellor to dismiss him, to which the Chancellor replied that nothing had happened.

Pressing the Chancellor for a reason for his dismissal, he was given the answer "There is discontent in the community," and was told that the University could better carry out it policy with Turner away. The Chancellor also assured Turned that it was not politics that had caused his dismissal.

Another criticism, Dr. Turner denied, under cross examination, was that he had been flippant or irreverent towards religion in his classroom, and also denied that he had told off-color stories in his classes.

It is his opinion that he was dismissed, not because of his attitude toward religion, but because of his activities in and associations with the Pennsylvania Security League.

Chancellor John G. Bowman testified that he came to the University of Pittsburgh in January, 1921; that the University consisted of approximately five thousand students the total assets were less than three million dollars; the indebtedness of the University was approximately one million dollars; that the equipment was very poor; and that during his regime the total assets have increased to approximately twenty million dollars; increase in the endowment to approximately three million dollars, and that at one time the University had an enrollment of sixteen thousand students.

The witness further stated that, at a Freshmen reception he received fifteen or twenty-five complaints as to what Dr. Turner was teaching in his classrooms; that in December, 1933, the witness addressed the Presbyterian Ministers' Union; that the ministers present charged the University with breaking down the kind of attitude toward life they were trying to build up. This special reference being made to Dr. Turner. The witness testified that he called in the Dean of the College and the Dean told the witness that Turner's attitude toward religion was such that he should not be continued.

In March, 1934, the Chancellor gave a review of Turner's situation to the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees. No record was made of this meeting; however, the witness remembers that he told the members of the Committee that he could not go on further with Prof. Turner for another year, because of his religious influence; that he had decided to give Prof. Turner his salary for another year, but would not bring the matter up before the Summer, as the dismissal of Turner would cause too much publicity, and the securing of money was a difficult problem.

On the question of the arrest of certain students, which subject will be treated elsewhere in the report, the Chancellor said that he did not find fault or praise Don Harrison for his part in this episode.

The witness also stated that Dr. Whiting was released from the University purely because of financial conditions.

Returning to the question of Prof. Turner's liberal activities, the witness stated that he did not know that Prof. Turner was interested in these activities. The witness also stated that he knew nothing of the Liberal Club activities until the Legislative Hearing, but admitted that, from what he heard at the Legislative Meeting, the Liberal Club was formed to make trouble.

The Chancellor, in his testimony, denied that the activity of Prof. Chalmers had any connection with his tenure at the University, and further denied that the instances related by Prof. Warne as to being called into the Chancellor's office to discuss matters brought to the Chancellor's attention by certain industrialists, had any connection with any pressure exerted on behalf of these industrialists.

The witness stated, however, that Prof. Warne had been called in on numerous occasions to place the Professor on the right track.

The Chancellor's further testimony revealed the fact that he does not believe the Civil Liberties Union is a useful Civic body.

On the question of academic freedom, the Chancellor stated, "Academic freedom is a privilege of a scholar and professor to pursue the truth, and to talk in public, teach that truth, talk it in the classroom, and out of the classroom, publicly, where he pleases."

In discussing this definition of academic freedom, according to the testimony that the Chancellor has revealed to the Committee, the Chancellor makes one reservation to the effect that a professor should not involve himself in heated controversial arguments that might involve the University.

The witness further stated that he did not approve of the rules of tenure adopted in 1915 (which rules will be discussed by the Committee later, in this report.)

Upon being questioned directly by the Committee as to the Chancellor's specific charge against Dr. Turner, and the Committee's desire to get definitely before it the objectionable religious attitude to which the Chancellor referred throughout his testimony, Chancellor Bowman could not state definitely the contents of the objectionable attitude other than this: "I don't know that I can give you a specific instance that is just what you want. It was an attitude of being quite superior to a person who believed in a particular creed in religion as he (referring to Dr. Turner) would seem to take delight in breaking that down, as I recall, when he got an opportunity."

J. Steel Gow was Administrative Officer of the University from 1916 to 1930, except for an interval between 1924 and 1927, when he was doing graduate work at Harvard University.

He was Assistant Director of the Extension Department, then Financial Secretary of the University, Assistant to the Chancellor, Executive Secretary, and finally Dean of the Administration. The witness could not recall the conversation in 1929 wherein Prof. Warne testified, that the witness had told him of his (Warne's) dismissal; however, the witness did produce records of the University showing he had a conference with Prof. Warne on March 1, 1929, called at the request of the Chancellor, who wanted to find out how much time Prof. Warne was going to give to outside activities during the next ensuing year.

The witness testified that he reported his findings to the Chancellor, who was well pleased to know that Prof. Warne was not giving too much time to outside activities.

The witness stated that he had a conference with Prof. Warne on March 21, 1929, and informed Prof. Warne that he would be re-appointed and that in May, 1929, he had another conference with Prof. Warne, who at that time seemed disappointed that his re-appointment did not carry an increase of salary.

The witness emphatically denied that the conferences had with Prof. Warne related in any way to Warne's activities concerning the Coal and Iron Police.

The witness also denied that he cautioned Warne about his activities with the Civic Liberties Union.

On the question of the Liberal Club incident, the witness read into the record, a lengthy document purported to have been made by the witness on May 7, 1929, which document, briefly summed up, gave two reasons why the Liberal Club was disbanded.

The first reason concerned a resolution sent to the officials of the University by the Liberal Club, condemning the University authorities for allowing the University Employment Office to furnish to the Pittsburgh Press, a daily newspaper in the City of Pittsburgh, forty-eight students, during a strike of the employes of the Pittsburgh Press; and the second, the holding of the meeting on the Mooney-Billings Case, together with the subsequent announcement by the Liberal Club that it intended to continue holding such meetings.

The witness stated that the only objections to the Mooney-Billings meeting were that it was not "open-minded discussion."

The witness admitted calling Prof. Chalmers' attention to the fact that the Liberal Club was meeting at his home, after it had been disbanded, but denied that he cautioned Prof. Chalmers.

The witness remembered calling in Prof. Turner to ask if he wanted to follow a political or scholarly career. He stated that a letter sent to him by Prof. Turner, in which Prof. Turner resigned as President of the Pennsylvania Security League was entirely voluntary on the part of the Prof. Turner and was without any coercion whatsoever.

The witness further stated that he felt that when he left the University in 1930, there was no feeling of undue restraint on the part of faculty members.

On the question of Prof. Chalmers leaving the University, the witness testified that after Dean Manley omitted the name of Prof. Chalmers from the budget, that he, the witness, prevailed to have Prof. Chalmers' name included in the budget, and that the letter sent from the Department of Economics protesting against the dropping of Prof. Chalmers had no bearing whatsoever upon the reappointment of Prof. Chalmers, as he (the witness) had already taken care of Mr. Chalmers' reappointment.

In fine, the witness testified that he believes the faculty is free, that there is no repression, that the only uncertainty of tenure that exists in the University is because of financial reasons.

W. Don Harrison, Director of Athletics and Associate Professor of English at the University of Pittsburgh, testified that among his duties is the supervision of the operation of the Pitt Stadium; that the Commencement speaker for 1932 was General McArthur, ranking general of the United States Army. The witness stated further that he advised with the Superintendent of Police of the City of Pittsburgh concerning certain traffic arrangements and that on the Commencement Day, the witness with the Police Lieutenant in charge cruised around the grounds of the University to see that Traffic Regulations were satisfactory; and that while cruising he noticed four persons, two or whom were later identified as students of the University of Pittsburgh, with signs under their arms, and that when the witness, with the Lieutenant, approached these persons, they ran in the "Y" Hut, which is situated on the University campus; and that when the witness asked to be admitted to the Hut, he and the Lieutenant were refused, whereupon they called the caretaker, who opened the office, and found the persons with the signs, and the boys were asked to leave, that upon their refusal to leave, they were placed under arrest.

The witness testified the printing on the signs was not seen by them in the first instance, nor was there any disturbance or disorder of any kind. It was found afterwards that the signs bore certain inscriptions, to wit: "Down with Heinz, Mellon and Dupont;" "Generals die in Bed."

The witness denied that he ordered the arrest of the boys, or that the University prosecuted them, or penalized them in any way. The only excuse, as shown by the testimony of the witness for the arrest of the boys was that they were trespassing on property of the University reserved on Commencement Day for the Seniors of the School of Pharmacy and its Faculty.

The witness testified that he asked the Inspector of Police to release the boys, but was refused; however, the witness stated that he did not ask for the release of the boys while they were being loaded in the patrol wagon.

The witness in his attempt to absolve the University of any implication in the matter, whatsoever, testified that he acted entirely on his own initiative.

Hugh A. Wing testified that he was an instructor in English in the University and had been so since 1926, that on January 12, 1935, he gave twelve topics to be discussed in the Freshman English Class, which topics were taken from the educational page of the "New York Times;" that the questions contained fallacies, and that he was interested in the breadth of the students' thought; that the questionnaire had been given at several of the leading Eastern Colleges.

Some of the questions were as follows:

First: Socialism would stunt personal initiative.

Second: The New Deal is in important respects already socialistic.

Third: Medicine and Dentistry should be controlled by the State.

Fourth: Politics is the tool of wealth.

Fifth: Free competition for profit provides means for the survival of the fittest.

Sixth: Any man can obtain justice in our Courts.

Seventh: All electric power should be owned by the Government.

Eighth: Our form of Government has worked in the past; therefore it will work in the future.

The witness testified that the student was allowed to choose any subject or any side thereof; that after the subjects had been given to the class, a complaint had come to Prof. Percival Hunt, the head of the Department of English, from a parent of one of the students who wrote on the topic dealing with Socialized Medicine, which complaint charged Prof. Hunt with taking up the time of the class in teaching and discussing Socialism.

The witness accused Prof. Hunt, the Head of the Department, of saying that "to give out any kind of controversial subject was very bad and was very dangerous and that it was not his function to teach people on social questions;" and further asserted that he was told by the Head of the Department that subjects which were controversial should not be used.

Dr. Raleigh R. Huggins has been connected with the University Medical School for upwards of twenty years, occupying the position of Dean of the School for the past fifteen years. He testified that the Medical School was open to all students, regardless of race or color, and that there was no discrimination in this respect.

However, because of the lack of clinical facilities for the students of the Senior classes, colored students did not apply for admission to the school, or if they applied, and were admitted, their Medical education was finished at some other school.

By inference, he places the responsibility for the lack of clinical facilities on the several hospitals of the City.

However, on cross examination, he admitted that at no time did he obtain or make any effort to obtain any definite expression from the Hospital authorities as to whether colored students could be given the proper clinical service given to other students.

Elmer D. Graper, Professor and Head of the Department of Political Science, testified that he had been a member of the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh since 1923; that he was never interfered with personally in his classroom, or outside activities; that no professor is hired or dismissed in his department without his approval.

The witness felt that the atmosphere of uncertainty and discontent on the part of the faculty does exist, and assigned as his reasons therefor, the lack of economic security, and the absence of known definite tenure regulations.

The witness states that the situation has grown intensely worse at the University.

The witness states that he engages in outside political and social, civic activities, but has never been personally interfered with.

B. J. Hovde, a member of the faculty in the Department of History since 1927, testified that he was one of the faculty advisors to the Liberal Club, and felt that the advisors should have been informed before the order refusing permission to hold the Mooney-Billings meeting.

The witness was at one time chairman of the Pittsburgh Branch of the League for Social Justice, and testified that he was never interfered with in his classroom activities.

His testimony further showed that there exists among the members of the faculty at the University a fear or uncertainty which arises out of two causes; first the inadequate system of tenure, and second, discussion of social problems. The witness stated that both situations are inseparable.

Mont R. Gabbert, Professor of Philosophy at the University since 1921, testified that an atmosphere of fear exists at the University, and described the following as his opinion for the reasons therefor: First, uncertainty of income. Second, tenure policies are not known. Third, unfavorable and critical publicity concerning dismissals from the faculty, which tends to affect the morals of the faculty, regardless of whether the publicity is true or false.

The witness further testified that he was never criticized for his classroom work except on one occasion, which centered around the question of religion, but that the criticism was passed over apparently unnoticed.

The witness testified that Mr. Woltman, a graduate assistant in his deparment, was dismissed without any knowledge being given to the witness, who was the head of the department.

Ralph E. Himstead, called at the request of the Legislative Committee, is Professor of Law in the College at Syracuse University, a member of Committee A. of the American Association of University Professors, who, with James B. Bullet of the University of North Carolina, and Prof. A. B. Wolfe, of Ohio State University, made inquiry concerning the general tenure policy and the matter of the dismissal from the faculty of Ralph E. Turner, said report being published in the March, 1935 Bulletin of the American Association of University Professors, testified that the Committee of the American Association of University Professors, held a conference with fifteen members of the Faculty of the University of Pittsburgh, and that all of the faculty members were of the opinion that the tenure situation was unsatisfactory, that in this group there were two Deans in the University. The witness further testified that the Committee above mentioned visited the University on two occasions, once in August, 1935, and again in November, 1935; that the enitre investigation consumed nine days; that the Committee conferred with members of the faculty from two lists, one furnished by the Chancellor, and the other submitted by Dr. Turner; That the Committee interviewed in addition thereto, seventy-five members of the teaching staff, administrative officials, students, and two members of the Board of Trustees; that all the testimony secured by the Committee was secured at private hearings. The report of the Committee of the American Association of University Professors, from testimony given by Dr. Himstead before the Legislative Committee is to the effect that Chancellor Bowman's philosophy is that College Professors are purely and simply hired men. The witness testified that his Committee strongly condemned the lack of tenure system at the University; His testimony further revealed that, according to two members of the Board of Trustees with whom they talked, the decision as to dismissals in most cases is reached solely by the Chancellor, and that he believes the Chancellor's attitude toward academic freedom is inimical, insofar as the internal administration of the Universty is concerned.

The witness further testified that Chancellor Bowman stated that the University had no By-Laws, touching on the tenure situation. The witness further states that Mr. George Clapp, President of the Board of Trustees, told his Committee that all matters connected with the faculty had been delegated to the Chancellor, and that he thought the faculty was satisfied.

The witness further stated that Chancellor Bowman appeared to be too idealistic to face the ugly facs of life, and that he is too autocratic in his attiude towards tenure.

The witness further testified that he had been told by former Dean Seig of the College of the University of Pittsburgh, that religion had practically nothing to do with the dismissal of Dr. Turner, and that he was also told by Dr. Oliver, Head of the Department of History of the University of Pittsburgh, that the question of religion had no serious bearing on the dismissal of Prof. Turner.

In view of the fact that testimony concerning the activities of the Liberal Club was given by a large number of the witnesses, the Committee believes it essential to briefly summarize the testimony.

The Liberal Club was an organization of students of the University of Pittsburgh duly chartered and recognized by the University student administration and also by the University administrative officers. Under the rules of the University, recognized student organizations must obtain permission to hold public meetings.

It appears that in the spring of 1929 the officers of the Liberal Club with the approval of the faculty advisors, obtained a permit for the purpose of holding a meeting to discuss the Mooney-Billings case. Several days before the meeting was to be held in Alumni Hall, handbills announcing the meeting were distributed or posted throughout the Campus.

Dr. Harry Elmer Barnes, who happened to be in the city of Pittsburgh at that time, was asked to appear and address the meeting. It appears that the University authorities took exceptions to the purpose of the meeting or to the manner in which it was announced in the handbills and about three days before the meeting, the administrative officers through the Dean of Men, notified the Secretary of the Club, that the permit for the meeting had been revoked and that the meeting was not to be held. The testimony on this point is contradictory, the students alleging that the notice of the revocation of the permit was not given until the day and time fixed for the meeting, while the University authorities allege that the notice of revocation was mailed from the Dean of Men's office several days before the meeting and in ample time to reach the officers of the Club before the date of the meeting. This point, while it may appear to be of no consequence, is considered very important by the Committee, because of the fact that much of what transpired thereafter is traceable thereto.

On the day and time of the meeting, Mr. William Albertson and Mr. Arthur McDowell, officers of the Club were summoned to the office of the Dean of Men and there were told that the permit had been cancelled and that the meeting should not take place. Disregarding the action of the University authorities an attempt was made to hold the meeting in Alumni Hall and when the University authorities ordered the room in Alumni Hall vacated, the students removed themselves to the steps of Thaw Hall, where another attempt was made to conduct their meeting. Again the University authorities dispersed the students and they gathered in a vacant lot adjacent to the University property, where the meeting proceeded undisturbed. The officers of the Club were notified that any future attempts to hold meetings on the University Campus without the necessary permit would lead to disciplinary action.

Two days later the Club was dissolved by order of the Administration. On Friday of the same week an attempt was made by the Liberal Club to hold a meeting in Alumni Hall without first obtaining a permit for same; that this meeting was dispersed by the University officials. Following this incident William Albertson and Arthur McDowell were expelled from the University for their participation in the attempted meeting.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS OF THE COMMITTEE

From the testimony, records, schedules, and exhibits produced, the Committee deems it wise and feasible to draw its conclusions based upon the following issues:

A. Liberal Club activities.
B. Medical School Policies.
C. Academic Tenure.
D. Academic Freedom.
E. Board of Trustees.
F. Finances.

A. Liberal Club Activities:

Before proceeding with a statement of the conclusions concerning the Committee recognizes the fact that the University of Pittsburgh, or any University, has the right and privilege to formulate and enforce rules and regulations designed to govern the conduct of its student organizations and student activities and that, in the enforcement of such rules and regulations, the university is within its jurisdiction to punish those who have failed to observe such rules and regulations.

However, it must be observed that when inflicting any disciplinary action upon students for infraction of the rules and regulations of a University, the severity of the punishment should be commensurate and in keeping with the circumstances surrounding such infractions.

The Committee is of the opinion that the officers and members of the Liberal Club committed a technical violation of the rules of the University, when they attempted to hold meetings after the revocation of the permit, or without obtaining premits in accordance with the regulations of the University.

It is the opinion of the Committee, however, that the action of the University in dissolving the Club, and also in expelling the officers of the Club was too severe and drastic, considering the circumstances.

In the case of the two students expelled the result of such action should have been considered by the University in view of the fact that these students may have found it difficult or entirely impossible to obtain admission in other institutions for the purpose of continuing and finishing their education.

It is the opinion of the Committee, that the age of the students involved should have been given some consideration by the University officials. While it is true that these students were involved in violations of the rules of the University. and used poor judgment and discretion in such an act, it should not have been expected that their judgment should have been so mature, as those who were given the privilege and duty to advise and guide such students through the University.

On the issue involving the League for Social Justice the Committee submits that the University has a right to charter organizations and clubs located on the campus, and to prescribe reasonable rules and regulations for the proper functioning and government of these organizations, but the Committee feels that the reasons given for the refusal of the charter for the League for Social Justice are not substantial and show a distinct tendency to abrogate and nullify any attempt on the part of students to become engaged in activities of a liberal nature on the University campus.

With reference to the arrest of the students, the Committee feels that the University would have anticipated that the appearance of the Chief of Staff of the United States Army as the Commencement Day Speaker, would likely cause a demonstration by virtue of the National and International sentiment against War and in favor of Peace. Inasmuch as no disturbance had occurred, the Committee is unanimously of the opinion that the arrest of the students was not justifiable, and takes this position notwithstanding the fact that the Committee believes that the students who were arrested with the signs, probably did not show proper regard for the dignity of the Commencement Day activities.

B. Medical School Policies.

Bearing on the question of the policies of the Medical School, insofar as the same concerns the non-admission of Negro students thereto, the Committee does not sustain the officials of the University in their contention that these students cannot secure admission to the Hospitals of the City of Pittsburgh. The Committee, from the evidence, submits that the authorities at the University, were simply expressing their opinions, inasmuch as they had never given the matter more than their own personal consideration, as no Negro students have graduated from the University's Medical School since 1915. The evidence further shows that a large number of Negro students are regularly enrolled in other departments of the University, and since there appears to be no discrimination as to these students, the Committee therefore desires to call to the attention of the officials of the University of Pittsburgh insofar as the same concerns the school of Medicine, the fact that in the use of public funds, there should be no discrimination on account of race, creed, and color.

C. Academic Tenure.

On the issue involving academic tenure, the Committee is unanimously of the opinion that uncertainty of tenure exists at the University, and from the evidence, assigns the following reasons for such conclusions:

(a) No definite rules of tenure are known to the faculty and some of the administrative officers.

(b) The dismissal of members of the faculty without an opportunity afforded for a hearing, and presumably at the discretion of the Chancellor:

(c) In the matter of the dismissal of Dr. Turner from the faculty, the Committee is unable to arrive at any conclusion as to the reason thereof due to the fact that the testimony touching on this point is hopelessly vague, indefinite and conflicting.

The Committee feels that the University should be criticized for not having a system of tenure and recommends that the system of tenure as stated in the By-Laws of December, 1919, which system is attached hereto in the appendix* and made part of the Committee's findings, be adopted and enforced by the Board of Trustees.

This system definitely provides rules of tenure and procedure for the appointment and removal of professors, associate professors, lecturers, and instructors. It is the same system which was abrogated at the request of the Chancellor in 1921.

In dealing with the question of academic tenure, the Committee took into consideration that portion of the testimony which disclosed certain elements over which the University has no direct control, such as the appropriation from the State of Pennsylvania, comprising approximately one-fourth of the total income of the University, and which income is subject to legislative caprice.

D. Academic Freedom.

The Committee is of the opinion that the question of academic freedom should be discussed under two subdivisions, namely: As the same pertains to the classroom and as it pertains to activities outside of the classroom.

1. In the classroom.

(a) It is the opinion of the majority of the Committee, that in the case of Dr. Turner there was no interference with his classroom activities.

(b) In the case of Prof. Wing, the majority of the Committee are of the opinion that Prof. Wing was suppressed in his classroom activities, but that such suppression was considered as an expression of opinion on the part of the Head of the Department of English.

In the matter of suppression of academic freedom outside of the classroom, the Committee holds that insofar as the matter pertains to Professors Warne and Chalmers, the testimony discloses that there was interference with their outside activities, and that that interference was unjustified.

The Committee, in order to harmonize the conflicting testimony as to Academic Freedom, reaches the conclusion that the declaration of the principles of Academic Freedom as adopted by the American Association of University Professors, is without a doubt the ideal towards which all institutions of learning should strive and if possible attain.

However, consideration should be given to certain factors such as location, environment, financial resources, and size of the Institution, all of which may make the ideal situation unobtainable in totality. (See Appendix "Academic Freedom and Tenure of A. A. U. P.") # #

E. Board of Trustees.

While the Committee does not feel called upon to criticize the University for its present method of selecting members to the Board of Trustees, it does, however, feel that the method now used of self-perpetuating in office members of the Board is not conducive to the best interests of the University, and therefore recommends, as soon as the same may be legally approved, a change in the Board of Trustees substantially as follows:

That the Board consist of thirty-three members, The Governor of the Commonwealth, the Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh, and the Chancellor of the University, to be designated as Ex-Officio Members:

That the remaining thirty members, be elected as follows:

Fifteen to be chosen by the Board of Directors internally;

Ten to be chosen by the Alumni from its members;

And five to be appointed by the Governor.

The Committee wishes to note on the question of the five to be appointed by the Governor, that the majority of the Committee feels that the Governor's appointees should be Alumni of the University.

The question as to the term of office of the members of the Board is submitted by the Committee to whatever body is designated to pass directly on this question.

F. Finances.

The Committee finds that the University derives its income from three sources, namely:

Appropriations from the State of Pennsylvania, approximately one-fourth of the University's annual budget; tuition from the students amounting to one-half of the University's annual budget; income from endowment and miscellaneous gifts, one-fourth.

The Committee agrees with the Chancellor as to the present urgent needs of the University, and files with this report in the appendix, extracts from the report of the Chancellor, bearing directly on this question.

The Committee, however, cautions the University officials, that, while recognizing the urgent material needs, sight should not be lost of the fact that many other factors enter into the making of a great University, and it is earnestly desired that as the University accumulates these material needs, it will likewise grow in its intellectual and cultural background.

The Committee commends the Chancellor of the University, and those with whom he has labored, in increasing the material assets of the University.

3. Salary of Teachers.

The Committee, from figures submitted by the University finds the following to be the average pay of the several classes of teachers at the University:

(a) Professors: Average salary, $4.297; High, $6.750; Low, $3.150.
(b) Associate Professors: Average salary, $3.570; High, $5.850; Low, $2.700.
(c) Assistant Professors: Average salary, $2.895; High, $4.800; Low, $1.800.
(d) Instructors: Average salary, $1.972; High, $3,500; Low, $1.400.

The Committee feels that no comments on the question of salaries of the members of the faculty should be made, because of the fact that lack of time prevented the Committee from obtaining statistics from other Universities, for the purpose of making proper comparisons.

4. Scholarships.

The Committee is of the opinion that the matter of Senatorial Scholarships is not within the scope of the investigations of this Committee, but should be made a subject for a study by the Legislature of Pennsylvania, and should include all institutions where such scholarships exist.

Dealing with the entire question of the financial structure of the University, the Committee in the limited amount of time at its disposal, held a meeting on May 18, 1935, in the Administrative Office of the University, and examined certain books and accounts in the presence of the University Auditors, and the representative from the Auditor General's office at Harrisburg. The Committee found no evidence of any irregularities or discrepancies in the administration of the funds of the University.

A comprehensive report, insofar as the same pertains to the detailed items of income and outgo, could not be made in such a short space of time; therefore, the Committee felt justified in relying to a large extent, on information gathered in this connection from the two officials above referred.

Respectfully submitted,

HOMER S. BROWN,
THOS. W. BARBER,
JAMES E. LOVETT,
F. J. ZAPPALA,
EUGENE A. CAPUTO,
Chairman.

June 17, 1935.

APPENDIX

Article IX—Of Tenure.

1. There shall be five grades in the teaching staff: 1—Professor, 2—Associate Professor (this title to be used in such departments as may seem advisable, an Associate Professor to have the same academic standing as Professor), 3—Assistant Professor, 4—Lecturer, 5—Instructor.

2. A Professor after service for such period or periods as may be agreed upon shall be appointed for an indefinite term.

3. An assistant Professor shall receive a first appointment for one academic year. Subsequent re-appointments shall be for the term of three years for the first time and after that for five years each.

4. Lecturers, instructors and assistants of all kinds shall be appointed for a term of one academic year.

5. The foregoing appointments shall respectively cease at the expiration of the several terms mentioned, unless notice of renewal shall have been given in writing by the Secretary, not later than the first day of April preceding the expiration of the academic year for which the appointment was made. In the event that an Assistant Professor serving his first or later appointment, shall desire a renewal of his appointment and shall, for any reason wish the matter of his reappointment to be determined at an earlier date than herein provided, he may, on request, have such determination made and receive notice thereof any time not earlier than January 1st, of the academic year in which his term of service terminated.

6. The power of appointment and the correlative power of removal of a Professor are by the Charter committed to the Board of Trustees. Any action of the board which would result in delegating this power to any other body would be ultra vires. In order, however, to obviate any cause of complaint in case of the dismissal of a Professor he may, if he so desires, have a conference with a joint committee composed of the five members of the Board constituting the Committee on Budget, Curriculum and Faculty, and five members of the Faculty appointed by the Faculty of which such Professor is a member, three of whom are to be from the Faculty of which he is a member, and the other two from other Faculties. At this conference the Chancellor shall preside but without vote. The action of the joint committee shall be communicated to the Board of Trustees for its consideration and for action thereon by the Board.

7. In order that the relation between the University and the members of the Faculty shall be a mutual one, it is understood that any member of the Faculty contemplating resigning therefrom, shall give written notice to the University not later than April 1st of the academic year at the end of which his resignation is to become effective.

8. When any re-appointments or promotions of members of the teaching staff are to be made, the group of instruction of which the appointee is, or is to become a member, may be asked to make a recommendation. The recommendation, if made, shall be given careful consideration by the Trustees. In departments of fewer than five members, men from cognate departments may be chosen to make five members of the group. The Board of Trustees may in like manner request the advice of the proper group in making original appointments.

9. All appointments are subject to any regulation now in force or which may subsequently be made covering the retiring age. They are also subject to the University regulations regarding annuities in the Teachers' Annuity Company, in payment of which the University has a share.

ACADEMIC FREEDOM AND TENURE

Statements agreed upon at a Conference of Representatives of the American Association of University Women, the American Association of University Professors, the Association of American Colleges, the Association of American Universities, the Association of Governing Boards, the Association of Land Grant Colleges, the Association of Urban Universities, the National Association of State Universities, and the American Council on Education, and adopted by the Association of American Colleges at the Annual Meeting held January Eighth to Tenth, Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-five.

Academic Freedom

(a) A university or college may not place any restraint upon the teachers' freedom in investigation, unless restriction upon the amount of time devoted to it becomes necessary in order to prevent undue interference with teaching duties.

(b) A university or college may not impose any limitation upon the teacher's freedom in the exposition of his own subject in the classroom or in addresses and publications outside the college, except insofar as the necessity of adapting instruction to the needs of immature students, or in the case of institutions of a denominational or partisan character, specific stipulations in advance, fully understood and accepted by both parties, limit the scope and character of instruction.

(c) No teacher may claim as his right the privilege of discussing in his classroom controversial topics outside of his own field of study. The teacher is morally bound not to take advantage of his position by introducing into the classroom provocative discussions of irrelevant subjects not within the field of his study.

(d) A university or college should recognize that the teacher in speaking and writing outside of the institution upon subjects beyond the scope of his own field of study is entitled to precisely the same freedom and is subject to the same responsibility as attach to all other citizens. If the extra-mural utterances of a teacher should be such as to raise grave doubts concerning his fitness for his position, the question should in all cases be submitted to an appropriate committee of the faculty of which he is a member. It should be clearly understood that an institution assumes no responsibility for views expressed by members of its staff; and teachers should when necessary, take pains to make it clear that they are expressing only their personal opinions.

Academic Tenure

(a) The precise terms and expectations of every appointment should be stated in writing and be in the possession of both college and teacher.

(b) Termination of a temporary or a short-term appointment should always be possible at the expiration of the term by the mere act of giving timely notice of the desire to terminate. The decision to terminate should always be taken, however, in conference with the department concerned, and might well be subject to approval by a faculty or council committee or by the faculty or council. It is desirable that the question of appointments for the ensuing year be taken up as early as possible. Notice of the decision to terminate should be given in ample time to allow the teacher an opportunity to secure a new position. The extreme limit for such notice should not be less than three months before the expiration of the academic year. The teacher who proposes to withdraw should also give notice in ample time to enable the institution to make a new appointment.

(c) It is desirable that termination of a permanent or long-term appointment for cause should regularly require action by both a faculty committee and the governing board of the college. Exceptions to this rule may be necessary in cases of gross immorality or treason, when the facts are admitted. In such cases summary dismissal would naturally ensue. In cases where other offenses are charged, and in all cases where the facts are in dispute, the accused teacher should always have the opportunity to face his accusers and to be heard in his own defense by all bodies that pass judgment upon the case. In the trial of charges of professional incompetence the testimony of scholars in the same field, either from his own or from other institutions, should always be taken. Dismissal for other reasons than immorality or treason, should not ordinarily take effect in less than a year from the time the decision is reached.

(d) Termination of permanent or long-term appointments because of financial exigencies should be sought only as a last resort, after every effort has been made to meet the need in other ways and to find for the teacher other employment in the institution. Situations which make drastic retrenchment of this sort necessary should preclude expansions of the staff at other points at the same time, except in extraordinary circumstances.

FINANCES

Needs of University

A. For increases in salaries of outstanding teacher on the present staff and to relieve cases where faculty members are carrying over-size teaching schedules	$240,000
B. Allowance for salaries which would be attractive to ten or twelve of the outstanding teachers in the United States to add to the present Staff	$100,000
C. For the purchase of much needed books for the General University Library ..	$60,000
D. For the purchase of books for the School of Law Library	$12,000
E. For the more rapid recording and publication of the results of special research being conducted in the Allegheny Observatory	$6,000
F. For much needed equipment to afford facilities and material to faculty members qualified to do outstanding research	$60,000
G. For the operation of the Falk Clinic for out-patient service six days per week instead of three and one-half days per week as at present	$30,000
Annual Increase of Income Needed ..	$508,000

Immediate Capital Needs for the Physical Plant of the University of Pittsburgh

An adequate Medical School Building which will enable the University to accommodate classes of one hundred students instead of fifty students as at present	$1,400,000
Completion of the Cathedral of Learning ..	$1,300,000
An adequate gymnasium	$750,000
Improvement of land to provide more adequate facilities so that there may be a more general participation of students in athletics. This includes tennis courts, soccer field, play field for women students, hand ball courts, etc.	$200,000
Remodeling of some of our present permanent buildings to accommodate the Departments of Chemistry, Physics, Engineering, Mining, and Dentistry so that we may provide for these departments without the necessity of using the abandoned wooden barracks left from the War Period	$800,000
Fund for paying off the present indebtedness mostly in the form of mortgages on land and on some of the old buildings and exclusive of the bonded indebtedness on the Stadium	$700,000
	$5,150,000

PRELIMINARY REPORT OF THE EDUCATIONAL COSTS SURVEY COMMITTEE APPOINTED PURSUANT TO HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 36

Educational Costs Survey Committee

House of Representatives
H. G. ANDREWS, Chairman.
HARRY J. BROWNFIELD,
JOSEPH OMINSKY,
JOHN E. VanALLSBURG,
ELMER J. HOLLAND.

To the Honorable, the Members of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

The first problem facing the Educational Costs Survey Committee is the cost of the public school system. This can be stated by asking the leading question:

> How much should the people of Pennsylvania spend for elementary and secondary education this year, next year and the year after that, and how much can they safely plan to spend?

It is also necessary, in making any inquiry in regard to the public school system, to determine what sources are to supply the funds for its support and what agencies are to spend the funds; to determine, that is, the proper distribution of both the burden and the responsibility for the public school system between the State and the local districts.

After the needs of the elementary and secondary schools are known, all of those interested in education have long realized that there is need for a basic budget for all items of educational expenditure—what might be termed an ideal apportionment. If the State has, for example, $75,000,000 a year, representing its maximum appropriation for education, what percentage of the total should be apportioned to elementary schools, secondary schools, teacher training schools, special educational facilities for the handicapped, colleges and universities?

Obviously, if all of these needs represent variable factors from year to year, some formula is necessary in determining the relative importance of the various agencies from the standpoint of the public interest. In other words, a second major item of inquiry confronting the Committee involves the question:

> What shall be the relation between the State's expenditures for its public schools and for the other phases of its educational program?

Finally, there are those who contend that appropriations for education must be generally increased. Other groups are equally insistent that appropriations for education must be curtailed. To resolve this conflict it is necessary to decide, if there is to be reduction, what item of expenditure should be first reduced; or, on the other hand, at what point the State's educational system in its various branches should take its stand and retreat no further.

The complement to this question is the statement reversed—what limitations must necessarily be placed upon current tendencies to increase educational costs? This question can only be answered in the light of whatever may be the established plan or system of State government. Thus, in the long run, we must find an answer to the third fundamental problem in regard to education—that is > What normally, should be education's place in the total governmental budget?

> Out of every tax dollar, how many cents should go for education?

What Are We Spending for Our Public Schools?

The total bill for education in the United States passed the 2-billion dollar mark in 1932. This amount increased five times during the 22 years from 1910, when the total spent was still less than one-half billion dollars.

During the same period expenditures for public schools in Pennsylvania increased from $39,900,000 in 1910 to $181,600,000 in 1932, an increase of 4½ times the earlier figure.

These millions pay for the education of nearly two million boys and girls each year in Pennsylvania. Since 1910, the school population of the Commonwealth increased more than one-half. By far the greatest increase has been in the number of students who have extended their education into the higher grades rather than from large numbers of additional students entering the lower grades.

The secondary school enrollment in 1934 (425,200) was six times greater than in 1910, while the elementary enrollment (1,568,822) increased less than one-quarter during the same period. Since per-pupil costs are necessarily much higher for the secondary schools than for the elementary grades, this heavy shifting of the school population into the higher grades has been one of the biggest factors in the mounting educational cost of recent years.

While Pennsylvania realty taxpayers are quite generally of the opinion that school costs have already reached inordinate levels, the facts are that this State, from the standpoint of per-pupil expenditure, is not overtaxed as compared with neighboring Commonwealths.

> The total current expenses for public school education in Pennsylvania are next to the largest of any state. In terms of the cost per pupil, however, the Commonwealth ranks twenty-first among all the states.

Pennsylvania, furthermore, has still a long way to go before it provides what is reasonably regarded as an adequate education for all of its children of school age. For instance, the Commonwealth has a relatively small percentage of its pupils in secondary schools—19.8 per cent. Among the 48 states Pennsylvania is twenty-seventh on the list in the percentage of total enrollment in secondary schools.

For those who believe that we have been employing teachers more rapidly than we have been enrolling pupils, it is significant to know that between 1930 and 1932 there was an increase of 2.6 per cent in the number of teachers employed in Pennsylvania as compared with an increase in average daily attendance of 4.5 per cent. This gave an average teacher-pupil ratio for Pennsylvania in 1932 of 29.3 as compared with 25.8 for the entire United States.

The average annual salary of teachers in Pennsylvania in 1932 was $1,630. This figure was exceeded by New York, District of Columbia, New Jersey, California, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Delaware. Moreover, as compared with other states, the Pennsylvania State Treasury has not been contributing an unusually large portion of the Commonwealth's income for education. Indeed, Pennsylvania is twenty-fifth on the list, the recent average being 19.1 per cent of school cost contributed by the State and 80.9 per cent raised by local taxes.

The following table shows Pennsylvania's comparable position in the field of public education:

Ratio of Educational Expenditures to Total State Expenditures for Several Comparable States, 1930*

State	Percentage for Education
United States	28.3
California	39.2
Michigan	37.0
New York	34.9
PENNSYLVANIA	29.3
New Jersey	23.0
Ohio	20.8
Illinois	16.0

* National Survey of School Finance, State Support for Public Education by Paul R. Mort, p. 274.

These figures indicate that Pennsylvania in the normal year 1930 spent a somewhat larger proportion of all its state funds for educational purposes than the average state. Its normal outlay was less in proportion however, than the three comparable states of California, Michigan and New York.

The Need to Define and Equalize the School Program

There is, of course, a point above which expenditures for education properly become a variable factor, the range depending upon local ability to pay. On the other hand, there is a point below which educational opportunities and facilities should not be reduced anywhere in the State. It is at this point that the state government, which has retained for itself the newer and more flexible sources of income, must come to the support of the local school district which draws its revenues primarily from real estate taxes.

In any discussion of the State-aided public school system, grave questions involving responsibility nevitably arise.

> What is the responsibility of the State?
> What is the responsibility of the local community?
> At what points should the individual assume responsibility for educational advancement?

The answers to these questions involve the determination of, first, how far we are to go in drawing upon public funds to provide education and, second, what proportion of public funds for education shall be furnished by the local community and what portion shall be put upon the broader shoulders of the State.

In regard to the extent of education to be furnished from public funds, we know that, while Pennsylvania's public school system was established in 1834, there is even yet no general agreement among either schoolmen or taxpayers as to where the system should uniformly begin or where it should end. The first or primary grade, kindergarten or pre-kindergarten as the case may be, represents the start, but there is no educational goal which must ncessarily be reached in every district or school administrative unit. Disagreement is found not only as to the number of grades of schooling to be provided for every child, but more particularly as to the scope of educational training within each grade.

> How much vocational training shall the public schools furnish?
> Shall we increase or decrease the emphasis on art, music and other cultural subjects?
> What constitutes a reasonable program of health education and activities?

Some reasonably acceptable answer to all of these questions must be found by the group in any State which is responsible for determining what education shall cost.

If educational opportunity is to be furnished from public funds, it is obvious that the children in every locality should have the advantage of equal educational opportunities up to some prescribed minimum.

> What is the "equal opportunity" minimum, or what comprises the educational foundation to which every child is entitled under any adequate system of public support of education?

On the question of the joint responsibility of the local districts and the State to support the educational program, this Committee regards it as axiomatic (1) that the local district should participate in furnishing reasonable educational opportunity on a basis commensurate with its ability to pay; (2) that it is then the primary business and function of the State to equalize the minimum educational opportunity throughout its territory.

Although for some years past efforts have been toward the goal of equalized educations, every member of the educational profession knows—and every laymen can ascertain by even casual inquiry—that educational opportunities in Pennsylvania have not been equalized. One primary reason is because the present range in taxable resources back of each teacher is from $4000 per teacher in the smallest and poorest school district to $2,400,000 per teacher in the wealthiest district.

> During the school year 1933-34 there were 6,105 one-teacher schools operated in the State. The enrollment in these schools was approximately 180,000 pupils, or approximately 11 per cent of all pupils in our elementary schools.

In the school year just closing, 1,631 school districts, or more than half of Pennsylvania's total of 2,583 districts, did not offer a program of studies extending through the twelfth grade. There were 1,423 districts which did not offer any secondary school facilities. While many of these districts pay tuition for their pupils to attend high schools in other districts, there also exists a tendency in which sections to discourage the continuation of education beyond the elementary grades.

The result is that only 15 per cent of the pupils residing in non-high school districts were enrolled last year in high schools of other districts. This is in contrast with an average enrollment of from 23 to 29 per cent of all pupils in high schools in the districts which have their own high school systems. Overdue tuition for high school students constitutes one of the largest of the unpaid bills now confronting distressed school districts with the result that last year approximately 32,000 pupils enrolled in high schools outside of their own districts, or nearly one-half of the 72,000 so enrolled, resided in districts that were delinquent in their high school tuition payments to other districts.

> In view of these considerations it is obvious that, from an educational standpoint, there still is in this State an underprivileged and, therefore, an over-privileged class.

After reviewing and evaluating the elements which should comprise a basic minimum program of education for all districts, there is need, in prosecuting this inquiry, to develop a formula compounding State aid and local self help. A natural conclusion would be that the educational burden should bear upon the people in all localities at the same rate in relation to their tax-paying ability. However, there is a distinct possibility that this formula, if accepted, would develop communities so abundantly able to help themselves that they could not consistently urge their claims for State aid as against the needs of other communities less fortunately situated. At any rate, adherence to a "minimum equal opportunity" program will uttimately make it obligatory upon the State to assist all of the various communities which are actually unable to help themselves.

Extent of Financial Need in Local Districts

Before it is possible for the Commonwealth to outline a sound program of educational expenditures, it will be necessary to make a careful check of local situations. As an indication of the rate at which the number of "financially distressed" districts is increasing, the "special assistance" trend is significant. In 1929 the Legislature appropriated $100,000 for distressed school districts—many of which could not even afford to pay one dollar out of each four dollars of teachers' salaries. In 1931 the Legislature appropriated $1,250,000 for this same purpose. The Legislature in 1933 authorized an appropriation of $5,000,000. The probabilities are that if the Legislature now in session were to appropriate from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 for distressed school districts, the sum would be inadequate to make up the full local deficit.

During the school year 1933-34, investigations were made in connection with applications for special State aid from 697 local districts, or more than one-fourth of all the districts in the State. Of this number 520 districts received grants of special aid and 177 applications were refused.

> There has been a disposition to proceed on the assumption that when business "rounds the corner" the financially distressed local districts will cease to be distressed.

Unfortunately, this assumption is not based upon fact. Local values have fled from many districts and are not likely to return at least during this generation. That there are several hundred insolvent school districts in the State is a matter of record. Other districts are approaching insolvency. These districts are insolvent in the sense that, even on the basis of true-value assessments and higher tax rates, current operating costs cannot be paid in full—even though the school subsidy system is continued at its present legal level.

As Dr. Clyde L. King, then Secretary of Revenue, pointed out as long ago as February, 1932, the State has set up standards as to teachers' salaries, as to term of service and as to school equipment of such a character that, although in a number of districts the Commonwealth now carries the major portion of the burden, these school districts are still bankrupt, with property owners facing taxation levies that are confiscatory.

The Causes of Local Distress

In the first place, local districts are in distress, of course, because local tax income has disappeared. Tax income has disappeared primarily because land values have declined. Indeed, in many instances they have actually vanished.

This phase of the school financing problem calls for intensive study for the reason that, in many instances, declines in local property values are not the temporary result of the depression but, as Dr. King pointed out in his 1932 thesis, are the permanent outcome of shifts in population, declining farm values, removal of capital enterprises, and other far-reaching economic trends of the last half-century.

During the last 15 years there are whole townships that have practically been abandoned. Population figures in many counties show a material decline. Indeed, during the last 30 years population declined in 20 out of the State's 67 counties. In 1930, for example, Bradford County had but 82.6 per cent of the population it had in 1900; Tioga had but 64.9 per cent; Potter County, 57.1 per cent, and Forest County but 46.9 per cent.

Taking townships as units, the situation is even more alarming from the point of view of those concerned over local tax revenues. In two Potter County townships, for example, there is now only one person for every five of 30 years ago. In Elk Township, Tioga County, there now remains but one person for every eight of 30 years ago.

Population figures, of course, are only an index of changing economic trends. First among the causes of declining population in many areas is the obvious change in the means and methods of agriculture.

Notwithstanding the popular impression to the contrary, there is no evidence that there will be any marked increase in farm population. True, there are occasional glimpses of a "back to the farm" movement; but on the other hand, a great many farms in the State have been abandoned by the children and are being maintained by the old folks who are simply sticking around by reason of necessity. While such farms are occupied, they would properly be classified from the economical standpoint as abandoned.

The fact must not be overlooked that the value of farm land has declined nationally. This decline began before the present depression was in evidence. Therefore the inability of farm land to produce tax income cannot be identified with the depression. The change has come gradually with the development of improved methods of agriculture. It is but realistic recognition of the fact that large sections of land in the State are incapable of producing enough crops to support a minimum, endurable life for the people who cultivate them.

The problem of the marginal and sub-marginal agricultural lands and districts has thus become one of the most pressing considerations of the State in carrying out its obligation to equalize educational opportunity.

Because of this hundreds of Pennsylvania school districts, irrespective of general business conditions elsewhere, now find it necessary either to lower school costs or to obtain special help from sources other than those placed upon local real estate.

Another complicating factor which has had a marked effect on both population and land values, has been the shifting of capital enterprises and particularly the migration of capital from Pennsylvania. Not so long ago, for example, Pennsylvania led the nation in the production of soft coal. During recent years, however, capital and labor have migrated from this State into the soft-coal fields of West Virginia, Kentucky and Virginia. West Virginia's coal output now either rivals or exceeds that of this State.

As a result of the migration of capital, prosperous coal communities have either been abandoned or reduced to bankruptcy. There has been a collapse of taxable values in the soft coal areas, and the bitter fact is that there is no reason to expect these values will return. Moreover, there are many communities in the soft-coal areas which are making a last stand against declining values. In many instances the time is near at hand when these communities, unless some adjustment is made in their dominant economic interests, will find it impossible even to pay the fixed charges on their outstanding indebtedness. A similar, althought not so extensive, tendency has operated in the anthracite regions with a consequent decrease in property values in many of its formerly prosperous districts.

Populations have shifted alternately into and out of the large industrial centers of the State. Movements out of a number of cities—particularly textile centers—have been caused by the permanent removal of industries to other states. Every spindle that left Philadelphia and went South took land value with it. In Philadelphia, for the most part, this land value has been retrieved by the influx of other forms of industry to take the place of those removed. This is not necessarily true in all industrial centers of the Commonwealth, however, and large holes are still left in taxable resources as a result.

A more general cause of decline in land values in metropolitan districts is the movement of population from the city areas into the suburbs. Where this shift has progressed rapidly a city frequently retaliates and takes its toll from the suburban district by annexing large slices of territory—often the largest portion of the taxable valuation of the borderline unit. Instances exist where school districts, after such an operation, remain with 100 per cent school plants but with only from 20 to 30 per cent of their previous resources.

Wherever land values have thus declined as a result of a shift in industrial capital or in movements of population into suburban districts, they, also, represent a factor which must be considered without reference to the depression.

Besides the decline—either temporary or permanent—in land values in many school districts, another factor has contributed substantially and steadily to the obvious inability of many real-property owners to continue furnishing approximately 80 per cent of the support for education. This is the rapid increase in the cost of other functions of local government which are also supported almost entirely from taxes on realty.

It is significant that while school taxes in Pennsylvania increased 42.5 per cent in the 10 years from 1923 to 1932 the total taxes levied for other local purposes increased 46.9 per cent. Similarly the increase in the bonded debt of school districts rose 64.2 per cent while the increase in the debt of other local units in the same period was 110.8 per cent. The effect of this increasing burden has been universal throughout the State and has reduced materially and (unless wholesale adjustments are made in the support of other local functions) it has reduced permanently the ability of real estate to furnish the same support for education as in the past.

In considering the causes of distress in various school districts of the Commonwealth it is necessary to give attention to the fact that internal weaknesses, such as over-optimistic or misguided expansion of the school plant, heedless accumulation of long-term debt and, occasionally, actual mismanagement, have also, in more than one instance been contributory factors. To these must be added the basic inequality in the population and resources of the districts as now constituted, as well as numerous ill-effects of the statutory provisions for the distribution of such State aid as is now furnished to the local districts.

These are all matters of primary importance and major significance to all of those who believe it is the duty of the State to equalize minimum educational opportunity in the public schools and keep it equalized.

The Plight of Typical Handicapped Districts

The Committee has been privileged to study several significant statements dealing with the ability of Pennsylvania to support public education. None of these statements, however, has been based upon complete information concerning local conditions. There are, indeed, no figures available which fully indicate the extent of the demands that can be legitimately made for and on behalf of distressed districts. Before the Commonwealth can plan effectively, it must know how many districts there are in which it will be compelled to assume practically the entire burden of both the primary and secondary schools.

Many school districts have been proceeding upon the presumption that delinquent taxes would ultimately be collected. As a matter of fact, the probabilities are that delinquent taxes totaling millions of dollars are uncollectible. Partially studies made of various local districts indicate the desirability of prosecuting and concluding a thoroughgoing survey.

For the purpose of illustration, a number of typical examples are herewith appended:

Number 1. A combination of circumstances operated to create a serious problem in Township District B—assessed resources of $4,600,000—population, 8,167. This district is situated on the border of one of the larger cities of the State and several years ago lost a large slice of territory, including practically one-half of its assessed property, as a result of annexation to the city.

Adjustments of a large bonded debt left this district very near its legal limit of indebtedness. Recourse to further borrowing against mounting delinquent taxes saddled the district with a debt which is now more than ten per cent of its valuation. Carrying charges on the debt, together with the delinquency in tax collection at 62 per cent, have made it impossible for the district to meet more than one-half of the minimum obligations of its budget for 1934. Obviously, this district may either curtail school activities or call upon the State for an increased measure of support.

Number 2. Another typical example is furnished by one of the township districts of a western county. The statement of current and delinquent taxes on the basis of the 1934 duplicate shows the following:

Face of duplicate	$136,192.20
Amount of duplicate collected	52,172.26
Uncollected	$ 84,019.94

The statement of taxes outstanding since 1930 is as follows:

1933 duplicate—outstanding	$ 60,306.56
1932 duplicate—liens	50,836.97
(Carried Forward)	$111,143.53
1931 duplicate—liens	41,151.80
1930 duplicate—liens	23,376.90
Total	$175,672.23

This district issued $90,000 of bonds against the 1930-31-32 delinquent tax. Of this bond issue, $80,270.06 was used for the payment of tuition. The district has $90,000 obtained by the sale of bonds voted by the people for the erection of a school building. The section in which it was proposed to locate the school was annexed and the money could not be expended for any other purpose without a vote. The board twice presented the case to the voters but they refused to change the purpose of the original issue. This district will pay tuition to eight other school districts for the 1934-1935 school year.

The district, however, still owes $13,500.50 of old tuition to Pittsburgh. There is a possibility the budget estimate on tuition will be reduced from $2,000 to $3,000 because of reduced tuition rates.

The assessed valuation of the district increased about 10 per cent over the previous year. The millage rate remains the same. No per capita tax is levied. About 53 per cent of the valuation is represented by residential property; 18 per cent by corporation holdings; 1 per cent by business property; 1 per cent by local lands, and 27 per cent by farm lands.

Basing industrial conditions on the amount of tax received, the indications are that the mills are working slightly better than a year ago. Practically all the corportion tax has been paid. However, it is only by means of a survey of all the conditions involved that it would be possible to ascertain the extent of the assistance this district will require at the hands of the State—unless school activities are seriously curtailed.

Incidentally, there are as many on relief rolls in this district now as there were in 1931-32. The budget of this district has been reduced $13,751.25. All items of general control were reduced. High tuition costs and poor tax collection were the primary causes of this district's difficulty. There are no facts at hand by means of which it would be possible to determine how many districts in the State are similarly situated.

Number 3. Another typical example is furnished by the B—Borough School District. A survey made by the State Department of Public Instruction shows the following conditions for 1934:

Face of the 1934 duplicate	$74,758.08
Collected as of Jan. 15, 1935	34,441.28
Uncollected Balance	$40,316.80

The penalty is not included in the unpaid balance. Taxes are collected on an installment plan. The collector is bonded and is paid 2½ per cent and 5 per cent. In this districts corporations are all paying their tax. The statement of delinquent taxes is as follows:

1931 balance	$21,290.06
1932 balance	31,349.91
1933 balance	17,163.22
Total	$69,803.19

This district has an outstanding bonded indebtedness as follows:

Date of Issue	Original Amount	Bal. Outstanding
1910	$ 16,500	$ 5,500
1916	50,000	34,000
1922	120,000	80,000
1925	50,000	50,000

This district lies adjacent to T—Borough and H—Township. A survey shows that a considerable saving could be effected through consolidation. The B—Borough School District operates a high school jointly with H—Township, paying 38 per cent of current expense and 50 per cent of the capital outlay.

Industry has been leaving the district. There are no indications of a revival which will place the district on its feet.

Number 4. An investigation of the financial condition of the E—Township School District made by the State Department of Public Instruction, shows the following general conditions:

> About 30 per cent of the population of the district has been receiving relief in one form or another. In some sections of the district practically every family has been on relief. A portion of the district's population is composed of farmers, however, none of whom has been on the relief rolls. Assessed valuation dropped approximately $82,000 this year—the result of a reduced assessment on Pittsburgh Coal Company property.

The tax situation for 1934 was as follows:

Face of 1934 duplicate	$39,444.90
Collected up to Jan. 15, 1935	52,651.27
Uncollected Balance	$42,793.63

In this district two small corporations have not made any payments on their 1934 tax. The collector's bond is fixed at $25,000 personal surety. He receives 3 per cent on all taxes collected. In this instance it was admitted that the collector was not overly energetic. No copy of the duplicate was available for the use of investigators.

The delinquent tax situation in this district is as follows:

Year	Liens	Outstanding
1931	$ 8,092.59	$ 1,618.31
1932	1,426.39	17,340.53
1933	2,387.21	24,427.10
Total	$11,906.19	$43,385.94

Number 5. Another typical example is furnished by a school district also in the western industrial section of the State, where critical economic conditions have shut off the supply of tax funds. This district has an assessed valuation of $805,370 against which it levied a 22-mill rate for schools in 1934. School millage, plus the per-capita tax, produced a duplicate of $22,603. Up to December, 1934, only $4,708, or 28 per cent, of this levy had been collected.

The official report made by the Department of Public Instruction upon application of the district for special aid states:

> Taxes all paid by home owners and small business places. There is no corporation tax assessed. At least two-thirds of the population are foreign. Many of the inhabitants form a floating population from whom it is difficult to collect taxes.
> In normal times a large part of the wage earners would work on the railroad at P . There is also a large number who normally work at the Westinghouse Plant, which, however, has been operating only two or three days a week. Only a very few former railroad employees are working. Approximately 75 per cent of the population is on relief and those who are working have had their wages cut from 30 to 50 per cent.
> The tax collector has only collected about 20 per cent of the duplicate. The collector is employed at the Court House in Pittsburgh and is home only in the evening and Saturday afternoon. It is evident that she is very inefficient and the Board is aware of this but is unable to appoint another because the tax collector is always able to qualify.
> The school building is in bad condition. It needs painting inside. The heating plant must be replaced in the very near future and the floors and stairways need repair. Textbooks are inadequate, books being transferred from one group to another. Supplies are inadequate.
> The teachers were paid up to November 13, 1934, and as of December 26, last, had due them approximately one and one-fourth months' salary. Back salaries totaled $1.194. The district was without funds with which to pay the teachers or meet its other obligations.

Thus, even a casual survey of the situation shows that the ability of general property owners to support education is steadily declining—has been declining for 20 years. Moreover, with the tremendous growth during the same period of other forms of wealth and income, all as equally dependent upon education for their permanent devolpment and maintenance as real estate, the essential fairness of continuing to place the major cost of education upon real estate has also changed materially.

If these conclusions are even half true, the Commonwealth confronts the necessity of making speedy adjustments in the traditional method of supporting its public schools.

> Specifically, then, the State confronts two alternatives. Either educational costs must be drastically reduced or the State's financial system must be materially changed.

Your Committee will proceed upon the assumption that the final solution, or at best the next steps in the solution, of this problem will involve concrete and substantial action in both of these directions.

Possibility of Widespread Economies in Operation of Schools

It can be accepted as a governing consideration that State aid should not be extended in order to minister to local inefficiency. Only by means of a detailed study of local situations will it be possible to account for the wide variation in the cost of comparable local services.

School costs for the items included under general control, instruction and auxiliary agencies show a wide range in all classes of school districts. For example, in a recent study of the relative parts of the school budgets which are devoted to the various school functions, it was found that, in school districts of the fourth class—townships supporting secondary schools and providing transportation—costs for instruction range from 51 per cent to 84 per cent of the local budget. In the districts supporting secondary schools, but not providing transportation, costs for instruction range from 69 to 91 per cent. General control costs run from 2.5 per cent to 11.5 per cent.

In school districts of the fourth class—boroughs supporting secondary schools—instruction costs range from 71 per cent to 95 per cent of the budget, while the cost of general control runs from .5 per cent to 8.5 per cent. In the boroughs not supporting secondary schools, cost of instruction ranges from 61 per cent to 91 per cent.

In school districts of the third class—boroughs supporting secondary schools—general control runs from 2.5 per cent to 13.5 per cent of the budget; instruction costs range from 55 per cent to 83 per cent; while auxiliary agencies run from .5 per cent to 8.5 per cent.

In school districts of the third class—townships not supporting secondary schools but providing transportation—the general control item ranges from 1.5 per cent to 9.5 per cent of the budget; instruction costs run from 61 to 91 per cent; while auxiliary agencies consume from .5 per cent to 25.5 per cent of the budget.

Doubtless local conditions are, in the main, responsible for the fact that there are such wide variations in comparable items of school costs. Since the items of bills payable was not taken into consideration in making this study, it is unquestionably true that this accounted for some of the range in the proportions for each item. The reason why instruction costs, for example, should be unusually high in one district and unusually low in another could only be ascertained by making a survey of local conditions. Low costs could be—and in some cases are—achieved by curtailing essential activities. On the other hand, there are instances in which high costs are directly attributable to mismanagement.

The report cited above, which was recently issued by the Division of Statistical Research of the Department of Public Instruction, covering costs for general control, instruction, auxiliary agencies, operation, maintenance and fixed charges in a selected group of third and fourth class districts, illustrates the need for a more intensive inquiry. The Division of Statistical Research tabulated the divergence in costs but did not publish the reasons for the divergence. (The data compiled by the Division are contained in the appendix of this report.)

School executives in many instances believe—and they may be right—that those not members of the teaching profession are incapable of striking an operating balance sheet of a typically modern school system, listing points of weakness and items of strength. It is possible, however, for even moderately intelligent laymen to take a census of opinion—centering attention upon the divergent views expressed by members of the educational profession themselves.

The men and women responsible for the conduct of any governmental activity can, in the course of a single conference, devise one hundred new ways to spend more money. Moreover, as a rule, they can brilliantly justify the proposed expenditures. Apparently painstaking inquiry is necessary, however, in order to uncover the occasional individual who knows some of the old and perhaps some of the new ways to save money.

> The taxpayer's dollar devoted to education is being compelled to travel faster and faster without being at the same time trained to travel further.

Modern schooling is, of course, a modern development—a development which took place, moreover, during a period of what was believed to be all-embracing prosperity. When times were good, increased expenditures for education were not only tolerated by the taxpayers but were encouraged. As a result of economic conditions, approval has been transformed into adverse criticism. Those responsible for educational expenditures, instead of being urged to spend more money, face demands that they spend less.

Members of the educational profession, as a rule, answer that expenditures cannot be reduced without destroying the educational integrity of the schools. Indeed, most educators are inclined to insist that any considerable reduction in school costs can be effected only at the expense of the children.

The probabilities are that material savings can usually be made without in any way affecting the educational welfare of the children. For example, a preliminary scrutiny of methods of handling personal property, equipment and supplies in one of the large school districts of the state led the Committees's technical advisers to believe that operating savings of at least $2,000 per school unit could be effected through the medium of comparatively simple changes in the system. This estimate was concurred in by the secretary of the board, who stated that the figures quoted were, in fact, considerably lower than those he had himself arrived at as a result of conferences with the Committee's technical representatives while the preliminary study was being made.

> Since there are 300 active school buildings in this district, the admitted savings to be effected total at least $600,000. Moreover, it is understood that these savings will become effective immediately.

Basing estimates upon the result of a more detailed scrutiny of methods, the Committee's technical advisers conclude that the costs of operation in one typical case can be reduced $10,000 a year. Only by means of a State-wide survey would be possible to determine whether the reduction in costs effected and to be effected in this district could be proportionately duplicated in other city school districts.

While it has obviously been impossible to make a State-wide survey, the Committee's technical advisers are convinced that operating costs in at least one-half of the districts in the State can be materially reduced. The reductions contemplated in this connection would be based upon changes in general methods of operation and management of the school plant.

> While reductions of operating costs are pursued as direct and tangible economies, there is another avenue of economy—the increase in efficiency and effectiveness of the teaching process—which should not be overlooked in any comprehensive consideration of the modern school system.

Internal, and even professional, problems—such, for example, as the methods of grading and promoting pupils, the division of classes on the basis of learning ability, the systems of reports, record keeping and educational research, the methods of teaching (by projects, or other modern processes), finally the working relations within the educational staff, including methods of teacher selection and promotion, participation of teachers in the formation of school policies, the methods of continued preparation of teachers during extended vacation periods, the basis for increased increments in teachers' salaries, internal politics within the school system—are all matters which vitally affect the product, and therefore both the social and the financial values, obtained for the dollars spent upon our schools.

At the present time possible economies can only be suggested. Local school boards are, in many respects, sovereign bodies and are quite at liberty to waste money as long as they have it. However, contacts already made indicate an increased willingness upon the part of practically every school board in the State to listen to practical suggestions. It is the plan of this Committee to study enough individual school plants of various sizes in the State to be able to speak with knowledge on both the possibility and the practicability of applying reasonable economies to the operation of school plants and to the organization and administration of the teaching process.

Changing the State's System of School Support

A statement of the essentials involved in realizing the equalization principle—co?ordinating State and local school support—was made by the Pennsylvania educational finance survey group of 1922 in its report as follows:

> To carry into effect the principle of "equalization of educational opportunity" and equalization of school support as commonly understood, it would be necessary (1) to establish schools or make other arrangements sufficient to furnish the children in every locality within the State with equal educational opportunities up to some prescribed minimum; (2) to raise the funds necessary for this purpose by local or State taxation adjusted in such manner as to bear upon the people in all localities at the same rate in relation to their taxpaying ability; (3) to provide adequately either for the supervision and control of all schools or for their direct administration by a State Department of Education.

Point (1) of this statement involves the decision as to content and cost of a reasonable public school program as discussed in foregoing pages of this report.

Point (2) raises the question of the balance to be struck between the State and the local district in supporting the school program.

It appears obvious that the answer to the request for relief of local tax sources from their present load of school support should not be a swing to the other extreme of complete State support.

If local inability to finance the schools calls for an increased measure of support from the State, then, conversely it would seem that local ability to pay in abundant measure should call for a reduction in the measure of State support. The theory has been advanced by many that, if the situation were made ideal, the State should step in at any point where a maximum uniform millage levied upon real estate assessed at true value failed to raise sufficient funds with which to furnish the children of the particular district with "educational opportunities" up to the prescribed minimum. The universal application of this principle presents numerous obstacles which must be hurdled or compromised with before it can be adopted in full by any state. It is, perhaps, the goal to be kept in view in the building of every specific program of State support.

Any workable and generally acceptable system must provide, in addition, leeway for the support of schools over and above the minimum requirements. A local district and the State should together be required to provide the prescribed minimum—the district increasing expenditures, if it so desires, in accordance with its means.

> However, as long as real estate is taxed in any measure for the support of the schools, a uniform, definite, minimum tax millage based upon equalized true values remains a governing consideration.

Point (3) in the essentials of a program of State support is based upon the principle that, whenever the State is compelled to assume increased local financial responsibility, prudence would seem to require that the Commonwealth be armed with whatever powers are necessary to work out local problems along lines consistent with administrative economies. The rule that State responsibility must follow the State's dollar must be considered inviolable. It is not the feeling of this Committee, however, that the remedy for the present system of allocation of State funds with a minimum of State supervision should be a change to complete State administration of the school system. There is a reasonable point of cooperation between these two extremes which would enable both the State and the local community to meet their obligation to safeguard the use of funds which each supplies.

Consolidation, for example, should not be a matter to be left entirely to local option if the State is compelled to extend an unusual measure of assistance to local districts in which consolidation would better serve the ends of sound economic administration.

> Doubtless, since the distressed school districts present unusual demands based upon unusual situations, the agencies representing the Commonwealth must eventually be invested with whatever power may be necessary in dealing with emergency conditions and special situations.

Every school district of the State represents a distinct problem—a problem, moreover, which is complicated by the fact it is necessary to reconcile State support with local control. It appears obvious that the insistence upon local control, however, must inevitably be dimnished to the exact extent that an increased measure of State support becomes necessary. In the case of every distressed district, some individual or agency should be in a position to say:

> There are so many children of school age in the district and so many school units. The situation calls for consolidation—or it doesn't call for consolidation. In order to supply the children of the district with the minimum educational opportunities which the State is pledged to furnish every child in the Commonwealth, it will be necessary to spend a certain definite annual sum. Of this amount the local community is able, on a basis of fair comparison with other districts, to pay a stated proportion, representing a minimum millage upon established valuation based on true value. There will still remain to be paid an annual sum of such-and-such an amount, which the State will contribute.

Theoretically, it may now be possible to operate after this fasion. Practically, there i. an absence of the machinery necessary in order to operate effectively along these lines.

One primary difficulty lies in the fact that the State possesses at present no authority or means to determine scientifically the real and comparable ability of a local district to support its schools. Sufficient information regarding the inequalities of present real estate assessments throughout the Commonwealth is available to prove that no method of allocating State funds based either directly or indirectly on the assessed valuations now in effect in the various school districts could be made satisfactory or equitable.

Under present conditions, existence of a low valuation per pupil or per teacher in any district, necessitating a high millage for education, cannot be accepted in any sense as a measure of the actual ability of the district to support its schools.

> As long as every assessor or the taxing authority back of every assessor is at liberty to follow his own whim in regard to the average proportion of true or sales value which may be used as a guide in making the assessment rolls, this obstacle to any fair distribution of State funds on the basis of local ability to pay will continue to exist.

Differences in the rates of assessment between neighboring school districts are often officially reported to be as wide as from 50 to 80 per cent. When in a recent study effort was made to go back of official reports and examine the relation of assessed valuations of property to actual sales values, (the value designated by the assessment law as the true value) it was found that differences ranging from one per cent to 500 per cent of actual sale value are not uncommon throughout the State.

In the present system of distributing State aid to local school districts, a crude effort toward equalization is made by attempting to arrive at the so-called true value back of each teacher in every school district. The measure of the average rate of assessment applied in each district is an estimate submitted annually by the secretary of the local school board.

A check made between the ratio of assessed valuation to sale value and the rate of true value reported by district secretaries showed agreement in less than one per cent of the school districts checked. The range of difference was from one per cent to ten per cent in one-third of the districts. In practically two-thirds of the districts, the ratios which are now being used to determine the allocation of State funds range from ten per cent to sixty per cent higher or lower than the ratios of sale values to present assessed values in the districts.

As the system now operates, if a district secretary puts his ratio high—thereby reducing the spread between assessed and so-called true value of the tax resources—it is possible for the district to receive 25 per cent more aid per teacher than it would receive if the ratio were placed low. The same effect can also be produced by increasing or decreasing the number of teachers employed in relation to reported valuations.

> Instances exist in which all that is required is the hiring of one, two or three additional teachers in order to increase by 25 per cent the portion of State funds received by a district.

Similarly, a low estimate placed on the relation of assessed to true value in a district may operate to keep the district in the class receiving the smallest portion of State aid—even though real values in the community might warrant a larger proportion of State help. Thus, either the payroll or the assesment roll can be adjusted, if necessary, to insure continued receipt of the maximum State grant, with little or no regard for actual changes in local ability to pay for school services.

As previously pointed out the measure of self-help and increased State assistance in any particular case will be determined by the local ability to pay. Since this is true it must likewise follow that, wherever the State must increase its measure of local assistance in order to equalize education facilities, it must be empowered to determine, on a standard and comparable basis, the local ability to pay. As a matter of equity, the State should not be required to give special aid to any local district unless it is empowered to revise local assessments.

In addition to the supervision of administrative economies and the equalization of assessments, clothing the State with the obligation to supervise expenditure of State funds in local districts requires also the organization of the State Department of Public Instruction and the selection of its personnel on a basis which will insure the intelligent, impartial and non-political pursuit of that obligation.

Sensible procedure under joint State and local support of local public services prescribes the need for less of dogmatic bickering and more of informed guidance and mutual cooperation on the part of both State and local officials than has sometimes been manifest in the past. That there is a tendency for friction to develop between the two parties, no matter what function or State department is involved, is evident. Local officials frequently insist that the power of decision on important questtions is often placed in the hands of immature, autocratic or poorly trained State officials or employes. On the other hand, State officials charge that their efforts are often met with stubborn, unreasoning resistance on the part of local officials.

> One lamentable effect of this attitude has been to deprive many able state officials of opportunities to render to local districts the real service of which they are capable and likewise to deprive of these services the local officials who are honestly looking for help with the grim problem of making cost and tax ends meet.

Relation to Other Expenditures for Education and to The Total Tax Dollar

The major emphasis of this preliminary report has been placed upon the cost and basis of support of the public school system. This system already receives the lion's share of all funds, both State and local, which are spent for education in the Commonwealth. Its development and adequate support likewise constitutes the most crtical part of the educational problem at the present time.

The fact must not be lost sight of, however, that ather educational needs exist in the Commonwealth and are pressing constantly, if less persistently, for increased consideration. Institutions of higher education, institutions for special types of education such as for the blind and deaf, vocational rehabilitation, adult education, as well as libraries, museums and historical associations, all lay claim to a share of public funds.

No adequate program of State support for public schools can be developed which does not consider (1) whether the State, in increasing its outlay for schools, must or can justifiably reduce its emphasis on other phases of education; (2) whether there is any overlapping of the services furnished by school districts and by other educational agencies receiving State support; and (3) whether the present or proposed support program provides a proper balance between the various agencies.

There are questions to which no very thorough consideration appears to have been given heretofore. They must occupy an important place in the investigations and recommendations of this committee.

Finally, total educational requirements must, of course, be reconciled with other needs.

> If present trends in the cost of government continue, there must eventually be a determination as to what figure represents the outside tax dollar; and then, when the outside tax dollar has been fixed, the educational program must be oriented within the limitations imposed by necessity.
> There is undoubtedly a point at which the ability of the taxpayer to pay and the ambitious plans of too-enthusiastic educators must compromise.
> The grim fact always remains that members of the educational profession cannot increase the number of dollars in the taxpayer's bank account by increasing the range of school activities.

This consideration of the place of education in the total State and local budget must be kept constantly in view throughout all the work of this Committee. It must serve as the final measuring stick against which to test each of the major problems proposed in this report. Ultimate decisions as to (1) the extent of schooling which can be supported by public funds, (2) the extent of local resources available for education, and (3) the proportion of school cost which can be shifted to the State, must inevitably be made on the basis of the importance of education i our democratic scheme and its rank among the other claims which constantly press upon the public purse.

Research Studies Contemplated

In the preliminary investigation of this subject of school support the Committee has discovered the need both for assembling much data on education in Pennsylvania now available from scattered sources and also for conducting new or further studies along several lines for which satisfactory data have not heretofore been collected.

Following is a list of such of these subjects as appear to the Committee thus far to be assential to the conduct of its inquiry. Further progress with the study will probably show the advisability of stressing some points in this list and passing with less emphasis over others; it will unquestionably reveal other specific topics which will have to be added.

Obviously many of the subjects cited will provide information on more than one phase of the inquiry. For instance, examination of the ability of lacoal districts to support schools, besides being the deciding factor in the division between the State and local support will also be one important item in determining the extent of the minimum desirable program. Similar double significance attaches to many of the subjects listed under Economies. For this reason the classification used in making this list of subjects is entirely arbitrary and items have been listed once only under the subject to which they seem most pertinent.

ITEMS TO BE INVESTIGATED IN CONNECTION WITH

(A) Determining the Minimum Equalized Program

1. Variations in the scope of programs in the elementary schools of Pennsylvania and other comparable states.
2. Variations in the scope of programs in secondary schools, including trends as to number of courses offered and their relative enrollments in Pennsylvania and elsewhere.
3. Effectiveness of the junior high school and the relative holding power of various secondary school programs.
4. Relative degree of emphasis on various phases of the school program, such as general control and instruction, as shown by a cost analysis.
5. Relation of the size of the school unit (population and per pupil) to the program offered and its cost.
6. Vocational training, with special reference to its need, value and cost.
7. Extent of health service and health education programs.
8. Value of cost of extra-curricular activities.
9. Extent of facilities offered for pre-elementary school pupils including kindergarten, pre-school classes, etc.
10. Need, value and cost of evening schools and courses.
11. Other provisions for adult education.
12. Provision of special classes for various grades of mental ability, and for pupils afflicted with various physical handicaps.
13. Compilation of data and opinion on the size of classes for various types of schools and for various subjects.
14. Qualifications of teachers, with consideration of the various methods of evaluating their work.
15. Comprehensive and comparative study of the salaries of teachers, supervisors and principals in Pennsylvania and other comparable states.
16. Current practices as to the length of the school year.

(B) Support of the Educational Program

Total Problem

1. Enrollment of pupils by grades and types of schools, including population trends and prospective developments.
2. Cost of the school system in Pennsylvania, including indebtedness, showing trends and comparison with other states.
3. Investment in school property and adequacy of physical facilities.
4. Amounts and sources of present school revenue in Pennsylvania and elsewhere.

Local Ability to Support Schools

5. Range in local resources to support education and relation of assessed valuations to actual sales values in various districts.
6. Extent of distress among financially handicapped districts, including tax delinquency.
7. Causes—temporary and permanent—of financial difficulties in local districts.
8. Consolidation of local school units as a means of equalizing local school support.

State Support

9. Range of educational programs offered in various districts, and number of pupils at the different opportunity levels.
10. Elements involved in the equalization of education in Pennsylvania on the basis of a minimum standard program.
11. Operation and effectiveness of the present system of State support in Pennsylvania and a survey of the methods of other states.
12. Organization and activities of the State Department of Public Instruction as a supervisory agent in the public school system.
13. Relative value of various sources of State income as the bases of support for education.

(C) Economies in School Administration

1. Detailed surveys of typical school districts to include "sample" financial surveys for various types of school districts.
2. Comprehensive investigation of the nature and extent of the economies which have been effected in school districts in Pennsylvania, as well as in other states.
3. Range and reasons for range in per pupil costs for various types of expenditure in comparable districts.
4. Present legal requirements, such as system of tax collection, etc., which add unnecessarily to the cost of school administration.
5. Evaluation of supervisory activities, including the extent and value of the services to the average teacher.
6. The transportation of pupils, with special reference to fair costs in comparison with results in other states.
7. Tuition charges in relation to actual total cost of instructing outside pupils.
8. A survey of the predominant practices in regard to the teaching staff, including methods of teaching, evaluation of the work of teachers, rating and promotion of teachers, teacher loads (pupil, clerical, reporting, extra-curricular), internal politics and its effects on school morale, participation of teachers in policy formation, teacher demand and turnover.
9. Study of systems of record keeping and reporting, with particular view to discovering what are the essential and non-essential features.
10. Determination of a sound and state-wide policy to govern the grading and promotion of pupils.
11. A state-wide survey of school buildings which will classify them as to type, capacity, age, structural condition and the extent or efficiency with which they are used, to determine the adequacy of present physical facilities of the school system.
12. A study of plant operation and maintenance costs in typical districts, including fuel, light and janitorial services.
13. Examination of the present methods of providing statistical data regarding the public schools, also the facilities for educational research and typical programs pursued by the State Department of Public Instruction and other educational agencies in the Commonwealth.
14. Examination of the possibility of direct service by the State as a means of economy to local districts through centralized purchasing, state insurance funds and through continuous advice and assistance with administrative economies.

(D) Relation of Public School Costs to Total Expenditures for Education

1. Analysis of all phases of education which now receive support from public funds in Pennsylvania, with particular reference to present expenditures and trends.
2. Study of possible additional phases of education which the State may be called upon to support in view of rapidly changing social and economic conditions.
3. Examination of the allocation of educational functions, such as adult education, teacher training, etc., to the various educational agencies to determine the existence of overlapping, if any, and the possibilities for more economical distribution.

(E) Relation of Educational Costs to Total Governmental Expenditures

1. Analysis of the cost of state and local governmental functions, with trends.
2. Relation of expenditures for education to expenditures for other primary functions of government over a period of years in Pennsylvania and other states.
3. Survey of the general literature on the economics of education, with particular reference to its relative value to the social and economic well-being of the Commonwealth.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE INVESTIGATING RELIEF IN BEAVER COUNTY PURSUANT TO HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 112

To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

The undersigned, your Committee appointed to investigate the Beaver County Emergency Relief Board and the various other Relief Agencies in said County, respectfully report as follows:

Your Committee held public hearings seven different days, namely, April 20, April 26 and 27, May 3 and 4, and May 10 and 11, 1935, in the Court House at Beaver, Beaver County, Pennsylvania, in addition to which, its Members made personal investigations and received many complaints both oral and written from individuals and groups desiring to present their views. The limited time available did not permit your Committee to hold further public hearings.

Remarkable Agreements on Essential Facts

The investigation, as was to be expected, brought forth a mass of charges and counter-charges, apparently believed by those making them to be in hopeless conflict. Actually, when the testimony is sifted and analyzed, and the actual facts testified to by the many witnesses are taken, as distinguished from the conclusions which they drew from the facts appearing to them from their divergent viewpoints, the agreement of all sides upon the important facts is truly remarkable. There may be legitimate difference of opinion as to the conclusions to be drawn, and the remedies to be adopted. There is no room for difference of opinion as to the basic conditions existing, and the need for correction.

Statutory Organization

Relief in Pennsylvania is carried on under the State Emergency Relief Board, consisting of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Auditor General, State Treasurer, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, under the Act of August 19, 1932, P. L. 88. Said Board is hereinafter referred to as the S. E. R. B. Under said statute, the Board has extremely wide and undefined powers. The Act was necessarily framed in that manner, as the emergency was great, and the problem undefined. The Board is authorized and required to adopt plans for the expenditure of State and Federal funds, involving equitable allocation of funds among the counties, taking into consideration need, funds locally available, etc.; nature and character of contemplated public works; the method and manner of distributing direct relief, and the public and private agencies through which relief shall be distributed in the various counties, and in the manner in which private agencies shall be organized in counties where the same is deemed necessary; and, coordination of State and Federal funds available, so that the best results may be obtained, and duplication avoided, and the available funds from all sources made to extend over the longest possible period of time. The Board is specifically empowered to revise the program from time to time, as experience shows the necessity for the same.

It is thus at once apparent that some experimentation was and is necessary. The statute is broad enough to permit of almost any readjustments. It may be that future legislation will be required, in order to compel permanency of the best feasible program. At the present time it is felt that the new S. E. R. B., in view of the mistakes of the previous Board, and the lessons to be learned therefrom, should be permitted to retain this flexibility of the statute, and to institute changes which this investigation has shown to be necessary, and future changes as infrequently as possible, but as required by changing conditions or newly apparent difficulties.

A Brief Report of the Findings of the Committee as a Result of the Public Hearings are as Follows—

The Federal Reemployment Bureau was the first Department inquired into. The inquiry disclosed that Mr. Paul H. Baldwin, an Attorney by profession, is the Director in charge. The number of persons who have registered for employment in that office were twenty-three thousand in number. Of that number of persons, there were from ten to twelve thousand persons aided in finding employment to the extent of from one-half days' work for some to full time employment for others. It was disclosed that the selective system was used for determining who should be given employment instead of the rotating system, and needs of the applicant were not given consideration when selections were made. There have been about one hundred and twenty thousand positions filled through this office since it began to function, and had the rotating system been used in lieu of the selective system, the entire twenty-three thousand registered for employment would have had at least five opportunities for employment, instead of less than one-half of the number who had registered for employment obtaining all of the opportunities for employment. The above facts gave rise to complaints that the office of the Federal Reemployment Bureau discriminated against certain persons seeking employment to the advantage of others. It was complained of that the treatment of many persons seeking employment, and information concerning employment, was at times exceedingly discourteous. It was also disclosed, according to testimony of a certain witness, that the Director of the Federal Reemployment Bureau told Mr. John Reynok, of Fifth Street, Ambridge, Pennsylvania, that he will never be given work on the

R. W. D. as long as he is a member of the Unemployed Council. Evidence of discrimination against members of the Unemployed Council of Beaver County is a part of the record. Also many other complaints of various kinds too numerous to mention, in this brief report, were made against the Director of the Federal Reemployment Bureau in Beaver County, which complaints are also a part of the record.

It was disclosed that there are twenty-two persons working in the Office of the Federal Reemployment Bureaus under the charge of Mr. Baldwin, the Director, one employe to each one thousand persons registered for employment, and one employe for each five hundred persons helped.

The Investigation of the Department of the Field Representative, which is in Charge of Mr. Frank D. Hart, of New Brighton, Pennsylvania, who was Appointed to that Office by Mr. Biddle, the Predecessor of Mr. Johnson, who is now the Emergency Relief Administrator in Pennsylvania.

The investigation disclosed that in pursuance of the selective system, which was used to fill positions, that men were requisitioned in many cases by specifying the name of the individual desired to be given the employment. It was testified to by Mr. Hart, at first, that there were two letters sent to the Federal Reemployment Director suggesting that certain individuals be given certain positions. Later, however, by searching the files, subpoenaed from the office of the Director of the Federal Reemployment Bureau, it was disclosed that there were about fifty such requests. It was also disclosed that in certain instances persons were given employment and orders issued to the office of the Federal Reemployment Bureau to forward identification and requisition cards to the office of the R.W.D. According to the evidence disclosed in the investigation, both public and private, the Committee is of the opinion that there was collusion between the office of the R. W. D. and that of the Federal Reemployment Bureau to give employment to favored friends as against others. The conclusion of the Committee is that there is a lack of efficiency in, and that the policy of the offices under the direction of the Federal Reemployment Bureau and the R. W. D. in Beaver County are improperly and unjustly managed.

The Office of the Assistant Works Director of the R. W. D. in Beaver County is in Charge of Mr. Robert W. Smith of Beaver Falls, a Civil Engineer.

At the outset of the investigation of this office, testimony disclosed incompetence and inefficiency, and especially so in making estimates with respect to probable costs of the various types of projects to be handled by the head of this office. The Committee cites one outstanding instance, aside from other cases disclosed in the investigation, as proof of the above charge, to wit: The Patterson Township Sewer Project in Beaver County, where the estimated cost was fixed at $135,000.00, but, according to testimony, the fact was disclosed that by the time the project will have been completed, it will cost $230,000.00, or nearly twice the amount of the original estimate. According to the testimony, and by further private investigation on the part of the Committee, it has been disclosed that undue influence has been exercised by the Engineer for Patterson Township, who is also the Engineer for other political sub-divisions in Beaver County, where numerous other projects have been developed.

Also other testimony disclosed, supports the charge of discrimination against certain truck owners by giving practically all of the work to a certain few truck owners, some of which had several trucks on the job, while others were unable to obtain any work at all with their trucks, notwithstanding the fact that certain agreements had been entered into with the Assistant Works Director of the R. W. D. to the effect that work would be distributed more equitably among the truck owners. As in the case of the investigation of the other Department heads, previously mentioned in this report, the Committee is convinced, the investigation has developed, beyond a reasonable doubt, evidence that there existed collusion between the Assistant Works Director and others in giving certain persons preference for certain work.

It has also been shown that a man received a pay check for a day's work which he did not perform. This, however, was denied by the Assistant Works Director and one of his timekeepers. However, by private investigation, it was disclosed that the person receiving this check was working at his regular employment for a private employer on the date and at the time he was given credit for working on the R. W. D. This man refused to sign this check, and, of course, refused to accept any money for work he did not perform. The check is a part of the evidence in the files of the Committee.

The conclusion of the Committee is that there is sufficient evidence of a substantial nature to warrant the charge of incompetence and inefficiency.

It is the belief of the Committee that with respect to the office of the Federal Reemployment Bureau and the office of the Works Division there has been found to be, in their opinion, gross abuse of discretionary power and authority vested in them by the Commonwealth and the Federal Government.

The Investigation of the Office of Acting Relief Administrator, which is in Charge of Mr. J. R. Stanmyer, an Electrical Engineer, who, according to the Investigation, has been in Charge of that Office since February 1, 1935.

There has been made to this Committee many complaints against this Department. These complaints, some of which were trivial, many however, were of a serious nature. There are two cases where men were ill, without means to obtain medical aid, which cases were brought to the attention of the Relief Department. The apparent lack of interest and the slowness of action, and the apparent indifference to ill persons, which was responsible for the failure to provide medical attention in time to probably prevent the death which followed, and which the Committee has reason to believe may be chargeable to the physician employed by the Welfare Agencies in the Ambridge, Pennsylvania, District, and to general inefficiency of the workings of these agencies in taking care of emergency cases of distress.

There is another case from the town of Ambridge, Pennsylvania where, due to the failure to have arrangements definitely made to fill prescriptions, another man's death is probably traceable to the failure of a chain drug store to fill a prescription until this store would be sure of receiving its pay.

Other complaints against that Department were the delay in receiving food and clothing orders regularly and at the specified time or designated dates. This, according to the recipients of these food orders, was responsible for a lot of suffering from hunger because the limited food allowance upon which they were to live for the period covered by that allowance would only last to the end of that period, and they have been required in many instances to go hungry for two and three days until their food orders would arrive. It has been due to the organization of the Unemployed Council of Beaver County that many of these complaints and injustices have been brought to the attention of the Executive in charge of the Emergency Relief and to your Legislative Committee. It has been the aim of the Unemployed Council to lay before the Committee the numerous grievances of the recipients of welfare which have been most helpful in bringing to light the true workings of this Department, while on the contrary, those in charge of the Department and those employed by the Department to carry on the work of administering welfare were reluctant to give the Committee certain information which it felt pertinent. Many complaints have been received from those who are not recipients of welfare about the amount of chiseling which, of course, would be practiced only by unscrupulous persons who would be able to deceive the investigator employed by the Emergency Relief

Department. In the opinion of the Committee, any individual who has chiseled on the Emergency Relief to any substantial degree is a direct reflection upon the efficiency of the supervisory forces of the Emergency Relief Department. Complaints have also been made against employment of married women as Social Service Workers, whose husbands are gainfully employed in other lines of endeavor. The daughters and sons of well-to-do people have been employed for this work as against the twenty-three thousand men and women who are registered for employment in the Federal Reemployment Office in Beaver County. Among those, who are so registered for employment, there are professional people, educators, business people, executives, mechanics, clerical and office workers, laborers and others of diverse occupations. Beaver County is an industrial center; an outstanding agricultural county; a county that has colleges; and other institutions of learning that fit people amply for performing any service that might be necessary in connection with the administration of emergency relief .

There has also been many complaints registered, which are part of the testimony, to the effect that the distribution of food and clothing orders have not been made in accordance with the schedule designating the amount of food and clothing to be allowed.

It is the opinion of the Committee that the Assistant Relief Administrator has not had ample time to become thoroughly acquainted with all of the details of the irregularities in his Department, but by the same token the Committee feels that the time is near at hand when a substantial improvement should be expected.

Complaint has also been raised relative to the fact that a citizen of a neighboring State was given employment as supervisor in the Department of the Emergency Relief, for which we feel there is no legitimate excuse, owing to the fact that there are so many capable people unemployed in Beaver County.

Likewise, there is no justification for the employment of the wives of men who have highly remunerative positions, and the sons and daughters of well-to-do people, as these positions should go to the unemployed of Beaver County who are able to qualify for the same.

In the concluding remarks of the Committee, it is the desire to state that hearty cooperation and good will prevailed throughout the seven days of public hearing in all but a few instances. This, however, cannot be said of others who did not participate in these hearings in a direct manner.

As stated in a preliminary report to the Joint Committee, there was a tremendous delay due to the fact that it took the County Commissioners' Office four weeks to get legal transcribing stationery. Also stenographic help was requisitioned from the office of Mr. Stanmyer to perform services at ten o'clock, Saturday morning, April 20, 1935, Court Room Number 3, Beaver County Court House, Beaver, Pennsylvania. The stenographer provided to take the stenographic notes, it was disclosed, had already worked forty hours that week, whose services the Committee declined to accept on the ground that it would be in violation of the working code. The Committee then was required to employ a stenographer to perform this service, which action has been approved by the State Emergency Relief Director. Following this delay, the County Commissioners endeavored to deny the use of Court Room, Number 3, for the investigation on that date, notwithstanding the fact that for several weeks previous certain newspapers had carried information to the effect that the hearings would start on Saturday morning, April 20, 1935, at ten o'clock in Court Room, Number 3, in the Beaver County Court House, and to avoid any further delay in getting started, the Committee commandeered the use of Court Room, Number 3, for conducting hearings on that date.

The Committee recommends that inasmuch as most persons employed to administer relief were not recipients of welfare at the time they were employed, and many of those so employed were not suffering because of unemployment, and that from the twenty-three thousand persons registered for employment, an ample number of qualified persons could be obtained to perform such services, thereby reducing to some extent the number of unemployed.

The second recommendation of the Committee is for the revamping of the entire plan and method of distributing direct and work relief by placing same under one head in Beaver County.

The third recommendation of the Committee is for the elimination of the position of the roving field representative of the Works Division, and require each County to be a unit in its activity and to be under the supervision of the State Works Progress Administration.

The fourth recommendation of the Committee is that less consideration be given to educational credits and more stress laid on practical knowledge, experience, morality and plain common sense of the persons who make applications for positions to administer welfare.

The Committee feels that the House of Representatives was amply justified in authorizing this investigation.

The foregoing is respectfully submitted for your consideration.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE INVESTIGATING THE EMERGENCY RELIEF IN WESTMORELAND COUNTY

To the Honorable Members of the House of Representatives:

All public hearings were held in the County Court House, Greensburg, Pennsylvania.

In submitting this report the Committee lays before the House the findings, facts, comments and recommendations of the investigation.

A complete report of the minutes of the hearings has been forwarded to the Relief Administrator, Robert L. Johnson.

It is the opinion of the Committee that the following are true facts of their investigation of the Relief situation in Westmoreland County:

A. That all phases of relief are subject to too great an amount of procedure, based on rules laid down at the source of Administration in Harrisburg, and which do not necessarily give the proper application for local conditions.

B. That the question, which is truly an economical one, is probably treated entirely as a sociological one.

C. That the State and Federal Rules encourage the view that the professional social worker should be given preference in any supervisory position.

That the attitude taken by these professional social workers is that the relief cases are problem cases whereas in the first instance, relief agencies were set up with the view that food was to be provided for the hungry, clothes for the needy and shelter for those who were without shelter.

While today this view is still the practical duty of this socialized relief service, the actual duty is mainly the taking of data, compiling records and following procedures.

E. That social service experts have been brought into Westmoreland County while hundreds of good local citizens, business men and women, professional men and women have been denied jobs and kept on the relief rolls.

F. That it is the opinion of this committee that relief administration should be based more on a sympathetic neighborly understanding and less on the red tape of sociology which is slowly but surely removing individualism from Americanism and replacing it with a socialized system of social service records and case members.

G. That under the rules of the Works Division, allowing but 20% differential it is the opinion of the Committee that this is detrimental to the future health, happiness and security of the American people, i. e.,

(a) A family on direct relief receiving $8.00 per week would receive $9.60 per week on work relief. This differential is believed to be too meager inasmuch as a person on work relief requires more sustenance.

(b) That this differential is too small to warrant the proper placing of the relief recipient in gainful employment.

H. That it is unfair to force families on relief to cut beyond the minimum subsistence rations in order to make up a rent relief payment. Further, the rent relief payments are so small that persons willing to invest in home building will not do so, thereby keeping at a minimum any activities in the building trades industries.

I. That full payments are made to utilities applying service to relief recipients, allowing them to earn a 6% return on their investment while home owners are allowing nothing on their investment, but instead are allowed one and one-half times the amount of their taxes, presumably to pay taxes and making necessary repairs. Any person, having a property with a mortgage against it is forced to either set the family out on the street or lose his property, as no allowance is made for mortgage, interest, etc.

J. That from the testimony given, the Supervisors of the various departments are not obliged to be acquainted with the cost of operating their department, the number of necessary employees and the various items of expense. This defect is due to the necessity of following procedure:

(a) In a number of cases the Committee encountered reluctance on the part of Department Heads to give full testimony on the subject matter requested in particular. Mr. Mason of the Federal Works Employment Division and Miss Boyd of the Social Service School, who refused to give any detailed information regarding salaries, expenditures, or exact duties.

(b) That certain selected persons are being sent to college and universities on taxpayers' money when they have means to pay for their own schooling.

K. That the charges of political influence and favoritism can not be denied or upheld because of the intricate system of application and examination for employees devised by the social service worker.

L. That the system controlling the medical care and treatment of relief patients is wholly inadequate and entirely unfair to the patient and the doctor. That the pain in a chronic case is sometimes as great as in an acute case, yet no consideration is given to this particular type case, that tubercular, G. U. and chronic cases are not treatable on relief authorization, yet medical doctors testify to the necessity of treatment. That it is particularly unfair to the County Doctor who must provide his own medicines and yet no allowance is made for the payment of said medicine. (That the County Poor Board has doctors paid a yearly salary to care for poor persons needing medical attention and thus this saves the extra expense necessary for the writing of authorization slips, reviewing of doctor bills, checking and paying same.) The present system is based on the assumption that all colds are alike, all breaks alike and all maternity cases require the same treatment. This is against good judgment and common sense.

M. That specific cases of relief chiseling have been uncovered proving that this highly specialized system of social service is no guarantee against cheating or is it capable of handling those cases when discovered.

N. There were a number of cases discovered where employees in the Relief Administration had husbands or wives working in private employment at earnings sufficient to maintain the family. The Committee recommends that this practice be discontinued.

O. That testimony was given pro and con on the value of relief gardening. The Committee feels that gardens properly selected, properly tended and supervised are of great benefit to the relief recipient. That the practice of giving selected packages of seeds could be improved by allowing the relief recipient the free choice of the particular vegetables most suited to his needs.

P. That various methods of distributing coal orders have been tried and the Committee feels that the system which allows the relief recipient a free choice of the particular type of coal best suitable to his needs should be followed.

Q. Testimony discloses many complaints by single persons on relief that transients (weary willies) are afforded better treatment and consideration than those having a permanent residence in a community.

R. That the present elaborate system of following procedure in administering relief is highly expensive. That there is an overlapping of duties in the various departments. That this present specialized system of administering relief has a tendency to lower the case load at a greater administrative cost.

S. That the Committee, after due consideration and study of the testimony given, recommend that the County Relief Administration should be decentralized.

We believe that a system, setting up in each community a relief organization whose executives should be public spirited citizens serving without pay. This local organization should work under a county organization of citizens serving without pay. The Committee feels that this system will eliminate the exhorbitant administrative costs and reduce the so-called chiseling to a minimum, as well as placing the responsibility of the proper administration into the hands of the local community. This system is based on the thought that local authorities are better qualified to determine the necessity for relief than a stranger in a community. The expense of carrying on the present system apparently increases each month and will have a tendency to continue to increase with a centralized control by the State and Federal Governments. The following plan is one suggested for Westmoreland County.

(a) That there should be created relief boards of five persons in every community composed of one named by school board, one named by council, one named by the Chief Executive of the Municipality, and two from the Relief Rolls. In townships the Board shall be named as follows: 1 by Township Supervisors, 1 by the School Supervisors, 1 jointly (all Supervisors), and two from the Relief Rolls. These Boards shall have the power to elect administrative workers, but whose expenditure for such work shall never exceed 4% of the total of the relief funds expended in the community. Example—

(b) Relief grant $20,000 monthly, administrative expense $800 monthly. At no time shall persons be employed who are not on relief when relief recipients are capable of fulfilling the positions. At no time shall there be more than one member of the same family working for any of the counties' local boards. This recommendation is made in the belief that this system will work satisfactorily in the County of Westmoreland. The local boards shall send one of their number to a monthly meeting held in the County seat at the County Court House for the purpose of discussing the situation, making recommendations and setting up local rules and standards. The delegate selected shall receive $.05 per mile for the trip to and from the meeting. Said expense to be counted in as part of the 4% allowed each local board.

REPORT OF THE LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE PUBLIC RELIEF IN PENNSYLVANIA

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Your Committee was appointed to investigate public relief in Pennsylvania under House Concurrent Resolution No. 110 and the duty of the Committee as defined in the Resolution was: (a) to make a searching and impartial study and investigation of the distribution of public relief throughout this Commonwealth (b) to ascertain whether and in what respect the present system is open to abuse, (c) to ascertain whether additional legal safeguards should be provided, (d) to ascertain whether appropriations for relief may be reduced, (e) to collate and digest reports of other investigating committees, and (f) to investigate such other facts and circumstances as may be deemed necessary and advisable to enable the General Assembly to act with some degree of certainty and establish an impartial, unpolitical, unwasteful and business system of aiding those of our unfortunates in need and of eradicating and punishing those who take advantage of distressing economic conditions for their personal selfish ends whether as recipients or as distributors thereof.

The Legislature recognized that it was impossible for the Committee to make a full and extended report of its findings at this Session of the Legislature and directed that the final report should be made not later than February 1, 1937. It did however, require that a preliminary report be made at this Session of the General Assembly. It is in compliance with this requirement that the Committee makes this partial or preliminary report. The regular duties of the members of the Committees, as members of the Legislature, however, have greatly handicapped it in its endeavors to carry out its instructions and the lack of appropriation of money up to this time has also prevented a more complete report being submitted.

The Committee did hold meetings each week since its appointment, calling before it the present Director of Relief in Pennsylvania and his predecessor, the heads of the various departments in the relief administration, and the chairman of a number of the Relief Investigating Committees appointed by the House of Representatives to investigate the administration of relief in the several areas covered by their commissions, which chairmen made reports of the activities of their several committees. There also appears voluntarily before your Committee quite a number of individuals from several widely scattered counties of the State who set forth matters of complaint respecting the administration of relief in their districts. From all these sources your Committee feels that it has secured a cross section as it were, and a general picture of conditions throughout the Commonwealth.

In the preamble to the resolution appointing your Committee, it was set forth, among other things, as reasons showing the necessity of appointing such Committee that some inherent defect exists in the present system of relief distribution; that taxpayers are demanding that the light of publicity be thrown upon the whole system of distributing public relief; and that the system of administering relief fails to approach the task of placing relief upon a sound State-wide business basis.

While your Committee in no sense considers this a complete and final report, all members thereof are agreed that the evidence produced before the Committee substantiates the statements above set forth taken from the preamble to the resolution.

The enormous increase in the amount of expenditures for unemployment relief since the adoption of the Act known as the First Talbot Act in 1931, from an expenditure in the State of approximately one million dollars of State funds per month to an expenditure of State and Federal funds approximating twenty-one million dollars per month cannot be accounted for solely on the grounds that there has been an increase in the number of recipients of relief or that the amount of relief per individual was required to be increased.

While the complaints against the present system as set forth by the several witnesses before your Committee varied in detail, yet there seemed to be a more or less general agreement on a number of points, which your Committee now desires to discuss.

Local Control

One of the chief defects in the present system is the lack of responsible, efficient control in a local board or director in each of the several counties or areas in the State. Employment relief in these areas has been conducted under various branches such as the Division of Direct Relief, the Works Relief Division, the Financial Division, Disbursing Office, the Employment Bureau, etc. In the past there has been a lack of coordination between these divisions each operating separately under various rules and regulations promulgated from Harrisburg and Washington and without anyone locally having authority to bring them into cooperation. As the conditions in the several counties and areas differ widely it is wholly impossible for uniform rules to apply satisfactorily. The result is necessarily confusion, inefficiency and waste, and what was intended for equality becomes gross inequity. One or two examples may be sufficient to illustrate this condition. For instance, relief checks have been mailed to persons for weeks after such recipients have been reported by employers or others to have been given employment. This is due to the fact that such information must go around-about course from one person or office to another and through a devious system of files and cards so that a long time elapses before the paymaster obtains the knowledge which stops the taxpayers' money from going where it is not needed.

Again by reason of the fact that a uniform budget system is set up applying to all counties or areas, persons on farms or small tracts of land or in other favorable situations may be given the same relief as those without the aid which these circumstances might have afforded if properly used. Even in the same county, different sections produce different conditions which cannot be met by any standard set of rules.

Relief administration therefore, in the opinion of a majority of the Committee should be decentralized to a much greater extent than at present and the local boards should be given authority to make such rules as will provide reasonable relief at a minimum of expense to the taxpayers. With such powers there would go, of course, a responsibility for which the boards would be held accountable.

Chiseling

The subject of chiseling was one that was brought to the attention of all the committees appointed to investigate the administration of relief. This term in its narrow sense may be limited to those who deliberately accept relief while having money in bank or elsewhere and those who receive relief checks while fully employed in private business. In its broader sense it may apply to all those who take more relief than needed, to those who fail to aid themselves by planting their farms and gardens and those who in work relief fail to render the service reasonably to be required for their pay.

The number of chiselers in the narrower sense the Committee feels is not so large as indicated in certain of the testimony. However, it is sufficiently large to take a considerable amount of money unlawfully. A few prosecutions of the flagrant offenders in each area should have a wholesale effect in discouraging this form of cheating the public.

The other form of chiseling to which we have referred is more serious in its lasting results. The giving of relief in itself has demoralizing features attached to it. The recipient at first reluctant to accept aid soon comes to feel that the State owes him a living without undue effort on his part. We feel that the attitude of the professional social worker too often encourages the relief worker to assume a position of dependence upon the State. More efficient local control with the employment of investigators who discourage giving relief to all who can help themselves, will have a salutary effect in stopping all forms of chiseling.

Social Workers

In the investigation by the Committee, no criticism occurred more frequently than that relating to the type of employes administering relief. Under Federal rules and regulations, the administration of relief has passed to a large extent into the hands of professional social workers and conducted from their point of view. The testimony of the Assistant Administrator of Direct Relief showed the large measure of free play given to the social influence in the whole administration of relief.

Unfortunately many of these persons have been salaried men and women who do not have the viewpoint of the taxpayer who conducts a business with great difficulty to avoid insolvency or who only by most strenuous efforts is able to save himself and family from going on the relief rolls. Everyone desires, of course, to uplift the standard of living of those in want but the danger today from the enormous increase in the cost of relief, is that the whole of society will be precipitated into the same ruin so that the standard of all will be eventually lowered.

The Committee feels that the minimum of relief that will reasonably support the unemployed and take from the overburdened taxpayer as little money as possible in this emergency is the best solution at this time. As the comprehensive report of the House Investigating Committee for Allegheny County puts it "The taxpayer cannot perpetually support one-fourth of the population as a social workers' experimental laboratory."

A common cause of complaint by recipients of relief was the rule requiring that investigators must have a college or high school education and in some cases must pass an oral examination by a "special welfare" supervisor. It was urged that many of those on relief would make better investigators and would save money for the taxpayers by being taken from the rolls. The Committee feels that too much stress has been laid on the social training qualification and that sound judgment in business and family affairs is more important than a course in college, and that a policy should be adopted for the administration of relief on a basis of sound common sense rather than on a social basis.

Work Relief

Considerable evidence was presented to the Committee indicating that the tangible results obtained through Work Relief were extremely expensive from the taxpayers' point of view. For example, several of the County Relief Investigating Committees presented evidence showing that Public Works Projects in their Counties were costing four to five times the amount of money which private contractors would have charged for the same work. Members of the unemployed groups appearing before the Committee complained about the method of administering such work and themselves pointing out that many of these projects were costing too much money.

Some of the reasons for this were pointed out by one of the auditors in the State Auditor General's Department. He produced evidence to show that on certain Works Projects in Berks County the overhead was running as high as forty per cent. of the total cost of the project and that one of the reasons for this high overhead was the fact that foremen, timekeepers, etc., were on a straight salary basis instead of a per diem basis and were paid whether they worked or not. As few of those in a supervisory position come from the relief rolls, these high costs seem to be unjustifiable.

It is hoped that the Auditor General's Department may continue its audits with reasonable promptness as the moneys spent for relief purposes are larger in amount than the expenditures for all other purposes. We recommend that an appropriation be granted sufficient for this work.

The members of the Committee feel that relief projects would be more effective in their accomplishment and work done and in real benefit by submitting the same to contractors to be performed in accordance with general business rules.

As heretofore stated in this report, the Committee has not completed its work. We submit this report at this time so that the General Assembly may take further action if it so desires on the whole subject at this Session.

Respectfully submitted,

Senator James E. Norton, a member of the Committee, has been given leave of absence for the remainder of this Session. Before leaving he gave his assent to the above report in principle and to such part of the same as had been prepared prior to his departure.

I dissent from the suggestion of the majority of the Committee that the State Emergency Relief Board should be decentralized, that is, that the administration of relief should be delegated to local boards in the counties. At the hearings which the Committee held, the most general objection raised was the alleged preferment that obtains in the distribution of positions in the local boards as visitors and minor executives. It seems very obvious that decentralization would conduce to the enlargement rather than diminution of this evil. I believe that the plan of the State Administration of relief to set up advisory boards in each area to determine local policies will permit a sufficient exercise of local discretion to meet the objection of the majority of the Committee on this score.

JOSEPH DAVID BUCK.

The undersigned members of the Committee would suggest the passage of an Act of Assembly at this time for decentralization of the administration of relief. We feel that the State Director of Relief is making an honest effort to cope with a difficult situation but the bureaucratic system which has been built up will make such effort to a great extent fruitless. If a local board with large powers and responsible to the appointing power or to the electors as the case may be, is created by law in each of the counties to begin functioning at a future time to be fixed by the Director of Relief under certain limits, we feel it will be a decided step toward reduction of the relief rolls and the cost thereof.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE PHILADELPHIA POLICE PENSION FUND

To the Members of the House of Representatives, the General Assembly of Pennsylvania:

Gentlemen:

By virtue of a resolution duly passed by this House of Representatives, on February 13, 1935, your Committee now reporting, was duly appointed "to investigate and study the soundness, safeness and security of the Police Pension Fund of the City of Philadelphia, to ascertain whether the said Fund is efficiently and economically administered and in accordance with standard practice of approved retirement or pension funds; to determine whether the said Police Pension Fund of the City of Philadelphia is actually sound; to audit or cause to be audited the books of account and records of the said Fund; and to appraise, or cause to be appraised the investments thereof by persons competent to perform such services; to ascertain and determine whether the benefits accorded to members of the Fund are substantially equivalent to those benefits that might be obtained from approved life insurance companies, and to inquire into such matters and facts concerned with and relating to the said Police Pension Fund of the City of Philadelphia as may be necessary in providing to the General Assembly information requisite to intelligent legislative action with respect to the said Police Pension Fund."

The Members of this House duly appointed to constitute the aforesaid Committee were as follows: Honorable Elmer Kilroy, Chairman, Honorable Edward Flanagan, Honorable Joseph Scanlon, Honorable Joseph Burke, Honorable John J. McDevitt, III.

By virtue of the authority contained in the resolution, your Committee appointed counsel to assist it in its hearings and deliberations and, as provided in the resolution, initially obtained the consent of such counsel to serve without compensation.

W. Curtis Bok, Esq., a former Assistant District Attorney of Philadelphia, and H. Eugene Heine, Esq., a former General Assistant City Solicitor of Philadelphia, who had been specially assigned as counsel for the Department of Public Safety for a period of more than eight years, agreed to act as counsel for your Committee, without compensation, and have done so. Their services to this Committee have been efficient, helpful and painstaking, and this Committee takes this opportunity to express its appreciation of their valuable but none the less gratuitous professional assistance.

It was necessary, in order to comply with the mandate of the resolution, for your Committee to obtain the services of Certified Public Accountants for the purpose of auditing the books of the Philadelphia Police Pension Fund Association. As, however, no appropriation has been made for the payment of such accounting services, your Committee was particularly fortunate in being able to obtain, through the assistance of its counsel, the valuable but none the less gratuitous services of Charles S. Rockey & Co., Certified Public Accountants, of the City of Philadelphia. Your Committee takes this opportunity to extend to Charles S. Rockey & Co., its warm sense of appreciation of the most helpful and laborious accounting services of Charles S. Rockey & Co., given cheerfully and without any compensation whatsoever.

All of the public hearings of your Committee were, through the courtesy of President Judge Frank Smith, of the Court of Common Pleas No. 5 of Philadelphia County, held in Room 646, City Hall, Philadelphia, Pa. All of the hearing were held on Saturday mornings and on the following date: March 9th, March 16th, March 23rd, April 6th, April 13th, April 27th, 1935. At 11.50 A. M. on the last-named date, the hearing adjourned sine die.

A considerable number of witnesses were heard by your Committee and much documentary information was submitted and has been made a part of the record. The witnesses heard were the following: Harry C. Davis, Sr., President of the Police Pension Fund Association; two subordinates of the Controller of the City of Philadelphia as follows, Maurice E. Wilt and Belford E. R. Hannock; Theodore F. Wood, Director of the Department of Public Safety of the City of Philadelphia; Mrs. Anna J. Gohl, Secretarial assistant to the Director of the Department of Public Safety; Superintendent of Police Joseph A. LeStrange; Dr. David McCahan, Associate Professor of Insurance at the University of Pennsylvania and a specialist in public pension fund systems; Mr. Ross B. Davis, head of the Fire Bureau of the City of Philadelphia and President of the Firemen's Pension Fund; Charles S. Rockey, C. P. A. and his associate accountant, George F. Iselmann, Jr.: George A. Huggins, Consulting Actuary; and Harry C. Davis, Jr., Secretary of the Police Pension Fund Association.

The documents which were offered in evidence, which are a part of the record and which were studied by your Committee, include the following: The resolution whereby your Committee was appointed; the charter and by-laws of the Police Pension Fund of Philadelphia; the last Annual Report of the Police Pension Fund; the list of the moneys received by the Firemen's Pension Fund through foreign fire insurance premiums tax; Mr. Huggins' report of the actuarial examination of the Police, Firemen's and Municipal Pension funds of Philadelphia; the actuarial report to the Committee on Municipal affairs of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce with respect to the Police Pension Fund; the amended by-laws of the Police Pension Fund; the accounting report by Charles S. Rockey & Co. with respect to their examination of the accounts of the Police Pension Fund, etc. In addition to that, members of your Committee and your Committee's counsel have had a number of consultations with acturial and insurance experts, with various police officials, police pensioners, other public officials, etc.

Your Committee realizes that the exigencies of time facing this Legislative Assembly not only justify but require that its report to this Honorable Body be presented at this time in belief and summarized form. Necessarily, in doing so, many important and interesting details of the results of its investigation must be omitted.

Under the language of the resolution, the first expressed function of your Committee was "to investigate and study the soundness, safeness and security" of the Police Pension Fund of the City of Philadelphia. Our investigations conclusively show beyond any possibility of question that the Police Pension Fund of the City of Philadelphia is neither sound, safe, nor secure. Indeed, it is about as unsound, as unsafe, and as insecure as any public pension fund could be. When it is borne in mind that the police and firemen of a great City are the first line of defense of life, liberty and property for all the citizens of that great city, we are of the opinion that an outrageous lack of fulfillment of public duty has during past years been manifested by the public officials responsible for the maintenance and development of this Fund in the utterly slip-shod, unscientific and unfair basis on which it has been established and maintained. Year by year, since its establishment, it must have been increasingly clear that this Police Fund was a snare and a delusion as far as the policemen of the City of Philadelphia were concerned and as far as the taxpayers of the City of Philadelphia were concerned. So bad has the situation been allowed to become that the taxpayers of the City of Philadelphia have been obliged to make huge annual appropriations which, on an actuarial calculation, are bound to increase year by year if the present system is continued, until they stabilize at approximately $1,100,000. per annum. The setup of an intelligent reserve on an actuarial basis a number of years ago would have avoided that dangerous situation. And a special committee of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce completed and made public as long ago as February of 1927, a report making clear the true picture then and the fact that if the system were not changed things would get worse for both police and taxpayers year by year. Not only is there now fastened upon the taxpayers of the Ciy of Philadelphia, as a result of all this, a growing drain upon the City's treasury even without any attempt to set up a single penny of reserve for the future, but likewise the present police pensioners and the police now serving actively have their pension payments jeopardized as a result of the possibility of the taxpayers balking at the huge payments that are now required each year, and which for some time will be increased from year to year, and demanding that police pension benefits shall be materially reduced. This, in our judgment, would be a calamity.

The present set-up of the Police Pension Fund will be briefly explained. First we will refer to the contributions required of active police under the by-laws and also the benefits provided for under the by-laws in the event that there is sufficient money to pay those benefits.

I. Contributions by the Members of the Police Force

All male members of the Bureau of Police, Police telegraph operators transferred to the Electrical Bureau, and those on the "eligibility list" for pension through twenty years' service appointed to a position in the service of the City, may pay dues as members of the Philadelphia Police Pension Fund Association. The dues provided for are as follows:

1. One day's pay (due on or before the 10th) in each month, or one-three hundred and sixty-fifth of the yearly salary each month if on a salary (each payment taken to the next higher multiple of five cents). No excess of salary over $3000.00 is considered in determining the dues.

2. When a member is pensioned, where the service used to compute his pension is greater than the period for which he has paid dues, then the amount of dues for the difference between these two periods shall become a debt to the Association, and shall be paid in monthly instalments of one-twelfth of four percent of the amount of the salary or wages upon which his pension is based, until the debt is discharged.

3. When pensioned, after the discharge of the debt referred to in Paragraph No. 2 above, or if there is no debt, the dues of pensioners shall be 4% of the amount of the pension, payable in monthly instalments.

4. If the application for membership in the Association is made more than sixty days after eligibility for such membership, an entrance fee of $10.00 and dues dated back to the date of eligibility must be paid.

5. In case of a deficit, a monthly assessment may be levied upon all members of the Association—such assessment not to exceed one third the amount of the member's dues.

II Benefits

The Board of Directors (the constituent elements of which will be discussed later) has great latitude in the use of its discretion as to the pensions to be paid.

1. If a member ceases to hold a position which renders him eligible to membership in the Police Pension Fund Association, he forfeits his membership and all rights to any return of his previous contributions to the Fund or to any assets of the Association, unless he is placed on pension.

2. Failure of a member to pay dues on or before the 10th of each month results in a suspension of that member from any right to enjoy the benefits of the Association thereafter. He may be reinstated.

3. All pensions granted to members of the Association are computed upon the basis of the average pay of each applicant during the ten years immediately preceding the date upon which he was placed upon the roll of pensioners. 2½% of such average pay is multiplied by the years and months of the member's service, not to be considered in excess of twenty years, and the product is the pension of the member for each year. No excess of pay over $3.000 is used in computing the average pay.

4. All pensions terminate at the death of the pensioner, with the exception that if he die within twelve months after he has become a pensioner, a pension may, at the discretion of the Board of Directors, be granted to his widow or children—such pension not to exceed the regular pension to widows or children. Such pension at all times is revokabe at the discretion of the Board.

Who May Receive a Pension?

Pensions may arise in various ways, as here briefly enumerated:

First, injury in line of duty to a policeman which permanently incapacitates him from discharging his duties. Under such circumstances, the application for the pension must be filed within twelve months or otherwise a statement by the applicant, together with statements by witnesses must be filed within sixty days of the receipt of the injury. If such a pension is granted, it is based on the imaginary supposition that the applicant has completed a twenty years' period of service. And if a man dies as a result of injuries received in line of duty but more than sixty days after such injury is received his dependent widow and children get absolutely nothing.

Secondly, by physical disability arising from any cause, provided however that the policeman has had at least ten years' prior service and provided further that, in the opinion of the Board of Directors, such physical disability is not the result of intemperate habits or immoral practices. When such a pension is granted, the amount of the pension allowed is based upon the actual number of years of previous service.

Thirdly, as a result of length of years of service. Any policeman who has served for twenty years may be placed on the eligible list and, when he attains the age of fifty, he thereafter becomes eligible to a pension. Astounding as it is, the present set-up of the pension system provides that if the policeman retires voluntarily before the age of fifty, even though he has had his full twenty years' service, he is not and he never becomes eligible to a pension, nor eligible to receive back any part of his previous contributions toward the Fund; while, on the other hand, if having served twenty years and not yet having reached the age of fifty, he should be dismissed from the service for gross infractions of discipline or grevious conduct unbecoming an officer, he immediately becomes eligible to receive his pension. Under such circumstances, obviously, the present arrangement puts a premium and a reward upon vicious conduct by a policeman who has served for twenty years and is not as yet fifty years old, in the hope that he may be dismissed from the service for such conduct and thereby become eligible to a valuable pension which, without such conduct and dismissal, he would not be eligible to receive.

Fourthly, if a policeman having served for twenty years but not yet being fifty years of age is physically disabled, he becomes entitled to the pension.

Under certain circumstances pensions may be granted to dependents of deceased policemen.

1. The widow and dependent children of a member killed in the discharge of duty or dying within sixty days after the injury incurred in line of duty may apply for a pension to be granted only at the discretion of the Board. If the Board decides to grant such a pension it shall be in the amount of $20 per month to the widow plus $6.00 per month for each child—the total, under no circumstances, to exceed $50.00 per month. Such a widow's pension ceases on re-marriage, and the child's pension ceases at age fourteen, although provision is made whereby special consideration may be given in the case of a child if that child is an invalid.

2. If there be no widow or children, the dependent father or mother, or both, may apply for a pension. If it is granted, such a pension is in the amount of $12.00 a month to either father or mother, or $20.00 jointly to the two of them. This kind of a pension is revokable at any time at the discretion of the Board.

As stated at the outset of our reference to pension benefits, the Board of Directors has startlingly large powers. For example, if the income for the Fund is less than disbursements, the pensions may be proportionately reduced. Furthermore, pensions to dependents are not compulsory and pensions to dependent parents may be revoked at any time even after they have been granted. And, still at the discretion of the Board, pensions to members of the Association themselves may be revoked or made payable to other members of the pensioner's family because of what the Board deems to be misconduct or because of permanent withdrawal from the United States. Furthermore, payments may be suspended if the pensioner obtains certain types of employment with the City of Philadelphia or with the State Constabulary.

III. Set-Up of the Administration of the Fund as Provided for Under the By-Laws

Under the present plan, the Police Pension Fund Association is governed by five officers and sixteen directors, constituting a Board of Directors of twenty-one persons. The City of Philadelphia has the right of representation on the Board of Directors to the extent of three representatives appointed by City Council. The police in each district elect what is called a "delegate" at a meeting of the police in that district, which is supposed to be held at least two weeks before the Annual Meeting of the delegates. In practice, this by-law is more honored in the breach than in the observance. The delegates are supposed to elect the directors annually. Little attention is paid to this provision. The directors are at liberty, under the by-laws, to elect the officers for almost any period of time they want to, and any delegate who may prove to be too inquisitive as to what is being done in the administration of the fund can readily be removed from his office of delegate by the simple expedient of transferring him from the district which has been representing to another district. The machinery for control as set up by the by-laws is well calculated to permit political chicanery in the election and maintenance in office of any chosen favored persons and, likewise, for the establishment and maintenance of unduly large salaries for the work done and responsibilities shouldered by the executive officers. And it would appear that in practice this is exactly what has happened. We will again refer to that matter.

Under the by-laws any policeman who for any reason leaves the force before he has served for twenty years, receives back no part of the contribution from his salary which he has been paying in throughout the length of his term of service.

Although the by-laws provide that the directors shall be chosen by the delegates from their own number, the fact is that the delegates have rarely met for such purpose.

Although the by-laws provide for an auditing committee, there is nothing to indicate that any such auditing committee has functioned for some years.

The Board of Directors, which in practice, and contrary to the by-laws, seems to be a sort of self-perpetuating body, may reinstate a member of the Association who has failed to pay his dues or they may not reinstate him, as they determine.

The Fund has no investments but, if it did have, the by-laws set up a procedure under which there need not be any actual police representation upon the Committee on Finances and Investments.

The by-laws set up certain provisions about "reserve fund and income" and prescribe that the reserve fund shall consist of all contributions, etc. None the less, "contributions" and also what are known as "details" representing income from unusual sources not properly income of the Association, are not put into any Reserve Fund in the true sense of that word, and never have been.

The by-laws provide that "if the estimated income of the Association for any one year is insufficient to meet the amount required for the necessary expenses of management and the payment of pensions, the Board of Directors shall have the power to reduce proportionately all pensions during that year, * * *. Such reduction may be made when and as often during the year as the Board of Directors shall deem proper."

The by-laws provide that "The Board of Directors may at any time select three members of the Association who are not directors, to make a careful and complete audit of the accounts of the Association and its assets," etc. Apparently, this has never been done.

The by-laws provide that "at the Annual Meeting in January, the delegates shall elect an auditing committee of seven, two of whom shall be delegates, two members of the Association not delegates, two life members, and the seventh shall be the Director of the Department of Public Safety," etc. In spite of this mandatory provision in the by-laws, there is no evidence that any such auditing committee was ever appointed.

Under the by-laws, if, in the judgment of the Board of Directors, a man who after ten years of service is permanently incapacitated as a result of injuries, has had his physical condition brought about by intemperate or immoral conduct, he forfeits his right to a pension.

Under the by-laws, no matter what the circumstances may be, neither a policeman severed from the services for any reason, nor any dependent of such policeman, may receive back any part of the contribution he has paid into the fund except through the medium of a pension, if he is eligible therefor. On the other hand, the low eligibility age, after twenty years of service, returns extraordinarily large pensions to those who may happen to live for any great number of years after retirement on the pension list.

Under the by-laws as they now stand, the granting of a pension to dependent parents of a policeman who died as a result of injuries received in line of duty, either instantly or within sixty days, is not obligatory on the Board of Directors "but shall be entirely at its discretion." We consider this an entirely unfair provision, helping to make toward the political set-up in which direction the by-laws seem to have been carefully arranged.

Among the reasons set out in the by-laws on the basis of which the Board of Directors may revoke a pension, no matter after how many years of faithful service and contribution by the pensioner, are included "the leading of an immoral life by a pensioner." That is to say, if the Board of Directors wishes to accept evidence that may be given against any pensioner of conduct which, in the judgment of the Board, constitutes leading "an immoral life," a policeman may be forthwith deprived of his pension.

With reference to amendments to the by-laws, it is provided that they must originate with the Board of Directors and, in view of what we have heretofore pointed out as to the close-corporation set-up which, in practice, is and has for many years been followed by the Police Pension Fund Association, it would appear useless to hope for any relief with respect to various obnoxious provisions now contained in the by-laws, unless the set-up is completely changed.

IV. Administration of the Fund is Inefficient and Uneconomic

The bookkeeping system was started in 1891 and has never been changed. It is an inefficient, cumbersome and antiquated system. Many past records have been destroyed, though there was sufficient data available to enable certain vague charges of alleged mysterious disappearance of funds to be checked by the Certified Public Accountants appointed by your Committee. Cancelled checks are not kept for more than two years back. Furthermore, a good many check stubs have disappeared. It was discovered that the addresses of many of the pensioners were not in the possession of the officers of the Association.

The Secretary receives $4500.00 per year for doing work which is, for the most part, purely clerical. When any decisions involving executive determination are required such matters are, as a rule, referred to the Association's counsel, who serves without compensation. There are no investments to look after. The Secretary's work is largely merely a question of counting money, depositing it, keeping a check-up on the pension list, drawing checks, and seeing that they are prpoerly distributed Mr. Harry C. Davis, Jr., is the Secretary and his father is the President. The President has few, if any, duties except to sign checks and attend director's meeting, for which he receives $1,000.00 per annum. In addition, there is a clerk who receives $2,100.00 per annum and is remotely related to the Davis family by marriage. His work, likewise, is purely clerical. The excessiveness of the salary of $4500.00 per year to the Secretary is well illustrated by the fact that the entire cost of administering the Fire Pension Fund for the year 1934 was only $4,300.00 odd dollars, including all salaries and all expenses. In the Fire Fund the Secretary receives but $3.-300.00 per annum, and the Treasurer receives only $200.00 per annum. This is in spite of the fact that the administrators of the Fire Fund have a heavy responsibility in looking after an investment in first mortgages of practically two million dollars, in bonds of approximately a quarter of a million dollars, and in real estate of approximately a half million dollars.

No serious attempt of any kind to have a proper audit of the Police Pension Fund appears ever to have been made by the administrators of the Fund. There is absolutely no evidence to indicate any kind of an audit whatsoever in the past. Once a year, a firm of accountants prepares, or helps to prepare an annual statement, and that is all. Evidence of this was particularly noticeable by contrast with the way the Firemen's Pension Fund is administered in that regard. In their very much less item of annual administration expense is included an $800.00 charge for a thorough annual audit. The excessive cost of administering the Police Pension Fund, considering the nature of the simple duties involved, at least for a number of years now past, ties in with the political and arbitrary set-up of the whole police pension fund system.

V. Allegations of Disappearance of Reserve Fund

On the other hand, your Committee reports that its Certified Public Accountants made a special and particular check-up with respect to vague allegations of an alleged mysterious disappearance of a former "reserve fund." This careful check-up discloses that in the real bookkeeping sense of the word there never had been "a reserve fund" under the set-up of the Police Pension Fund Association. There was a fund called a "reserve fund" which had accumulated some moneys as a consequence of excess of income over disbursements during the earlier years when the pension payments had not yet grown heavy. Actually, it was simply an unexpended cash balance, and as the pension disbursements increased from year to year, this cash balance was drawn on until it disappeared because of use for that purpose. Both the books of the Association and the minutes were reported by our Certified Public Accountants as explaining that picture in full accord with an honest administration of the Fund. The charges had been made as a result of a reasonable suspicion and because of inability to obtain an adequate opportunity to make a real check-up of the books and records of the Association. The alleged disappearance of this reserve fund had our particular attention and that of our accountants, and we are glad to be able to report that we are completely satisfied that there was no actual financial irregularity in this regard.

Conclusions

As a result of the evidence presented at the hearings conducted by your Committee, and as a result of an examination of the documentary evidence presented to us, as well as collateral inquiries and study, your Committee has concluded that the situation presented is such a serious one from the standpoint of the police and of the taxpayers of the City of Philadelphia, particularly in the light of the present financial position of the City of Philadelphia, that no hasty solution of the problem should be made and no final solution of the problem can be made without further very careful study. We were much impressed by the splendid report submitted by Mr. Huggins, Consulting Actuary, who had been retained by the City Councils of Philadelphia, but we definitely differ with certain of his recommendations. We are firmly of the opinion that there is a most crying need to set up this Police Pension Fund on a sound actuarial basis, but just what that basis ought to be is a matter that needs more opportunity for study than we have had time to give. Furthermore, we would need additional expert actuarial assistance, which the failure to make any appropriation for the work of our Committee has made it difficult for us to obtain. We earnestly recommend, therefore, the continuance of the authority of this Committee as your representatives, to pursue the study and analysis of the situation further with a view to the presentation of a final and more carefully considered and better-informed report at the next session of the Legislature, and with a view to the taking of definite legislative action at such next session.

However, we have reached certain more or less definite conclusions upon which we are ready to base definite recommendations, and there we desire to lay before this Honorable Body at this time.

In reaching these recommendations, we have borne certain general principles in mind.

A Municipal pension system with respect to Municipal employes generally, or any particular class of Municipal employes, falls into one of three groups: (a) Actuarial Reserve Plan; (b) the Cash Disbursement Plan; (c) the Distinguished Cash Disbursement Plan.

The present system under which the Police Pension Fund of Philadelphia is administered falls under the second classification of Cash Disbursement Plan. Under such a plan there is no actuary and no reserve fund—nothing but benefits, which are paid out of current revenues as they become due. Since there is no reserve fund, compound interest bears no part of the cost, and the entire burden is placed upon the City and the policemen. Such a system is necessarily established without actuarial advice and without knowledge of its cost. As has happened in the instant case, during the first few years the number of pensioners is few and the total pension payments are small, especially if a fairly large number of younger employes is being constantly added to the service. Then, things take a sudden turn for the worse. The number of pensioners and the cost being to increase at an ever accelerating rate, causing just alarm among both policemen and taxpayers. Frantic attempts to bolster up the finances by reducing benefits or increasing revenues patch things up for a few years, and then the same difficulties arise again.

Under the Actuarial Reserve Plan, to which with respect to the Police Pension Fund of Philadelphia your Committee is completely favorable (and which is the plan which the law requires insurance companies to follow) an actuary computes the amounts which must be placed in the reserve fund by the contribution of the City and of the policemen in order to provide an adequate pension for each policeman when he reaches the retirement age. Under this plan, when properly set up, compound interest bears approximately two-thirds of the cost, which increases at a moderate rate in proportion to the increase in total payroll. Under such a plan, if and when it is established, the City is promising its employees nothing which it cannot fulfill.

Recommendations

1. That, for the present at least, the Police Pension Fund of Philadelphia should continue to be administered as a separate pension fund.

2. That the entire administrative set-up of the Police Pension Fund should be radically changed.

3. That the Fund should be administered by a Board of Trustees which should include the Mayor of the City, the City Treasurer, a member of City Councils, three members of the police force to be freely elected by the police, and three taxpaying citizens chosen in some appropriate and non-political manner with respect to special qualifications.

4. That in order to set up the Fund on a proper actuarial basis, there should be a contribution by the police of approximately 4% of their income received from the City, and that the City should contribute approximately a like sum.

5. That the retirement age of policemen should under no circumstances ever be raised to age 60, as recommended by Mr. Huggins; but that, at the individual option of the present active members of the force, their retirement age should be raised to 55, on some gradual and equitable basis, and in such manner as not to do an injustice to those who are now at all close to the present retirement age of 50. Unfortunately, it would be financially impossible to extend the greatly increased benefits which we recommend for policemen under our general plan for a new pension system to those policemen who did not elect to agree to the gradual change of retirement age to 55.

6. That provision should be made whereby a policeman may at any time withdraw from the police force voluntarily and, upon so doing, receive back the principal sum of all the contributions that he may have previously made to the Police Pension Fund.

7. That membership in the Association should be compulsory for all future employes.

8. That a Secretary should be employed to keep the necessary records and compile such data as an actuary might require for his calculations from time to time.

9. That the City Treasurer should have custody of the funds of the Association.

10. That the City Controller should regularly audit the accounts of the Association.

11. That the investment of the reserve fund as soon as it has come into existence under the new plan should be limited to Federal bonds and to first grade. State and Municipal bonds, and that under no circumstances should employees be permitted to borrow from the Fund.

12. That the entire cost of administration of the Fund be paid by the City.

13. That the 2% tax on the premiums of foreign automobile insurance companies, which at the instance of your Committee has in this Session been sought to be set aside for the benefit of the police pension funds throughout the State, should be applied in reduction—at least during this present period of financial stress for the City of Philadelphia—of the annual contribution by the City.

14. That in the administration of the pension system three funds be set up as follows: (a) An Annuity Savings Fund—in which would be placed the policemen's contributions, together with those occasional funds known as "details" and "contributions," and together with accumulated interest from which would be paid (1) refunds of contributions in case of a policemen's death, resignation or dismissal, and (2) transfer of any policemen's contribution (plus interest) to the Retirement Reserve Fund upon his retirement; (b) a Pension Accumulation Fund—into which would be paid all contributions by the City and from which would be transferred the City's contributions for the retirement of any policeman (plus interest), together with accrued liability contributions, upon his retirement; (c) A Retirement Reserve Fund—to which would be transferred the policemen and the City's contributions for the retirement of any policeman (plus interest) upon his retirement, and from which pensions would be paid.

15. That twenty-five years service should be required for eligibility for retirement during good health.

16. That the retirement allowance or pension should set set up approximately on the basis of one fifty-fifth of the average annual salary of the policeman for the last fifteen years of his service, multiplied by the number of years of his total service. This would put an additional premium upon longer years of service. Moreover, if actuarily possible on a sound basis, the aforesaid pension sum should be increased.

17. That death benefits should be paid out of the pension funds to estates of policemen who are killed in line of duty, or who die as the direct result of injuries sustained in line of duty, regardless of whether such death occurs in sixty days as under the present system, or occurs in a longer period of time. This death benefit should consist of not less than the amount of the deceased policeman's contributions and should be in addition to an allowance in the nature of compensation to such policeman's dependent wife and minor children, or dependent mother and father.

18. That death benefits up to the amount of the policeman's contribution should be paid in the case of natural death in the service.

19. That regardless of age or length of service, an actuarially sound disability benefit should be paid on account of injuries sustained in line of duty by any policeman regardless of age or length of service, but that any benefits payable under the Compensation Laws should be offset against the City's disability allowances.

20. That because disability benefits are particularly subject to abuse and must be carefully administered or the costs will soar, the disability should be total and permanent and should be certified by the medical examiner after a thorough examination.

21. That in case of dismissal from the service prior to retirement age, the policeman's contributions be refunded to him, and with interest if that be actuarially possible on a sound basis. That the same rules should apply to those resigning from the service, etc.

We wish to assure this Honorable Body that we have taken our responsibilities, as members of this Committee, most seriously. The situation with respect to the Police Pension Fund of the City of Philadelphia our investigations have shown to be most serious, and to constitute an ever-growing menace both to the security of the policemen of that great City with respect to their pensions, and to the welfare of the taxpayers of that City, both of whom, in our opinion, have heretofore been given an unhappy and a wholly unsound deal. An adequate and sential to that morale among the police force of any city safely secured pension is, in our opinion, absolutely esswhich is such an important factor in the welfare of that City. Had not the borrowing capacity of the City of Philadelphia been heretofore exhausted, and were not its Treasury now depleted, we would be prepared now to suggest a reformation of the Police Pension Fund on the general actuarial lines recommended by Mr. Huggins, but with certain definite exceptions such as his recommendation that the right to retirement be postponed to age 60. As it is, and for the present, the difficulties that present themselves in an immediate and scientific reorganization of the Police Pension Fund System, are so great that it is perfectly obvious that further and more detailed analytical study must be given before the problem can be properly and finally solved. We shall be glad to further dedicate our energies so that purpose should this Honorable Body see fit to extend the life of this Committee.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE COST OF EQUIPMENT TO REPLACE LIGHT BULBS IN CEILING FIXTURES IN HALL OF HOUSE

To the Honorable, the Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives:

Your committee appointed pursuant to House Resolution No. 160, Printer's No. 1316, to investigate the cost of safe equipment for the use of employes in replacing electric light bulbs in the ceiling fixtures of the Hall of the House of Representatives, respectfully report:

That it has investigated the matter submitted to it and recommends that the Department of Property and Supplies purchase a transportable telescoping scaffold of proper size and standard construction as shown in the accompanying cuts, and that said cuts are attached merely as an illustration of the kind of scaffold to be purchased and not as indicating the make to be purchased.

Your committee requests that a copy of this report, together with the attached cuts be transmitted to the Department of Property and Supplies by the Chief Clerk.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE RELIEF IN CUMBERLAND, FRANKLIN, ADAMS AND FULTON COUNTIES

To the Honorable Members of the House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

June 20, 1935.

Since March 4th, fourteen hearings have been held, ten in Franklin County, three in Cumberland County and one in Fulton County. No hearings were held in Adams County, as the Relief load is low in that County as compared with Cumberland and Franklin Counties. The clerk of the committee did, however, make some private investigations there and in general, found practically the same type of complaints and reasons therefor, as existed in the other counties. Witnesses in one case were brought from Adams County to Chambersburg for a hearing. A copy of the testimony taken at all hearings has been filed with the Chief Clerk of the House.

While a voluminous report could be made citing testimony regarding various phases of the investigation, the committee feels all parties concerned are more interested in recommendations which will result in improvements, where possible based upon evidence and complaints received and observations by the committee.

We, therefore, recommend the following:

(1) Coordinate under one agency, Federal, State and local interests with a view of placing into relief activities, the combined thought, experience and responsibility of these various parties, so the operation of relief in each community will best serve the local conditions. Federal and State regulations should be sufficiently flexible to permit adjustment to meet local conditions.

(2) Coordinate Federal, State and local funds for one common purpose so as to provide more economical, efficient, and equitable distribution of relief and administration thereof. This should also bring the funds of the local poor board together with the emergency relief funds insuring necessary cooperation and eliminating possible duplication. It will also give the people of each community a direct financial interest in relief as the local funds would be a direct result of local taxation. The amount furnished by the Federal and State authorities would be measured by the amount furnished locally and the number and stringency of relief cases. This will further insure local interest in efficient economical relief distribution and administration.

(3) Coordinate Federal, State and local administration and management by placing in the hands of non-partisan-minded local boards the major portion of the administration. These boards to work with the local administrator, who would in reality represent the Federal and State interests in cooperation with the local interests.

AMPLIFYING THE THREE PRECEDING RECOMMENDATIONS WE WOULD ALSO SUGGEST:

(1) Appointment of local boards, who will as near as possible be a balance of the major political parties active in each community so as to avoid charges of politics. The number of persons on these boards should be sufficient to carry out its various functions and assure geographical representation. Where more than one county is included in an Area, such as is the case in Area No. 4, representatives from each county board could make up an Area Board. The County Boards would act on matters pertaining to their respective counties and the Area Board would act on matters pertaining to area administration. These boards should be carefully selected and be persons who would be willing to render this service in the interest of their communities without pay or only be reimbursed for their expenses.

These boards should be divided up into various committees, each of which would be responsible for certain functions pertinent to the administration and distribution of relief. We would suggest that these committees pass upon the following:

(a) One committee to select and pass upon the personnel. This will be a most important function and aside from passing upon administrative personnel, they should also pass upon, project supervisors, foremen and all other positions where the employ of the personnel is not confined to employables who are relief cases. They should first of all try to select the above mentioned personnel from any that are qualified who are employables of relief cases. These sources should be completely exhausted before securing the personnel from non-relief cases. This will possibly provide only a small portion of qualified persons for the above positions. The next eligible persons for these positions should be those in need of employment who have family responsibility and who are qualified to handle the work. This supply should be exhausted before looking further for personnel. Next in line should be those in whose family the employment is needed for the well-being of the family. In all cases, the preference for personnel should be given to those in whose family the income is truly needed for the betterment of the family's standard of living or for the betterment of the individual's standard of living, providing he has no other source of income or means of livelihood.

The committee believes that sufficient qualified personnel can be found through these sources. Such a program would insure the relief dollar being used as far as possible where it is actually needed. Personnel selected from individuals or families who have at least sufficient income from other sources for the well-being of the family should be employed, if qualified only after all other sources of personnel above mentioned have been exhausted. The local personnel committee would be in position to either know or learn of the financial circumstances or need for employment of the various applicants.

REASONS FOR THESE RECOMMENDATIONS

Through the committee's personal acqquaintance with some of those employed, likewise, some of those who have not been employed, we know of many cases where persons have been employed who have sufficient other sources of income in their family, while others with whom the members of the committee have knowledge of needing the income in their family and who are qualified, have not been able to obtain this type of employment. Testimony also clearly indicates that some in charge of the administration and selection of personnel only considered qualifications and did not take into consideration the need for the employment in the applicant's family.

(B) A committee to pass upon the general phases of relief administration, formulating local policies, methods, etc.,

(C) A committee to pass upon doubtful cases and handle various types of complaints concerning direct or work relief cases.

(D) The county board, we believe should also select a committee of at least three members to settle all disputes concerning persons refusing employment when offered same. This committee should possibly be made up of persons not members of the county board. They should represent the civic interests, the industrial, commercial and the labor interests.

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS AND SUGGESTIONS AND REASONS THEREFOR

(1) Free and full publicity concerning various functions of relief activities so that everyone may know where the taxpayers money is going as far as the relief activities are concerned.

Reasons

Since the legislative investigating committee started holding hearings, the contents of which were given publicity in the local newspapers, we feel that the general publicity has given a better understanding of some of the phases of relief. Likewise relief recipients apparently have a better understanding of some of the phases of relief and its administration. In a good many cases they now understand that the reason certain cases were handled in certain ways affecting possibly themselves has been due to the fact it is part of the plan of relief administration and distribution and not in most cases a decision or action on the part of someone individual in the relief administration. The committee was informally advised by the new Area Relief Administrator, Mr. Edwin B. Romig, who took charge of Area No. 4 about the same time the investigation started, that he feels these hearings have been of great assistance in the administration of relief by making the people better acquainted with what is going on and in the bringing to light the weak-points in the administration so they can be strengthened.

(2) We feel that the visitors who check up on applications for relief should be carefully selected and be persons of mature judgment and experience who have had some responsibility of life, relative to the providing for the up-keep of a family. We believe a large number of the visitors now employed do not possess these qualifications. The youth of the majority of the visitors is also a handicap even if apparently qualified, because there are many families on relief who are used to the better things of life and most certainly, they cannot have confidence in the suggestions and recommendations of anyone whom they know by personal or local community acquaintance, has never known the necessity for providing even for themselves much less providing for a family. From the many complaints and evidence given by various relief recipients, we feel that a large number of the visitors do not possess the proper qualifications for keeping the relief recipients in the proper frame of mind. They have apparently failed either through neglect or inability to take the time to explain the real reason why certain things requested by the recipients could not be furnished. The position of visitor is a most important work for in the final analysis in practically every case the amount the relief recipient receives is dependent upon the decision of these visitors. We do not believe that many of them appreciate or realize the full importance of their positions.

3. We strongly recommend, whenever a relief recipient complains about his relief status or some outside person complains about some party receiving relief who is not apparently eligible, that an independent investigation should be made by someone other than the visitor who has had charge of the case.

4. We would recommend that in each county one or more, dependent upon the size of the county, independent investigators be employed for the sole purpose of checking upon complaints of various types concerning relief cases. This position should be filled by a person who has had some kind of experience which would enable him to delve into various phases of each complaint. We believe that this person should be known by name and address throughout the community, and that he would report direct to the county board and be responsible to none other than the county board. By having public knowledge of his name and address, individuals would then be free to communicate with him regarding any particular cases.

5. SELECTION OF EMPLOYES FOR WORK RELIEF PROJECTS

Aside from the above recommended method of selecting the project heads, foremen, time-keepers, etc. We would recommend that these individuals along with all other persons draw for work relief projects should be drawn from a "blind" file so as to eliminate the possibility of favoritism, politics, etc., or even eliminate the possibility of those charged with that work being accused of such practices. It is quite evident that the present method of selecting the employes for various forms of labor can be abused and from complaints and testimony has been abused in some instances. Likewise from testimony received, it is quite evident that the present method of selecting foremen, timekeepers and other non-relief employes can be abused due to the fact that those requisitioned for these various positions are in most cases interviewed by the administration head, who, in the final analysis can either accept or reject those who have been sent in fulfillment of the requisition.

The "blind" selection system we would recommend would function in the following manner:

Anyone desiring employment of any type would be properly registered setting forth experience, education and other qualifications so they could be properly classified for the different forms of employment. No name or address would appear on this registration card. It would however, contain an index showing the political subdivision in which the employe resided. After the applicant has registered he would take his card to another office where that card would be given a number. Then, in the latter office another card would be made up giving applicants name and address and registration number only. His registration card would then be returned to the office for proper classification as to type of employment and the political subdivision where the employe resides. With this system in force, lists of those who are actual relief case would be sent to the party holding the name and the number of the applicant. This party would in turn make up a list of relief cases by numbers only and send same to the registration office so the registration cards could be properly identified in the future. Further, with this system in force, when the works division would make requisition for a certain number of employes of different labor classifications, the requisition would go to the office carrying the registration cards identified by number only. This requisition sheet would then be filled with the identifying numbers of those to be employed. The requisition would then be sent to the man in whose possession were the identification cards identifying the name and the address of the number. He would in turn then notify the applicant to report for work. The persons handling the work of giving each person a number and identifying it with the name, likewise the identification of those who are told to report to work should be a stranger in the community where employed. This would probably be handled by a traveling representative who would only spend a month in the community before moving on to another county. No local persons employed in the office should have access to the name and number file above described. Some testimony revealed that in the past at least one person was dismissed for what was described as irregularities in the selecting of employes for various projects. There was also testimony given and denials that various persons associated with the selecting of employes had not followed the instructions when selecting employes. Denials were however made of any such practices. Most of the selecting of employes came through the National Re-employment Service files. Most of the framework for the present activities was established when the C. W. A. Program was started and as far as administrative personnel is concerned, those selected during the days of the C. W. A. Program formed the foundation for the present set-up. From testimony, complaints and personal acquaintance by the committee with some of those selected, the committee believes there was a tendency to treat the matter of the selection of employes rather lightly and that partiality in some instances was shown in selecting friends and relatives. While no admission was made of contacts by political leaders a record of the personnel for administrative positions, likewise foremen and timekeepers reveals a very unbalanced condition existing. A check of the Poll Books for political affiliations was made of those who were residents of Cumberland and Franklin Counties. No check was made of Adams or Fulton Counties because a large majority of the employes were residents of Cumberland and Franklin Counties. This check revealed the following:

Administrative employes of the relief division, works division and financial division combined who were residents of Franklin County—Total number employed 82—58 registered Republicans; 11 registered Democrats; and 13 were not registered.

Cumberland County 43 employes—33 Republicans; 5 Democrats; and 5 were not registered.

There were only 24 total employes in the administrative personnel in Adams and Fulton Counties combined.

A list of former employes who are no longer employed due to a normal turn-over reveals that of the 16 former employes, residents of Franklin County 9 were Republicans, 2 were Democrats and 5 were not registered.

Cumberland County, of 23 employes, 16 were Republicans, 3 Democrats and 4 were not registered.

The analysis of foremen and timekeepers is as follows:

Franklin County, C. W. A. and first works program; total employes 132; Republicans 68, Democrats 38; not registered 26.

The analysis of the present works program as of March 29, 1935; total number of employes 63; Republicans 30; Democrats 17; and not registered 16.

Cumberland County; C. W. A. Administrative employes November 20, 1933 to April 1, 1934, total 25; Republicans 16; Democrats 5; and not registered 4. Foremen for the same period; total 124; Republicans 82; Democrats 32; and not registered 10.

Cumberland County First Works Division April 1, 1934 to September 3, 1934, Administrative, 9 employes: Republicans 8 and Democrats 1; Foremen for the same period, 14 employes: Republicans 9, Democrats 5.

Second Works Division April 3, 1934 to May 8, 1935: Administrative, 17 employes: Republicans 13 and Democrats 3; Not registered 1. Foremen and project heads same period: 81 employes; 50 Republicans; 24 Democrats; and not registered 7.

We believe suggestions previously outlined would eliminate most of these conditions in the future.

We found that in a number of cases those charged with the responsibility of construction projects were lacking in the proper experience. This is especially true on probably the largest project in the Area, viz., The Waynesboro Sewer System, which involved in some cases, trenches as much as 25 feet in depth. In some instances no shoring was provided in trenches as much as 10 to 12 feet deep, whereas, the State rule for such construction requires the proper type of shoring in trenches in excess of 4½ to 5 feet in depth. This failure to comply with the State rule in one instance at Waynesboro, Pennsylvania on July 6, 1934, in a trench approximately 10 feet in depth resulted in the death of three (3) men, all heads of families and the permanent crippling of another man when this trench caved in, crushing these men.

7. We would recommend the abolishment of the so called unit system of assigning work. At present this plan is based upon the budget deficiency established for the relief cases. Each unit consists of 18 hours labor. Units cannot be split, yet, when an employable is placed on works relief, he must be given sufficient units to cover his budget deficiency for a 4 week period at the proper hourly rate. This causes quite a variation as the number of units an employable receives can be varied in many instances by only a slight variation in the budget deficiency established by the visitor. For example: A man with a budget deficiency of $13.25 per week would, at fifty cents an hour require 106 hours in a 4 week period to cover his budget deficiency. He would therefore be given 6 units of work or 108 hours. Another man with probably very similar family conditions having a budget deficiency of $13.75 per week would, at fifty cents an hour require 110 hours of work in a 4 week period. He would be given 7 units of work or 126 hours. Therefore, if both men work out their full time, the man with only the fifty cent increase in budget deficiency would receive $9.00 more than the other person. This plan results in charges of unfairness in the assignment of units. It likewise magnifies the minor variations on the part of the visitor or visitors as will be noted in this example. It likewise opens the avenue for visitors to slightly change the budget deficiencies in order to increase the number of work units. This unit system is also complicated in that many of the employes do not understand why they do not receive the excess check in and above their budget deficiency checks. All works directors in the area are in accord that this complicated plan resulted in a considerable amount of complaints and undue complications. We would recommend in its place, the following:

Assign the necessary number of hours to cover the budget deficiency in the 4 week period, then allowed a certain amount of excess hours to take care of non-working days due to weather conditions, etc., and assign so many days for the employe during that 4 week period. He would then be paid for the actual time he worked, the same as all other employes in private commerce and industry. This percentage of excess in hours could be varied in the different seasons and also according to the type of work being assigned. We do not believe the plan of guaranteeing a certain definite amount on work projects regardless of whether conditions make it possible to work or not, is a good practice as it tends to eliminate the initiative and industriousness of the employe.

Clothing Orders

8. In this area, they have been furnishing clothing from the warehouse supply. Since this plan has been abandoned by the State Emergency Relief Board they have continued to issue orders from the warehouse stock in this area until the stock becomes entirely exhausted. For some period of time they have been out of certain sizes of shoes and clothing. Therefore, some persons requiring certain sizes were able to obtain them almost immediately whereas, other persons requiring other sizes were unable to obtain them. This resulted in a large number of complaints. We found that the visitors had failed to either explain to the recipients properly or were unable to properly make them understand the cause. This resulted in charges of favoritism, politics, etc. We have been advised by the new Area Director Mr. Romig that the plan of issuing clothing orders to be fulfilled at any store is now being placed in effect. This should materially reduce complaints from this source.

9. We find that there is considerable amount of variation in the amount of direct relief given families of approximately the same size and under the same conditions having the same works relief budget deficiency. This naturally results in considerable complaint by various recipients who are familiar with what other recipients obtain. Direct relief payments should be very carefully balanced in order to avoid this.

10. We also recommend that where a person is partially employed in private industry and yet receives some direct relief, such cases should be carefully checked frequently to ascertain if there has been any increase in the recipients earnings from private industry. We found cases where persons were placed on direct relief who were working possibly just a few days per month in private industry at the time they were placed on direct relief, yet shortly afterward their work in private industry increased but no change was made in their direct relief grant. In several instances we found where such cases were not investigated for two or three months after being placed upon direct relief. We would recommend an arrangement whereby such recipients of direct relief would be required to furnish the relief authorities data from the employer showing the amount earned in each period of private employment.

Medical Service

11. We found that the plan employed in issuing medical slips caused considerable complaint on the part of both doctors and recipients of medical relief. There were also claims that some physicians were "farming" medical slips by including an excess number of calls. There were also complaints that these medical slips did not provide for the furnishing of medicine by physicians. We would recommend that some arrangement be made whereby recipients of medical relief could obtain medicine from the physicians. We would also recommend that an appropriate type of receipt be furnished physicians for the recipient to sign when each home visit or office visit is made. These slips could then be attached to the physician's medical order for payment. This would verify all calls made properly and avoid the necessity for back checking by visitors at a very late date.

Coal Orders

12. There was complaint about the former method of handling coal orders in that one dealer in the locality would fulfill all the orders, even in cases where bids were the same by other dealers. We believe that an arrangement be made whereby the recipients of fuel could have same fulfilled by their preferred dealer.

Employment of More Than One in a Family

13. We found that in some instances more than one in a family were employed. This refers especially to some of the administrative personnel having someone in their family employed either in administrative work or on projects. This caused considerable complaint from those less fortunate.

Selection of Administrative Personnel

14. While the majority of those in need of work applied by registering with the National Reemployment Service, it was found however, that a very large majority of the administrative personnel was selected without consulting the National Reemployment Service files. This caused considerable complaint because the average individual probably most in need of employment and without other knowledge of how to apply, depend entirely upon his registration with the National Reemployment Service files. This caused considerable complaint because the average individual probably most in need of employment and without other knowledge of how to apply, depended entirely upon his registration with the National Reemployment Service Files. We believe this procedure should be discontinued and the administrative personnel selected in the manner as herein before recommended.

Increases in Salary

15. After this investigation started we discovered that effective approximately April 1, increases were made in the salaries of the administrative personnal. We do not believe this should have been done, particularly at a time when practically all of the works relief projects were suspended, due to the shortage of relief funds. A check of the records revealed these increases were given to approximately 90% of the administrative employees and the average increase on those affected was approximately 19½%. We found in no cases where any of the administrative employees discontinued their employment due to the salaries formerly paid. Many were surprised upon receiving their increases.

Existing County Relief Boards

16. We find that existing County Relief Boards, while still theoretically in existence have not been serving actively for some period of time. The Area Board has been serving to a very limited degree.

Employment of Persons and Paying Them by Deducting from Other Employees

17. We found that on the Educational Project in Adams County, the project head was instructed to make arrangements with employees officially employed on the project to give a portion of their salary to another person not officially employed but working on the same project. Those officially employed were paid for more hours than they actually worked but turned part of their money over for the payment of the person who was unofficially employed. This apparently was done in one instance for a short period of time to give employment to a certain person who was not eligible, due to having no budget deficiency. In the other instance, it was apparently due to the person being physically unable to carry on the work. This has now been discontinued in these instances. The first person who was being paid in the above manner was later placed on the budget deficiency by merely establishing a separate residence for a very short period of time so as to become eligible. On most of these professional projects, it is quite apparent that the budget deficiencies are merely technical rather than actual budget deficiencies.

Selecting Those Most in Need of Employment

18. There has been considerable complaint throughout the Area that a number of the administrative personnel came from wealthy families or at least families who have ample means of support from other sources, while other persons equally qualified and in need of this employment remain unemployed.

19. We found in a number of cases where persons were not removed from the relief rolls even when someone in the family was engaged in some gainful employment receiving an amount in excess of other families of similar circumstances still on direct relief.

20. We believe that in a great majority of cases of families on relief, it is a case of measuring their needs for food, shelter, and clothing, whereas they are not cases requiring social service activities to lift up the morale of the family to a higher level. The latter, however, is the theory of the social workers apparently dominating the administration of relief at the present time.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE INVESTIGATING RELIEF IN WASHINGTON AND GREENE COUNTIES

To the Honorable Members of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Your committee appointed, pursuant to House Resolution Number 80, to investigate the Emergency Relief Agencies in Washington and Greene Counties, respectfully submits the following report and recommendations:

This committee held fourteen public hearings on separate days, twelve being held in the Courthouse in Washington and two in the Courthouse at Waynesburg. At these hearings testimony was taken from present and former officials and employees of the various relief agencies. We also heard testimony from recipients of relief, both direct and work, as well as that of prominent citizens.

This testimony developed the following:

1. It is the opinion of this committee that the present economic situation in this State has made it necessary that some system of relief be given to a large portion of our citizens. The present system has developed into an enormous bureau, overburdened with rules and regulations, which we believe to be impractical and tends to increase the number on relief, thereby adding to the cost.

2. There are three separate divisions created to administer relief, namely direct relief, work relief and the financial department, each directed by a separate head. We believe that these agencies could be combined under the supervision of one person, thereby eliminating salaries and expenses and making the system more efficient. Under this system separate county units could be created, thereby bringing those in charge in closer contact with the situation.

3. Under the present regulations relative to the qualifications for visitors, we find that only those trained in social welfare work are entitled to these positions. While we believe that the trained social welfare worker is of essential value in their own field, we further believe that they are not the best qualified for this work. We think that a person with business experience or a thorough knowledge of home management would be best fitted to determine the needs of applicants for relief. The testimony of one social worker, who is a supervisor in charge of all visitors, disclosed the fact that their aim was to raise the standard of living of those on relief. We believe that this attitude has brought about an increase of thirty per-cent in the allowance for relief. We further believe that this aim, which is very laudable, should be to help people raise their standard of living at their own expense, rather than at the expense of the Government.

4. We found that many are receiving relief who have sources of income sufficient to maintain themselves without assistance. A very small percentage of these have been detected and none have been prosecuted. We recommend that all of these chiselers be prosecuted. And we believe that if an example is made of these chiselers, it would tend to greatly decrease the number on relief.

5. We find that contracts are awarded dealers to furnish coal in a certain given territory. We find that these contracts were given without public advertisement or competitive bidding. As a result of this, prices ranged from $2.50 to $4.00 per ton for coal in the same district. We recommend one of the following systems for the distribution of coal. If contracts are awarded, they should be publicly advertised and awarded to the lowest responsible bidder; or, a fair price established in each district, with coal orders issued to each client allowing them to purchase from a dealer of their own selection.

6. We find rent relief will be paid to the owner of the property in which a relief client resides, provided the owner will be responsible for the payment of the clients water bill. We believe this is unfair to the property owners and tends to make the relief organization a collection agency for the water companies. We recommend that this practice be immediately discontinued.

7. Those who are classed as transients are given larger awards than those people receiving relief who are residents of the district. We find that the majority of these transients are what is commonly known as "professional bums" and are making a "racket" out of this. We believe this department could be entirely abolished.

8. In the Works Division we find many discrepancies and irregularities in the assigning of foremen and timekeepers to the various projects. Many inexperienced and non-technical men are placed in charge of projects when there are competent men available. There seems to be a lack of coordination between this Division and the National Reemployment Agency in the selection and placing of men. Many times men are assigned to projects so many miles from their homes that it is impossible for them to accept this work, while in the vicinity of the project, men are available. It appears that in many instances favoritism has been shown. We recommend closer cooperation between these agencies of the State and Federal Government, and the selection of men based on their qualifications and need.

9. We further find that many projects are recommended which are of practically no value to the community. While we realize that these projects are undertaken primarily for the purpose of creating jobs, we believe that the benefits to be derived therefrom should also be taken into consideration.

10. We believe that these projects insofar as possible should be let out by contract rather than to be constructed by day labor. We believe that this system would produce better work, more economically, thereby creating more jobs, and also raising the morale of those on relief. We would recommend that the contractor be governed by minimum wage provisions, number of hours of work per man in each week, and in the selection of men, first from the relief rolls and secondly from those who are unemployed, but not on relief. Anyone refusing to work, without just cause should be immediately removed from the relief rolls.

11. We recommend the appointment of local boards, consisting of three reputable citizens from each voting precinct, whose duty it shall be to advise and make recommendations to the Relief Administrator in the County in matters pertaining to their district. These members shall serve without pay.

12. Your Committee is convinced that drastic changes are imperative beginning at Harrisburg and extending to Washington and Greene Counties. It is evident that partisan politics has and still plays an important part in the relief organization. It is evident to the Committee that the predominance of a ratio of from eight to ten Republicans to one Democrat in the Relief Organization is not a mere matter of chance, but has resulted from a continuance of the original political set-up. In order to eliminate this and other evils, inefficiencies, and extravagances, a complete re-organization is recommended.

In submitting this report, your Committee wishes to emphasize and clarify the fact that it has worked under a tremendous handicap on account of limitation of time necessitated by its prolonged and arduous legislative duties as well as for other reasons. It is our sincere belief that the reduction in the cost of relief is imperative.

We further believe that a reduction in cost of at least one-third could be effected in these Counties if the fallacies set forth in this report were eliminated in keeping with our recommendations.

REPORT OF SUB-COMMITTEE OF THE JUDICIARY GENERAL COMMITTEE APPOINTED PURSUANT TO BILL OF IMPEACHMENT AGAINST THE HONORABLE JUDGE W. ALFRED VALENTINE

To the Honorable House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the Members of the Judiciary General Committee:

Your sub-committee appointed by the Judiciary General Committee for the purpose of considering the charges contained in the Bill of Impeachment against the Honorable W. Alfred Valentine, presented on the eighth day of May, 1935, and referred to a sub-committee, respectfully submits the following as its report.

The Bill of Impeachment subscribed to by Will Adams, Stanley Kamon, Victor Martusa, Frank Bonk, Andrew Tomasko, Anthony Piscotty, and Emerson P. Jennings, was presented on May 8, 1935 and referred to the Committee on Judiciary General on the same date.

Pursuant to said Bill of Impeachment, the Chairman of the Judiciary General Committee appointed a sub-committee consisting of Thomas W. Barber, Erie County; L. Kenneth Harkins, Allegheny County; Al Tronzo, Allegheny County; A. Alfred Wasserman, Philadelphia; Robert E. Woodside, Jr., Dauphin County; to consider this matter, who, together with the Chairman of the Judiciary General Committee, Eugene A. Caputo, Beaver County, held a public hearing on June 11, 1935 in the Hall of the House, at which time witnesses in support of the Bill of Impeachment and also in defense of Judge Valentine were present and testified. The charges contained in the Bill of Impeachment are summarized in the last two paragraphs of the Bill of Impeachment which read as follows:

> "Your petitioner avers that W. Alfred Valentine has been guilty of conduct unbecoming a judge and that he has committed judicial outrages against the Law and the Constitution, has subjected the State to possible future suits in law for heavy damages to person and characters; that he has disgraced the dignity and justice of the Court and has held in contempt the Honorable General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."
> "Your petitioner therefore prays that your Honorable Bodies take action for the immediate impeachment of said W. Alfred Valentine, Judge of Common Pleas Court, County of Luzerne, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

The charges contained in the Bill of Impeachment arise from the institution of Equity Proceedings by the Glen Alden Coal Company against certain defendants as a result of a Labor Strike called on February 2, 1935 and affecting the coal fields of Luzerne County. The Coal Company filed a Bill in Equity at No. 6, March Term 1935, in the Courts of Luzerne County, in which it sought an injunction against the strikers and upon which proceedings a mandatory injunction was issued by the Honorable W. Alfred Valentine. Upon failure of the defendants in the proceedings herein mentioned, to obey the decree of the Court, a rule to show cause why the defendants should not be adjudged in contempt was issued and after a hearing on this rule, the defendants were found to be in contempt and were subsequently committed to jail.

At the hearing before this Committee witnesses appearing on behalf of the petitioners alleged that the defendants in the Equity Proceedings herein mentioned were not given a fair and impartial hearing and that the Court violated certain provisions of the Constitution and laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. According to the allegations of the witnesses, the Court disregarded the law in issuing a mandatory injunction and also in committing the defendants for contempt. They also allege that they were not given an opportunity to testify in their own behalf at the hearing on the rule to show cause.

In contradiction to the statement made at the hearing by the witnesses above mentioned, there appeared before the Committee as witnesses James M. Stack, Esq., and E. C. Marianelli, Esq., members of the Bar of Luzerne County and counsel for the defendants in the Equity Proceedings, who testified that, although they differed with the Court on the interpretation and application of the Law, they were of the opinion that the men were given a fair and impartial hearing and were satisfied that the judge acted in good conscience in every respect.

It must be noted that because of the lack of time the Committee was not able to permit all witnesses for the petitioners to testify nor were they able to permit all witnesses appearing for Judge Valentine to testify. However, from affidavits requested by the Committee and presented by the petitioners in support of the Bill of Impeachment, the Committee is of the opinion that any additional testimony taken would tend to be cumulative and disclose no additional facts in support of the charges made. For this reason the Committee is of the opinion that further hearings at this time would prove of no aid to the Committee.

The Committee believes that the testimony presented does not establish sufficient grounds for recommending the institution of Impeachment Proceedings. The charges made in the Bill of Impeachment were not substantiated by the evidence and appear to be based upon a difference of opinion as to the interpretation and application of the law in the proceedings involved. It is to be observed that mere differences of opinion as to the interpretation and application of the law in legal proceedings can not be made the grounds upon which Impeachment Proceedings should be considered by the Legislature. If such were the case, the Legislature would resolve itself into an Appellate Court to which all dissatisfied parties to legal proceedings might appeal for redress. If mistakes are made by courts in the interpretation and application of the law, our system of government provides Appellate Courts for the purpose of reviewing such proceedings and rectifying mistakes and errors which may be made by the lower courts.

The Committee is of the opinion that whatever the decision of Judge Valentine may have been in this matter, neither the testimony nor the additional affidavits produced indicate or disclose any gross, arbitrary, malicious, or reckless disregard of the judicial discretion to provide grounds upon which your Committee should recommend impeachment proceedings.

It is to be noted further that in the proceedings herein mentioned the defendants were represented by counsel and that appeals from the decisions of the Court of Luzerne County have been taken and are now pending before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. The Committee believes that the Supreme Court is the proper tribunal to rectify any mistakes or errors which may have been made by Judge Valentine in the interpretation and application of the law.

For the reasons herein stated, the Committee is of the opinion that the Legislature of Pennsylvania should take no action on the Bill of Impeachment.

Respectfully submitted,

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE LIQUOR CONTROL SYSTEM

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Resolution No. 40 adopted by your honorable body on January 30, 1935, provided for the appointment of a committee of seven members of the House of Representatives to make a rigid audit, inventory and investigation of the operations of the Liquor Control System, dating back to its inception and to investigate such other facts and circumstances surrounding the operation of the Liquor Stores System as might be deemed necessary for the information of the House of Representatives. Having made this study, your Committee respectfully submits the following report:

General History

In anticipation of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States on December 5, 1933, certain legislation was enacted by the General Assembly at the Special Session of 1933.

The first Act, adopted November 22, 1933, imposed a floor tax of $2.00 per gallon on all distilled liquors, vinous liquors and alcohol in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania between November 22, 1933 and December 5, 1933.

On November 29, 1933, two other Acts were enacted one creating the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board and the other regulating and restraining the sale, importation, and use of alcoholic beverages. The latter conferred certain powers and imposed certain duties upon the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board and other departments and offices of the State Government, authorized the establishment of the State Stores System and provided for the granting of licenses. It is under this Act that the Liquor Control Board has managed and controlled the manufacture and the sale of alcoholic beverages in the Commonwealth.

It should be noted that this Act did not effect the then existing legislation regulating the sale of malt beverages It did, however, contain provisions authorizing the holder of a liquor license to sell malt liquor without obtaining a malt liquor retail license under the Provisions of the Malt Liquor License Law.

On December 8, 1933 an Act was enacted amending the Act of March 27, 1923, P. L. 34 as amended, which Act, among other things, authorized the issuance of licenses by the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board to the manufacturers of alcohol, which, as defined, included malt liquors.

On December 22, 1933 the Act of December 5, 1933 was amended. This amendment authorized the Department of Revenue to grant extension of time for the payment of the floor tax; said extension, however, not to be beyond December 31, 1934.

On December 1, 1933, Gifford Pinchot, the then Governor, appointed Robert S. Gawthrop and A. Marshall Thompson as two members of the Liquor Control Board and on March 7, 1934, W. Worrell Wagner was appointed as the third member of the Liquor Control Board.

During the period between the passage of the Act and January 2, 1934 and prior to the time of the holding of the civil service examinations, the Board took on certain temporary employes, began the purchasing of liquors, leased locations and by the middle of January had in operation 237 stores in different parts of the Commonwealth which number was increased later to 270 stores.

The Board, in connection with the Department of Public Instruction, held civil service examinations on December 16, 1933 for store employes and administrative employes and on December 23, 1933 for Director of Purchases, District Superintendents and Warehouse Superintendents. On February 17, 1934 examinations were held for Enforcement Officers. Since that date various other examinations have been held to fill vacancies in the personnel.

Accounts of the State Stores system from January 2, 1934 to December 31, 1934, show that during that period total gross sales were $41,214,843.97, and as of the latter date there was a net profit of $5,314,018.17 and a total merchandise inventory of $14,950,575.22.

Attitude of the Board

The Committee feels that the attention of the House of Representatives should be called to the attitude of the members of the Liquor Control Board toward this investigation.

Before the Committee held its first session, the members of the Board had publicly expressed their willingness to aid in the investigation. However, at the opening session, Robert S. Gawthrop, Chairman, in behalf of the entire Board, in a prepared statement, expressed the antagonism of the Board to the investigation, placed upon the record an objection to the inquiry, and among other things indicated at the very outset, before any testimony had been introduced, that it was not "an investigation but an inquisition."

This attitude of antagonism continued throughout the investigation. On the witness stand both Robert S. Gawthrop and A. Marshall Thompson continuously answered questions submitted by counsel in an equivocal manner. They resented interrogation and showed a general unwillingness to cooperate with the Investigating Committee. Although they charged the Committee with prejudice, when requested and urged, no member of the Board was able to point to any instance or indicate any act of the Committee which would have substantiated their charges.

In contrast to the attitude of Mr. Gawthrop and Mr. Thompson was that of Mr. W. Vorrell Wagner, the other member of the Board. While on the stand he cooperated fully with the Committee, freely and frankly expressed his views and opinions, acknowledged the faults in administration and the defects in the law and made recommendations for improvements both in the law and its administration, basing such recommendations upon his experience as a member of the Board and his personal views on the control of alcoholic beverages.

Floor Tax

One of the Acts of the 1933 Special Session affecting the program of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board was the measure now known as the Floor Tax Act.

This Act imposed a tax of $2.00 per gallon on all distilled and vinous liquors and alcohol situate in Pennsylvania between the effective date of the Act and the repeal of the 18th Amendment.

The large distillers affected by this tax were Joseph S. Finch and Company, A. Overholt and Company, Large Distilling Company and the Continental Distilling Corporation. By various means, including transportation to other States in anticipation of the passage of the Act, the Continental Distilling Corporation avoided having on hand at the time of the passage of the Act any liquors subject to the tax. Finch and Company, Overholt and Company and the Large Distilling Company had on hand approximately 6,500,000 gallons of liquors subject to the tax.

These three companies objected to the passage of the Act. They presented their objection to the Attorney General and to the Governor in person, prior to the approval of the Act by the Governor. They set forth that they believed the Act to be unconstitutional, explained that most of the liquor in Pennsylvania subject to the tax was in their possession and also stated that if the tax act were enacted, it would impose a 2000% tax on raw alcohol, a 300% tax on green liquor and a 10% tax on high grade bonded and bottled whiskey. They held that the tax was therefore confiscatory and not uniform.

Despite these representations the Act was approved by the Governor. Within five days thereafter these distillers instituted equity proceedings in the United States District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania to have the Act declared unconstitutional.

On November 27, 1933, a preliminary injunction was granted against the Secretary of Revenue restraining him from proceeding under the Floor Tax Act. Before the time fixed for hearing, conferences were held between the Attorney General, members of the Liquor Control Board and representatives of the distillers, which conferences resulted in the consummation of certain contracts between the Liquor Control Board and the distillers known as the Floor Tax Contracts.

In effect these contracts obligated the Liquor Control Board to purchase from these distillers during the year 1934 a quantity of liquor (although not the same liquor) equal to the quantity which each distiller had that was subject to the floor tax. The price which was to be paid for the liquor included such an increase over the base price thereof, so as to afford the distillers the additional funds necessary to pay the floor tax. In other words, the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board agreed to give the distillers the money with which to pay the tax.

These contracts obligated the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board to purchase and pay for the quantities of liquors therein mentioned during the year 1934. When this agreement was reached, but before the contracts were actually signed, a public statement was issued on December 11, 1933, by the Liquor Control Board and the Attorney General. This statement announced that arrangements had been concluded under which the distillers would pay the floor tax; that the Legislature would be asked to amend the Act to permit the Department of Revenue to grant extensions of time for the payment of the tax; and that the Liquor Control Board had agreed to purchase from the Pennsylvania Distillers, upon whose liquors the tax was imposed, the same number of gallons as were taxed and that the injunction suits would be discontinued. The statement also set forth that "The price to the consumer will be substantially less than the prices now prevailing," and further that the settlement assured payments into the General Fund prior to the end of 1934 of approximately $12,000,000 on floor tax whiskey alone.

This public statement was most misleading. It did not disclose that the funds for the payment of the floor tax were to be provided by the Liquor Control Board. The contracts did not assure the payment of the floor tax, as subsequent events proved, since they contained no obligation on the part of the distillers to pay the tax. The real agreement with reference to the payment of the tax by the distillers, which was not disclosed to the public, was that they (the distillers) would pay the tax only if the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board fulfilled its contracts to purchase and pay for the liquors under the agreement whereby the Liquor Control Board furnished the funds.

The contracts also gave the distillers the right at any time to contest the constitutionality of the Act should the Board fail to purchase any pay for the liquors as agreed upon, and conceded only that they would make no claim for a refund of any tax already paid.

Another effect of the Floor Tax Contracts was to change the Floor Tax Act from its original intent of a capital tax to a sales tax, which sales tax was to be collected from the consumers of alcoholic beverages in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that is, the customers of the State Stores System.

The statement published on December 11, 1933, further represented to the public that one of the results of the contracts entered into with the distillers would be a substantial reduction in prices to the consumer. There was no justification for this statement. The Board and the Attorney General knew that the tax was added to the basic price of the liquors. The Board knew, in its profit mark-up of 50% on its cost, that it computed that mark-up on the basis of the cost—which included the floor tax —thus making the consumer pay not only the tax but a profit of 50% on that tax.

The Board denied any knowledge of any existent agreement whereby the distillers were to pay the floor tax when and if the Liquor Control Board paid their obligations to the distillers. However, the Attorney General testified that the members of the Liquor Control Board were present and knew all the terms and conditions of the agreement.

The statements filed with the Committee by A. Overholt Company and Joseph S. Finch and Company and the correspondence of these concerns with the Department of Revenue, leave no doubt that, aside from the floor tax contracts, there was a private and secret understanding, never made public, that the floor tax should only be paid in the event the Liquor Control Board carried out its contracts with the distillers.

Mr. Wagner was not a member of the Board at the time these agreements and contracts were negotiated.

On January 17, 1934, another joint public statement was issued by the Liquor Control Board and the Attorney General with reference to the effect of the floor tax contracts, but again the public was not advised as to the true understanding between the distillers and the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board.

About March 1934, according to testimony of Mr. Gawthrop, the Board realized that their estimates as to the amount of business, upon the basis of which estimates the floor tax contracts had been entered into, were grossly inaccurate. Mr. Gawthrop further testified that this was called to the attention of the Governor at or about that time, but that nothing was done.

Although the Attorney General originally had given his opinion that the Floor Tax was constitutional, he later decided that he had "grave doubts of my ability to sustain the Act."

About the time this latter decision was reached, one of two logical and proper courses should have been pursued by the Administration:

(a) To ask the Legislature, which was then in session, to repeal the Floor Tax Act, or

(b) To defend the Bills in Equity entered against the collection of the tax and abide by the decision of the Court.

The Board and the Administration, however, improperly chose to maintain the fiction that the floor tax was a reality. This was done in order to divert approximately $13,000,000 from the possible profits of the Liquor Control Board into the General Fund, so as to justify the action of the Administration in removing the Personal Property Tax on Saving Fund Deposits, which tax was designed to bring into the General Fund $7,000,000.00.

The Administration, making the floor tax contracts with the largest distillers, gave no consideration to the 3,000 or more small individuals, hospitals and drug stores that actually paid into the General Fund over $250,000.00. To those 3,000 individuals the floor tax remained a capital tax. To the concerns that were subject to the floor tax agreements no liability whatsoever was imposed.

Mr. Gawthrop, while on the stand, could not testify as to the increase of $2.00 per gallon on the base price paid the distillers. However, the statements filed with the Committee by the distillers themselves clearly indicate that this $2.00 was added to the base price.

The Committee feels that this fact was of sufficient importance for the Liquor Control Board to have had very definite knowledge and information on that particular point.

Subsequent to the execution of the floor tax agreements, it was necessary from time to time to change the agreements. However, none of these changes affected the primary obligation entered into by the Liquor Control Board in the original contracts.

The Liquor Control Board found it impossible within the time specified to purchase the liquors agreed to be purchased, nor was it able to make payments for goods delivered in accordance with the terms of the agreements.

General Discussion of the Floor Tax

Your Committee believes that passage of the Floor Tax Act was a mistake. The amount received by the Department of Revenue under that act has been insignificant in comparison with the $25,000,000 originally anticipated. Of the $12,000,000 which the public statements of the Attorney General and the Board predicted would be paid in 1934, only $3,000,000 was received, and that, because of the secret agreements with the distillers, was actually paid by the Board. Even had the Board been able to carry out its contracts with the distillers, it is difficult to see where the Commonwealth would have profited, since the Board would have paid the tax. The fact that the Board had to pay a higher price, in order to absorb the tax, made the establishment of fair prices to the consumer difficult if not impossible, and imposed a handicap upon floor tax liquor in competition with similar goods purchased from other sources. The goods purchased under the floor tax agreements were not readily salable due to high cost to the public, with the result that there was an overstock which contributed toward an enormous inventory of unsalable goods.

However, under existing circumstances your Committee does not recommend repeal of the Floor Tax Act, since there is no indication that such repeal would solve the situation. The distillers have agreed not to raise the question of constitutionality so long as the contracts on the part of the State are carried out and inasmuch as the Liquor Control Board will still have a contractual obligation to purchase the floor tax liquor—at prices which include the tax—whether or not the Act is repealed, the State has everything to lose and nothing to gain by such repeal. The only solution, therefore, seems to be an extension of the time limit for payment of the floor tax, and to effect this extension House Bill No. 2970 has been introduced. We recommend that this bill be enacted into law.

In addition to the floor tax agreements there was the oral agreement entered into by the Board and the J. A. Dougherty and Sons Distilling Company. In effect the Distillery agreed that it would pay the floor tax if the Liquor Control Board would buy a certain amount of whiskey thereby giving it sufficient money with which to pay the tax. The Board purchased from this company a considerable quantity of liquor for the purpose of furnishing this company with enough funds to pay the floor tax. The Liquor Control Board failed to secure any written contract covering the subject, with the result that the distillery has only paid $72,602.90, leaving a balance of tax due the Commonwealth of $346,429.70.

As of April 30, 1935, Joseph S. Finch and Company owed a balance of $6,219,393.99 in floor tax.

As of April 30, 1935, A. Overholt and Company owed a balance of $3,336,933.93 in floor tax.

As of April 30, 1935, the Large Distilling Company owed a balance of $163,260.74 in floor tax.

As of April 30, 1935, the entire amount of the tax due by these three distillers was $10,426,429.36.

It must be borne in mind that the Liquor Control Board, under the floor tax contracts, was to provide the monies for which these taxes were to be paid into the General Fund of the Commonwealth.

Your Committee feels that the situation resulting from the floor tax was largely responsible for the failure of the State Stores System to make a reasonable profit. Since these anticipated profits were to have been used for Unemployment Relief, Old Age Assistance and Blind Pensions, that failure was particularly deplorable. We feels that it was a mistake to make the needy, the aged and the blind dependent upon such anticipated profits, and in view of the failure of those profits to materialize, we recommend enactment into law of House Bill No. 2683, which transfers all profits of the State Stores System to the General Fund. The liability for the care of such dependent persons should be imposed upon the General Fund where it properly belongs.

Assignment of Claims

Mr. Gawthrop testified that during 1934 the Board was unable to meet its obligations when they fell due and that most of the vendors have assigned their claims to the banks. This assumes significance because part of the money represented by those assigned claims was, under the agreements, to have been paid back to the Commonwealth in floor taxes. Since those claims were assigned without recourse and if it should happen that the distillers would be unable to meet the floor tax obligations, the Commonwealth would be without adequate means of collecting the floor tax.

Purchases and Inventory and Accounting

At the very beginning the Liquor Control Board was furnished with inaccurate information concerning the probable consumption of liquor in Pennsylvania. Two executives of the Department of Property and Supplies, Mr. Scott and Mr. Mason, were sent to Canada to make a study of the Ontario system and on their return stated that $150,000,000 worth of liquor would be consumed annually in this State. They failed to take into consideration that this estimate included malt beverages, which are not sold by the State Stores System. They further failed to recognize that a considerable portion of the sales in Canada resulted from heavy purchases by visitors from the United States during the Prohibition period. We feel that the Board failed to exercise reasonable discretion when it accepted these estimates without further verification, particularly since experience has shown that the annual consumption figure in Pennsylvania is more nearly $50,000,000 than $150,000,000.

The Board also was informed by Mr. Scott and Mr. Mason that there was a serious shortage of liquor in the United States and Canada. The Board stated to the Committee that the vast purchases made by them at the beginning were based upon this information. It is difficult to understand why the Board under such circumstances in the case of the Spirits Import Company, took an option in December 1933 for 100,000 cases of liquor and subsequently refused to take up that option. If there had been a scarcity the Spirits Import Company obviously would not have threatened suit, since it could have resold the liquor in satisfaction of the abnormal demand then allegedly existing. The Board itself also must have realized that there was no shortage, or it would not have been willing to forego the option.

In the middle of the year 1934 the Board accumulated an inventory of approximately $22,000,000. At the end of the year this was reduced to approximately $15,000,000 but still contained many years of supply of certain wines and liquors. The large inventory which the Board had on hand in the middle of the year was caused by failure to exercise good judgment in the quantities purchased in that no check on inventory was made, nor were the needs or demands of the various localities fully considered, and sold to consumers at prices they were able to pay. During the year 1935 and after this investigation had commenced, much of this has been corrected. In view of the situation resulting from the floor tax—despite the cooperation of the distillers in not pressing for strict compliance with the contracts, in granting extensions for deliveries, and in making exchanges and granting credits—the Committee feels that the profits to be expected during 1935 will be considerably less than they would have been had the Board exercised reasonably good judgment in its purchases.

Since our investigation was started, care has been taken by the Board not to overstock. The Board has been forced to sell much of its merchandise at a loss, however, part of this loss has been reduced by merchandise credits. The Board should be criticised for its purchases during the Fall of 1934, when although it had on hand sufficient supply of certain liquors to last a number of years, it made extensive repurchases of the same liquors.

The inventory kept by the Board was such that purchases and sales could not be properly reconciled with physical inventory, requiring the creation of a suspense account of several hundred thousand dollars to take care of the difference. Because the accounting system does not accurately reflect the inventory, the Auditor General has been unable to audit the books of the Board and has only audited the central office up to June 2, 1934.

The Auditor General, in a report to the Governor on May 20th of this year, stated that: "Under the present system of inventories it is impossible for the Auditor General to accept any responsibility for the accuracy of inventory values."

The Auditor General's report further stated: "Since the inception of the Board, no attempt has been made to balance the detail inventory values as maintained by the stores records division with the general ledger control account as maintained by the accounting department. A comparison of the aggregate of the detail inventories with the general ledger control account as of June 2, 1934, reflected a difference of $584,397.57. A reconciliation of this difference could not be effected by the Board."

In a discussion of the Board's accounting system, the report states:

"The present accounting system for inventories is very cumbersome, expensive and inaccurate. It is imperative that the inventories be controlled by units and we can see no reason for using the so-called retail method of carrying the inventories at retail and cost, as this not only entails a great deal of unnecessary accounting and additional accounting machinery, but there are also numerous errors that are unavoidable.

"As stated previously in this report, it is our opinion that either daily or weekly reports from store managers showing the beginning inventories, unit sales, value of sales, stock received, adjustments, breakage, etc. and ending inventories be submitted, these reports to be audited by the Central Office and the differences reported to the store managers rather than the Central Office preparing inventories and sending them to store managers who report the difference in inventories. The inventories would be up to date at all times rather than from one to six weeks late as under the present system."

The report also states:

"From our survey we are of the opinion that if the inventory system would be changed to comply with our recommendations one employe would be able to keep the inventory records of ten stores or 27 for the entire system as compared with the cost of tabulating machine rentals and the number of employes under the system now installed."

Further on the report continues:

"We are fearful that the Liquor Control Board has not realized that the Liquor Store System is a branch of the Government and that a system of accounting based on estimated amounts is not proper. It should be an actual system, accounting for every bottle purchased, detail inventories and controlling accounts to be reconcilable at all times."

It appears from our study of the Board's accounting system and from the Auditor General's report, that drastic revision of the inventory and accounting methods of the Board is necessary. We feel that in any such revision the suggestions of the Auditor General should be given the most serious consideration.

Another matter which is of great importance in connection with the purchases, is the Board's failure to take any necessary steps for the purpose of determining, prior to the placing of an order, whether the goods which were offered for sale, were as represented; that they would meet certain standard tests and that they were being sold to the Board at a price which was reasonable and proper and not greater than the price at which these goods were sold to others.

Some excuse may be offered for the failure on the part of the Board to look into these matters before the purchases were made, particularly during the formative period of the system, but apparently the practice of buying goods on faith continued long after the time when the merchandising should have been systematized. The fault was with the Purchasing Department and the Board for not exercising proper supervision.

Pressure and Influence

It is apparent that from the inception and organization of the Liquor Control Board it was not free from pressure brought upon it by the then Administration. In the making of certain purchases and the granting of certain licenses, attempts were made to influence the Board by the Administration, members of the General Assembly and others whose political positions caused them to be called upon for aid by those who were interested. There is no evidence of corruption. On the contrary, it may be said that the members of the Board are men of the highest integrity, who would not be influenced to do any act in violation of their duties through any corrupt motive. They freely admitted, however, that they were subject to pressure from the Administration and that they were approached by others who sought help for vendors and for those applying for licenses.

The business of the Liquor Stores System should be conducted by a Board free from interference, with ability to conduct it upon strict business lines, applying the best merchandising principles and free from influence of any type.

There is no doubt that the Board entered into the floor tax contracts because of the pressure brought upon it by the Administration. On one occasion the then Governor designated P. S. Stahlnecker, then a Public Service Commissioner and the Attorney General, as his representatives, at the same time directing the Board to make no additional commitments or any changes regarding prices or any other matters of policy until these gentlemen had been fully informed and agreed with the policies and commitments proposed by the Board.

A further illustration of the control over the Board exercised by the then Administration is seen in the fact that for months the Board made futile attempts to obtain approval of the Governor's Office for the purchase of automobiles, which were necessary to transfer stock between their stores, despite the fact that the Act creating the Liquor Control Board gave the members of that body authority to make such purchases.

The Committee believes strongly that the State Stores System can best be operated by a Board composed of able executives equipped by training and experience to cope with all questions which arise and that the Board should be so removed from the sphere of political influence so as to make possible an efficient and business-like administration of the system. The members of the Board should have full responsibility and with that should come adequate authority and freedom to use discretion in making their own decisions.

Civil Service

When the Board was organized it was necessary to retain a number of employes immediately, without examination, to prevent delay in opening the liquor stores. Subsequently, as required by the Liquor Control Act, examinations were given by the Department of Public Instruction under rules and regulations prescribed by the Board. In the selection of A. K. Comly as Director of Purchases there is evidence that the conduct of the examination gave him a preferential status, in violation of the spirit, if not the letter of the Civil Service requirements of the Act. Had he been thoroughly competent to guide the Board in its purchasing, they might not be properly criticised for their desire to retain him, but in view of the fact that many unwise purchases were made of unsalable liquors, resulting in the overstocking of the stores, criticism seems warranted. There is also evidence that an effort was made to assure the selection of Harry G. Banzhoff as Comptroller, through the questionable expedient of requiring qualifications applicable to Mr. Banzhoff alone. It is sufficient that shortly thereafter, in September 1934 the Secretary of the Board resigned and Mr. Banzhoff took his petition, which did not require a civil service examination.

From time to time various employes of the Board have been furloughed or demoted and others were given salary reductions. Some of the employes thus treated ranked higher under civil service examinations than those retained. Therefore the committee strongly urges that the civil service requirements of the Act be amended so as to regulate the suspension and discharge of employes, that they may have the full protection of civil service at all times.

Special Order Business

In the spring of 1934 certain vendors, being unable to sell their goods to the Board, approached licensees in an attempt to sell their brands by having those licensees place orders with the State Stores System so that the Board in turn would buy the requested goods from them. This was permitted under Section 305 of the Law, but interfered seriously with the sale of floor tax liquors and occasioned certain abuses, with the result that it was abandoned on November 16, 1934. In order to give all vendors a fair opportunity to market their products, this privilege should be reinstated under strict and proper regulation.

United States Tax

In addition to the retarding effect of the floor tax situation upon the State Stores System, there is the prospect that the Commonwealth may be liable for payment of United States alcoholic liquors tax passed on January 11, 1934. The question is in litigation, since the Commonwealth contends that it has a preferential status over individuals and corporations engaged in mercantile business, but if it is decided in favor of the United States this additional tax, as well as licensing fees, amounting to $568,000, will have to be paid.

Scales

Another example of the Board's failure to use reasonably good judgment was the purchase of 237 scales at a total cost of $66,360. These scales were not adaptable to the System and represent a total loss and were turned over to the Department of Property and Supplies.

Cash Registers

During the year 1934 the Board paid $66,916.54 in rentals for cash registers, an amount sufficient to purchase outright all cash registers required to do the necessary work of the State Stores System.

Code Violations

There is evidence that in transactions with Hiram Walker and Sons Company, and Gutterman and Wortz, the Board obtained certain credits in violation of the then existing code, without the necessary consent and approval of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration. It is questionable whether the Board, while the codes had the effect of law, should have placed the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the position of being a party to a violation.

Comparison of Profits of Other State Store Systems

Data has been presented to the Committee indicating that the Liquor Store systems of several other States have made much greater percentages of profits than Pennsylvania. It is difficult to make comparisons because of many contributing factors. Pennsylvania founded the pioneer State Store system and made some costly mistakes by which other States profited. The floor tax and the floor tax contracts also created complications which cannot be overlooked if fair comparisons are to be drawn.

Warehousing and Location of Stores

At the expiration of the original warehousing contracts, the Board failed to ascertain by proper investigation whether or not the same service could be obtained at a lower cost to the system. This should be done prior to the renewal of the now existing contracts.

Prior to the renewal of store leases now in effect, it should be ascertained whether or not reasonable rentals are being paid for the stores now occupied by the System. A further survey should be made by the Board as to whether or not the stores are properly located to as to better serve the convenience of the public.

General Discussion

It must be remembered that the Liquor Control Board was faced with the enormous task of beginning the operation of the State Stores System on January 2, 1934 and that they had but one month within which to establish the pioneer liquor control system in the United States.

This necessitated the selection of personnel, the establishment of stores, the purchasing of large quantities of liquor and the installation of accounting and merchandising systems.

It is assumed that in establishing the Liquor Control Board the Legislature anticipated that the members appointed would not only be men of highest integrity, but also qualified. We do not consider it any reflection upon Mr. Gawthrop and Mr. Thompson when we direct attention to their lack of knowledge of merchandising in general and of the liquor business in particular. Mr. Gawthrop had been a Judge of one of the Appellate Courts of Pennsylvania. Mr. Thompson was Dean of the Law School of the University of Pittsburgh. Neither had any knowledge of the liquor business and one of them can be said to have been a pronounced dry. Mr. Wagner, the third member of the Board, was the only one who had any extensive experience in the liquor business and was appointed a member of the Board in March 1934.

They undoubtedly did their best to surround themselves with men familiar with the liquor business. If they failed so to do, it was an error of judgment and consideration must be given to the haste with which they were compelled to organize the system. If they are to be criticized it is not for making mistakes, but for failing later to recognize and correct them. Some of the mistakes, such as the floor tax contracts were forced upon them.

The history of the year 1934 makes it apparent that certain mistakes were repeated continually. Purchases were made which resulted in a tremendous overstocking of goods and frequently the advice of those who should have been heeded was ignored by the Director of Purchases.

It was not until this investigation was begun that any definite steps were taken to reduce the inventory, dispose of unsalable stocks and make the State Stores System a working, profitable business. Re-arrangements have been made in personnel, salaries have been readusted and undoubtedly conditions have been improved. However, it seems to have taken the Board some fifteen months to realize the necessity for these readjustments.

Suggestions

The Committee believes that the members of the Board should be capable men, thoroughly equipped to direct and conduct a chain store business of such magnitude. They, themselves, should be familiar with the business and should not be compelled to select immediate subordinates to manage and control the business from the limited number who qualify for and are able to pass a Civil Service Examination.

Recommendations

The Committee makes the following recommendations:

I—Legislation should be enacted which would

(a) Place control of malt beverages in the Liquor Control Board.

(b) Give the Board discretionary powers as to the opening and closing of the stores between 7.00 A. M. and 11.00 P. M.

(c) Enable liquor licensees to sell for consumption off the premises all malt beverages not to exceed 72 fluid ounces to any one person at any one time

(d) Give the Board limited discretion to refuse licenses on account of proximity to churches, schools, hospitals and other public buildings.

(e) Give the Enforcement Officers of the System the power to arrest.

(f) Enable the Board to transfer a license from one person to another and from one place to another at the same time.

(g) Empower the Board to revoke licenses for proper cause, subject to appeal de novo to the Court of Quarter Sessions and finally to the Superior Court.

(h) Provide for promotion, tenure furlough, reinstatement transfer and discharge for cause of employees.

(i) Permit licensees to sell over the bar.

(j) Give the Board control over alcohol and do not permit the licensee to store alcohol on the premises.

It is the opinion of the Committee that the foregoing recommendations, if enacted into law, will result in the restriction of the activities of bootleggers and a more efficient enforcement of the law.

I. In line with the above suggestions and recommendations the Committee particularly wishes to call attention to the fact that House Bill Nos. 2436 and 2437 embody most of the above recommendations and suggestions.

The Committee discussed these House bills thoroughly with their sponsors, some of whom are members of the Committee; and in addition participated in the study made by the Law and Order Committee of the House of Representatives.

II. It has been suggested that liquor licensees be granted the privilege of selling package goods for consumption off the premises. The Committee cannot recommend such legislation, because it would tend to diminish the profits of the Liquor Stores and relegate them to the position of a commissary.

We further make the following recommendations:

(a) Enactment of House Bill No. 2970 which would authorize the Department of Revenue to grant extension of time for payment of the floor tax until May 31, 1937

(b) Enactment of House Bill No. 2683 which would transfer all the profits of the State Stores System into the General Fund, making that fund liable for Unemployment Relief, Old Age Assistance and Blind Pensions.

(c) Drastic revision of the inventory and accounting methods of the Liquor Control Board in accordance with the Auditor General's report made to the Governor on May 20, 1935.

(d) That the Board institute an adequate system for determining the qualities of liquors purchased.

(e) That the Board institute proper methods for ascertaining the best prices at which liquors can be obtained.

(f) Resumption of the Special Order Business under strict and proper regulation.

(g) A thorough revision of the warehousing contracts at the expiration of those now in effect.

(h) A survey of the rentals and locations of the State Liquor Stores.

(i) A smaller margin of profit on wines in order to stimulate the consumption of beverages having less alcoholic content.

Finally, the Committee recommends that the State Stores System be continued. We believe that the experience of the last year and a half, under conditions in many ways abnormal, has not been sufficient for a fair trial and that a proper estimate of the State Stores System as a permanent agency is not possible at this time. Therefore a further trial is advisable.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

I am signing this report with the following reservations:

(1) I dissent from the view expressed in this report that Judge Gawthrop and Dean Thompson continuously answered questions submitted by Counsel for the committee in an equivocal manner. If in some instances they did not give the desired information it was because they themselves did not have it, and referred same to other persons under their jurisdiction who furnished the desired information.

In further support of this view, I desire to quote the following on Page 13 of this report which is the view of your entire committee:

"There is no evidence of corruption. On the contrary, it must be said that the members of the Board are men of the highest integrity who would not be influenced to do any act in violation of their duties through any corrupt motive."

(2) I do not agree with the majority of the committee that control of malt beverages be placed with the Liquor Control Board. The control of malt bgverages should remain as now provided by law. Beer is a food and should not be under the control of the Liquor System. Also because it takes away local control, and since the money for the malt beverages licenses reverts to the counties, it should be collected by the counties in the first instance.

(3) I further disagree with the committee and its recommendations to give the enforcement officers of the Liquor Control System the power to arrest. This might bring back conditions of the prohibition era with its attendant evils, to which I am sure, the people of Pennsylvania do not wish to revert.

(4) I am unalterably opposed to the recommendations to give the Board power to revoke licenses. This power is now exclusively in the Court of Quarter Sessions. The suggested change would entail unusual hardship and great expense upon the licensees, who are cited for revocation of their license, requiring them to travel to Harrisburg and bring witnesses many miles away from their homes. Furthermore, such power in a political minded Liquor Control Board might be subject to grave abuses.

(5) The majority of the Committee is opposed to the granting to liquor licensees the right to sell package goods for consumption off the premises. I disagree with that. In my apinion the granting of permission to licensees to sell liquor package good is for consumption off the premises after the closing hours of the State Stores would nt only reduce, but would probably eliminate bootlegging entirely.

Finally, I desire to state that I was and I am now opposed to the State being in the "Rum Business." However, in view of the huge investment by the State in the System and the closing hours of the Session. I reluctantly agree with the suggestion of the committee that a further trial be given to the present System.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
